"The Japanese now before Port Arthur," said Col. Novitzky, 'may proceed in three ways. First, an open attack after preparatory artillery fire second, a progressive siege and third, a blockade. I think the Japanese will adopt the first course, as it is not to their advantage to wait while Russian reinforcements are arriving The second method is a long and complicated operation that might last for months.

"Port Arthur, Generally speaking, is impregnable, but impregnability is a relative term. Nothing in fortification is really invincible. Guns will destroy any structure Vauban will defeat each other. Sap can remove impediments outside and fill ditches. Scaling ladders will overcome any walls. Mines can be met with counter mines. A blockade would involve passive activity for many months and an enormous number of troops. Therefore, I believe that the Japanese will attempt to carry the place by assault with the aid of their artillery.

"The Japanese are copying on a larger scale their campaign of 1894. While Gen. Oku is at Port Arthur, Gen. Kuroki, after a juncture with the advancing army landing at Taku Shan, will conduct operations on Hai Ching and New Chwang until they are occupied. I do not believe Gen Kuroki will move against Gen Kuropatkin's main position until he has formed a base at New Chwang."

CANADA AND TREATY MAKING

How Sir Charles Tupper Protected the Canadian Interests.

A RECORD IN EMIGRATION.

The Year 1903 was Distinguished by European Emigration to Canada

London, May 31.—Mr. Thomas Dodgins, writing on Canada and the treaty making power in the Saturday Review, shows that the East India Company, by virtue of their royal charter, exercised independent treaty making power, and also that a former American proprietory charter gave the same power. The colonies' fisheries treaty of 1883 was negotiated by Lord Dufferin, but Sir Charles Tupper, who represented Canada in both negotiations, provided that the prior sanction of Canada should be given before their ratification by the Home Government.

AN EMIGRATION RECORD.

The report of the statistical department of the Board of Trade states that 1903 was distinguished by a large European emigration movement to Canada and South Africa. Canada received 99,582 Europeans, and also 33,000 more British and Irish emigrants than 1902. For the four months ending April 30 the decrease in foreigners passing through British ports for Canada was 6,000, in consequence of the C.P.R. refusing passage to foreign emigrants.

A NEW PHASE OF YELLOW PERIL

Ex-Premier Irvine, of Victoria, Australia, speaking at a dinner of the Australian Merchants, in London, said that should the Russo-Japanese war result in a great dominant Mongolian power in the Far Eastern Seas the British supremacy in Australia would be jeopardized and the situation would have to be faced by a united Empire.

EMPIRE NEEDS PEACE.

The Yorkshire Post says that the Royal Commission's advocacy of conscription and the likelihood that the colonies need all their men for their own defence suggests that the Empire needs a period of rest to chew what it has bitten off.

SATURDAY REVIEW ON EMPIRE DAY.

The Saturday Review declares that it is right enough to celebrate Empire Day, already a great day in the colonies, but regrets that the sentiment attached to the Queen's Birthday is now swallowed up in that of Empire Day.

FRANCE ANGERED AGAINST POPE.

Belief that the Republic will Dissolve the Concordant.

CHURCH AND STATE TO PART

The People Very Bitter Against the Vatican--A Church Crisis.

Rome, May 31.—Of the Pope's circular note of protest against President Loubet's visit to Victor Emanuel III., there seems to be only one opinion, namely, that it was a grave mistake, and augurs ill for the future diplomacy of the Holy See. The pity of it is that the protest was evidently dictated by a sincere, if narrow, piety, and the consequences of this ill-advised expression recalls Pere Hyacinthe's recent criticism, that "nothing is more dangerous in a Pope that piety when it is subjected to the influence of a Secretary of State more or less of a Spaniard and a reactionary." As if to confirm this view, Mgr. Merry del Val's hand is thought to appear in an alteration of the circular letter. The version which reached the French Foreign Office lacked certain minatory phrases which went to all the other chancelleries of the Catholic world. Naturally, this suppression, once discovered, has heightened the offence.

Let us admit that, from his own point of view, the Pope was absolutely right in resenting a recognition of the usurping house of Savoy, which involved the disregard of the Holy See. President Loubet's visit must inevitably have been offensive to the Vatican. But it was highly inexpedient for Pope Pius X. to seek a diplomatic remedy which was no remedy at all. A public reaffirmation of the temporal power, a measured complaint against the Trastevere "captivity," would have shown that the Vatican yielded no point of principle. Such an encyclical need not have mentioned the French visit. The coincidence would have pointed the reference to President Loubet. A letter addressed only to the faithful would not have become a parliamentary order of the day at Paris, whereas the circular note has already provoked serious reprisals in the withdrawing of the French Ambassador to the Vatican, and the whole matter will be laid before the Chamber of Deputies this week to add bitterness to the anti-Clerican agitation.

Already it is rumored that M. Combes will demand the denunciation of the Concordat, with the complete separation of Church and State in France. That he desires this may be safely assumed; that the French Republic can afford to give the Church its liberty, by withholding State support from it, is very doubtful For Napoleon's momentous treaty of 1801 with the predecessor Pope Pius VII. was in some respects merely the logical formulation of principles worked out through many centuries of conflict between the Kings of France and the Popes. From St. Louis's time right had claimed the right of nominating bishops; Louis XIV. was ignominously beaten on that issue; but Napoleon secured the important right beyond the possibility of reasonable dispute, and by nominating bishops under the Concordat France gains a national character for her church and guards against its undue political subservience to the Roman curia. The agreement to pay a fixed stipend to the secular clergy arose naturally out of the revolutionary theory of the Church as a function of the centralized State. The power to discontinue the stipend is the power to regulate the attitude of the priests towards the nation—to reward the loyal and to punish recalcitrants At the comparatively slight expense of $10,000,000 a year, the government of a country still profoundly Catholic at heart becomes at once the protector and the controller of the Church

Imagine the Concordat abolished, and all moral claim to control would vanish. Today the Government peremptorily closes the convents and abolishes the Catholic schools, chiefly because the patron of the Church is necessarily master. On the other hand, any attempt to regulate the bishops or the parish priests, after the Concordat had been abolished, would amount to tyranny. Now the Government has special rights over the Church; then it would have only the general rights it exercises over all citizens and associations. With Church and State fully independent it would be as outrageous to interfere with the Catholic education in France, as it would be with, say, Methodist education in America.

As the case stands, the Catholic Church in France is in admirable condition for its work. Throughout the country parishes one finds cures not only of simple piety and saintly life, but also of fine education and breeding. No one who has observed the work of such men in the country towns, where in many cases the cure is maintained only by the national stipend, would wish to see their enlightening influence withdrawn. Often these men are about the only persons in a village whose life makes positively for morality and ideality of any kind. Largely because of the overt contempt of religion so prevalent in modern France the parish priests generally have developed those heroic qualities which are the fruits of persecution. In the dislocation which would follow the abolition of the Concordat, the Church might suffer in time. Many parishes would be abandoned, the missionary work necessitated by the change would be conducted not by loyal bishops, but in many cases by political bishops, eager only for ecclesiastical advancement. At some distant day the Church might be the better for regaining its freedom; for the present one could anticipate only a considerable loss in spirituality and moral efficiency.

RUSSIA'S BIG BLUFF WON'T GO WITH JAPAN

HER MOBOLIZATION OF TWO MILLION MEN IS A GREAT FAKE

London, May 30.—The statement made by Russia that no European interference would be tolerated in her war with Japan, and that 2,000,000 men were being mobilized, is regarded as a big bluff. The fact that it would be impossible to transport these men—or an considerable portion of them—to the east, makes the statement absurd. Russia is not able financially to keep an army of this proportion in the field. The fall of Port Arthur is close at hand, and the bear is in agony over the prospect. That victory will follow Japan is believed by all British war critics and it will be up to Russia to solicit the good offices of European powers to stop the war. That Russia will drag other nations into the vortex, is most unlikely, even although China joins Japan.

SECOND LINE OF DEFENCE

Russians Fall Back On Their Defences at Port Arthur

Che Foo, May 30.—Considerable delay is anticipated before the Japanese follow up their reported victories on the narrowest part of the Kin Chow isthmus. The fighting, which preceded the fall of Kin Chow must have been exhausting and the ensuing pursuit must have left the Mikado's troops in no condition for a quick descent on General Stoessel's second line of defence. On the left flank, the Russians are protected by the muddy foreshore of Kin Chow Bay; on the right by the fortifications of Dalny, where their main position is strongly fortified by a series of batteries. The Japanese will be compelled not only to make a frontal attack but to encounter the fire of the many guns advantageously placed. Once the Islanders are in possession of Dalny Bay the landing of guns, ammunition and supplies necessary for the siege of Port Arthur, will be a comparatively simple task. The bay is six miles wide and six miles long. It has docking facilities for the the heaviest vessels on the north side. These docks have been fortified by the Russians.

POLICE COURT MATTERS

A Drunk and Disorderly Fined by Police Magistrate Dumble

There was very little doing at the police court yesterday morning and little interest was manifested in the proceedings. Clark was charged with being drunk in a public place on the 21st inst. He was discharged as he was evidently not the party which ought to have been secured.

A young man was charged with being disorderly on the same day as the one above referred to. He pleaded not guilty and was let off.

The next was the case of a youth found guilty of being drunk and disorderly. He was ordered to pay a fine of $2 and costs.

A wage case was next over for a week, and the case of assault (Innis vs. Warren), was withdrawn by the plaintiff.

BOARD OF HEALTH

Bad Water Exhibited—Committee Appointed to Interview Commissioners

The Board of Health met in the town clerk's office yesterday morning. Members present, Messrs. R. Neil, chairman; W. Eyres, A. Parker, Mayor Roger and Dr. McNulty.

The minutes were read and adopted.

A communication was received and read from Mrs. A. M. Campbell, respecting bad water which she is forced to use, and asking that the matter be inquired into.

Mr. Green was present with a sample of water which looked to be very unfit for use.

On motion of the mayor, a committee, composed of the chairman and Mr. Eyres was appointed to interview the Water Commissioners respecting the matter.

A communication was received from Mr. Edward Flaherty, stating that his requests for city water, which were many, had not been complied with, and requesting to be given water as soon as possible.

Several accounts were presented, but were left over until another meeting.

The Board adjourned to meet in committee this evening at 8 o'clock

MANY EXCURSIONS COMING

The First One Billed to be Here on June the 3rd

From present prospects Peterborough will be the objective point for many of the big excursions during the present season. The attractions of the town are evidently having its effect on outsiders, and many will come from places both far and near.

The first one will be that under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church, of the town of Brighton, which will arrive on the 3rd of June, and will include all stations on the G. T. R. line of rail between Brighton and this town. Peterborough is referred to as the coming city in Central Canada, and the attractions promised are: "The largest lift lock in the world," the American Cereal Company's mills, the C. G. E. Works, the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company, Canadian Cordage Co., the Lock Manufacturing Company and Colonial Ink Works.

DEATH OF CAMPBELLFORD MAN

Mr. Thos. O'Sullivan Dies at St. Joseph's Hospital

Mr. Thomas O'Sullivan, of Campbellford, passed away on Sunday night very suddenly at St. Joseph's Hospital, in this town. Deceased came here on the 21th to spend a few days and to endeavor to recuperate from some slight indisposition from which he was suffering. After arriving at the hospital, where his daughter is one of the nurses, and is known as Sister Antonette, pneumonia developed and he passed away very suddenly and very unexpectedly, as up to a few hours before the end came no serious result was feared.

His son, Father Frank O'Sullivan, of Lindsay, formerly of the cathedral here, and Sister Antonette were at his bedside when he breathed his last In addition to the two mentioned above, there are two more sons—George and John—and another daughter, who, with the mother, resides at or near the village of Campbellford, to which place the body was taken for interment. Many of Peterborough's residents will sympathize with the family in their sad and sudden bereavement.

BIG STRIKE BREWING

The Labour Situation At Sydney Becomes More Acute

Sydney, C.B., May 30 — The labor situation is becoming more acute. Little is heard in general conversation for neither the men nor the management of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company are doing much talking, but it is known that both sides have been formulating plans. This does not necessarily mean that there will be a strike. The men say they are determined to get an advance in their rate of pay.

J. H. Plummer, president of the company, is known to be averse to recognizing the Provincial Workmen's Association, though he is willing to deal with the men otherwise. The prevailing opinion appears to be that the difficulty will be adjusted one way or another. The company have until next Tuesday to give their reply to the proposition submitted to them through the Grand Sub-Council of the Provincial Workmens Association.

NO CONSCRIPTION FOR BRITAIN.

Royal Commission's Idea is not Taken Seriously.

WILL HAVE A GOOD EFFECT

The Internal Troubles of Russia--The Spectator Champions Mr. Roosevelt.

London, May 31.—The Royal Commission's recommendation of conscription is startling, of course, but nothing more. Not one Royal Commission out of fifty reaches legislation England certainly will not, in the present generation, see any such adoption of continental methods of compulsory service as the commission proposes. No conceivable government would carry a scheme so radically repugnant to English tradition.

The food tax is potent enough as a political cry, but the cry of a blood tax would be fatal. Moreover, the personnel of the commission carries small weight. The Duke of Norfolk is the chief Roman Catholic peer, and has been postmaster -general. Lord Derby was once Governor-General of Canada. The rest of the commission is mainly military with the addition of a doctrinaire journalist. Mr Spencer Wilkinson, with whose editorial outbursts in the Morning Post the London Conservative world has long been familiar. It is hardly rash to conjecture that this conscription panacea is the outcome of his zeal.

But though conscription is inconceivable, the stir which the report will make probably will lead to good results and compel the War Office to abandon completely the system atic neglect of the volunteer and militia forces, set the officering of these forces on a sounder basis, lead the schools to make military drill part of their regular curriculum, and induce Parliament to abandon the ridiculous notion that business men who are willing to devote their time and skill to the service of their country, must pay $100 to $250 yearly, often more, out of their own pockets.

ALL SHOT DOWN IN FIRST RUSHES

Assault on Nanshan Hill was Bloody Affair.

JAPANESE LOST 3,500 MEN.

Captured Seventy Russian Cannon--Wires Leading to Mines were Cut in Time.

London, May 31.—No further details of the great Japanese victory, beyond what are contained in the official reports, have reached Europe. It is recognized that the Japanese assault on Nanshan Hill was one of the fiercest, most desperate affairs in the history of modern warfare. A Tokio despatch describes how in the earlier Japanese rushes every man participating was shot down before he reached the first line of Russian trenches. It was necessary, therefore, to stop the charges and rake the Russian positions with artillery fire before the final successful assault. The supreme effort was successful, owing to a Japanese detachment more intrepid than the rest piercing the Russian lines. Hundreds of their comrades, inspired by this, sprang forward, and soon the whole Japanese line swept up the hill.

St. Petersburg despatches make it plain that the loss of the Russian reverse was a severe shock, the result of the storming of Kinchou, like most of the incidents of the present war, being wholly unexpected. The military authorities recognise the enormous advantage the possession of Kinchau confers on the Japanese in their operations against Port Arthur, and the fate of the fortress, despite its great strength, is regarded with the utmost despondency. The newspapers, on the other hand, make strenuous efforts to belittle the significance of the engagement, the Novoe Vremya going so far as to say that Kinchau was not fortified to such an extent as would justify the Russians in counting on a long defence. It adds: "Gen Fock abandoned the position after making the Japanese pay dearly. This is shown by his orderly retirement."

It is the Russian press alone, however, that seeks to minimize the Japanese victory. It has created a profound impression in Berlin. The military critic of the Vossische Zeitung says that the news of the battle reads like a chapter of a modern text book on tactics. The battle will become an academical example for analysis in the study of war. English experts are most eulogistic, agreeing that the results of the victory were cheap at the price of the casualty list, heavy as it was.

TRAMP ERADICATOR

An Original Plan Is in Operation at Raleigh

New York, May 30.—The Herald has the following from Raleigh, N. C.: The Town of Seima has discovered an original way of getting rid of tramps. The railway runs straight through the town and along the track is a street half a mile long. Tramps upon arrest are allowed by the mayor to race for freedom, the last man of the contest to go to "the road" for thirty days. Then the tramps are lined up at the Town Hall, while a policeman is at the boundary, half a mile away. The tramps run with all their might and the winners are seen no more, while the watching policeman captures the last man, who is sent to "the roads." It is said that tramps go near the town only once, and that the device for getting rid of them is entirely original

STILL THEY COME

Another Ontario Sensation is now Promised

Toronto May 31.—As a result of a rumor which reached the Ontario License Department a few days ago, an investigation has been commenced which may end in something of a sensation. It is claimed that a certain sum of money was offered or paid over to a Government official of considerable standing in West Pipising in order to secure the issuance of a liquor license.

RUSSIANS LOST SOME DESTROYERS

Three Blown Up Previous to Sinking of Hatsuse.

CORRESPONDENCE CAPTURED

Russian Letters Described Laying of Mines -Yoshino's Captain Stood Gallantly at His Post.

Tokio May 30.—Admiral Togo reports the capture of a junk that was attempting to leave Port Arthur. Letters from Russian officers were found on board of her stating that three torpedo boat destroyers were blown up at the entrance of the harbor on May 21st, and also describing the laying of mines by a torpedo boat destroyer, which sunk the Japanese battleship Hatsuse.

The heavy loss of life which accompanied the sinking of the Japanese cruiser Yoshino, as a result of colliding with the Japanese cruiser Kasuga, on May 15th, was due to the smashing of five of her boats by falling masts.

DESPERATE BRAVERY SHOWN BY JAPANESE

Captured 78 Russian Guns, But Had 3,500 Casualities--Stormed Position Nine Times.

Tokio, May 31.—The details of the heroic fighting at Kin Chou emphasize the heroic tendency of the Japanese in their conduct at Nanshan Hill

Nine successive times the Japanese charged the fortified heights in the face of a storm of death dealing missiles and in the last effort they carried the forts and trenches only after Russians, who made a desperate struggle to beat back the oncoming Japanese.

The final assault of the Japanese which they at last succeeded in taking possession, was marked by the most desperate hand-to-hand encounter that has thus far characterized the war.

THE OSAKA MEN LEAD THE CHARGE

With every Japanese gun directing its fire at the Nanshan forts and trenches, the Japanese infantry sprang over the bodies of those who had sacrificed their lives in previous fruitless charges. The entire line rushed forward towards the Russian left, where the fire of the Japanese squadron had proved most deadly, and which was the first to weaken. It was there that the first breach was made in the human wall that all day had been an invincible barrier to impetuous assaults.

It was the fourth division of the Osaka men that stormed the Russian left. It had once been said that Osaka men were not brave. It will never be said again.

THE FINAL SCENE OF VICTORY.

The first division of Tokio, which had the centre and the third division of Nagoya, covering the left, and which had been exposed all day to the Russian fire, then followed the example of the Osaka men, and, pushing forward, the fight was transformed from an artillery duel to a bayonet conflict. On to every parapet the Japanese surged in increasing numbers, and, hustling the Russians from their entrenchments, swept over the hill. At 7.30 o'clock, as the sun was sinking beneath the horizon, the flag of Japan floated above the blood-soaked Nanshan Hill, while the shouts of "Banzai!" swelled from hill to hill and re-echoed from squadron to fort.

The Japanese paid for their victory with 3,500 killed and wounded. To the Russians, the humiliation of defeat was intensified by the loss of 68 cannon and 10 machine guns, while lying in the forts and trenches were 500 men.

The ship settled quickly after the collision. Captain Gen Sayeki ordered the crew to the upper deck, where they manned the boats. Five boats were lowered on the starboard side and one on the port side, but before the boats were cleared the ship pitched to starboard and began to sink, five of the boats being crushed and sunk.

Capt. Sayeki remained on the bridge and cried "Banzai!" to the sailors as they were entering the boats. When last seen he was shaking hands with Commander Hirowatari and bidding him farewell.

At this moment Lieut Hatto sprang overboard and swam to the other cutter which had escaped from the wreck. He rowed to the cruiser Kasuga and returned with three boats but no trace of the Yoshino or her crew could be found, with the exception of six men, who had been rescued by boats from the cruiser Chitose. The fog was very dense. The Kasuga struck the Yoshino on the port side near the engines, and the force of the blow was so great that the dynamos of the latter's lighting plant were destroyed, leaving the ship in darkness.

Commander Honda, who commanded the fireship Totomi in the successful sealing up of Port Arthur, arrived here to-day. Honda and the entire crew of the Totomi were defeated by the awful commander. Honda did not discover their condition until they were leaving the ship. Honda was forced to make signs indicating his orders, in order to successfully bring the crew back to Vice-Admiral Togo's squadron.

EMIGRANTS ARE POURING TO US

One of London Agent Has Booked 400 Under Cut Rate.

WATCHFULNESS IS NEEDED.

Among the Immigration Inspectors of Canada -Not to Receive Undesirables.

St. Petersburg, May 31.—When the war commenced it was firmly believed that Russia had nearly 200,000 men east of Lake Baikal, and with the utmost confidence it was declared that this number could easily be brought up to 400,000 in two months.

Everybody is now asking: Where are these 400,000 men? It has been stated so frequently, and from so many different sources, that the garrison at Port Arthur numbers less than 20,000 men, that Gen. Kuropatkin has well under 100,000 men at Liaoyang and Mukden, and that Vladivostock is garrisoned by only a couple of regiments, that these figures have come to be regarded as approximately correct.

If, then, the whereabouts of less than 120,000 men are known, what has become of the odd 80,000, which were in the far east at the outbreak of war, and where are the thousands of reinforcements that have undoubtedly been entrained since February?

Every week—almost every day—since the war began troop trains have left all the principal military centres to start on the long journey by the Trans-Siberian Railway, but they do not seem to have ever reached their destination.

The explanation is probably that thousands of men are stranded at intermediate stations on the railway, waiting for trains to take them on to Harbin, and that thousands more are scattered along the lines from Harbin to Mukden and Harbin to Vladivostock, guarding the communications.

Thus Gen. Kuropatkin finds himself the centre of Japanese attack with about 100,000 men to oppose double that number, while the rest of his forces are scattered over hundreds of miles of territory, and consequently useless.

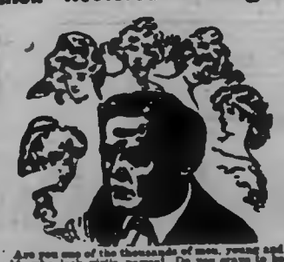
Men Restored to Vigor



Are you one of the thousands of men, young and old, who look victim power? Do you crave to be robust and vigorous, to have perfect manhood? Thousands know they are weak and impotent, but neglect to take the right steps to regain their full vigor and strength. Are you one of them?

Thousands suffer in ignorance of their real condition, believing themselves to be strong and well when they are far from it. Perhaps you are one of them. It is worth your time to ascertain your true condition of health. If you have any reason to doubt or suspect that you are not what you once were.

If you belong to either class mentioned above, do not be discouraged. Do not lose hope. Help is within your reach. You can be cured. Vim, vigor and vitality, health and happiness have been given to men who had been reduced to physical wrecks.

Be Honest With Yourself.

If you have been a victim to the follies and indiscretions of youth, committed excesses in married life, if you doubt your strength, it is your duty—your duty to those you love and who love you—to at once, today, consult an honest, reliable, recognized physician—a specialist who has a record for CURING weak men. But do not go astray. Consult no quack. Take no patent "Cure All." No two cases are precisely alike. Every individual needs a treatment particularly suited to him. He where you can get the right treatment for your case.

Cure Yourself at Home.

If there is no successful specialist near you, write at once to Dr. Goldberg, the noted specialist. He is the possessor of 16 diplomas and certificates which he received from medical colleges and state boards of medical examiners and he will send you his method free, to use in the privacy of your own home. It does not interfere with traveling, as it can be taken with convenience anywhere.

If you have stricture, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc., or any complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, etc., write the doctor and if he accepts your case for treatment it is equivalent to a cure, as he never accepts an incurable case for treatment, and remember you may

Pay When You Are Cured.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor at once and confidentially lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as his booklet on the subject, containing the 16 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply:

Dr. S. Goldberg, 208 Woodward Ave., Room 189 Detroit Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you free, in a plain, sealed package.

HANGING OR ELECTROCUTION.

As the Illinois State Bar Association, now in session at Bloomington, has taken up for consideration the substition of electrocution for hanging as the death penalty in this State, it is probable that the discussion will become general.

According to Elmer E. Rogers, who has prepared the resolution on the subject, the main advantage claimed for electrocution over hanging is that it is less revolting, and this claim can hardly be made good. If hanging were as private as electrocution it would be no more revolting. If electrocution were as public as hanging it would be just as revolting. That a recent electrocution in New York the scenes presented were so horrible that one of the physicians in attendance fainted, and that is more than anyone ever did at a hanging.

Electrocution seems also to occupy an inconsistent position. It has come into use on the theory that it is sufficient punishment to a criminal to deprive him of life, without inflicting any pain on him or shocking the sensibilities of the community in the method of execution, for death could be produced by opiates or anaesthetics, with ten times less trouble, expense and shock to the sensibilities.

The truth is that public sentiment is not yet ready to abandon a painful method of execution as the punishment for outrageous crime. Human nature has a wholesome dread of the halter, the gallows and the drop. Executions ought to take place at the penitentiary and in private, but society is not yet ready to offer euthanasia to pirates and bandits and murderers.

DR. BROWER AND MRS. EDDY.

Dr. D. R. Brower, of New York city, is an expert alienist with a reputation at stake and would never have gone out of his way to declare as he did recently in the United States high court, that Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy and Dr. John A. Dowie were paranoiacs and irresponsible for anything they did, unless he meant what he said.

His opinion on this subject would have been more valuable, perhaps, if both of these public characters were not "healers" and therefore under the ban of the medical profession, but even without subjecting it to this discount it will go for very little among reflecting people, at least in regard to Mrs. Eddy, though Dr. Dowie, it must be admitted, has laid himself open to an open by claiming that he is the prophet Elijah.

If Mrs. Eddy is insane it must appear from her conduct, from her theories or from the results of her work. As to her conduct, it is the exact opposite of insanity. Although she is the object of almost adoring reverence to more people than any other woman that ever lived, with one exception, she lives in seclusion, and exhibits an aversion to show, parade, servility or flattery. Paranoiacs do not minimize and efface themselves in this way.

Mrs. Eddy's theories are considered by those who do not understand them as illogical, inconsistent and wanting in frankness, and some of these alleged defects may be referred to. The central idea of Christian Science is the healing of disease, and this healing is based on the alleged unreality of disease and pain.

This unreality of disease appears to be based on the unreality of the body itself, which is philosophical idealism, but whenever commercial idealism is repudiated. Diseases are said to be impossible also because men are one with God and God cannot have disease or pain, but by the time the impression is made that the system is based on philosophical pantheism Mrs. Eddy repudiates pantheism also.

This healing is based on the doctrine that God is the only mind, but before we have assented to that idea we are told of a "mortal mind" which is responsible for all these delusions which we call sickness and disease, and what this "mortal mind" is we are never clearly told.

It is not explained how it is that when "mortal mind" deludes a person into the belief that he has the smallpox the whole community abates the delusion. As diseases are mental errors, they are to be extirpated by mental treatment and not by material drugs, though drugs seem to be the only material substances recognized. The shady distinction between drugs on the one hand and foods and hygiene on the other seems to be ignored.

Now, we may put the worst possible construction on these alleged inconsistencies, but we cannot make insanity out of them. They bear no make of an unbalanced mind, but only of a woman's mind, and this woman may have discovered something of priceless value which she is unable adequately to explain or express.

It would be useless to deny that by means of this alleged inconsistent and shallow theory many wonderful cures of disease have been effected in the last ten years. The Christian Science church is made up almost entirely of people who have been cured of serious maladies by Christian Science treatment. Surely there is nothing here to suggest the paranoiac.

When we come to the Christian Science church it is one of the surest things now in existence. Whether we consider the rapidity of its growth, the respectability of its membership, the size of its congregations, the beauty of its temples, the cheerfulness of its people or the fact that it has never passed a contribution box or a subscription list and never dedicated a house of worship until it was paid for, it would be an insult to reason to say that it had its origin and inspiration in the mind of a paranoiac.

Rheumatism Conquered!

DRIVEN FROM THE SYSTEM BY ELIMINATING POISONOUS URATES IN THE BLOOD

Stubborn Cases Quickly Relieved, Chronic Sufferers Absolutely Cured by an Internal Remedy

This disease originates in the blood. Its the poisons in the blood that cause the pain. Get rid of these poisons and you cure the pain. Doesn't that seem logical.

These poisons are composed largely of uric acid which dissolves and quickly passes out of the system if Ferrozone is employed, it being a complete and perfect solvent for all the poisons that give rise to rheumatic pain. No case is too chronic no person too old to be forever released from the agonies of rheumatism if Ferrozone is used; it cures after all other treatments proved useless. You may have been disappointed with other remedies. But don't let this defer you from using Ferrozone. It's not like the ordinary "cure"—it possesses peculiar qualities not found in any other remedy.

FERROZONE CURES RHEUMATISM

Mr. Edgar F. Richmond, an old and well known resident of Winchester says: "My endorsement of Ferrozone is cheerfully given for I know that I am speaking for a sure cure for rheumatism. Ferrozone cured me so the pain didn't come back again. I honestly believe that no medicine on the face of the globe can do as much for rheumatism as Ferrozone."

Mrs. D. J. Thurston, of Burton, P. O., writes: "As a long sufferer from rheumatism I can say that Ferrozone is the most satisfactory remedy that I used. Quite frequently would get a bad attack and be laid up in bed. Ferrozone removed every trace of the disease and I have been well ever since."

Ferrozone is beyond all question the proper remedy to use in rheumatism. There is none better. Beware of substitutes and don't allow a druggist to palm off something he may say is just as good. Insist on having Ferrozone, use it as directed and you will be cured. Price 50c, per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all druggists or by mail, from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

FUN IN YOUR FINGERS.

Tricks That Appear Simple, but Are Sometimes Impossible.

It is interesting to see what tricks can be done with one's fingers.

These seem simple enough just to look at, but when one comes to try doing them, my, how hard some of them are!

Fig. 1 shows a stunt that a good many people can do; but others can't do it at all, no matter how hard they try. It consists of pressing close together the two intermediate joints of the middle fingers of your two hands while the ends of the other fingers and the thumbs are together. Then separate the thumbs and move them up end down. Next join the thumb and try the same thing with the little fingers. So far, easy enough. Your friends will smile and say, "Oh, give us something hard!" "All right," you may say. "Now try the same thing with the ring fingers." This will prove too much for most of our friends. They will find that they cannot separate the ring fingers without at the same time separating the intermediate joints of the middle fingers.

Fig. 2 shows you something that is very difficult for some people. Form one group of the middle and index fingers and another of the little fingers and ring fingers. Then bring these two groups together and separate them like scissors without disturbing either group.

Fig. 3 shows a stunt that many people find impossible to do. This is to bend the end joint of your index finger, keeping the other joints all straight. Try it. Very likely you will find you can do it with one hand, but not with the other.

Then there is the last stunt—to turn the little finger in, keeping all the other fingers stretched out and close together.

Puffy Eyes.

Puffy places under the eyes are usually due to some kidney disorder. Cold water should be taken freely, say a glassful half an hour before each meal and about two hours afterward. This treatment will not only cause the flabbiness to disappear, but will also render the complexion clear and the general health better.

THE INSURGENTS WIN FIGHT.

Dominican Minister of War Among the Killed.

Cape Haytien, May 30.—A serious battle was fought to-day between the Dominican troops and the revolutionists at Esperanza, on the road from from Monte Cristi to Santiago, near Mao.

The revolutionists were victorious. Many were killed or wounded on both sides. General Raoul Cabrera, minister of war who commanded the government troops, was killed and his body taken to Navarette.

The revolutionists are before Navarette, where another battle will be fought. The government troops are waiting for reinforcements.

The United States cruiser Detroit and the gun boat Newport are off Monte Cristi.

RUSSIAN ACTIVITY

The Japanese Again Successful in a Light Engagement.

Feng Huang Cheng, Manchuria, via telegraph to Fusan, Corea, May 28.—Increased activity characterizes all the movements of the Russians in the neighborhood of Sionyen. Small parties appear daily moving in the direction of Takushan, though there is no evidence of a big movement. All is quiet seven miles to the north of Feng Huang Cheng, on the road to Liao Yang. A large force of Russian cavalry suddenly appeared yesterday five miles to the northeast of Feng Huang Cheng, but being promptly met by a strong detachment of Japanese infantry, retired in some haste.

Stockholm, May 28. — Russian attempts to bluff Sweden into abandoning its project for fortifying the east coast of Gotland have only elicited from the authorities here a declaration that the kingdom means to take all measures advisable for securing the neutrality of Swedish waters. The charge made by the Russians that submarines have been built in Sweden for the Japanese Government have been officially denied.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district, The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups; namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 30 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 570 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflict as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78½ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory	758½ acres
" " Mill and building sites	55 "
" " Timber properties	90 "
Total	903½ acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

Complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government from which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

Total cost of development to date, present management,	$53,000 00
" " " " " former owners -	18,000.00
" " surface improvements, buildings, saw mill plant, horses, wagons, ore cars, track, tools, etc. -	17,000.00
" " Machinery paid for and to be installed - -	6,000.00
	$99,000 00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $26,000.00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet. We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 200 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver. These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built.

In the meantime only the high grade Smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will aid us materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905, and be continuous thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock, the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3.50 to $4.00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our stockholders. These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments. By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18.00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of production is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,
ROBERT HARRISON.

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

not be easy until she got me here, where I know I am not wanted, at least one would be glad to have me leave."

Mr. Carrollton looked inquiringly at her, and Anna continued: "I fully supposed I was to be a companion for Margaret, but instead of that she treats me with the utmost coolness, making me feel keenly my position as a dependent."

"That does not seem at all like Maggie," said Mr Carrollton, and with a meaning smile far more expressive than words, Anna answered: "She may not always be alike, but hush! don't I hear bells?" and she ran to the window, saying as she resumed her seat: "I thought they had come, but I was mistaken. I dare say Maggie has coaxed her grandmother to drive by the postoffice, thinking there might be a letter from Henry Warner."

Her manner affected Mr. Carrollton perceptibly, but he made no reply, and Anna asked "if he knew Mr. Warner?"

"I saw him in Worcester, I believe," he said, and Anna continued: "Do you think him a suitable husband for a girl like Maggie?"

There was a deep flush on Arthur Carrollton's cheek, and his lips were whiter than their wont as he answered: "I know nothing of him, neither did I suppose Miss Miller ever thought of him for a husband."

"I know she did at one time," said his tormentor, turning the leaves of her book, with well-feigned indifference. "It was not any secret, or I should not speak of it, of course, Madam Conway was greatly opposed to it, too, and forbade her writing to him, but how the matter is now, I do not positively know, though I am quite sure they are engaged."

"Isn't it very close here? Will you please to open the hall door?" said Mr. Carrollton, suddenly panting for breath, and, satisfied with her work, Anna did as desired, and then left him alone.

"Maggie engaged!" he exclaimed, "engaged, when I was hoping to win her for myself!" and a sharp pang shot through his heart as he thought of giving to another the beautiful girl who had grown so into his love. "But I am glad I learned it in time," he continued, hurriedly walking the floor, "knew it ere I had done Henry Warner a wrong by telling her of my love, and asking her to go with me to my English home, which will be desolate without her. This is why she repulsed me in the woods. She knew I ought not to speak of love to her. Why didn't I see it before, or why has not Madam Conway told me the truth? She at least has deceived me," and with a feeling of keen disappointment he continued to pace the floor, one moment resolving to leave Hillsdale at once, and again thinking how impossible it was to tear himself away.

Arthur Carrollton was a perfectly honorable man, and once assured of Maggie's engagement, he would neither by word or deed do aught to which the most fastidious lover could object, and Henry Warner's rights were as safe with him as with the truest of friends. But was Maggie really engaged? Might there not be some mistake? He hoped so at least, and alternating between hope and fear, he waited impatiently the return of Maggie, who, with each thought of losing her, seemed tenfold dearer to him than she had ever been before; and when at last she came bounding in, he could scarcely refrain from folding her in his arms, and asking of her to think again ere she gave another than himself the right of calling her his bride. But she is not mine, he thought, and so he merely took her cold hands within his own, rubbing them until they were warm. Then seating himself by her side upon the sofa, he spoke of her ride, asking casually if she called at the postoffice.

"No, we did not drive that way," she answered, readily, adding that the postoffice had few attractions for her now, as no one wrote to her save Theo.

She evidently spoke the truth, and with a feeling of relief Mr. Carrollton thought that possibly Miss Jeffrey might have been mistaken; but he would know at all hazards, even though he ran the risk of being thought extremely rude. Accordingly, that evening, after Mrs. Jeffrey and Anna had retired to their room, and while Madam Conway was giving some household directions in the kitchen, he asked her to come and sit by him as he lay upon the sofa, himself placing her chair where the lamplight would fall fully upon her face and reveal its every expression. Closing the piano, she complied with his request, and then awaited in silence for what he was to say.

"Maggie," he began, "you may think me bold, but there is something I very much wish to know, and which you, if you choose, can tell me. From what I have heard, I am led to think you are engaged. Will you tell me if this is true?"

The bright color faded out of Maggie's cheek, while her eyes grew darker than before, and still she did not speak. Not that she was angry with him for asking her that question; but because the answer, which, if made at all, must be yes, was hard to utter. And yet why should she hesitate to tell him the truth at once?

Alas, for thee, Maggie Miller! The fancied love you feel for Henry Warner is fading fast away. Arthur Carrollton is a dangerous rival, and even now you cannot meet the glance of his expressive eyes without a blush! Your better judgment acknowledge his superiority to Henry long ago, and now in your heart there is room for none save him.

"Maggie," he said, again stretching out his hand to take the unresisting one which lay upon her lap, "you need not make me other answer save that so plainly written on your face. You are engaged, and may Heaven's blessing attend both you and yours."

At this moment Madam Conway appeared, and, fearing her inability to control her feelings longer, Maggie precipitately left the room. Going to her chamber, she burst into a passionate fit of weeping, one moment blaming Mr Carrollton for having learned her secret, and the next chiding herself for wishing to withhold from him a knowledge of her engagement.

"It is not that I love Henry less, I am sure," she thought, and, laying her head upon her pillow, she recalled everything which had passed between herself and her affianced husband, trying to bring back the olden happiness with which she had listened to his words of love. But it would not come, there was a barrier in the way, Arthur Carrollton as he looked when he said so sadly: "You need not tell me, Maggie."

"Oh, I wish he had not asked me that question," she sighed. "It has put such dreadful thoughts into my head. And yet I love Henry as well as ever. I know I do, I am sure of it, or, if I do not, I will," and repeating to herself again and again the words, "I will, I will," she fell asleep.

Will, however, is not always subservient to one's wishes, and during the first few days succeeding the incident of that night Maggie often found herself wishing that Arthur Carrollton had never come to Hillsdale, he made her so wretched, so unhappy. Insensibly, too, she became a very little unamiable, speaking pettishly to her grandmother, disrespectfully to Mrs. Jeffrey, haughtily to Anna, and rarely to Mr. Carrollton, who, after the lapse of two or three weeks, began to talk of returning home in the same vessel with Anna Jeffrey, at which time his health would be fully restored. Then, indeed, did Maggie awake to the reality that while her hand, was plighted to one, she loved another—not as in days gone by she had loved Henry Warner, but with a deeper, more absorbing love. With this knowledge, too, there came the thought that Arthur Carrollton had once loved her, and but for the engagement now so much regretted, he would ere this have told her so. But it was too late! too late! He would never feel toward her again as he once had felt, and bitter tears she shed as she contemplated the fast coming future, when Arthur Carrollton would be gone, or, shuddering, thought of the time when Henry Warner would return to claim her promise.

"I cannot, cannot marry him," she cried, "until I've torn that oth-

LESSONS FOR RUSSIANS PUPILS

CAUSES AND SIGNIFICANCE OF THE FAR EAST WAR

London, May 30.—The Times has the following from a correspondent in Russia.—The Russian Ministry of Public Instruction has issued a circular instructing directors of the secondary schools to install in them of the pupils a carefully elaborated theory of the origin and significance of the present war. The Russian Government has made several attempts to state its policy in a form which might render it acceptable in the eyes of the western world, but the foundations of this policy have never been set forth with such clearness as in the circular of the Ministry of Education.

RUSSIA'S LAUDABLE MOTIVE.

Secondly, it must be shown that the relations between Russia and the aboriginal inhabitants of the colonised countries have from time immemorial been kindly and fraternal in the Christian sense, contrasting favorably, it is stated, with the relations maintained by the nations of western Europe and United States with the aborigines of their colonial possessions. In this connection attention is directed to the present condition of the Negroes in the United States and the native population of the Philippines. The civilizing activity of Russia in Asia is said to be immense, and arousing the wonder and envy of the world. Thirdly, the pupils are to be taught that Russian wars always proceed from laudable motives, while those of western European nations are pre-eminently selfish and grasping in character. In the fourth place it is to be pointed out that the Russian people are possessed by an eternal, natural and legitimate desire to reach an outlet to the sea. Fifthly, it must be taught that at the end of the nineteenth century the world's historical operations were transferred from the shores of seas to the shores of oceans, and the Russians, by building a railway across the Asiatic continent, acquired rights in the far east which she supplemented by peacefully leasing Port Arthur from China.

BRITAIN AND U. S. BLAMED.

Sixthly, it should be impressed upon the pupils that it was absolutely necessary for Russia to occupy Manchuria in order to protect her railway and other interests. Seventhly, it must be explained that one effect of the transformation of Manchuria by Russia was to provoke a desire in English and American capitalists to expel from Manchuria the great civilizing Russia, and come into possession of the country themselves, and enjoy the fruits of Russian enterprise. Finally, the pupils must be impressed that the United States and Britain have thrust forward as an opponent to Russia, Japan, a nation dangerous to themselves as their competitor in industry and sea going commerce, the expectation being that the war will weaken both combatants, and render it easier for the British and Americans to further their own interest. This is the substance of the educational scheme devised for the instruction of Russian schoolboys as to the origin of the war with Japan.

THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH.

The Required Amount of Money is now subscribed.

The required amount of money has been subscribed for the celebration of the Twelfth of July—the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne—in Peterborough. About $450 has been secured, contributed by Catholics and Protestants alike, which sum will be used in the erection of arches and other decorations.

It is expected that fully 10,000 Orangemen will attend the celebration. They will not include a vast number of people who do not belong to the order.

NOW IN OPERATION

Peterborough Has a New Industry in Taylor & Co's Cement Works

Taylor & Company's new cement works situated on Victoria avenue, in the northern part of the town is now in daily operation, and visitors desirous of seeing the same in running order or wishing to inspect the product as it is turned out, may do so. The works are on the southern side of the Hilliard property, a part of which was purchased by the council, for the purpose.

Mr. W. Taylor, who is a practical workman in the several lines made, carried on an extensive brick yard in Beaverton, as well as a saw mill and other works. He is assisted by Mr. Warren Hall, who looks after the labor employed, and who is an enthusiast as to the success of the undertaking.

The structures are quite close to the stone, gravel and sand pits, which furnish no small or inconsiderable portion of the raw material used in the production of the line of goods made. An elevator conveys these materials into the building, and to a series of screens situate on the second floor, through which they fall into quarters, until they are finally separated into the sizes, when they drop down into cells or pits ready for the mixers. A twenty horse power motor drives the machinery, but the mixing of the material is done by hand, and put into moulds for the various kinds of articles desired, such as sewer pipes, door steps, window sills, building blocks, etc., when the moulds are removed and the several articles thus made are dried in the sun ready for use. This latter requires very little time, and they are then stowed away in piles ready for delivery or shipment, as occasion requires.

SPRING CROPS IMPROVE

Reports Indicate a Brighter Agricultural Outlook Since the 15th.

Reports being received by the Department of Agriculture indicate that there has been an improvement in the the spring crops since the 15th of the month, the date to which the recently issued report was complete. Some localities say that despite the late spring there is now more vegetation than is the average at this date. There has too in many localities been a surprisingly recuperative power shown by the fall wheat and clover.

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non-assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details. The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion, Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

TERRIBLE SLAUGHTER OF MEN IN BATTLE AT KIN CHOU

Japanese Lost Close on to 4,000 Men-- Russian Loss Not Yet Ascertained but It is Thought to be Very Heavy Four Hundred of Their Dead were left on the Battle Field

Tokio May 29.—The Russians have abandoned Nan Quay Ling and have been driven from Simchilipy, retreating towards Port Arthur.

The Japanese have captured fifty cannon.

The Russians left 400 dead in the the Kin Chou Nan-han fight On the Japanese side the killed and wounded number 3000.

AN OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

Washington, May 29.—The following cablegram from the Foreign Office at Tokio was received at the Japanese legation to-day.

Tokio, May 29.—The commander of the army attacking Kin Chou reports that a detachment of our troops consisting of infantry, artillery and engineers, occupied Nan Kwan Ling on the morning of May 27.

"The enemy fled in the direction of Port Arthur, after burning a railway station at Shan Shi Hi Tao, a rail west of Dalny.

"On the 26th our troops captured 50 guns, besides many other things.

"The number of the enemy's dead alone and left in the field amount to 400. Our casualties including dead and wounded is estimated at 3,000."

DALNY NOW ISOLATED.

Rome, May 29.—According to a despatch from Tokio, received here, the Japanese have attacked the town of Talien Wan. Their occupation of the junction of the Dalny railway with the main Port Arthur line, it is added, isolates Port Dalny.

DETAILS OF THE FIGHTING.

Further details of the fighting, in addition to those already published show that it lasted all Wednesday and Thursday, and was characterized by great ferocity. The Japanese captured Kin Chou on Thursday morning, and then pressed on to Nan Shan Hill, which was the strongest part of the Russian line. A series of batteries, strongly emplaced crowned its crest, while rifle pits extended around its sides. Mines had been placed lower down on the hill, and on the eastern sides were stretched well made wire entanglements. The Japanese made a series of assaults before the Russians finally yielded the position. They centred their fire on the Russian batteries, in which they were aided by four gun boats from Kin Chau Bay and succeeded in silencing many of the enemy's guns.

The Russians had constructed a series of trenches around the hill on a terrace protected by wire entanglements and other such devices. The Japanese made a series of rushes, but they were in vain. The deadly rifle and cannon fire of the enemy checked them repeatedly.

TAKEN AT BAYONET POINT.

Finally at three o'clock in the afternoon the Japanese reformed and stormed the crest of the hill. The Russians held to their positions doggedly, and it was seven o'clock in the evening before the Japanese finally gained possession of the ridge at the point of the bayonet. The Tokio correspondent of the London Morning Post remarks that the Japanese attack was similar to that against the Chinese in 1894, but, according to the Tokio correspondent of the London Express the stand made by the Russians does not compare favorably with that made by the Chinese.

FOUGHT AGAINST GREAT ODDS.

A Japanese officer of high rank made the following statement:

"The Japanese in attacking Kinchau and Nanshan Hill had to fight against great odds. The Russians were in full command of the strategic advantages afforded by nature and these advantages were augmented by the newest inventions for defence. The forts on Nanshan Hill were armed with heavy guns. The Japanese had only field guns being unavailable on account of the difficulties of transportation. Our army deserves great credit for having driven the Russians from this stronghold. It was a feat previously considered to have been impossible.

"I fear our losses have been heavy but we have gained the strongest point barring our way to the investment of Port Arthur."

NEARING PORT ARTHUR.

The Tokio correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph says he learns that the Japanese troops are now within twelve miles of Port Arthur. He predicts a further surprise, as Japan is now increasing her efforts in all directions. Some experts believe that the Japanese will now rest for a few days; other predict that they will press on and storm Port Arthur, no matter what the cost. A division of veterans of the Chinese War have been landed for that purpose.

JAPAN'S DIFFICULT TASK

St. Petersburg, May 29—Capt. Jakovloff former commander of the Russian battleship Petropavlovsk who was wounded when his ship was destroyed at Port Arthur on April 13, in an interview regarding the possibility of the Japanese capturing Port Arthur, declared that it would take 150,000 men with magnificent artillery, to accomplish the task.

Asked as to the number of men in the Port Arthur garrison Captain Jakoloff said it was much larger than was stated in the telegraphic reports—much over 25,000; but he declined to state what would be the exact number when the defenders of Kin Chou positions retired within the fortress.

MANY BATTLES TO BE FOUGHT.

He dilated with some detail the difficulties of the approach. After the outer line of fortifications is reached said he, a great number of detached positions must be captured before the enemy could even reach the inner ring of defences. The taking of each position would necessitate a bloody battle, and their capture would leave the citadel untouched, and, to his mind, impregnable.

A great deal, of course, would depend upon the relative merits of the artillery of the opposing forces. The Russian guns could not be judged by the results of the Yalu; where the Russians had only light advance guard artillery against the heavy siege guns which the Japanese were bringing up for use in Manchuria. Port Arthur, Captain Jakoleff said, had mounted numerous large guns landwards, while Makaroff's system of range finding is so nearly perfect that the Japanese never ventured within reach of the shore batteries.

PROVISIONED FOR A YEAR.

In investigating the fact that the Japanese artillery is not increasing in range, the capture and the destruction of Port Arthur was attributed by a British naval attache to the fact that the Japanese army was provisioned to a depth of only two miles.

He declared that Port Arthur was provisioned for a year, and said all the damaged ships there had been repaired, except the battleship and the battleship the latter he described ought to be ready to-day, and the former within a week.

Tokio May 29.—Revised figures show that 51 non-commissioned officers and 378 blue jackets were killed and drowned, 7 officers and 10 non-commissioned officers and 90 blue jackets slightly wounded, and 16 blue jackets seriously wounded in the sinking of the Japanese battleship Hatsuse by a mine off Port Arthur on May 15. Two hundred and thirty-five non-commissioned officers and men lost their lives on the cruiser Yoshino when she was rammed and sunk by the cruiser Kasuga on the same day the Hatsuse was blown up. The Navy Department has not yet received a detailed report of the two disasters.

ARE SURPRISED.

New Chwang, May 29.—A staff officer just from Mukden says the deliberation and precision of the enemy has surprised General Kuropatkin, who at first believed the Japanese campaign would be one of dashing recklessness, with more theatrical display about the manoeuvres than strategy.

A Chinese merchant, who left Dalny five days ago, says the Russians have vacated the town, which at the time of his departure had not been occupied by the Japanese forces. The latter were still engaged in landing troops at Kin Chau Bay. It is said upon excellent authority that the Japanese plan is to use a force of 100,000 men in their operations against Port Arthur, and take it by storm in a fortnight. They realize that their losses in the execution of this plan will be severe, but it is considered better to risk that than to keep a large army idle for three months. They do not propose, it is further said, to penetrate into the interior of the country any further than Mukden.

The Russian authorities have secured two million pounds in coin by French steamer.

MANY CLERKS DISMISSED

Period of Hard Times Have Struck Wall Street

New York, May 30.—Hard times have struck Wall street, and, according to one of the largest operators on the Stock Exchange to-day, more than 2,500 clerks have been dismissed from various offices in the last two weeks. Many of these men have not known a day of idleness in a score of years, and now they find themselves without employment and no prospects of obtaining any until prosperity returns to the street. Such a period of depression has not been experienced in Wall street in many years, and entrenchments have been ordered throughout the district. Nearly all the big brokerage concerns and banking houses found it necessary to reduce working forces. A member of the Exchange said there was no prospect of improvement in business for the present at least. Brokerage and banking houses are doing 30 per cent. less business than a year ago.

TO SET ASIDE BIG LAND GRANTS

The New Temiskaming Sub Commission Has Important to Do.

Toronto, May 30.—Town sites of 1000 acres each, to be selected along the line of the Temiskaming Railway, adjacent to stations or proposed stations, and a land grant of 4,000,000 acres along the 200 miles of the line, and its delimitation into townships, are the two questions to be dealt with by a new sub-commission under the Temiskaming railway commissioners which was appointed yesterday.

Three of the sub-commissioners have been chosen, Aubrey White, deputy-minister of crown lands, being chairman, and Hon. E. J. Davis naming Thomas W. Gibson, director of mines, and Thomas Southworth, director of colonization, and the commission will appoint the other two.

Only a part of the land grant is likely to be set apart at first, and the price per acre of this will be determined by the sub-commission.

It is claimed that much of the district is very rich in minerals, and these will be sold with the land. All timber, except pine, will also go with the land.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

of which I am the authorised agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:- The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals — the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 235 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gifts; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

Toronto, December 10, 1903.

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company

of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless y cally are interested, because ou waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than ratify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $110 per ton, and the Company owns 9,000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $38.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 50 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

75 Cents Per Share, Par Value $1.00

INVESTORS are afforded every opportunity for the strictest investigation regarding the property and the reputation of the officers and directors. Highest banking references.

Has 10 Gold-bearing Veins Exposed
90 Acres in a Solid Block and All Patented
Crosscut Driven 117 feet to the First Big Vein

A drift run on the vein 178 FEET IN ORE, the Gold value or contents running from 2 to 8 ounces, per ton, or from $40 to $160. This ore has not been stoped and will not be until the main shoot is reached.

The breast of the drift is, only 52 feet, according to engineer's survey, from the first BIG vertical ore shoot, which, at the surface, 550 feet above, shows values of 2 to 7 ounces gold, per ton.

Slabs and feeders of gold ore are coming in freely in the drift.

This is a business proposition. It is the KIND AND QUALITY which makes for great and permanent success. It is worth an investment of 10c. on the dollar, per share, now. It will be worth par with development.

PROGRESS OF THE CAMPAIGN

It is evident that the capture of Kinchou and Nan-shan Hill by the Japanese, after a series of stiff engagements, and of the Russian positions to the south of the town, is a rather heavy blow for the defenders of Port Arthur. The Russians evidently hoped by fortifying strongly the line of hills, of which Nan-shan, 2,200 feet high, was the key, to hold the Japanese back for a considerable time from their main defences. There were quite a number of 7.8 guns in position, weapons corresponding to the British 9-inch weapon. The range of these guns from the places where they were mounted was five miles. The entire number of Russian guns used, large and small, was fifty-two, while rifle pits, wire entanglements and mines completed a very formidable defence. The Japanese for some time tried in vain to discover the calibre and position of the Russian guns, and finally adopted the expedient of manoeuvring their men so as to draw fire, and by picking up fragments of the shells ascertain the calibre of the guns. Having secured this information they prepared for battle, set up guns to reply to the Russian fire, and on Wednesday, as at the Yalu, their artillery had a duel with the Russian guns. On Thursday gun boats were called in on both sides, three Japanese ships firing from the west side of the peninsula in Kinchow Bay, and a Russian gun boat from the east in Talienwan Bay. The Japanese infantry was launched against Kinchow early on Thursday morning and captured the town. That night, pressing forward, the Japanese stormed Nanshan Hill, rifle pits, wire entanglements, big guns, mines and all.

The battle is described as a bloody affair, the early Japanese rushes being checked by a deadly fire. It was only after they had been sixteen hours under fire that the Japanese gained possession of the ridge. Of the material results of the victory it is rather early to speak. Many of the Russian big guns must have been captured, but they would, of course, be rendered useless by the removal of the breech mechanism. In the pursuit of the fleeing Russians the Japanese probably inflicted losses that would in some measure repay them for the very great loss of life that must have been incurred by them in the storming of Nanshan Hill. The Russians talk of a Japanese loss of 12,000 in killed and wounded. That is nonsense. There were probably not more than 25,000 men all told engaged on the Japanese side, and one in six would be a heavy bill in killed and wounded. In any event General Oku can bring up men to replace his losses, while every Russian put out of action is a loss that cannot be replaced—a rifleman or gunner the less to withstand the last great rush.

THE SCHEME IN OUTLINE.

The scheme upon which these lessons are to be based stands under eight principal divisions. The first to be set forth is the expansion of territory. This is stated to be a natural outcome of a geographical condition, which seems to invite the spread of the Russian sway to the east, which has been going on for over half a century of continual contact with ethnographical elements of slight texture and a low order of civilization, and which constitutes no natural hindrance to the peaceful expansion of the Russian race.

ANOTHER ARMY CORPS MOBILIZED OF JAPAN

PLENTY OF MEN TO PROTECT GEN. KUROKI'S BASE AND STRENGTHEN HIM AT WEAK POINTS

London, May 30.—The Japanese government has mobilized and sent forward another army corps of 50,000 men, and this will be followed by still another. These have been landed to protect General Kuroki's base, and will materially strengthen him at the weakest point in his enveloping process, which is steadily progressing.

St. Petersburg, May 30.—Lieutenant General Sukharoff in a telegram sent yesterday from the front to the general staff, throws much light on the movement of the Japanese invading Manchuria. He shows that the Japanese are steadily advancing toward Liao Yang, the Russian headquarters, in great numbers, while at the same time they are concentrating an enormous army about Port Arthur. His report recounts several engagements with the enemy, but it is chiefly discussed because it shows the Japanese are swarming in overwhelming numbers against General Kuropatkin's army of 150,000.

The extent of the Japanese forward movement may best be realized, perhaps, from General Sukharoff's statement that 18,000 Chinese and Corean coolies are engaged in transporting supplies for General Kuroki's troops. Meantime fresh troops from Japan are being landed daily.

FIFTY THOUSAND AT TAKUSHAN.

In the neighborhood of Pot-sewo and further south the Japanese landing continues, the troops marching thence toward Kin Chou with covering detachments thrown out on the west.

A Japanese landing at Takushan began five days ago and it is reported that 50,000 troops, principally infantry, were landed, but this has not yet been verified. The troops landed are marching from takushan northwest toward Siu Yen and southwest toward Port Arthur.

NO DELAY IN THIS ENQUIRY.

Judge Winchester Starts in Montreal Monday and Works West.

Montreal, May 30.—On Monday, at Montreal, Judge Winchester will commence his investigation into the charge that United States engineers are being employed on G.T.R. surveys in preference to Canadian. His honor returned from Ottawa yesterday, where he had been to receive his warrant as a commissioner to call evidence and investigate the charges. Subpoenas have been issued for General Manager Charles M. Hays and William Wainwright of the railroad company.

Judge Winchester has been given power to inquire into the question of alien labor employed by the company, ascertain names, nationality, employment, salaries, where from, how long in Canada. These investigations will be held in different cities and towns, and interim reports will be sent to the government from time to time.

From Montreal Judge Winchester will proceed to Winnipeg, where he will consult with George L. Griffith, secretary of the Dominion of Canada Institute of Amalgamated Engineers. It was Mr. Griffith who complained to the government about the preference shown engineers from the States.

DROWNED HIMSELF

An Englishman From Buffalo Ends His Life at Belleville

Belleville, May 3.—A tramp, who arrived here yesterday, deliberately committed suicide between 4 and 5 o'clock this afternoon by drowning himself in the bay. He went out in a boat, part of which he got, held on to a moment, then pushed it from him and sank. The body was recovered. Deceased, who was seemingly a man of good class, had evidently been drinking hard. He described himself as Thomas Rogers, aged 64, English by birth, and said he had lived in Buffalo for three years. He is said to have resided in Belleville for some months about ten years ago. The name is believed to have been fictitious.

Dr. Rieger is said to believe that he is the victim of persecution and that the archbishop is his enemy.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 225 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $30,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

Lung, Throat and Catarrhal Troubles

Cold in the Head Cured Quickly if You Breathe Fragrant, Healing

Catarrhozone

The ordinary method of treating catarrh by the stomach is a very indirect way and, as experience has demonstrated, a very useless method to employ.

Fragrant, healing Catarrhozone, is breathed, the air, laden with minute particles of this healing balsamic liquid, spreads itself over the whole area of inflammation.

It reaches the very root of disease instantly destroying by its antiseptic properties the germ life which excites and maintains the disease. Its soothing and healing action is at once apparent to the whole diseased surfaces. It cures quickly and it cures permanently.

We affirm that no proprietory medicine has ever brought forth from the people as many voluntary testimonials as Catarrhozone has received.

MRS. M. J. WHITNEY, Clay Street, Topeca, Kan., was cured of nasal catarrh, and say, "I owe Catarrhozone an immense debt of gratitude. It cured me of the most disagreeable catarrh after many doctors had pronounced my case incurable. I do not cough any more, my breath is sweet, and my respiration regular since using Catarrhozone."

MRS. JAMES TWEEDIE, of Jay Bridge, says; "For years my daughter doctored for catarrh. She had dropping in the throat, hawking, nausea, and could not sleep at night. The first days use of Catarrhozone benefitted and it cured so the catarrh never returned."

MR. R. SHELDON, of Leamington, Ont., says; "For two years I unsuccessfully sought a remedy to cure my son of catarrh but permanent results were not attained until Catarrhozone was used. It cured my little boy like magic and he has been quite free from catarrh ever since."

REV. D. R. SMITH, of Whitehead, N.S., says; "Catarrhozone permanently cured me of chronic catarrh of the nose and throat from which I suffered for many years, I heartily recommend Catarrhozone."

MR. R. McCALLUM, of Spring Brook, Ont., says; "A sample of Catarrhozone benefitted me more than years of treatment with doctors, and by using the dollar outfit I was completely cured in a few weeks. I recommend Catarrhozone as the most satisfactory cure for catarrh on the market. Every word said for it is true."

MR. S. T. WRIGHT of Skeads Mills Ont., says; "I had a bad attack of sore throat, with inflamed tonsils and sore chest. I inhaled Catarrhozone and it cured my trouble. I greatly admire its pleasant and soothing effect."

MR. JAMES FERGUSON, of Perth, Ont., writes;—"I have used Catarrhozone for sore throat and cold in the head and find it is a good remedy. I highly recommend it."

MISS CLARA B. COLBY, of London, Ont., writes;—"I had a continuous cold in the head for years, and never used anything giving such quick results as Catarrhozone. I am delighted at last to find a remedy that positively cures colds. I strongly advocate Catarrhozone; it cures every time."

Catarrhozone cures without drugs and disagreeable medicine. It is Nature's cure—soothing, healing and pleasant to use. You simply inhale the medicated vapor of Catarrhozone through a Catarrhozone Inahler and get cured quickly. Two months treatment costs only one dollar. It can be sent by mail and used right at home any time during the night or day. Sold by druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn, U.S. A.

Catholic Mission Opened

A mission of the Redemptionists Fathers Zillis, Connolly and Sweeny, opened at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday, which will be continued for two weeks, services being held at 5 and 8.30 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. This week the mission will be in the interest of women and next week in the interest of men. Everyone is welcome to take advantage of the services.

Death of Mr. Andrew Russell

News was received to-day from Winnipeg of the death of Mr. Andrew Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell, who reside at the corner of George and Dublin streets. Mr. Russell had many friends in Peterborough, who will be shocked to hear of his sad death. He was at one time in the employ of Richard Hall & Son, but for a number of years has resided in the west. Full particulars are not yet to hand.

T. A. S Smoker

The athletic section of St. Peter's T.A.S. purpose holding a concert and smoker in the Opera House on June 10th. A good programme is being prepared. A special feature will be the presentation of the medals won on Victoria Day in the field sports. Mr. Eugene Hutcheson, the champion amateur wrestler, will be present and take part. The affair promises to be one of the best events ever held here.

The Olympic Excursion

The Olympic excursion will take place on Thursday and promises to be a great success. Already a large number, who received invitations, have signified their intention of attending, including several from Toronto and other points. The party will leave the Grand Trunk station at 8 o'clock and proceed to Baileigh, afterwards taking in a circle of the lakes. The 57th Band will, as usual, accompany the party.

Bands for Camp

The Military Gazette says: There seems to have been some uncertainty as to whether regimental bands were this year to be taken to camp. To set the matter at rest, the Gazette has made formal inquiry at the militia department and has received the reply that the bands are to be taken out. This will be good news to all. Perhaps nothing aids so much in recruiting, certainly nothing adds so much to the pleasures of the camp, as a good band.

A Threatened Strike

It is said that Mr. D. Campbell third-vice president of the International Order of Railway Telegraphers, has given Sir William Mulock to understand that unless some settlement of the Grand Trunk Telegraphers' grievances, or, at least, a respectful hearing of their case, is not speedily had, a strike will be called. Mr. Campbell is in Ottawa to meet Mr. Hays. Sir William is known to desire an amicable settlement of the difficulty existing, and will probably strive to have the matter referred to arbitration.

The Canoe Fever

As the summer season approaches the list of boating fatalities commences and throughout the season, the daily papers are called upon to chronicle the sad details of the results of the foolhardy pastime of canoeing. It has been said and said wisely, that the smart aleck with the canoe and the one with the gun who did not know that it was loaded were two fools and a menace to the public. Expert canoeists are rare and as to the practice of taking ladies in canoes, thereby subjecting them to the dangers attendant to the same, and in view of possible accidents rendering them powerless to save themselves, dragged down by skirts, no matter how good a swimmer the lady may be, places he who unwittingly errs in the position of being criminally culpable for the result. We are pleased to know that this pastime is not as popular in Peterborough as it used to be, the young people seeking some safer mode of whiling away the summer hours.

The City Beautiful

In these days of high winds it must have occurred to you that there is altogether too much waste paper on the sidewalks and roadways. But has it every occurred to you that possibly you were somewhat to blame for this unpleasant condition? Have a look in the alley right away and see how the paper scraps of your scavenger barrel or box are behaving themselves. Chances are they are being whisked all over the alleyway and out on the street with every vagrant breeze. A minute of thought before the paper goes to the barrel or box will show you that if you fasten a string around the paper bundle the wind will not get a chance and so far as you are concerned the street will be much cleaner. And, speaking of the scavenger barrel, do you ever use lime or ashes in it during the hot days to keep the unpleasant odors out of business? Just a little effort and even less expense and this cause of offense, so noticeable in some places, will be overcome.

A Ghost that Came in the Mayflower

Is sure to attract the attention of every New England woman and with pride in her heart she marvels that it is so strong and well preserved. This is due to the fact that it has received prompt attention when any signs of weakening were shown.

So the woman of to-day may keep her strength and preserve her good looks if she gives immediate attention to the first symptoms of any womanly weakness.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription promptly cures disease and restores strength to all women who are weakened by any womanly disease and are run down by maternal and household cares.

$500 REWARD! FOR WOMEN

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

Miss Stella Johnson, of 28 Brady St., Dayton, Ohio, writes: "I was troubled with severe pains every month when I wrote to you for advice. After following your directions, I am happy to say that after five years of untold suffering I have not had any pains since first using your 'Favorite Prescription.' I thank God and Dr. R. V. Pierce for the health I now enjoy. I shall urge other women who suffer as I did to use your medicine."

Take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets instead of any other laxative.

—The Times was pleased to have a friendly call from Mr. W. D. Parker, formerly of the Ontario Bank here, but now of Montreal. Mr. Parker will leave again for the east this week.

—Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Walton spent a few days in town, the guest of Mr. Robert Walton, Water street. Mr. Walton has been living in New York and is removing to Toronto where he will reside in future.

—Toronto Saturday Night in giving the list of holiday and race week visitors, says:—Mrs. Eardley Wilmott, in a pearl-gray corduroy costume, with lace; Mrs. Charles McGill, in pale mauve voile and lace, and Miss McGill, in pink organdie and lace and picture hat of pink roses, and Miss Lundy, in cream poplin and Irish lace, with fawn wrap, were down from Peterborough. Mrs. and Miss McGill spent the week at the King Edward.

—The engine that has been stationed at Cobourg fro some time back, and used for shunting purposes, has been shifted to Port Hope. The cause for the change is said to be for the purpose of reducing expenses as formerly the Grand Trunk employed a man to look after the engine here, but now that Port Hope has been selected as headquarters, the man employed there will have two engines to look after instead of one as heretofore.

OPENING OF LIFT LOCK

Reported That the Opening will Take Place Some Time This Month

According to the opinion of one of the engineers the lift lock will be so far completed as to allow of its being officially opened next month. The date, however, has not yet been fixed, but it is thought it will become time between the middle and the end of the month. The water was let into the upper reaches of the canal on Saturday, and satisfactory tests are said to have been made, and altogether the work seems to be progressing most favorably.

About Planting Trees

A wonderful difference could be made in the country around Peterborough and every other district, if each farmer would spend a day or two in the spring clearing up the roadside along his farm. And this is improvement, too, which well pays for the labor. A farm which is neat and tidy in its approach is worth more, and will sell for more than a farm along the roadside of which there is rubbish—fallen limbs, stones and clumps of weeds. Farmers should plant more trees along the roadside outside the fences. Who has a word for the basswood for roadside planting? If the farmers in a district will make united effort along these simple lines they can affect an astonishing improvement in the appearance of the country within a few years. They should do it, too, as a matter of duty. The pioneers, their forefathers, have done the heavy work of carving out homes. Their successors, now in somewhat easier circumstances should willingly take up the pleasant labor of beautifying the country.

AN IMMENSE STORM TO SWEEP PORT ARTHUR AS SOON AS REINFORCEMENTS ARRIVE.

Tokio Authorities Declare that the Great Preparations are Being Made

The European Military Critics Believe that Port Arthur will Fall within a Shor Time

Tokio, June 1.—It is reported in who succeeded in piercing the Russian line.

A SPLENDID STROKE OF FORTUNE.

was the discovery and destruction by the Japanese of the electric wires leading to the mines at the eastern foot of Nanshan Hill. This prevented the Russians from exploding these mines when the Japanese infantry crossed the ground where they had been placed. It is possible that the fortune of the day hinged upon these mines. If the Russians had been able to explode them at the right time the losses among the Japanese troops would have been tremendous, and it is possible also that the Russians would have been able to hold the hill.

THE BATTLE OF ARTILLERY.

Nanshan was splendidly defended. Nearly 50 guns, of various sizes, were mounted on the various emplacements and there were also numbers of batteries of quick firing pieces. This artillery was sheltered behind loopholes trenched on the tiereos of the hill. The infantry manning the field pieces ran with them around the hill thus using these guns for the protection of most important points.

The Japanese began the fight by bringing all their field guns into action, and concentrating their fire on the emplacements of the hill. By 11 o'clock in the morning the principal Russian batteries had been silenced. The two Russian field batteries then withdrew to Hon Quan Ling Hill, and from there continued to fire on the Japanese till nightfall.

THESE JAPS ARE WONDERS.

After the Russian batteries had been silenced, the Japanese artillery opened on the enemy's trenches, the Japanese infantry advancing meanwhile to within rifle range. The Japanese gradually worked to within 400 metres of the Russian lines, where they encountered wire and other entanglements. They succeeded in discovering an opening in these obstacles, and getting finally to within 300 metres of the Russian trenches they rushed for the line.

Several successive charges were made, but every officer and man in the attacking parties was shot down 20 or 30 metres from the line. The charges were then stopped and the Japanese artillery renewed its preparatory fire on the enemy's position. Towards evening a detachment of Japanese captied a section of the Russian trenches, breaking through the enemy's line. Hundreds of comrades of these men, inspired by their success, sprang forward, and then the entire Japanese line swept up the hill driving the Russians from their positions. It was in the desperate infantry charges that the Japanese sustained the bulk of their losses.

Pekin, June 1.—Japan has requested China to prepare to take over the administration of Manchuria as soon as tranquility reigns in the rear of Kuroki's forces. The Tokio Government [illegible] to seek international co-operation for the maintenance of Chinese authority in the restored provinces. The Japanese troops will undertake to keep the Russians out of Manchuria once they have been expelled, until conditions grow up south of the Amur offering little or no chance of the reassertion of the Muscovite pretensions there. Should the powers decline to lend their diplomatic influence to Japan for the purpose of making Chinese rule in Manchuria a reality, the islanders will endeavor to accomplish the task unaided.

FIERCEST FIGHT OF MODERN DAYS.

The Japanese assault on Nanshan Hill was one of the fiercest and bloodiest affairs in modern warfare. In the earlier rushes of the engagement every man participating was shot down before he reached the first line of the Russian trenches. It was found necessary to stop these infantry charges and renew the artillery fiore from the rear before the final and successful assault on the Russian position could be made. The success of this assault was brought about by one detachment of Japanese troops more intrepid than their comrades.

UNITED DRUG CO. TO ENTER CANADA

Famous American Remedies Will pe Handled by a Dominion Corporation

Unless all reports are wrong a chain of drug stores in Canada will soon be selling the products of the new Dominion Company, which will be a branch of the United Drug Co. of Boston, Mass., famous for its phenomenal and successful introduction of the line of Rexall remedies in the United States.

Mr. Louis K. Liggett, the originato of the United Drug Co., and general manager of that corporation, recently made a brief tour throughout the leading Canadian cities, and in speaking to a reporter in Toronto said:

"I am confident that we shall soon organize a branch of the United Drug Co. in Canada on the line of our corporation in the United States, and begin to manufacture and sell a special line of remedies over here.

"More than that, I think we shall open a large department drug store on Yonge street, Toronto, in the best location we can obtain. If we do this, I can promise you that the people of Toronto will have a drug shop that will be a source of pride to the city.

"Probably we won't use the same trade-mark word REXALL as we do in the United States, as the rights to this word are owned exclusively by the United States corporation, and they doubtless would not permit us to bring it into Canada, the Canadian branch being a separate corporation.

"I have not been in Canada for several years, and I am more than enthusiastic over conditions as I see them here now. In common with all Americans who come over here, I am impressed with the energy and ability of your people, and also with the generous welcome you extend to us when we extend our business operations across the border."

The success of the Rexall remedies in the United States has been little short of phenomenal. The United Drug Co., which is the corporate of the Rexall company, is composed of a thousand retail druggists. Only one druggist in a city is allowed to become a stockholder, and he must be the leading dealer in his community. He is given the sole agency for the Rexall remedies and no other dealer in his section can handle them.

There are about 150 Rexall remedies, one for each human ailment. Each formula is of proven merit. The Rexall laboratories are among the greatest in the world, and the remedies are compounded with all the skill and care that human ingenuity can devise. The Rexall plan of selling direct from the laboratory to consumer through the local shareholders' stores, eliminates the profits of jobbers and middlemen, and in this way reduces the cost of the remedy to the public. Not alone this, but the Rexall system precludes any possibility of the remedies remaining in wholesalers' warehouses until they have grown stale and impotent.

In another respect the Rexall plan is unique. That is, every remedy is guaranteed. If the purchaser is not more than satisfied his money is promptly refunded.

The Cahoon-Lyon drug store at Buffalo is said to be the largest and finest retail drug establishment in the world. It is one of the United Drug Co.'s stores, and the store to be started in Toronto will be modeled after it.

The great success of Rexall in the United States will be duplicated in Canada. Every energetic retail druggist in the Dominion will want to secure the agency for his city, and the fortunate men in each place will have cause for congratulation.

UNITED STATES TO STOP WAR.

President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay Plan for the Meditation.

PEACE TERMS PROPOSE.

Fear that Uncle Sam Has Put His Foot in It in Interfering.

Washington, June 1.—A prolonged conference today between President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay gave rise to a story to the effect that the president contemplates offering the good offices of the United States Government to end the Japanese-Russian war. The report startled conservative citizens, who desire above everything to avoid involving this country in the far eastern conflict, but it did not surprise persons who have closely followed the president's attitude since the outbreak of hostilities.

The universal belief is that any attempt to interference by this or any other country in the war, would inevitably result in that particular nation getting into no end of trouble. Hints, thrown out at various European capitals, that the continental powers would be willing to extend their good offices to bring about a cessation of fighting, have met with hard "throwdowns" at St. Petersburg and Tokio. It is pointed out that if the president wants to get called down, the best way to do it is to offer to settle the Japanese and Russian differences.

FEAR UNCLE SAM MAY H VE TO FIGHT.

The president, however, refuses to be reconciled to the position of a passive spectator. He was responsible for the moment for the localization of the war in certain limitations and the effort to insure the entity of China. Later the president through Secretary Hay demanded of China assurances that she would remain neutral in the pending war. The celestial empire being helpless acceded to the demands.

Then the presidents ordered a large fleet up from the Philippines to Chinese waters to observe the fighting, but the general belief is that it will not be long before the fleet is doing something more than observing. Capping these several occurrences, one offer to mediate by the greatest war, it is believed, would surely draw the United States into the fight and conservative friends of the administration will do their utmost to prevent accomplishment of the design.

HAY SOUNDS TWO POWERS.

The president is anxious for the war to end and wants to offer his good offices to the belligerents to restore peace. But he does not want to receive another slap in the face from Russia or to make unwelcome advances to Japan. Mr. Hay is doing business through the newspapers. He has intimated in a way that could not be directly traced to him by any aggrieved person, that the him by any aggrieved person, that the president is ready, whenever his services will be welcomed, to act as peace-maker. He is now awaiting to see what the newspapers at Tokio and St. Petersburg have to say about it and to hear the expressions of public men in the two capitals, which will be unofficially transmitted to him by Ambassador McCormick and Minister Griscom. If nothing but protests is heard the matter will be dropped until the outlook is more propitious.

If there is any intimation, no matter how slight, that the president's advances would not be repulsed the next step will be to have some friendly member of the diplomatic corps talk the proposal over in an unofficial way with Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, and Mr. Takhira, the Japanese minister. They would take the matter up with their governments and if there were more favorable indications Mr. Hay would submit the proposition to them direct.

FEAR WARS EFFECT.

The financiers of New York, London, Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburg have joined in an effort to restore peace in the far east, not through any humanitarian motives, but because they dread the effect on the money marker of a long-drawn-out struggle. Wall street and the national administration are deeply interested in the success of the movement. Wall street fears the effect of a prolonged war on general financial conditions. The president fears that if money becomes dear it may become difficult to sell—for anything like a fair price—the bonds that are to be issued to furnish the money for the construction of the Panama canal. That argument has been used on the president by New York financiers, and he has become their ally in the peace movement.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE

Non-Jury Sittings Before Chief Justice Meredith

The non-jury sittings lasted about three hours, the cases being disposed of as follows.—

The case of Fraser vs. Clark was settled out of court.

In the Fife vs. Fife case the Chief Justice directed the judgment be entered in terms of the consent minutes filed.

In the Colonial Motor Company vs. Colonial Ink Company case the record was withdrawn.

In the case of Howden vs. Peterborough Sugar Company, it was directed that the usual judgment for specific performance be entered, three months to be allowed to pay what was due provided they paid the $125 on account in 10 days, if not usual one month to be allowed. In default in either case reference, and the plaintiff to be entitled to retain the land conveyed to him, and the money paid on account of the purchase money. Plaintiff to have costs.

In the Christie vs. Harrison and Walsh, and Christie vs. Harrison, Walsh and Finn, judgment was entered in terms of consent minutes.

LADY BRUTALLY ASSAULTED

Struck Down While Returning Home from Church on Sunday Evening

While returning to her home near Downer's Corners, on Sunday evening, a lady was brutally assaulted by a man, who leaped out from behind some bushes on the roadside and struck with his fist, knocking her down and kicking her several times. She screamed loudly for help, and a lady in the neighborhood, hearing her cries, went to her and when the tramp made off across the fields. The lady's husband was soon on the scene, but too late to chastise the assailant. He drove his wife rapidly home, after which he proceeded to try and find the assailant, but to no purpose.

The lady's husband was out driving at the time and she expected him to overtake her on the way home. Her injuries are such as to compel her to keep to her bed, but no serious result is, we understand, likely to follow.

DOURO.

The annual picnic will be held on Thursday, June 23rd. The object of the picnic is to obtain funds to decorate St. Joseph's church with stained glass windows. The work is being done by Mr. Lyons of Church street, Toronto.

The 40 Hours in St. Joseph's church Douro, was a great success. Over 700 people attended their religious duties. Vicar General Brown, Rev. Father Darling, C.S.S.R., Toronto and Rev. Fathers Fitzpatrick, of Emnismore, Crowley, of North Bay, John O'Brien of Peterborough, and Keilty, of Dunoo, took part in the devotion. The 40 Hours commemorates the 40 Hours during which the Sacred Body of Christ lay in the Tomb.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO NAVY.

Lord Milner Emphasizes Need at Big Transvaal Meeting

London, May 31.—At Johannesburg a mass meeting enthusiastically endorsed the principle of colonial co-operation in support of the navy. Lord Milner said the colonies were vitally interested in the welfare of the navy and all ought to contribute to its maintenance and expense. The navy was more than English, and should be as much Canadian, African and Australian. Colonial contributions towards the maintenance of the navy were steps in the direction of Imperial Federation. He did not care whether the Federal Council of the Empire sat in Ottawa, Sydney or South Africa, provided the future of the British people held together.

Sir George Farrar claimed that the Transvaal, in return for naval contributions, should have representation on the Defence Committee.

London, May 30.—The report of the Royal Commission on the Volunteer and Militia Forces, especially recommends conscription as the only means of providing a home defence army adequate for the protection of the country in the absence or partial absence of the regular troops.

The commissioners are of the opinion that the principles adopted by all the other great European states must be largely adopted by Great Britain and that it is the duty of every able bodied citizen to be trained for national defence.

They point out that the necessary training would involve a period of continuous service with the colors, under an instruction body of specially educated and highly trained officers, and they consider one year of such continuous training would suffice, with a few weeks attendance at the manoeuvres for a year or two afterwards.

The commissioners estimate that such a scheme would provide about 350,000 trained men annually at a cost probably less than that of the present system.

EMIGRANTS ARE POURING TO US

ONE LONDON AGENT HAS BOOKED 400 UNDER CUT RATE

London, May 31. — The ten-dollar rate from London to New York is sending crowds of emigrants westward, but they are of the lower and alien classes. Their movement northward into Canada will demand special vigilance at the boundary by immigration inspectors, if Canada is not ready one London agent has booked 400 at the new rate.

The Canadian emigration authorities show no immediate desire for the extension of the war in rates to the St. Lawrence traffic. They say that British emigrants of the class Canada desires will go whatever the rate is. Every second class passage on every regular St. Lawrence liner is booked until August. So great is the pressure Canada-wards, quite apart from the new rate, that the Allans are contemplating special Glasgow emigrant steamer arrangements.

The Anchor and Donaldson lines also contemplate entering the St. Lawrence emigration trade.

It is fully expected that this year's total will exceed last year's exceptional figures. The class of emigrants is excellent.

New York, May 31.—Surgeons of St. Catherine's Hospital extracted from the palm of nine-year-old Rosalie Layko's hand a sharp-pencig two and a half inches long, which the child swallowed in January. The child lives at No 195 Montrose street, Williamsburg.

Immediately after she swallowed the pencil the family physician vainly endeavored to locate it. There were no ill effects, and the pencil was forgotten. Her hand began to swell yesterday, and her mother took her to the hospital. Dr. Wood made an incision and to the mother's astonishment the pencil was revealed.

Mrs. Layko said that some weeks ago the child's shoulder began to swell, but the swelling was quickly reduced. Later she complained of pains in the elbow. About a month after she swallowed the pencil she had a severe pain in the right leg Dr. Wood said the pencil had probably been present at each swelling.

—The drug stores will close at 7 o'clock—one remaining open.

MUST EITHER LOSE PORT ARTHUR OR THE WHOLE OF THE LARGE ARMY.

The Position of General Kuropatkin Believed to be Well Nigh Hopeless.

The Fall of Port Arthur will Mean the Loss of the Fleet —Alexieff's Burning of Buildings and Shooting of Brigands.

London, June 1.—The London Daily Mail says: Though not two months have elapsed since Gen. Kuropatkin took over the chief command of the Russian land forces in the far east, he is already in the most awkward predicament which any general can have to face—in risk of being surrounded by the faulty plans of his predecessors.

The centre of Russian concentration in Southern Manchuria, unless we have been deliberately misled, has been Liaoyang. Lying as this town does in very fertile country, at the junction of the great roads leading to the River Yalu and Korea, on the one hand; to Newchwang and Port Arthur, in another direction, and yet in a third to Mukden, it was marked out as the natural headquarters of the Russians.

Here, then, were collected vast quantities of supplies, with the stores and properties which always accumulate in the rear of a fighting army, the hospitals for the sick and wounded, the reserve ammunition, the great artillery park, and so forth. Standing on the railway, at a safe distance from the sea, it was a convenient dumping-ground for the paraphernalia required for the campaign.

PRELIMINARY MISTAKES.

When General Kuropatkin arrived there he found that irreparable mistakes had been made. Twenty thousand troops had been pushed forward to the Yalu; quite as many men, or even more, were at Port Arthur; a genuine field army scarcely existed, and he was left with a handful of troops and the accumulation of material and stores at Liaoyang, when the Japanese took the offensive and crossed the Yalu.

From that moment the Japanese have been working for his envelopment. Whether he fathomed their plan a fortnight ago we do not know. There is no indication that he did, a great part of his stores, artillery and baggage, with his sick and wounded and a mass of stragglers, will probably be captured by the Japanese, even if he and his main army manage to escape the slowly closing jaws of the Japanese

His retreat must be hurried as far as Tiehling, since the Japanese are reported to the north-east of Mukden. Tiehling is eighty miles from Liaoyang. He has two roads which he can use, as well as the railway, but the withdrawal of his baggage would be an almost impossible task. Reckoning his force at three army corps, which is about its maximum strength. It would have 6000 carriages, caissons, ambulances and wagons. If it has been fully equipped with transport, and these alone would block the atrocious road.

WELL NIGH HOPELESS.

If he retreats, he abandons Port Arthur, which certainly will fall, the Russian troops scattered in small detachments to the south of Liaoyang, and the [illegible] of Mukden. He must retire through hostile territory, for the Chinese and Hunhuses have been exasperated by Admiral Alexieff's burnings of villages and shooting of reported brigands. He must practically surrender all hope of reconquering Southern Manchuria, or of lending a hand to the Baltic fleet, if that force ever sails.

If he stands and fights a great battle he is probably doomed. He may gain a small success at the outset by falling upon one of the many Japanese columns now moving against him, yet it will be at the expense of having his retreat compromised, and what that means Sedan testifies. His one and only hope is to push the force in his flank and rear aside, but in modern war battles are an affair of whole days, not of hours, especially where the roads are bad and the country to be covered difficult. The force in the rear is certain to be a strong one, and, well entrenched, it should be able, even at the cost of heavy loss, to keep him back two or three days, and to give time for other armies and divisions to appear upon the ground.

In fact, Gen. Kuropatkin's best chance of escape, to perpetrate a bull, is to have escaped already. If he has not before this fallen back, a great part of his army must be in the most imminent peril of capture.

St. Petersburg, June 1.—The War Office has received a detailed report of the fight at Ai Yang Pien Men (about 60 miles northeast of Feng Wang Cheng) on Saturday night, in which two battalions of Japanese infantry and one squadron of Japanese cavalry, numbering about 2,200 men, attacked five squadrons of Cossacks. The Russian losses were seven Cossacks killed and one officer wounded and nine horses killed. The Cossacks were encamped twelve miles northeast of Kuan Dian Sian, which was held by several Japanese battalions two of which and one squadron of cavalry left on May 28 for Saimatara. This force encountered the Cossacks' bivouac at 10.30 o'clock the same night, and attacked the Cossacks, who retired in good order, keeping up a running fight along the road to Samatara. There was a great deal of firing on both sides, but, like most of the fighting in the dark, it was very ineffective, as shown by the smallness of the Russian losses. It is believed this Japanese did not sustain any greater casualties, but according to one account, the majority of the Japanese squadron was wiped out. After reaching Samatara, May 29, the Japanese returned to Kuan Dian Sian, apparently not liking the vicinity of the Cossacks, and in view of the possibility of Gen. Hermankampff bringing up reinforcements. The War Office attributes little importance to this engagement which was heralded from Tokio as a Japanese victory.

The Japanese have made a step forward in occupying Dalny. As soon as the lighter commanding it are cleared, they will be a convenient base close at hand, instead of one distant and cramped. The damage to the piers will not be of great importance, for the Japanese vessels can lie in the deep water of the harbor and discharge their cargoes into lighters. Moreover, as Chemulpo and possibly as other Corean ports, ingenious temporary floating jetties were devised.

The capture of railway rolling stock is of immense importance. The Manchurian and Japanese railways have different gauges. Unless the Japanese have built engines and cars in advance, they will be unable to work any lengths of the Manchurian line which they may seize with other than captured rolling stock. Two hundred cars which the Russians obligingly left behind should be exceedingly useful in sending big guns and supplies about the Kuang Tung peninsula as the Japanese press closer into it. The small railway bridges will be quickly repaired. Military engineers do marvels in the way of bridge repairing when time presses.

General Oku may be expected to take his time. The capture of Dalny probably means a shifting of his base from Pitsewo and that means an immense amount of readjustment. His troops must be in need of rest. The gallant fourth division in particular must be badly crippled. There are renewed reports that the Takushan force is moving to reinforce Oku.

The renewal of the Japanese efforts to seal up the harbor is a tribute to the Russian torpedo flotilla. Apparently some of the younger officers have got their head and have been allowed to use their boats. The earlier paralysis seems to be wearing off.

Washington, June 1.—The Japanese Legation yesterday gave out the following despatch from the home government at Tokio, embodying a report from General Oku, as follows:

"General Oku, commanding the army operating against Port Arthur, reports that our troops occupied Dalny on May 30. Over one hundred warehouses and barracks, besides telegraph offices and the railway station, were found uninjured. Over two hundred railway cars are visible, but all small railway bridges in the neighborhood are destroyed. All dock piers except the great pier which was sunk, remain uninjured. Some steam launches were also found at the mouth of the dock."

Tokio, June 1.—The Russians evacuated Dalny so hastily that they failed to destroy much property which will prove highly valuable to the Japanese. Gen. Oku's scouts report that over 100 barracks and storehouses remain uninjured. The railway station, with 200 passenger and freight coaches are uninjured. The Russians destroyed the big pier and blocked all the dock entrances with sunken steamers. They destroyed all the small railway bridges in the vicinity of the docks, but left the jetties uninjured. It is evident that the Russians fled quickly when Hanahan Hill was lost, expecting that General Oku would immediately take possession of Dalny.

BUSY AFTER RUSSIANS LEFT.

Chefoo, June 1.—One hundred Chinese refugees arrived here yesterday from Dalny and Talienwan. While their statements differ in many respects regarding existing conditions on the Liao Tung Peninsula the majority agree upon the point that the Russians had left both places before the junks sailed on the 28th instant. Upon evacuation by the Russians, bandits attacked both towns, and commenced looting and pillaging. The Japanese left late and took steps to protect the Chinese merchants. One Russian official was killed by the bandits.

Chefoo, June 1.—Five hundred Chinese refugees from Port Dalny and Talienwan arrived here yesterday. After sifting their conflicting stories, it appears that the Russians left Talienwan on May 26 for Port Arthur, after burning everything likely to be of use to the Japanese. Bandits later took possession of the town, and were looting when the Japanese cavalry appeared May 27.

On May 26 the Russians left Port Dalny, previously burning the offices and residences, destroying the railway and scuttling three large merchantmen, the Zeid, Boreia and Quadam and all the dredgers and launches.

GERMAN SOLDIERS HARD LUCK

Gets Seven Years' Sentence For Innocent Remark About the Kaiser

London, May 31.—The following astonishing story of terrible punishment in the Germany army has been published for twelve days without being contradicted, so it may be accepted as a fact:

A squad of soldiers were drilling near the line when the Kaiser's train passed. The commanding officer ordered all to salute as the train passed by. Afterwards a sergeant overheard a private remark: "The Kaiser might have let the train slow down so that we could catch a glimpse of him." The private was arrested, tried by courtmartial, found guilty of lese majeste and sentenced to seven years' penal servitude after being drummed out of the army.

The Spectator, commenting on this, asks: "Can we wonder that the internal condition of the German army is what it is, though externally it still looks so strong, efficient and well organized."

Fortune For Canadian Woman

Toronto, May 30.—Mrs. W. C. St. John, of Uxbridge, will leave Toronto about the last of June for California where she will take possession of an estate valued at $150,000 left her by the late Archibald J. Ferguson, of Redwood City, Stanmata County, California, who was killed in a railway accident last March.

WEATHER NOTES

Showery during the day.

Turn Time Backward. Be Young Again.

At last there is hope for the army of young, old and middle-aged men who either through early indiscretions, later excesses or exposure find themselves lacking in virile power. How many of you are now reaping the harvest of your folly? At last you are face to face with the realization that nature cannot be deceived, neither does it forget the wrong done it, whether through ignorance or otherwise; but the punishment always corresponds with the amount of abuse committed. Do not, however, lose hope, as there is a cure, thanks to Dr. Goldberg, the noted specialist, who can give you what is rightfully yours—perfect manhood. If you are not what you should be, if you have stricture, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotency, rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc., write at once to Dr. Goldberg, and he will send you his method of curing these diseases free of charge.

The doctor has received fourteen diplomas, certificates and licenses from colleges and state boards of medical examiners, which should convince you as to his standing and abilities.

His acceptance of a case for treatment is equivalent to a cure, as he never accepts an incurable one for treatment, and should you decide to doctor with him you may

Pay When You Are Cured.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor at once and confidentially lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as his booklet on the subject, containing the 16 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply Dr. M. Goldberg 224 Woodward Ave., Room 184, Detroit, Mich., and it will all immediately be sent you, free, in a plain, sealed package.

SHOOTING MEN FOR DEER

The Parry Sound North Star contains a strong protest against the lenience shown by the courts to the young man Stanley who shot two men in that region in "mistake" for deer. The men were working on a new road, Standing ten feet apart, yet both were shot and killed in less than one second of time, by Stanley at a distance of one hundred yards, and through a piece of bush that was fairly open, and where, by moving his head or body slightly, he could have seen it was men and not deer that he was shooting. These are the facts which appeared in evidence. The man who caused this lamentable tragedy was let off by Mr. Justice McMahon on the theory that a man may kill another in the woods if he is hunting deer, if he honestly believes it is deer he is shooting at, no matter what the surrounding circumstances. The North Star remarks that public opinion in the Parry Sound district has suffered a rude shock by such an interpretation of the Criminal Code. Assuring His Lordship's interpretation to be correct, it says: "We undoubtedly have a condition of the law which does not afford adequate, if indeed, any protection to human life, and which imperatively demands immediate amendment. We ask our brothers of the press to assist in securing protection from the man behind the gun who shoots first and looks afterwards." The dangers of the woods in the hunting season are felt to be so great, that it is found difficult to keep the lumbermen at work, and the wives of the farmers, when they do not succeed in persuading their husbands to abandon work along the edges of their clearance during the same period, watch his departure from home with grave forebodings. In the present case, young Stanley had worked in the camps in which his victims were employed, being there about thirteen days; had actually been engaged in road making, as they were, or some of the work connected with the making of roads, that he knew the locality in which the fatality occurred from a boy, that he was surrounded on all sides by evidences that lumbering operations were being carried on, and that he stood on one road and fired through a bit of scrub at men who were only 100 yards away, working at grading another road at a place where there was a rise of about ten feet above where the shooter stood. Fleeher, the young man who accompanied his cousin Stanley, states that from the time his cousin saw what he imagined to be deer until he shot two of the four men in the party of road makers, not more than half a second elapsed, and in that time he Fleeher, had taken three or four steps to one side, and from that point he could plainly see it was men and not deer that were shot. Other witnesses were ready to depose that by moving his head a few feet either to right or left Stanley ought to have seen the men. If anything more were needed to emphasize the risk a shooter armed with a modern long range rifle loaded with smokeless powder and propelling a nickel cased soft nosed bullet ran. In shooting in that neighborhood, it need only to be pointed that within a radius of a quarter of a mile fully twenty-five men were working, while within less than a mile sixty men were employed. All these facts go to intensify the need there is of making such a thing to occur again.

Our contemporary correctly complains that this state of affairs is a most intolerable one, and calls for an immediate remedy. If the law as at present so framed that a man can shoot two of his fellows in less than a second, and may escape because he honestly thought it was a deer and not men he was shooting, it is high time the law was changed to suit the circumstances. Many very valuable lives have been sacrificed to the hunting instinct which shoots at every moving thing in the woods. In Maine, the law has been amended so that it is now manslaughter if a man kills another, and it is not for the State to prove that the killing was accidental or of such a nature as to amount to manslaughter, but it is for the accused to show beyond doubt that the act was an accident which could not have been avoided by any amount of care and caution.

LOT'S STRATEGY

By SUSAN BROWN ROBBINS

Copyright, 1903, by the S. S. McClure Company

"I don't know what it is," said Lot despairingly.

"Imagination," returned his sister abortly.

Lot turned on her. "Look here, Maria Bemis," he said almost fiercely. "You pride yourself on your faculty for seeing things. You've been here three days, and haven't you seen that there was something come between us since you were here before and that she has stopped caring anything about me?" His voice broke at the last words, and he turned away from her.

Maria looked at his back, and there was an expression on her face of mingled pity, contempt and amusement.

"I've been here three days, Lot," she said quietly, "and I've seen that you are a pair of foolish children. But before I go on I want to ask you if you have got over caring for her."

Lot looked at her with indignation too strong for words.

"I didn't think you had," said his sister in a tone of relief. "If you had, it would be a serious state of affairs; but, as you haven't, I don't see any difficulties."

"You must admit that she isn't happy," he said at length.

"Yes."

"But, don't you see, it must be me, because she doesn't see anybody else, hardly."

She settled herself more comfortably on the grain chest and began to speak deliberately. "Don't you know that when two people, I don't care who they are, live on a lonely farm and don't see anybody but each other for weeks at a time—don't you know that they are bound to get morbid and imagine all sorts of things about themselves and each other? That is why so many farmers' wives go insane."

"But what can I do?" Lot asked, a look of terror in his face. "I've tried to get her to go to places with me, but I can't."

"I'll tell you," said Maria decisively. "The first nice day take her out over the farm and spend the day. I'll see to things while you are gone, and I'll put up a lunch for you. Show her all you are doing and plan to do. Take her to the pretty places and, most of all, make love to her as though your life depended on it."

"I don't believe she'd go. I couldn't persuade her. You've no idea how set she is."

Maria looked at her brother scornfully. "Perhaps you never heard of such a thing as strategy."

She turned away and walked out of the barn.

For a long time he stood looking at his Grandfather Stetson's old covered wagon. It had been considered an elegant affair in its day, but now it was seldom taken out except when some of the children came home at Thanksgiving or for short visits.

He took out his jackknife and opened it, felt of the edge, then got into the wagon and knelt down on the seat. Very carefully, and following the thread in the cloth, he cut a slit two inches long in the back of the seat. He picked at the cotton batting stuffing with the point of his knife. Then he let the flap go back in place, the cotton batting showing a little all along the cut. "That looks very natural," he muttered.

The next morning Lot spoke to his sister when Eunice was in another room. "Just as soon as the dew gets off some," he said, and she nodded after breakfast she carried to the barn a large covered basket, a demijohn of with a look of comprehension. Soon cold tea, a shawl and her sister-in-law's sunbonnet. These Lot helped her stow away under the back seat.

At 9 o'clock Lot came into the house. "I'm going to start off with the old covered wagon in a little while," he said, "and I find there's a tear or a cut in the back of the seat. Do you suppose you could mend it?"

Eunice went to get her workbasket. She found a piece of green cloth and pulled some ravelings from it; then she went out and got into the covered wagon and set quietly and patiently to work.

Lot watched her furtively from the barn. When he thought she was nearly half through he began harnessing with feverish haste. What if she should get through too soon? She looked around as he backed the horse into the shafts.

"I'm not quite through yet, Lot," she said mildly.

"Don't hurry," he answered. He waited with the reins in his hand until she had taken the last stitch; then he jumped in, sat down beside her and spoke to the horse. Eunice half started to her feet, but he laid his hand gently on her arm, and she sank back again.

"We are going to ride over the farm," he said quietly.

He drove on, talking rapidly about his plans, recalling incidents of the haymaking and speaking of the getting in of the ensilage.

Eunice was silent, and in spite of his lively chatter Lot was anxious.

In the middle of the pasture Lot stopped the horse and glanced about. Some of the cows were feeding near, and they lifted their heads to look with big, inquiring eyes.

"Pretty good looking cattle, I call them," he said proudly. He paused. His face was quiet, white and agitated, and he did not dare look at his wife.

"I always thought an awful lot of Buttercup," said Eunice in her sweet, gentle voice. "I liked her looks so well that I learned her to drink and took all the care of her myself."

"Yes," he said, "I remember, and it was a good thing that you did take charge of her. She's made a fine cow." His voice grew curiously husky, and he spoke almost sharply to the horse, "Get up, Nell."

As they went slowly through the pasture the cows one by one dropped their noses to their feeding again. Eunice gazed about her eagerly, a new light in her face. "Oh," she sighed contentedly, "it is a lovely day."

The cart path was very rough, and the wagon bounced and pitched along, the overhanging bushes and young trees brushing against its top and sides. Eunice laughed like a child and now and then gave an involuntary little scream.

Lot laughed too. "I guess I'll have to put my arm around you," he said. And he drew her close, driving with his free hand.

"Isn't this fun?" she laughed. "And it won't hurt the wagon, either. How did you happen to think of such a nice idea?"

"Why didn't I think of it years ago?" he returned evasively. "I ought to have, with the poor little wife kept at home with a weak ankle."

"I have wanted to see the farm awfully," she said, nestling up to him as his arm went around her again, "but I didn't see how I could, and I never expected to."

Suddenly she impulsively threw her arms about his neck and buried her face on his shoulder with a little sob.

"It's awful silly," she murmured, "for folks as old as we are to act so spoony, but I—thought—I'd got a notion that you'd got all over caring anything about me, and I'm so glad to find it isn't so."

As for Lot, he held his wife close, and in his heart was a great joy.

Rich, Red Blood. Basis of Health

Strong Blood Fortifies the Nerves Strengthens the Heart, Keeps You in the Swim. How to Nourish the Blood

To keep abreast in the unceasing race that confronts us, both energy and reserve strength are essential. Strength is power. Power is money—that's the way we resolve it today yet even when evidence of failing strength and dwindling power becomes manifest, very few of us face the actual condition and deal with it as we would with something involving monetary value.

Thousands of people are falling behind in the race of life simply because they are failing in strength. Instead of using Ferrozone, which revitalizes all the functions of the body, forms rich, red blood, improves digestion, thereby renewing vitality and endurance, they simply drift along until the doctor or undertaker confronts them.

If Ferrozone was unpleasant to take, or if its action were not immediate and permanent, if physical improvement were not of the highest value to the individual, there might be some excuse for deferring the use of this remarkable tonic.

If your health is inconsequential, then Ferrozone may be dispensed with. But if health and vigor give you more power and comfort, can't you see the foolishness of denying yourself the many advantages of using such a grand medicine?

Do this fair thing by yourself, go right to your druggist and get Ferrozone. You will then know what perfect health, good spirits, and strong nerves really mean.

Ferrozone, like other good things, is greatly substituted, so insist on getting Ferrozone, which is prepared in tablet form and sold only 50c. boxes, six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

The Olympic Excursion

The Olympic excursion will take place on Thursday and promises to be a great success. Already a large number, who received invitations, have signified their intention of attending, including several from Toronto and other points. The party will leave the Grand Trunk station at 8 o'clock and proceed to Burleigh, afterwards taking in a circle of the lakes. The 57th Band will, as usual, accompany the party.

A Threatened Strike

It is said that Mr. D. Campbell third-vice president of the International Order of Railway Telegraphers, has given Sir William Mulock to understand that unless some settlement of the Grand Trunk Telegraphers' grievances, or, at least, a respectful hearing of their case, is not speedily had, a strike will be called. Mr. Campbell is in Ottawa to meet Mr. Haya. Sir William is known to desire an amicable settlement of the difficulty existing, and will probably strive to have the matter referred to arbitration.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups: namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 30 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 570 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflict as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented.

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78½ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented.

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory.....75½ acres
" " Mill and building sites..... 55 "
" " Timber properties..... 90 "
Total 903½ acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

Complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government rom which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

Total cost of development to date, present management, $53,000.00
" " " " " former owners - 18,000.00
" " surface improvements, buildings, saw mill plant, horses, wagons, ore cars, track, tools, etc. - 17,000.00
" " Machinery paid for and to be installed - 6,000.00
$99,000 00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $26,000 00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet. We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 200 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver. These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built.

In the meantime only the high grade Smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will add us materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905, and be continuous thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3.50 to $4.00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our stockholders. These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments. By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18.00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of production is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,
ROBERT HARRISON.

DESPERATE BRAVERY SHOWN BY JAPANESE

Captured 78 Russian Guns, But Had 3,500 Casualities--Stormed Position Nine Times.

Tokio, May 31.—The details of the heroic fighting at Kin Chou emphasize the heroic tendency of the Japanese in their conduct at Nanshan Hill.

Nine successive times the Japanese charged the fortified heights in the face of a storm of death dealing missiles and in their last effort they carried the forts and trenches only after a bayonet to bayonet conflict with the Russians, who made a desperate struggle to beat back the oncoming Japanese.

The final assault of the Japanese which they at last succeeded in taking possession, was marked by the most desperate hand-to-hand encounter that has thus far characterized the war.

THE OSAKA MEN LEAD THE CHARGE

With every Japanese gun directing its fire at the Nanshan forts and trenches, the Japanese infantry sprang over the bodies of those who had sacrificed their lives in previous fruitless charges. The entire line rushed forward towards the Russian left, where the fire of the Japanese squadron had proved most deadly, and which was the first to weaken. It was there that the first breach was made in the human wall that all day had been an invincible barrier to impetuous assaults.

It was the fourth division of the Osaka men that stormed the Russian left. It had once been said that Osaka men were not brave. It will never be said again.

THE FINAL SCENE OF VICTORY.

The first division of Tokio, which had the centre and the third division of Nagoya, occupying the left, and which had been exposed all day to the Russian fire, then followed the example of the Osaka men, and, rushing forward, the fight was transformed from an artillery duel to a bayonet conflict. On to every parapet the Japanese surged in increasing numbers, and, hustling the Russians from their entrenchments, swept over the hill. At 7.30 o'clock, as the sun was sinking beneath the horizon, the flag of Japan flouted above the blood-soaked Nanshan Hill, while the shouts of "Banzai!" swelled from hill to hill and re-echoed from squadron to fort.

The Japanese paid for their victory with 3,500 killed and wounded. To the Russians, the humiliation of defeat was intensified by the loss of 68 cannon and 10 machine guns, while lying in the forts and trenches were 500 men.

PORT ARTHUR IS AN ENTRENCHED CAMP.

Japanese will Attempt to Carry the Place by Assault with the Aid of Their Artillery

St. Petersburg, May 31.—Col. Novitzky, of the general staff, points out that Port Arthur, although generally denominated a fortress, is in reality an entrenched camp, while Kin Chou was only an advanced improvised position. It would be unwise to judge of the strength of permanent connected fortifications around Port Arthur by Kin Chou. These fortifications, he said, support each other scientifically. Operations against them will require the most careful systematic preparation.

"The Japanese now before Port Arthur," said Col. Novitzky, "may proceed in three ways. First, an open attack after preparatory artillery fire second, a progressive siege and third, a blockade. I think the Japanese will adopt the first course, as it is not to their advantage to wait while Russian reinforcements are arriving. The second method is a long and complicated operation that might last for months.

"Port Arthur, generally speaking, is impregnable, but impregnability is a relative term. Nothing in fortification is really invincible. Guns will destroy any structure. Cannon will defeat each other. Sappers can remove impediments outside and fill ditches. Scaling ladders will overcome any walls. Mines can be met with counter mines. A blockade would involve passive activity for many months and an enormous number of troops. Therefore, I believe that the Japanese will attempt to carry the place by assault with the aid of their artillery.

"The Japanese are copying on a larger scale their campaign of 1894. While Gen. Oku is at Port Arthur, Gen. Kuroki, after a juncture with the advancing army landing at Taku Shan, will conduct operations on Hai Cheng and New Chwang until they are occupied. I do not believe Gen Kuroki will move against Gen. Kuropatkin's main position until he has formed a base at New Chwang."

NO CONSCRIPTION FOR BRITAIN.

Royal Commission's Idea is not Taken Seriously.

WILL HAVE A GOOD EFFECT

The Internal Troubles of Russia--The Spectator Champions Mr. Roosevelt.

London, May 31.—The Royal Commission's recommendation of conscription is startling, of course, but nothing more. Not one Royal Commission out of fifty reaches legislation England certainly will not, in the present generation, see any such adoption of continental methods of compulsory service as the commission proposes. No conceivable government would carry a scheme so radically repugnant to English tradition.

The food tax is potent enough as a political cry, but the cry of a blood tax would be fatal. Moreover, the personnel of the commission carries small weight. The Duke of Norfolk is the chief Roman Catholic peer, and has been postmaster -general. Lord Derby was once Governor-General of Canada. The rest of the commission is mainly military with the addition of a doctrinaire journalist. Mr. Spencer Wilkinson, with whose editorial outbursts in the Morning Post the London Conservative world has long been familiar. It is hardly rash to conjecture that this conscription panacea is the outcome of this seal.

But though conscription is inconceivable, the stir which the report will make probably will lead to good results and compel the War Office to abandon completely the systematic neglect of the volunteer and militia forces, set the officering of these forces on a sounder basis, lead the schools to make military drill part of their regular curriculum, and induce Parliament to abandon the ridiculous notion that business men who are willing to devote their time and skill to the service of their country, must pay $100 to $250 yearly, often more, out of their own pockets.

Bands for Camp

The Military Gazette says: There seems to have been some uncertainty as to whether regimental bands were this year to be taken to camp. To set the matter at rest, the Gazette has made formal inquiry at the militia department and has received the reply that the bands are to be taken out. This will be good news to all. Perhaps nothing aids so much in recruiting, certainly nothing adds so much to the pleasures of the camp, as a good band.

ALL SHOT DOWN IN FIRST RUSHES

Assault on Nanshan Hill was Bloody Affair.

JAPANESE LOST 3,500 MEN.

Captured Seventy Russian Cannon--Wires Leading to Mines were Cut in Time.

London, May 31.—No further details of the great Japanese victory, beyond what are contained in the official reports, have reached Europe. It is recognized that the Japanese assault on Nanshan Hill was one of the fiercest, most desperate affairs in the history of modern warfare. A Tokio despatch describes how in the earlier Japanese rushes every man participating was shot down before he reached the first line of Russian trenches. It was necessary, therefore, to stop the charges and rake the Russian positions with artillery fire before the final successful assault. The supreme effort was successful, owing to a Japanese detachment more intrepid than the rest piercing the Russian lines. Hundreds of their comrades, inspired by this, sprang forward, and soon the whole Japanese line swept up the hill.

St. Petersburg despatches make it plain that the news of the Russian repulse was a severe shock, the result of the storming of Kinchou, like most of the incidents of the present war, being wholly unexpected. The military authorities recognize the enormous advantage the possession of Kinchau confers on the Japanese in their operations against Port Arthur, and the fate of the fortress, despite its great strength, is regarded with the utmost despondency. The newspapers, on the other hand, make strenuous efforts to belittle the significance of the engagement, the Novoe Vremya going so far as to say that Kinchau was not fortified to such an extent as would justify the Russians in counting on a long defence. It adds: "Gen. Fock abandoned the position after making the Japanese pay dearly. This is shown by his orderly retirement."

It is the Russian press alone, however, that seeks to minimize the Japanese victory. It has created a profound impression in Berlin. The military critic of the Vossische Zeitung says that the news of the battle reads like a chapter of a modern text book on tactics. The battle will become an academical example for analysis in the study of war. English experts are most eulogistic, agreeing that the results of the victory were cheap at the price of the casualty list, heavy as it was.

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:- The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $35 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals — the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 325 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

er image from my heart," and then for many days she strove to recall the olden love in vain; for, planted on the sandy soil of childhood as it were, it had been outgrown, and would never again spring into life. "I will write to him exactly how it is," she said at last, "will tell him that the affection I felt for him could not have been what a wife should feel for her husband. I was young, had seen nothing of the world, knew nothing of gentlemen's society, and when he came, with his handsome face and winning ways, my interest was awakened. Sympathy, too, for his misfortune, increased that interest, which grandma's opposition tended in no wise to diminish. But it has died out, that fancied love, and I cannot bring it back. Still, if he insists, I will keep my word, and when he comes next autumn I will not tell him No."

Maggie was very calm when this decision was reached, and opening her writing desk she wrote just as she said she would, begging of him to forgive her if she had done him some wrong, and beseeching Rose to comfort him as only a sister like her could do. "And remember," she wrote at the close, "remember that sooner than see you very unhappy, I will marry you, will try to be a faithful wife; though, Henry, I would rather not—oh, so much rather not."

The letter was finished, and then Maggie took it to her grandmother, who read it eagerly, for in it she saw a fulfillment of her wishes. Very closely had she watched both Mr Carrollton and Maggie, readily divining the truth, that something was wrong between them. But from past experience she deemed it wiser not to interfere directly. Mr. Carrollton's avowed intention of returning to England, however, startled her, and she was revolving some method of procedure when Margaret brought her the letter.

"I am happier than I can well express," she said, when she had finished reading it. "Of course you have my permission to send it. But what has changed you, Maggie? Has another taken the place of Henry Warner?"

"Don't ask me, grandma," cried Mag, covering her face with her hands, "don't ask me, for indeed I can only tell you that I am very unhappy."

A little skillful questioning on Madam Conway's part sufficed to explain the whole—how constant association with Arthur Carrollton had won for him a place in Maggie's heart, which Henry Warner had never filled; how the knowledge that she loved him as she could love no other one had faintly revealed itself to her on the night when he asked her if she were engaged, and had burst upon her with overwhelming power when she heard that he was going home.

"He will never think of me again, I know," she said; "but, with my present feelings, I cannot marry Henry, unless he insists upon it."

"A man seldom wishes to marry a woman who says she does not love him, and Henry Warner will not prove an exception," answered Madam Conway; and, comforted with this assurance, Mag folded up her letter, which was soon on its way to Cuba.

The next evening, as Madam Conway sat alone with Mr. Carrollton, she spoke of his return to England, expressing her sorrow, and asking why he did not remain with them longer.

"I will deal frankly with you, madam," said he, "and say that if I followed my own inclination I should stay, for Hillsdale holds for me an attraction which no other spot possesses. I refer to your granddaughter, who, in the little time I have known her, has grown very dear to me, so dear that I dare not stay longer where she is, lest I should love her too well, and rebel against yielding her to another."

For a moment Madam Conway hesitated; but, thinking the case demanded her speaking, she said: "Possibly, Mr Carrollton, I can make an explanation which will show some points in a different light from that in which you now see them. Margaret is engaged to Henry Warner, I will admit; but the engagement has become irksome, and yesterday she wrote, asking a release, which he will grant, of course."

Instantly the expression of Mr. Carrollton's face was changed, and very intently he listened, while Madam Conway frankly told him the story of Margaret's engagement up to the present time, withholding from him nothing, not even Mag's confession of the interest she felt in him, an interest which had weakened her girlish attachment for Henry Warner.

"You have made me very happy," Mr. Carrollton said to Madam Conway, as, at a late hour, he bade her good-night, "happier than I can well express; for, without Margaret, life to me would be dreary indeed."

The next morning, at the breakfast table, Anna Jeffrey, who was in high spirits with the prospect of having Mr. Carrollton for a fellow-traveler, spoke of their intended voyage, saying she could hardly wait for the time to come, and asking if he were not equally impatient to leave so horrid a country as America.

"On the contrary," he replied, "I should be sorry to leave America just yet. I have, therefore, decided to remain a little longer," and his eyes sought the face of Maggie, who, in her joyful surprise, dropped the knife with which she was helping herself to butter, while Anna Jeffrey, quite as much astonished, upset her coffee, exclaiming: "Not going home! What has changed your mind?"

Mr. Carrollton made her no direct reply, and she continued her breakfast in no very amiable mood; while Maggie, too much overjoyed to eat, managed, ere long, to find an excuse for leaving the table. Mr. Carrollton wished to do everything honorably, and so he decided to say nothing to Mag of the cause of this sudden change in his plan until Henry Warner's answer was received, as she should then feel freer to act. His resolution, however, was more easily made than kept, and during the succeeding weeks, by actions, if not by words, he more than once told Maggie Miller how much she was beloved, and Maggie, trembling with fear lest the cup of happiness just within her grasp should be rudely dashed aside, waited impatiently for the letter which was to set her free. But weeks went by, and Maggie's heart grew sick with hope deferred, for there came to her no message from the distant Cuban shore where, in another chapter, we will for a moment go.

CHAPTER XVII.

Brightly shone the moonlight on the sunny isle of Cuba, dancing lightly on the wave, resting softly on the orange groves, and stealing gently through the casement into the room where a young girl lay, whiter far than the flowers strewn upon her pillow. From the commencement of the voyage, Rose had drooped, growing weaker every day, until at last all who looked upon her felt that the home, of which she talked so much would never again be gladdened by her presence. Very tenderly Henry Warner nursed her, bearing her often in his arms upon the vessel's deck, where she could breathe the fresh morning air as it came rippling o'er the sea. But neither ocean breeze nor yet the fragrant breath of Florida's aromatic bowers, where for a time they stopped, had power to rouse her; and when at last Havana was reached, she laid her weary head upon her pillow, whispering to no one of the love which was wearing her life away. With untold anguish at their hearts, both her aunt and Henry watched her, the latter shrinking ever from the thoughts of losing one who seemed a part of his very life.

"I cannot give you up, my Rose. I cannot live without you," he said, when once she talked to him of death. "You are all the world to me," and laying his head upon her pillow he wept, as men will sometimes weep over their first great sorrow.

"Don't, Henry," she said, laying her tiny hand upon his hair; "Maggie will comfort you when I am gone. She will talk to you of me, standing at my grave, for, Henry, you must not leave me here alone. You must carry me home and bury me in dear old Leominster, where my childhood was passed, and where I learned to love you so much, oh, so much!"

There was a mournful pathos in the tone with which the last words

A RARE CHANCE

FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.
BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non-assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details. The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion. Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

FRANCE ANGERED AGAINST POPE.

Belief that the Republic will Dissolve the Concordant.

CHURCH AND STATE TO PART

The People Very Bitter Against the Vatican--A Church Crisis.

Rome, May 31.—Of the Pope's circular note of protest against President Loubet's visit to Victor Emanuel III., there seems to be only one opinion, namely, that it was a grave mistake, and augurs ill for the future diplomacy of the Holy See. The pity of it is that the protest was evidently dictated by a sincere, if narrow, piety, and the consequences of this ill-advised expression recalls Pere Hyacinthe's recent criticism, that "nothing is more dangerous in a Pope that piety when it is subjected to the influence of a Secretary of State more or less of a Spaniard and a reactionary." As if to confirm this view, Mgr. Merry del Val's hand is thought to appear in an alteration of the circular letter. The version which reached the French Foreign Office lacked certain minatory phrases which went to all the other chancelleries of the Catholic world. Naturally, this suppression, once discovered, has heightened the offence.

Let us admit that, from his own point of view, the Pope was absolutely right in resenting a recognition of the usurping house of Savoy, which involved the disregard of the Holy See. President Loubet's visit must inevitably have been offensive to the Vatican. But it was highly inexpedient for Pope Pius X. to seek a diplomatic remedy which was no remedy at all. A public reaffirmation of the temporal power, a measured complaint against the Trastevere "festivity," would have shown that the Vatican yielded no point of principle. Such an encyclical need not have mentioned the French visit. The coincidence would have pointed the reference to President Loubet. A letter addressed only to the faithful would not have become a parliamentary order of the day at Paris, whereas the circular note has already provoked serious reprisals in the withdrawing of the French Ambassador to the Vatican, and the whole matter will be laid before the Chamber of Deputies this week to add bitterness to the anti-Clerical agitation.

Already it is rumored that M. Combes will demand the denunciation of the Concordat, with the complete separation of Church and State in France. That he desires this may be safely assumed; that the French Republic can afford to give the Church its liberty, by withholding State support from it, is very doubtful. For Napoleon's momentous treaty of 1801 with the prisoner Pope Pius VII. was in some respects merely the logical formulation of principles worked out through many centuries of conflict between the Kings of France and the Popes. From St. Louis's time France had claimed the right of nominating bishops; Louis XIV. was unanimously beaten on that issue; but Napoleon secured the important right, beyond the possibility of unseemly dispute, of nominating bishops under the Concordat. France gains a national character for her church and guards against its undue political subservience to the Roman Curia. The agreement to pay a fixed stipend to the secular clergy arose naturally out of the revolutionary theory of the Church as a function of the centralized State. The power to discontinue the stipend is the power to regulate the attitude of the priests towards the nation—to reward the loyal and to punish recalcitrants. At the comparatively slight expense of $10,000,000 a year, the government of a country still profoundly Catholic at heart becomes at once the protector and the controller of the Church.

Imagine the Concordat abolished, and all moral claim to control would vanish. Today the Government peremptorily closes the convents and abolishes the Catholic schools, chiefly because the patron of the Church is necessarily master. On the other hand, any attempt to regulate the bishops or the parish priests, after the Concordat had been abolished, would amount to tyranny. Now the Government has special rights over the Church; then it would have only the general rights it exercises over all citizens and associations. With Church and State fully independent it would be as outrageous to interfere with the Catholic education in France, as it would be with, say, Methodist education in America.

As the case stands, the Catholic Church in France is in admirable condition for its work. Throughout the country parishes one finds cures not only of simple piety and saintly life, but also of fine education and breeding. No one who has observed the work of such men in the country towns, where in many cases the cure is maintained only by the national stipend, would wish to see their enlightening influence withdrawn. Often these men are about the only persons in a village whose life makes positively for morality and ideality of any kind. Largely because of the overt contempt of religion so prevalent in modern France the parish priests generally have developed those heroic qualities which are the fruits of persecution. In the dislocation which would follow the abolition of the Concordat, the Church might suffer in tone. Many parishes would be abandoned, the missionary work necessitated by the change would be conducted not by loyal bishops, but in many cases by political bishops, eager only for ecclesiastical advancement. At some distant day the Church might be the better for regaining its freedom; for the present one could anticipate only a considerable loss in spirituality and moral efficiency.

St. Louis Gold Mining Co

Property includes six full claims, with a 38 foot ore body extending across 3200 feet of this property, determined by a tunnel 500 feet and open cuts and shafts every one in ore. Why does St. Louis Gold Mining Co. offer the investor a chance for a money.

1. Do you know that its title is free and clear?
2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company

of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars are in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless y cally are interested, because do waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than satisfy every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9,000 feet on the vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $38.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 500 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

75 Cents Per Share, Par Value $1.00

INVESTORS are afforded every opportunity for the strictest investigation regarding the property and the reputation of the officers and directors. Highest banking references.

Valuable property situated on Erin Mountain, near Slocan B. C. an ideal location for a mining camp and consists of 184 acres, title secured by patents from the Crown. The timber supply is ample and an ideal water power lies at our very feet.

The ore is known as dry ore, and contains less than ten per cent, of lead. The silver occurs as Native, argentite, sulphide and chloride while the gold is free and also mechanically mixed with pyrites and a little copper, Several carload shipments already made averaged $53.10 per ton exclusive of smelter charges.

Shaft 100 feet deep and 900 feet of tunnel work already accomplished, and the work still proceeds. Only a limited amount of this stock is offered to the public. Now is the time to invest in one of the most promising companies in the world.

CANADA AND TREATY MAKING

How Sir Charles Tupper Protected the Canadian Interests.

A RECORD IN EMIGRATION.

The Year 1903 was Distinguished by European Emigration to Canada

London, May 31.—Mr. Thomas Dalgetty, writing on Canada and the treaty making power in the Saturday Review, shows that the East India Company, by virtue of their royal charter, exercised independent treaty making power, and also that a former American proprietory charter gave the same power. The colonies' fisheries treaty of 1883 was negotiated by Lord Dufferin, but Sir Charles Tupper, who represented Canada in both negotiations, provided that the prior sanction of Canada should be given before their ratification by the Home Government.

AN EMIGRATION RECORD.

The report of the statistical department of the Board of Trade states that 1903 was distinguished by a large European emigration movement to Canada and South Africa. Canada received 99,562 Europeans, and also 33,000 more British and Irish emigrants than 1902. For the four months ending April 30 the decrease in foreigners passing through British ports for Canada was 6,000, in consequence of the C.P.R. refusing passage to foreign emigrants.

A NEW PHASE OF YELLOW PERIL

Ex-Premier Irvine, of Victoria, Australia, speaking at a dinner of the Australian Merchants, in London, said that should the Russo-Japanese war result in a great dominant Mongolian power in the Far Eastern Seas the British supremacy in Australia would be jeopardized and the situation would have to be faced by a united Empire.

EMPIRE NEEDS PEACE.

The Yorkshire Post says that the Royal Commission's advocacy of conscription and the likelihood that the colonies need all their men for their own defence suggests that the Empire needs a period of rest to chew what it has bitten off.

SATURDAY REVIEW ON EMPIRE DAY.

The Saturday Review declares that it is right enough to celebrate Empire Day, already a great day in the colonies, but regrets that the sentiment attached to the Queen's Birthday is now swallowed up in that of Empire Day.

RUSSIA'S BIG BLUFF WON'T GO WITH JAPAN

HER MOBOLIZATION OF TWO MILLION MEN IS A GREAT FAKE

London, May 30.—The statement made by Russia that no European interference would be tolerated in her war with Japan, and that 2,000,000 men were being mobilized, is regarded as a big bluff. The fact that it would be impossible to transport these men—or an considerable portion of them—to the east, makes the atatement absurd. Russia is not able financially to keep an army of this proportion in the field. The fall of Port Arthur is close at hand, and the bear is in agony over the prospect. That victory will follow Japan is believed by all British war critics and it will be up to Russia to solicit the good offices of European powers to stop the war. That Russia will drag other nations into the vortex, is most unlikely, even although China joins Japan.

RUSSIANS LOST SOME DESTROYERS

Three Blown Up Previous to Sinking of Hatsuse.

CORRESPONDENCE CAPTURED

Russian Letters Described Laying of Mines—Yoshino's Captain Stood Gallantly at His Post.

Tokio May 30.—Admiral Togo reports the capture of a junk that was attempting to leave Port Arthur. Letters from Russian officers were found on board of her stating that three torpedo boat destroyers were blown up at the entrance of the harbor on May 21st, and also describing the laying of mines by a torpedo boat destroyer, which sunk the Japanese battleship Hatsuse.

The heavy loss of life which accompanied the sinking of the Japanese cruiser Yoshino, as a result of colliding with the Japanese cruiser Kasuga, on May 15th, was due to the smashing of five of her boats by falling masts.

The ship settled quickly after the collision. Captain Gin Sayeki ordered the crew to the upper deck, where they manned the boats. Five boats were lowered on the starboard side and one on the port side, but before the boats were cleared the ship lurched to starboard and began to sink, five of the boats being struck and sunk.

Capt. Sayeki remained on the bridge and cried "Banzai!" to the sailors as they were entering the boats. When last seen he was shaking hands with Commander Hirowatari and bidding him farewell.

At this moment Lieut Haito sprang overboard and swam to the other cutter which had escaped from the wreck. He rowed to the cruiser Kasuga and returned with three boats but no trace of the Yoshino or her crew could be found, with the exception of six men, who had been rescued by boats from the cruiser Chitose. The fog was very dense. The Kasuga struck the Yoshino on the port side near the engines, and the force of the blow was so great that the dynamos of the latter's lighting plant were destroyed, leaving the ship in darkness.

Commander Honda, who commanded the fireship Totomi in the successful sealing up of Port Arthur, arrived here to-day. Honda and the entire crew of the Totomi were defeated by the awful cannonade. Honda did not discover their condition until they were leaving the ship. Honda was forced to make signs indicating his orders, in order to successfully bring the crew back to Vice-Admiral Togo's squadron.

An Original Plan is in Operation at Raleigh

New York, May 30.—The Herald has the following from Raleigh, N. C.; The Town of Smima has discovered an original way of getting rid of tramps. The railway runs straight through the town and along the track is a street half a mile long. Tramps upon arrest are allowed by the mayor to race for freedom, the last man of the contest to go to "the road" for thirty days. Then the tramps are lined up at the Town Hall, while a policeman is at the boundary, half a mile away. The tramps run with all their might and the winners are seen no more, while the watching policeman captures the last man, who is sent to "the roads." It is said that tramps go near the town only once, and that the device for getting rid of them is entirely original.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 225 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanaterium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

Toronto, December 10, 1903.

ENDOWMENTS AT LIFE RATES

HOW do the rates compare with those of other companies?

The rates are the same as the principal Canadian Companies charge for "Whole Life" and "Twenty Payment Life" policies

WHERE can these policies be secured?

From any agent of the LONDON LIFE.

WHEN do these policies become endowments and are the endowments guaranteed or estimated?

The policies mature as endowments at about expectation of life and are absolutely guaranteed.

WHAT kind of settlement does the LONDON LIFE give at the end of twenty years?

FIVE OPTIONS or methods of settlement are offered at the end of twenty years.

The guaranteed cash surrender is the largest in Canada for the premium paid.

WHAT options are given policy holders in case of lapse or surrender

The policy holder may select one of four options.

1st. PAID UP INSURANCE for reduced amounts payable as endowments at maturity period.

2nd. EXTENDED INSURANCE for a fixed number of years and months for full amount of policy less premiums and interest thereon unpaid.

3rd. CASH LOANS.

4th. CASH SURRENDER VALUES.

Tuberculosis The Lungs Cured

The World's Greatest Physician Eulogizes Catarrhozone, which kills all the Germs Heals the Membranes, Cures The roughly.

That consumption is due to the presence of germs in the air passages is now admitted by all physicians. Before the disease can be cured of course these germs must be killed. Liquid medicine taken into the stomach cant possibly reach the air cells of the lungs, and is therefore useless.

Catarrhozone never fails to kill the bacilli of consumption for the following reasons, which are plain to every thinking person:

First—Each breath of medicated air you draw through Catarrhozone Inhaler is at once sent through every air cell and air passage in the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs; it is then sure to reach the nest of the consumption germs.

Being a powerful antiseptic Catarrhozone at once kills these germs and establishes such a healthy condition in the lungs that microbes cant live there. Once the cause of the disease is removed it is only a matter of time till you get well and strong again.

That Catharrhozone does permanently cure Tubercular Trouble can no longer be doubted. Ample evidence of its marvellous merit is witnessed every day. Thousands have been cured after all else has failed by this great germ destroyer, which is inhaled to the very source of the disease.

Mrs. G. P. McCluskly, writing from Salt Lake City, U.S., says: "My doctor ordered me to Colorado, where I first used Catarrhozone. I inhaled it probably twenty times a day. In one week it stopped my cough completely, and it was not very long in taking every bit of soreness and hoarseness out of my throat. The antiseptic vapor of Catarrhozone must certainly have killed all the germs of consumption in my lungs, for I came home in seven months a cure. My doctor says Catarrhozone is a marvel. It is of the greatest assistance in lung trouble, and cured me permanently."

Not only consumption but every form of catarrh and throat trouble is easily cured by Catarrhozone. Two months treatment costs $1.00. At druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont. For a quick and certain cure use only Catarrhozone.

Death of Miss B Scully

Yesterday morning Miss Bridget Scully, second daughter of Mr. Patrick Scully, of Stewart street, departed this life after a somewhat lengthened illness, which was borne with Christian fortitude. Deceased was well known in town and her death will be very generally regretted by all who knew her. She was in the 22nd year of her age. The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, the interment taking place in the R. C. cemetery.

Conference Opens Today

A large number of the ministers and delegates who are to attend the Conference, arrived yesterday, and as the proceedings open to-day many more will likely arrive this morning by the incoming trains. The townfolks are glad to welcome them and no doubt will take a lively interest in the debates from day to day. We welcome both clergy and laymen and hope that their stay in town may be pleasant to themselves and profitable to all with whom they come into contact.

W.C.T.U. Building Fund

The Building Committee of the above organization are very desirous that the subscriptions promised be either paid in full or in part as soon as possible, as there is immediate need for money. Canvassers are requested to hand in their books, as well as the proceeds, by the 10th of the month, to the general secretary. Friends of the association who are desirous of seeing a copy of the plans for the new building, may do so by calling at the association's rooms any time during business hours.

Police Court News

The Italians, who, it is supposed, cut two or three citizens on the evening of Victoria Day, as the result of an affray on the street, was up before Magistrate Dumble yesterday morning, but were further remanded until the 8th instant. Bail was offered them, but no one caring to invest the necessary $500.00 in each case, they went back to jail in the meantime. W. H. Moore appeared for the prisoners, and R. E. Wood for the crown.

A local hotel keeper was up for selling liquor on Sunday, May 22nd, but the case was enlarged until this morning. R. E. Wood for prosecution and D. O'Connell for defen.

Will meet in Belleville

The one hundred and first annual meeting of the Peterborough Association of Baptist Churches will be held at Belleville on June 21 to 23. There are twenty-two churches in the association, including those at Lakefield, Cobourg, Port Hope, Peterborough, Norwood, Campbellford, Brighton, Picton and Colborne, and it is expected that between sixty and seventy delegates will be in attendance. The purpose of the gathering is to consider the progress and life of the churches, and also to hear representatives of the various branches of the denomination's work. Active preparations are being made by the local church to receive and entertain the delegates.

Lindsay Boy Shot

Lindsay Post: On Saturday evening about 9 o'clock, Master Alfred Parkin, eldest son of Capt. Jos. Parkin, and Master Lance Bell, a playmate, both aged about 12 years, were in close communion on Mr. S. G. Parkin's lawn. They had unearthed a prize in the form of a revolver of 38 calibre and while Master Parkin was explaining its mechanism the weapon exploded and an instant later Lance exclaimed, "Oh, Alfie, I'm shot!" and fell.

Assistance soon arrived and the boy was carried to Dr. McAlpine's office where it was discovered that the bullet had entered the right shoulder, and ranging downward under the skin had passed out on the same side without injuring any vital part. Dr. McAlpine, after cleaning and dressing the wound, conveyed the young lad to Ross Hospital, where he occupies a private ward and was able to receive his friends yesterday. He will be out in a week.

CHAINED BY FRIENDS

Mr. C. B. Robertson Presented with a Gold Chain and Locket

Mr. C. B. Robertson, who is severing his connection with the Canadian General Electric Company, to take up ranching in Alberta, was the recipient of a gold chain and locket from his fellow employees at the Y. M. C. A. building on Monday evening. For fourteen years an employee of the company and lately as foreman of the machine shop, he had so far engratiated himself into the respect an desteem of his fellows that they could not suffer him to depart from amongst them without some token of respect, hence the meeting and presentation.

Mr. Robertson who largely identified with good works, while engaged in the company's employ was mainly instrumental in organising the mutual benefit society and otherwise active in promoting the employees' interests.

Mr. Robertson is an ex-alderman, under the old ward system, and has many friends in town outside of fellow employees.

Many a man would better go without lunch at all than eat the hurried lunch which forms the noon-day meal of many a business man. Hasty eating, foods hard to digest, and no time allowed for digestion are the cause of many a case of stomach "trouble."

Disease of the stomach seriously threatens the health of the whole body and should be promptly cured. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect assimilation of food and the proper nutrition of the body on which physical strength depends.

"Nine or ten years ago my health became very poor, and in 1896 was so far gone that good doctors pronounced my case the worst they had ever treated," writes Mr. Harvey Phipps, of Florence, Ala. "I had acute stomach trouble, liver complaint, catarrh and was nervous to such an extent I could not sleep. I finally got three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and some 'Pellets.' Took them according to directions on the bottles, and in a few days noticed a decided improvement. I commenced to get more rest at night and could eat with pleasure, where formerly food was like chips to me. When I had used three bottles of the 'Discovery' I was a new man; could eat minus pie for supper, go to bed at seven P. M. and sleep until seven A. M. I am now working at my trade (carpentry), every day in all kinds of weather, and think if I had not taken your medicines I would now be under the sod."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from accumulated impurities.

DOUBLE TELEPHONE SERVICE

Montreal Has Had Unpleasant Experience in this Line

Peterborough is not the only place that has suffered from a double telephone service. Montreal has also had an unpleasant experience in this direction, as will be seen from the following, which is taken from the Gazette:

"Toronto still hankers after a competitive telephone service. Montreal has a large amount of experience with this sort of thing that it will cheerfully place at the disposal of its sister city. It is to the effect that a good service at a fair price is much to be preferred to a competitive service at a lower rate."

Peterborough is about to repeat her experience of a few years ago, when our people were forced to have two telephones instead of one. Instead of reducing the price the encouragement of a second service, with no connections outside of town, will mean an additional expense to very many.

ANOTHER ITALIAN ARRESTED

Nicola Rengetta Charged with Attempting to Stab Fred Hay

As the result of an examination of the witnesses to be called in the Victoria Day affray, (in which the Italians made use of knives), held in the police court room after the regular session yesterday morning. The consensus of opinion was that the man whose name is given above was one of the guilty parties on that occasion.

The examination was conducted by the crown attorney and the chief of police, and only the witnesses were present besides the prisoner, who was remanded until the 8th instant.

GREAT BATTLE OF THE WAR IS NOW AT HAND

The Russian Army in Port Arthur Will Die Hard ...Togo Fails to Block Harbour.

London, Ju —The report that General Kuropatkin was sending an army to the relief of Port Arthur turns out as might have been expected to be, an invention. General Kuropatkin is no more in a position to send an army to the relief of Port Arthur than Port Arthur is in a position to send an army to the relief of General Kuropatkin. The General is indeed said to be through political pressure again moving his forces in Manchuria southward, but the movement is regarded as suicidal. The fall of Port Arthur cannot be long deferred, and that event will set free another Japanese army for operation against Kuropatkin should the Russian Government decide to prolong a war that will then became absolutely and obviously hopeless. The Russian evacuated Dalny so hastily that they left an enormous accumulation of stores, which they had not time to destroy. June 20th is the date publicly announced in Tokio for the capture of Port Arthur, but Admiral Togo has again been at work trying to perfect the blocking of the channel, and it will not be at all astonishing if the date given out is intended to mislead the enemy. In 1894 the Japs took about a fortnight to march down the peninsula, and less than forty-eight hours to capture the fortifications the town and the port. They have a different enemy with which to contend this time; but if the Russians have improved upon the Chinese defences, the Japs, too, have not been idle in improving their equipment in the last ten years. During the present war the unexpected has frequently happened, and if there were anywhere for the Port Arthur garrison to fall back to in good order we might expect them to get out as quickly as the troops got out of Dalny. As it is, a sanguinary battle seems inevitable.

RUSSIAN GUNBOAT DESTROYED.

Some of the refugees also say the Russians destroyed the gunboat Bobr which is believed to have taken part in the battle of Thursday last at Kin Chou and Hanshan Hill, and three torpedo boats. Others say these vessels returned to Port Arthur. The docks and piers at Dalny were not destroyed.

Bandits occupied the city after the Russians left and levied tribute on the inhabitants. A Chinese contractor, who had built most of Dalny for the Russians, was held for ransom and his clerks were killed. The town was still burning on May 28, when the refugees started for Chefoo. The Japanese had not appeared at Dalny up to that time. One junk which was leaving Dalny was sunk by bandits, and fifty persons were drowned.

The Chinese who have arrived here did not leave Dalny or Talienwan because they were afraid of the Russians or Japanese. They fled from the bandits who entered these two towns.

The Russian gunboat Bobr was a small vessel of 950 tons.

RUSSIANS GIVE UP HOPE.

Refugees who continue to arrive here from the southern part of the Liao Tung Peninsula report daily fighting there, and severe losses by both armies, but the reports are not confirmable officially. The Russians here are depending on the press bulletins for news from that vicinity.

The very highest Russian authority here, while not believing that Port Arthur will fall, admits that its loss would be a terrible blow to the Russian arms. The same authority says that Russia may send a large army to the south of New Chwang in the event of General Stoessel being able to hold his own at Port Arthur. This however, is not possible at present, owing to the positions occupied by the Japanese armies operating from the Yalu River and Taku Shan. The Russians are not sanguine as to the outlook for Port Arthur.

Heavy rains are daily making the roads almost impassable.

Mukden, June 1.—According to advices received here, General Stoessel's force has taken up a strategical position near Port Arthur, which is supported by the guns of the outlaying batteries and the fortress.

There is little change in the situation to the eastward of Liao Yang.

St. Petersburg, June 1.—The Russian press is sparing of its comments on the Kin Chou affair, but there is an evident disinclination to accept the Japanese official reports in their entirety. The general tone of the papers indicate the belief that even the fall of Port Arthur would not decide the war.

Much praise is given for the splendid defence of Nanshan, made by the Russians against superior numbers.

ECHOES OF THE CONFLICT.

By an imperial ukase just issued in St. Petersburg, the control of the ports of Revel, Sveaborg and Libau an dall the sea forces of the Baltic has been transferred to The commandant of the port of Kronstadt to assure uniformity in the measures adopted for the defence of the coasts of the Baltic during the war.

After a long period of quibbling the Corean Cabinet has granted the Japanese Government fishing rights off the west coast province of Corea.

The statement emanating from Paris that General Kuropatkin was sending 30,000 troops to the southward in an attempt to save Port Arthur from the Japanese is declared at St. Petersburg to be untrue.

Many women and children and male civilians are leaving Harbin.

Seventy condemned Chinese bandits are at Liao Yang awaiting execution. The local Chinese governor, in view of the troublesome times, has been empowered to behead bandits without referring their cases to the Chinese authorities at Mukden.

Japan announces that the war correspondents now "bottled up" in Tokio will be allowed to leave Tokio on June 10 in time to see the capture of Port Arthur, which is expected to occur about June 20.

FOUS DAYS' GRUISE OFF PORT ARTHUR

The Everything Quiet in that Vicinity Just at Present.

ATTACK MADE ON MONDAY.

Evacuation or Dalny--Recent Fight with Cossacks -Stoessel's

Che Foo, June 2.—For four days past a despatch boat with a Star correspondent on board has cruised around the peninsula, never far from Port Arthur. The cruise has been made throughout the day; at night the boat has anchored under the shelter of the Miaotao Islands. During this time not a single Japanese ship has been seen nor has a shot been heard in the direction of the fortress.

It seems as though the Japanese are avoiding another general naval engagement with the forts on account of the extreme danger from floating mines.

A Chinese junk struck one of these floating mines a few days ago near the peninsula and was annihilated. Junks have been seen attempting to run the blockade and some have successfully accomplished their object.

DEVASTATE 43 VILLLAGES.

Details of Armenian Massacres Tell Terrible Tale of Fire and Death.

Over 25,000 Men Take Part in Raiding All Christians in Their Path.

Paris, June 2.—The government's advices concerning the details of the Armenian massacres are not definite, but the official view is that the depredations are grave.

Deputy De Pressense, socialist, who has confidential relations with the foreign office, has received a telegram from Baku saying the Turkish forces operating against the Armenians consisted of 12,000 regulars and 10,000 Kurds, with fifteen guns. The dispatch further assert that forty-three villages were burned and their inhabitants were killed. The male Armenians are said to have made a desperate resistance on the summit of Mount Antok.

M. De Pressense has forwarded the dispatch to Foreign Minister Delcasse, with a letter announcing that he will question the minister in the chamber of deputies concerning what steps French diplomacy intends to put a stop to this lamentable crime. The officials believe that M. De Pressense's dispatch correctly states the devastation the Turks have wrought.

ROUTS HERERO'S IN BATTLE

German force Surprises Entrenched Rebels in Southwest Africa

Berlin, June 1.—Captain Dannhauer, the correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger in German southwest Africa, cables from Windhock that Lieutenant Colonel Von Estorff learned that the Hereros were trekking westward to Waterberg May 24 and that he hurried to Ojomasu by forced marches, surprising the enemy which had intrenched. At first the Hereros offered a brave resistance but later they fled in all directions, leaving six dead. The German losses were two.

MORE EASTERN TROUBLE

Mad Brutal Anti Jewish Outbreak in Bessarabia

Berlin, May 30—Reports have reached this city from Austrian sources that the town of Chotin, Bessarabia, near Kishnef, was the scene of a brutal anti-Semitic outbreak on Wednesday and Thursday. One hundred Jews were injured. The synagogue was destroyed and numerous Jewish houses and stores were plundered by the mob, which is said to have numbered 3,000.

Russians, Greeks, Armenians and Roumanians joined in the attack. Priests, prominent citizens and even women and children took a hand. The the river; women and girls were subJews were dragged out of their houses, beaten, kicked and ducked in icy water to cruel indignities. Only after the mob had accomplished its purpose did the Russian mounted police appear on the scene.

Even then the rioters, apparently believing the police would not molest them, continued their work, but were finally suppressed. However, they announced their intention to renew the attack some other day. The Jews in Chotin are panic stricken and many of them had fled to Austria.

THE FISHING SEASON.

The Bass Fishing Season Opens on June 16th.

Our citizens and residents at all points along the Kawartha Lakes will learn with much satisfaction that the order to extend the close season for bass and maskalonge to July 1st—two weeks later than heretofore, has been cancelled by the Ontario Fisheries Department for this season at least, and fishermen may inaugurate their favorite summer sport on Thursday morning, June 16th, at any hour they may select as the most propitious.

No doubt the decision to continue the old arrangements was influenced by the many protests forwarded to the Department from all parts of the Province by the fishery inspectors and overseers. The Lindsay inspector pointed out that the extension of the close season to July 1st would debar nearly every farmer, and those so employed, from all enjoyment of the sport until the fall, because fishing is out of the question during the harvesting season. This would give to the American tourist almost a monopoly of the sport of killing the fine game fish with which our lakes are stocked.

Mr. Brady, the Lindsay officer, also directed the attention of the Department to an anomaly in the regulation. Heretofore fishing in Rice Lake has opened two weeks earlier than elsewhere, and it transpired that the reason urged by the people of the district when applying for the concession was that when the water is low the growth of rice and weeds renders trolling a very difficult if not impossible sport. Mr. Brady very properly brought the attention of his superiors the fact that a much larger area of the Kawartha waters is subject to the same conditions, including Scugog Lake and River, Emily Creek and Pigeon River and Creek aggregating in all about 100 miles. These stretches should be governed by the same regulations as are framed for Rice Lake, and Mr. Brady is entitled to the thanks of fishermen generally for his action in calling attention to the matter.

150 SPECKLED BEAUTIES

Messrs. Danny Simons and Herb Snowden's Good Luck

Mr. Danny Simons, Peterborough's clever commedian, who is enjoying a well earned rest of a few weeks, accompanied by Mr. Herb. Snowden, returned yesterday from a fishing trip to St. Peter's Lake, near Bancroft. They had phenomenal luck, having landed 150 as fine speckled trout was was ever hooked by any pair of nimrods in this or any other land.

When fishing ceased to be a pleasure, and they had secured all they could decently carry back with them, they decided to return to town. During their absence in the camp Danny had grown a stupendous crop of black whiskers, which looked natural to those who had seen him in his make up as "Dusty Rhodes," while Herb's face would create the envy of any professional hobo.

BAY OF QUINTE CONFERENCE.

First Draft of Stationing Committee Read

THE MEETING LAST NIGHT

Conference is Now in Full Swing--To-day's Meetings

The twenty-first session of the Bay of Quinte Conference opened yesterday in the George street church. Rev. T. J. Edmison, B.A., B.D., President of the Conference, was in the chair.

After devotional exercises the roll was called, and about 100 ministers answered to their names.

Dr. Crothers conveyed to the Conference a message from Rev. Dr. Lambly, who is at the point of death. Dr. Lambly has been superannuated for some years, and always took a prominent part in Conference work.

The three ministers to be ordained on Sunday are:—Messrs. J. Fletcher Chapman, Charles W. Barrett, and W. S. Smart.

The following transfers were made:—Rev. W. H. Emsley, from Manitoba Conference to Bay of Quinte Conference. Out of Bay of Quinte Conference — Rev. G. H. Kennedy, to Hamilton Conference; T. M. Campbell, to Toronto Conference; C. H. Shepherd, to Manitoba Conference; C. E. McIntyre, to Manitoba Conference; W. A. McKim Young, to Manitoba Conference; J. E. Howson, to Manitoba Conference. Transfers to take effect forthwith.

Three ministers were superannuated this year as follows:—Revs. Geo. Robinson, John Harris and T. W. Jolliffe, the latter being laid off for one year.

The following probationers were advanced one year:—Messrs. A. W. Shaver, C. S. Reddick, T. E. Johnston, S. A. Kemp, D. R. Clare, H. H. Cragg, J. G. Brown, F. W. Morgan, A. H. Manning, E. W. Rowell, Wm. R. Honey, W. W. Jones, J. E. Howson, E. Bowerman.

On request of Conference, the President nominated the following committee on Conference relations:—Revs. R. Duke, R. McCullough, A. C. Wilson, S. G. Rorke, C. Parker, F. Johnston, W. Limbert, S. J. Shorey.

Rev. C. E. Cragg was appointed to sign railway certificates.

The following ministers of the Conference have died during the past year:—Revs. Eli Woodstock, John English, Wm. Tomblin, J. Kilgour, T. R. Hull, T. S. McKee and R. T. Courtice.

The Statistical Committee met Tuesday afternoon and it was after 12 o'clock Tuesday night when the Stationing Committee completed their duties, the first draft of stations being as follows:

THE CLERGY IN SESSION.

One Reverend Gentleman Received Into This Conference—Others Go Out.

The Ministerial Session of the 21st annual Conference of the Bay of Quinte District, convened in the street church, yesterday at 9 o'clock Rev. S. J. Edmison, B.A., D.D., in the chair.

On the call of the roll 95 ministers answered to their names and took part in the deliberations.

The Rev. W. H. Emsley, from the Manitoba Conference was received into this Conference, and the following named gentlemen were transferred to other fields, viz.: Rev. G. H. Kenny, to Hamilton; Rev. T. M. Campbell, to Toronto; Rev. C. H. Shepherd, Rev. C. E. McIntyre, Rev. D. C. Day and Rev. W. A. McKim Young, to Manitoba. Rev. J. E. Howson was also transferred to the Manitoba and North West Conference to take effect on completion of his examinations.

Several committees were organized and held first meetings.

The following gentlemen are seeking superannuation this year: J. H. Saunders, Geo. Robinson and T. W. Jolliffe.

There were 11 discharges to be preferred against other Ministers or Probationers.

Credentials were ordered to be given Rev. H. E. Curtis, who is now preaching in the U. S.

J. F. Chapman, C. W. Barrett and W. J. Smart are to be ordained this year. There are also a large number of young men advanced one year in their ministerial life, and there are two new candidates for the ministry, in the persons of Messrs. J. E. Robson, of the Lindsay District, and G. C. Grant, of Tamworth.

Revs. G. W. Henderson, Dr. Metzler and Jos. Ward, B.D., were appointed a committee to draft a pastoral address for the present year.

Rev. Enos Farnsworth was appointed to preach to the Salvation Army on Sunday evening.

Other matters of a routine nature were also dealt with and the proceedings closed to meet again at the call of the chairman.

RUSSIANS LOSING HEART REFUGEES ARE ARRIVING

Russians Less Comfident of Ability to Successfully Defend Port Arthur

New Chwang, June 2.—Refugees who continue to arrive here from the southern part of the Liao Tung peninsula report daily fighting there, and severe losses for both armies, but the reports are not confirmed officially. The Russians here are depending on the press bulletins for news from that vicinity. The very highest Russian authority here while not believing that Port Arthur will fall, admits that its loss would be a terrible blow to the Russian arms. The same authority says Russia may send a large army to the south of New Chwang in the event of Gen. Stoessel being able to hold his own at Port Arthur. This, however, is not possible at present, owing to the positions occupied by the Japanese armies operating from the Yalu River and Taku Shan. The Russians are not sanguine as to the outlook for Port Arthur.

Heavy rains are daily making the roads impassable.

The Chinese brigands are becoming active.

A PRETTY JUNE WEDDING

Nuptials of Mr. Edward Wandby and Miss Harriet Ellen Heal

Yesterday afternoon the George street Methodist parsonage was the scene of a very interesting event, when Miss Harriet Ellen, daughter of Mr. James Heal, Dublin street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Edward Wandby of Toronto.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Wilson. The bride was prettily gowned in white and carried white flowers. She was attended by her sister, Miss A. G. Heal, who was similarly attired. The groom was supported by Mr. A. W. Fife.

Mr. and Mrs. Wandby will reside in Toronto.

THE NEW COUNTY CLERK AND TREASURER.

Mr. E. M. Elliott, A Peterborough County Man

Mr. E. M. Elliott, the newly appointed clerk and treasurer of the County of Peterborough, is a native of this county, having been born in Smith about 40 years ago, where he has resided ever since. For a year he sat in the Township Council, and last January was elected Reeve of the township. He has always taken an active interest in public matters, having been president of the West Peterborough Farmers' Institute for some years. He is popular with all classes and it is believed will fill the position to which he has been elected in a satisfactory manner.

The Times extends its hearty congratulations.

TO SUCCEED REV. J. P. WILSON

Rev. W. J. Crothers, M.A. B.D.—Where He Has Previously Labored

Rev. W. J. Crothers who will in all likelihood enter upon the pastorate of the George Street Methodist church in the near future, has a record for good work in the ministry. He was President of the Bay of Quinte Conference in 1900, and one of the representatives from Canada to the Ecumenical Conference, held in London, England, in the year 1901. He has filled pulpits in Ottawa, Carleton Place, Port Hope, Napanee and Belleville, and in each of the places named did good work.

Mr. Crothers was born at Phillipsburg, P.Q., and was educated in the local school and passed his arts course at McGill College, where he took honors, graduating in 1872, and entered the ministry the same year. He was ordained in 1876.

His appointment to the George street church is a popular one with the members of the congregation. We heartily welcome the reverend gentleman as a citizen of Peterborough.

SAD DEATH OF JAMES M'INDOO.

His Mind Became Unbalanced and He Took His Own Life

Yesterday morning the body of Jas. McIndoo, a highly respected resident of North Monaghan, was found in a well near his house, lot 2, con. 10, North Monaghan, where deceased had evidently thrown himself while temporarily insane. Deceased had been bereaved about two weeks ago by the death of his wife and about three months ago a much loved daughter passed away. It is thought by his friends that the mental depression caused his mind to become unbalanced.

On Tuesday evening he was at the home of a neighbor and appeared to be in his usual health. After his return home he retired, as usual and it is thought that he must have risen in the night and went out. He was found by the hired man, Joseph Gibson yesterday, in a well which is in constant use, and which is of no great depth. Dr. Gray, coroner, was telephoned for, who, after hearing the circumstances, considered an inquest unnecessary as his death was caused by drowning.

The late Mr. McIndoo was 52 years of age and was highly respected in the township and vicinity where he lived. For the past twelve years he has resided near Springville, where he owned a very fine farm and was regarded as a well-to-do farmer. He leaves two daughters, Della, aged 12, and Flossie, aged 8. His father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McIndoo, reside at Pontypool. There are also two younger brothers, Joseph, of Buffalo, and M. H., of Nanaimo, B.C., and five sisters, Mrs. Shannon, of Vancouver B.C.; Mrs. S. McRoberts, of Iowa; Mrs. Chas. Billings, of Calgary; Mrs. James McRoberts, Millbrook, and Mrs. W. H. Hooper, Manvers.

The funeral will take place on Friday at 1 o'clock p.m., from the family residence, lot 2, con. 10, North Monaghan and proceed to the cemetery for interment.

COUNTY COUNCIL MEETING.

MR. E. M. ELLIOTT APPOINTED CLERK AND TREASURER

Large Number of Applicants Death of the Late George Stewart Referred to by the Warden

The County Council met in special session yesterday, for the purpose of filling the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. George Stewart, county treasurer.

Mr. E. A. Peck, Warden, was in the chair, and the councillors present were Messrs. Moore, newly elected, for Division Five, Maloney, Monaghe, Fitzgerald, Hunter, Shaw, Johnston, Buck and Curtis.

The warden explained the reason for summoning the council together and said that it was necessary to have the office of treasurer filled immediately. Since the sudden death, to whose sovereignty we must all now or later bow, has again been near us and we have lately stood beside the last resting place of the body of our county treasurer, Mr. George Stewart. Mr. Stewart's death was deeply regretted by all communities and in all sections of the county. He had been in public life for a long period. He had been a member of the council for twelve years, and for a term Warden of the County and he was a man with a strong sense of right, honorable and these qualities, coupled with a very gentle, kindly disposition, attracted him to all with whom he came into association and no one in the county was more highly thought of than he.

The Warden then moved Mr. H. A. Moore, a new representative from Division Five, and referred to the service which he had already rendered the county as Reeve of Dummer.

Mr. Johnston moved and Mr. Buck seconded a resolution of sympathy and condolence in the death of the late George Stewart and the clerk was instructed to forward a copy to the family.

On motion the following applicants for the position of Treasurer were heard in their own behalf:—Messrs. T. G. Eastland; G. W. Bennett, Wm. Sherin, R. J. Kidd, M. W. Mitchell, Jas. Middleton, E. M. Elliott, R. P. Watt, T. E. Bradburn, C. Young.

The council then went into committee of the whole. The committee rose and reported, recommending the appointment of Mr. Edward M. Elliott to the office of clerk and treasurer. The report was subsequently adopted in council.

It is understood that the vote in committee stood 5 to 5 for some time until one of Mr. Kidd's supporters went over to Mr. Elliott. The salary was fixed at $1,200 per year.

Mr. Elliott will begin his duties this morning.

THE GRAND TRUNK TELEGRAPHERS

Ottawa, May 31.—Mr. Campbell, representing the Telegraphers Association, reached Ottawa yesterday, and had a conference with the Minister of Labor, Sir William Mulock, who is endeavoring to bring about a meeting between him and Mr. C. M. Hays, general manager of the Grand Trunk. It is probable that the Minister will appoint a board of arbitration to enquire into the dispute and to make an award.

The Cance Fever

As the summer season approaches the list of bating fatalities commences, and throughout the season the daily papers are called upon to chronicle the sad details of the results of the foolhardy pastime of canoeing. It has been said, and said wisely, that the smart aleck with the canoe and the one with the gun who did not know that it was loaded were two fools that were a menace to the public. Expert canoeists are rare and as to the practice of taking ladies in canoes, thereby subjecting them to the dangers attendant to the same, and in view of possible accidents rendering them powerless to save themselves, dragged down by skirts, no matter how good a swimmer the lady may be, places he who unwittingly errs in the position of being criminally culpable for the result. We are pleased to know that this pastime is not as popular in Peterborough as it used to be, the young people seeking some safer mode of whiling away the summer hours.

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and state boards of medical examiners, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has both the method and the ability to do as he says. Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but liberates all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him, and if he accepts your case for treatment it is equivalent to a cure, as he does not under any consideration accept incurable cases for treatment; and, remember, if he does accept your case you may pay when you are cured. LONGEVITY

There have been so many and such contradictory prescriptions by learned men for lengthening out human life that the subject has almost become one for ridicule, and would not be referred to except that it has been cabled from London that at the Royal College of Physicians Dr. Herman Weber has laid down the following prescription for longevity:

Moderation in eating, drinking and physical indulgence.

Pure air, out of the house and within.

Keep every vital organ in constant working order.

Regular exercise every day in all weathers.

Sleep only from six to seven hours, going to bed early and rising early.

Daily baths, warm one day, cold the next.

Regular work and mental occupation.

Cultivate placidity, cheerfulness, hopefulness.

Control passion and nervous fear.

Strengthen the will in carrying out whatever is useful.

Check the craving for stimulants and anodynes.

This is a singular weak and freakish set of rules to receive the imprimatur of such a dignified institution, but it contains two recommendations that call for comment, one unfavorably and one favorably.

Dr. Weber's third rule is to "keep every vital organ in constant working order," which reminds us of the lawyer who offered to give five reasons for the absence of his client, one being that he was dead. One would naturally suppose that to prolong life and to keep the vital organs in good order were one and the same thing. Rules of longevity ought to consist of an outward regime, intelligible to a layman, by means of which his vital organs may be kept in working order, and Dr. Weber's rule is a begging of the question.

His fifth rule, to sleep only six or seven hours, deserves attention because it is an invaluable rule of health which is almost universally overlooked. The harm that may be done by oversleeping is unknown to the great mass of people. Human beings need different amounts of sleep and with some the amount is only three hours out of the twenty-four. To exceed the natural amount is a positive injury to body and mind. Oversleeping is more injurious even than undersleeping. This is the reason that men are sometimes surprised to find themselves doing their best work in a broken-down condition.

At the heads of every rational scheme for prolonging longevity must lie one habit which Dr. Weber does not mention, and that is the habit of observing and studying the condition of one's health and one's physical constitution. There should never be the slightest deviation from perfect health and comfort which he does not, mentally at least, trace to its source.

The result of such a habit is that without consciously forming resolutions on the subject, one will become violently prejudiced against the dietary and other practices which have produced a certain trouble many times over, and will literally fire them out of his living habits. No rules of longevity are of any use that do not include this.

This point secured, a person will in fact need but one more rule, and that is that, having observed the weak points or points in his condition, he should thenceforth live so as to favor them. Any experienced physician can, after an examination, point out the weak organ or mechanism in a man's system which will probably cause his death. This can be done sometimes fifty years before the man's death and twenty years before he himself becomes sensible of the weakness.

By forming the habit of favoring these weak organs a man may make them hold out as long as the rest and literally cheat his fate. If he neglects this he is lost, no matter how many other wise saws he may live up to.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

In order to preserve the features of those who died it is proposed by a Russian to embalm corpses by casting around them a solid mass of glass. This would be perfectly transparent, and as no air could get in the features would be preserved indefinitely. Of course, it is not possible to pour molten glass directly on the body, so it is first coated with a thin coating of so-called "liquid glass," or sodium silicate. This is allowed to harden and forms a protective coating. The body is then put in a mold and melted glass poured around it. When this is hardened we have a solid, transparent mass inclosing the body. The inventor of this process hopes that some day we will have a large museum filled with the perfectly preserved bodies of the great men of their times for future generations to gaze upon.

London and Manchester are still disputing as to which is the greatest European centre of population. Most people would suppose that London owns the title beyond peradventure. Even if one draws a circle within a radius of thirty miles about Charing Cross station one gets a population of more than 6,000,000, as against 5,600,000 within a similar distance from the Manchester exchange. But protracting a circle within a forty-mile radius one gets a greater Manchester that shows a population of more than 8,000,000, as against a greater London of only 7,400,000.

Nature Sounds A Warning Call

To Everyone in poor health, Now is the Time to get Strong, Build Up and Increase Your Weight. Use Ferrozone the Great Food Tonic.

Most of us make the mistake of neglecting the first message that comes from our tired body demanding more strength and less nervous strain.

When any organ of the body becomes loose when the brain wearies and the nerves rebel against work, it is time to take Ferrozone and build up. The purpose of Ferrozone is to stimulate appetite, improve digestion, convert food into nourishment and supply the kind of blood and building material that fortifies the nervous system and strengthens the whole body.

Ferrozone is not an unnatural stimulant, but a food medicine combining the most strengthening elements known to science. Unlike sickly cod liver oil mixtures and bitters, Ferrozone is prepared in tablet form, convenient to take and always of uniform strength. Its health-giving properties are at once felt and it is sure to help you quickly. Striking proof of its merits is found in the letter of Mr. N. W. Burke, a well-known lawyer in Meriden, who says "When I first took Ferrozone I was in a nervous, run-down condition, almost sick enough to give up work. I lacked strength, and felt as if I could not get down to work. Ferrozone at once gave me a good appetite and drove away the nervous apprehensive feelings that formerly made my life miserable. As I continued the use of Ferrozone I grew stronger and am glad to say it has brought me back to perfect health. I know that Ferrozone is an excellent tonic for business men, and people inclined to a sedentary life. I can recommend it to such."

Ferrozone is endorsed by prominent people in every walk of life, because it never fails to bring the good health that sick folks are looking for.

You must be sure to get Ferrozone and flatly refuse any substitute. Price 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50, all druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford Conn., U.S.A.

Write Notes to Themselves.

"Actors are great hands to write 'mash' notes to themselves," said a stage manager. "The leading young men, you see—the heroes that marry the beautiful girls—are supposed to attract to the theater myriads of young women. They draw big pay on this account; their friends talk seriously of the powerful, almost hypnotic, influences that they exert on romantic females. This power is the stock in trade of the actor who travels on his beauty instead of on his art, and he must always have tangible proof of it. So if the young women don't come up each mail with a bunch of authentic mash notes, he sees to it anyway that he gets mash notes all right. He times them so that they reach the theater during rehearsal. The manager every afternoon brings them to him—a half dozen pink and blue and cream envelopes, smelling of violet and orris. He takes them with a guffaw, reads them, passes them around. Every one pretends to be amused at their silly contents, but the minute the actor's back is turned the murmur passes back and forth; 'They're fakes. He wrote them himself. He spends two hours a day writing himself mash notes.' To tell the truth, this actor gets a number of authentic mash notes, but nobody believes it. It is thought that every note is a fake."—Washington Post.

"Barber, Barber, Shave a Pig."

In pig killing there is no more exciting moment than that of removing the bristles from the carcass. With such haste does the operation sometimes have to be accomplished that in a certain country family it was begun one day with a pair of fine brass candlesticks before the usual utensils could be found.

When Salmon P. Chase was at Kenyon college, which was then presided over by his uncle, Bishop Philander Chase, he encountered a similar difficulty and cut the knot with unhesitating decision. The bishop and most of the elders went away one morning, and young Salmon was ordered to kill and dress a pig while they were gone. He found no great trouble in catching and slaughtering a fat young "porker," and he had the tub of hot water all ready for scalding.

This process should have loosened the bristles, but either the water was too hot or the pig was kept soaking too long; at any rate, when the boy began scraping the bristles not one of them could be started. In pig killing phrase, they were "set." What could he do?

Then he bethought him of his cousin's razors, a fine new pair, just suited to the age of their owner, a spruce young clergyman. He pilfered them and shaved the pig from toe to snout.—Youth's Companion.

Strength From Proper Breathing.

The Japanese, although men of very small stature, are among the strongest in the world. Any boy of fourteen or fifteen who will faithfully practice their system of producing strength will find himself at the end of a few months able to cope in feats of power with the average man of twenty-five, and all this without the dangerous practice of lifting very heavy weights.

It should always be remembered that rest must be taken after each exercise. While resting try deep breathing. Stand erect, though not in a strained position, and at each breath draw the abdomen in and threw the chest out. As the breath is exhaled let the chest fall inward again and the abdomen outward. From twenty minutes to half an hour is a long enough time to devote to jiu-jitsu, and this includes the time spent in breathing during rests, for deep, correct breathing is in itself one of the best exercises possible. In inhaling draw the breath through either the nostrils or the mouth, as preferred. In exhaling always let the breath escape through the mouth.—St. Nicholas.

Lofty Mountain Lakes.

The most lofty lakes are found among the Himalaya mountains in Tibet. Their altitudes do not, however, seem to have been very accurately gauged, for different authorities give widely different figures regarding them. According to some, Lake Manasarowar, one of the sacred lakes of Tibet, is between 19,000 and 20,000 feet above the level of the sea, and if this is so it is undoubtedly the loftiest in the world.

Two other Tibetan lakes, those of Chatamoo and Surakol, are said to be 17,000 and 15,400 feet in altitude respectively. For a long time it was supposed that Lake Titicaca, in South America, was the loftiest in the world. It covers about 4,500 square miles, is 924 feet in its greatest depth and is 12,000 feet above the sea. In spite of inexactitude with regard to the measurements of the elevation of the Tibetan lakes they are no doubt considerably higher than this or any other.

The Olympic Excursion

The Olympic excursion will take place on Thursday and promises to be a great success. Already a large number, who received invitations, have signified their intention of attending, including several from Toronto and other points. The party will leave the Grand Trunk station at 8 o'clock and proceed to Bamleigh, afterwards taking in a circle of the lakes. The 57th Band will, as usual, accompany the party.

A Threatened Strike

It is said that Mr. D. Campbell third-vice president of the International Order of Railway Telegraphers, has given Sir William Mulock to understand that unless some settlement of the Grand Trunk Telegraphers' grievances, or, at least, a respectful hearing of their case, is not speedily had, a strike will be called. Mr. Campbell is in Ottawa to meet Mr. Haya. Sir William is known to desire an amicable settlement of the difficulty existing, and will probably strive to have the matter referred to arbitration.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company. The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups; namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 30 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 570 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflict as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented.

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78½ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented.

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory.....75½ acres
" " Mill and building sites..... 55 "
" " Timber properties..... 90 "
Total 903½ acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

Complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government from which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

Total cost of development to date, present management, $53,000.00
" " " " " former owners - 18,000.00
" " surface improvements, buildings, saw mill plant, horses, wagons, ore cars, track, tools, etc. - 17,000.00
" " Machinery paid for and to be installed - 6,000.00
$99,000.00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $26,000.00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet. We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 200 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver. These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built.

In the meantime only the high grade Smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will aid us materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905, and be continuous thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock, the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3.50 to $4.00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our stockholders. These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments. By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18.00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of procurtion is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,
ROBERT HARRISON.

Tokio Authorities Declare that the Great Preparations are Being Made

The European Military Critics Believe that Port Arthur will Fall within a Shor Time

Tokio, June 1.—It is reported in high military circles that the authorities have decided to prosecute operation at Port Arthur with all celerity consistent with adequate preparations.

It is desired to deprive the Russians of opportunity to recover from the demoralization of recent defeats and also speedily to remove the danger which stands in the way of sending Japanese troops by sea to New Chwang.

Experts say that while the defences to be overcome before Port Arthur can be captured are more formidable than those already stormed, the Japanese in the forthcoming struggle will have the advantage of larger guns and better acquaintance with Russian devices and methods of resistance, confidence prevails throughout the Mikado's army that the Muscovites can be beaten.

PORT ARTHUR DOOMED.

The European Critics Say that Port Arthur will Fall.

Berlin, June 1.—Germany's high opinion of the decisive importance of Japan's fresh military successes is convincingly manifested by the fact that the Japanese strategy, organization and tactics are described as exceeding those of Russia in the same manner as Von Moltke's arrangements outmatched the plans of Napoleon III. in the Franco-Prussian war. An official of the general staff discussing the battle of Kin Chou said to a Daily Star correspondent today: "The Japanese always know, just as Von Moltke did, where to find a preponderance of men and guns. They also understand how to lead the Russian Intelligence Department astray in exactly the same fatal fashion as the Germans did the French. Sacrifices of soldiers and ships count for nothing with them as long as they accomplish their object."

German strategists are positive that the fall of Port Arthur is a matter of days. They do not believe the Russians can prevent its capture. Diplomatists are already discussing the political effect of the capitulation. Many Germans are certain that the yellow peril will manifest itself immediately. The masses in Germany cordially favor Japan. Only the Government and certain export interests support Russia for practical reasons.

Pekin, June 1.—Japan has requested China to prepare to take over the administration of Manchuria as soon as tranquility reigns in the rear of Kuroki's forces. The Tokio Government proposes at the proper moment to seek international cooperation for the maintenance of Chinese authority in the restored provinces. The Japanese troops will undertake to keep the Russians out of Manchuria once they have been expelled, until conditions grow up south of the Amur offering little or no chance of the reassertion of the Muscovite pretensions there. Should the powers decline to lend their diplomatic influence to Japan for the purpose of making Chinese rule in Manchuria a reality, the islanders will endeavor to accomplish the task unaided.

FIERCEST FIGHT OF MODERN DAYS.

The Japanese assault on Nanshan Hill was one of the fiercest and bloodiest affairs in modern warfare. In the earlier rushes of the engagement every man participating was shot down before he reached the first line of the Russian trenches. It was found necessary to stop these infantry charges and renew the artillery fire from the road before the final and successful assault on the Russian position could be made. The success of this assault was brought about by one detachment of Japanese troops more intrepid than their comrades, who succeeded in piercing the Russian line.

A SPLENDID STROKE OF FORTUNE.

was the discovery and destruction by the Japanese of the electric wires leading to the mines at the eastern foot of Nanshan Hill. This prevented the Russians from exploding these mines when the Japanese infantry crossed the ground where they had been placed. It is possible that the fortune of the day hinged upon these mines. If the Russians had been able to explode them at the right time the losses among the Japanese troops would have been tremendous, and it is possible also that the Russians would have been able to hold the hill.

THE BATTLE OF ARTILLERY.

Nanshan was splendidly defended. Nearly 50 guns, of various sizes, were mounted on the various emplacements and there were also numbers of batteries of quick firing pieces. This artillery was sheltered behind loopholes trenched on the tierces of the hill. The infantry manning the field pieces ran with them around the hill thus using these guns for the protection of most important points.

The Japanese began the fight by bringing all their field guns into action, and concentrating their fire on the emplacements of the hill. By 11 o'clock in the morning the principal Russian batteries had been silenced. The two Russian field batteries then withdrew to Han Quan Ling Hill, and from there continued to fire on the Japanese till nightfall.

THESE JAPS ARE WONDERS.

After the Russian batteries had been silenced, the Japanese artillery opened on the enemy's trenches, the Japanese infantry advancing meanwhile to within rifle range. The Japanese gradually worked to within 400 metres of the Russian lines, where they encountered wire and other entanglements. They succeeded in discovering an opening in these obstacles, and getting finally to within 300 metres of the Russian trenches they rushed for the line.

Several successive charges were made, but every officer and man in the attacking parties was shot down 20 or 30 metres from the line. The charges were then stopped and the Japanese artillery renewed its preparatory fire on the enemy's position. Towards evening a detachment of Japanese carried a section of the Russian trenches, breaking through the enemy's line. Hundreds of comrades of these men, inspired by their success, sprang forward, and then the entire Japanese line swept up the hill driving the Russians from their positions. It was in the desperate infantry charges that the Japanese sustained the bulk of their losses.

UNITED DRUG CO. TO ENTER CANADA

Famous American Remedies Will be Handled by a Dominion Corporation

Unless all reports are wrong a chain of drug stores in Canada will soon be selling the products of the new Dominion Company, which will be a branch of the United Drug Co. of Boston, Mass., famous for its phenomenal and successful introduction of the line of Rexall remedies in the United States.

Mr. Louis K. Liggett, the originator of the United Drug Co., and general manager of that corporation, recently made a brief tour throughout the leading Canadian cities, and in speaking to a reporter in Toronto said:

"I am confident that we shall soon organize a branch of the United Drug Co. in Canada on the line of our corporation in the United States, and begin to manufacture and sell a special line of remedies over here.

"More than that, I think we shall open

UNITED STATES TO STOP WAR.

President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay Plan for the Meditation.

PEACE TERMS PROPOSE.

Fear that Uncle Sam Has Put His Foot in It in Interfering.

Washington, June 1.—A prolonged conference today between President Roosevelt and Secretary Hay gave rise to a story to the effect that the president contemplates offering the good offices of the United States Government to end the Japanese-Russian war. The report startled conservative citizens, who desire above everything to avoid involving this country in the far eastern conflict, but it did not surprise persons who have closely followed the president's attitude since the outbreak of hostilities.

The universal belief is that any attempt to interference by this or any other country in the war, would inevitably result in that particular nation getting into no end of trouble. Hints, thrown out at various European capitals, that the continental powers would be willing to extend their good offices to bring about a cessation of fighting, have met with hard "throwdowns" at St. Petersburg and Tokio. It is pointed out that if the president wants to get called down, the best way to do it is to offer to settle the Japanese and Russian differences.

FEAR UNCLE SAM MAY HAVE TO FIGHT.

The president, however, refuses to be reconciled to the position of a passive spectator. He was responsible for the moment for the localization of the war in certain limitations and the effort to insure the entity of China. Later the president through Secretary Hay demanded of China assurances that she would remain neutral in the pending war. The celestial empire being helpless acceded to the demands.

Then the president ordered a large fleet up from the Philippines to Chinese waters to observe the fighting, but the general belief is that it will not be long before the fleet is doing something more than observing. Capping these several occurrences, one offer to mediate in the oriental war, it is believed, would surely draw the United States into the fight and conservative friends of the administration will do their utmost to prevent accomplishment of the design.

HAY SOUNDS TWO POWERS.

The president is anxious for the war to end and wants to offer his good offices to the belligerents to restore peace. But he does not want to receive another slap in the face from Russia or to make unwelcome advances to Japan. Mr. Hay is doing business through the newspapers. He has intimated in a way that could not be directly traced to him by any aggrieved person, that the president is ready, whever his services will be welcomed, to act as peace-maker. He is now awaiting to see what the newspapers at Tokio and St. Petersburg have to say about it and to hear the expressions of public men in the two capitals, which will be unofficially transmitted to him by Ambassador McCormick and Minister Griscom. If nothing but protests is heard the matter will be dropped until the outlook is more propitious.

If there is any intimation, no matter how slight, that the president's advances would not be repulsed the next step will be to have some friendly member of the diplomatic corps talk the proposal over in an unofficial way with Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, and Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister. They would take the matter up with their governments and if there were more favorable indications Mr. Hay would submit the proposition to them direct.

FEAR WARS EFFECT.

The financiers of New York, London, Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburg have joined in an effort to restore peace in the far east, not through any humanitarian motives, but because they dread the effect on the money market of a long-drawn-out struggle. Wall street and the national administration are deeply interested in the success of the movement. Wall street fears the effect of a prolonged war on general financial conditions. The president fears that if money becomes dear it may become difficult to sell—for anything like a fair price—the bonds that are to be issued to furnish the money for the construction of the Panama canal. That argument has been used on the president by New York financiers, and he has become their ally in the peace movement.

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to wit:—The Smuggler, Gaspon, Black Jack, Star and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals — the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 280 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

were uttered, but Henry Warner did not understand it, and, covering the little, blue-veined hand with kisses, he promised that her grave should be made at the foot of the garden in their far-off home, where the sunset light fell softly, and the moonbeams gently shone. That evening Henry sat alone by Rose who had fallen into a disturbed slumber For a time he took no notice of the disconnected words she uttered in her dreams, but when, at last, he heard the sound of his own name, he drew near, and bending low, listened with mingled emotions of joy, sorrow and surprise to a secret which, waking, she would never have told to him, above all others She loved him—the fair girl he called his sister—but not as a sister loves, and now, as he stood by her, with the knowledge thrilling every nerve, he remembered many by-gone scenes, where, but for his blindness, he would have seen how every pulsation of her heart throbbed alone for him, whose hand was plighted to another, and that other no unworthy rival. Beautiful, very beautiful, was the shadowy form which, at that moment, seemed standing at his side, and his heart went out toward her as the one above all others to be his bride.

"Had I known it sooner," he thought, "known it before I met the peerless Mag, I might have taken Rose to my bosom and loved her, it may be, with a deeper love than that I feel for Maggie Miller, for Rose is everything to me. She has made and keeps me what I am, and how can I let her die, when I have the power to save her?"

There was a movement upon the pillow. Rose was waking, and as her soft blue eyes uncloased and looked up in his face he wound his arms around her, kissing her lips, as never before he had kissed her She was not his sister now—the veil was torn away—a new feeling had been awakened, and as days and weeks went by there gradually crept in between him and Maggie Miller a new love—even a love for the fair-haired Rose, to whom he was kinder, if possible, than he had been before, though he seldom kissed her lips or caressed her in any way.

"It would be wrong," he said, "a wrong to himself—a wrong to her—and a wrong to Maggie Miller, to whom his troth was plighted," and he did not wish it otherwise, he thought; though insensibly there came over him a wish that Maggie herself might weary of the engagement, and seek to break it. "Not that he loved her the less," he reasoned, "but that he pitied Rose the more."

In this manner time passed on, until at last there came to him Maggie's letter, which had been a long time on the sea.

"I expected it," he thought, as he finished reading it, and though conscious for a moment of a feeling of disappointment, the letter brought him far more pleasure than pain.

Of Arthur Carrollton no mention had been made, but he readily guessed the truth, and, thinking "it is well," he laid the letter aside and went back to Rose, deciding to say nothing to her then. He would wait until his own feelings were perfectly defined. So a week went by, and again, as he had often done before, he sat with her alone in the stilly night, watched her as she slept, and thinking how beautiful she was, with her golden hair shading her childish face, her long eyelashes resting on her cheek, and her little hands folded meekly upon her bosom.

"She is too beautiful to die," he murmured, pressing a kiss upon her lips.

This act awoke her, and, turning toward him, she said "Was I dreaming, Henry, or did you kiss me as you used to do?"

"Not dreaming, Rose," he answered; then, rather hurriedly, he added "I have a letter from Maggie Miller, and ere I answer it I would read it to you. Can you hear it now?"

"Yes, yes," she whispered faintly, "read it to me, Henry," and, turning her face away, she listened, while he read that Maggie Miller, grown weary of her troth, asked a release from her engagement.

He finished reading, and then waited in silence to hear what Rose would say. But for a time she did not speak. All hope for herself had long since died away, and now she experienced only sorrow for Henry's disappointment.

"My poor brother," she said, at last, turning her face toward him and taking his hand in hers. "I am sorry for you—to lose us both, Maggie and me. What will you do?"

"Rose," he said, bending so low that his brown locks mingled with the yellow tresses of her hair, "Rose, I do not regret Maggie Miller's decision, neither do I blame her for it. She is a noble, true-hearted girl, and so long as I shall live I shall esteem her highly; but I, too, have changed—have learned to love another. Will you sanction this new love, dear Rose? Will you say that it is right?"

The white lids closed wearily over the eyes of blue, but they could not keep back the tears which rolled down her face, as she answered, somewhat sadly: "Who is it, Henry?"

There was another moment of silence, and then he whispered in her ear: "People call her Rose; I once called her sister; but my heart now claims her for something nearer. My Rose," he continued, "shall it be? Will you live for my sake? Will you be my wife?"

The shock was too sudden—too great, and neither on that night, nor yet the succeeding day, had Rose the power to answer But as the dew of heaven is to the parched and dying flower, so were these words of love to her, imparting at once new life and strength, making her, as it were, another creature. The question asked that night so unexpectedly was answered at last; and then, with almost perfect happiness at her heart, she, too, added a few lines to the letter which Henry sent to Maggie Miller, over whose pathway, hitherto so bright, a fearful shadow was falling.

CHAPTER XVIII.

It was a rainy April day—a day which precluded all outdoor exercise, and Hagar Warren, from the window of her lonely cabin, watched in vain for the coming of Maggie Miller. It was now more than a week since she had been there, for both Arthur Carrollton and herself had accompanied Anna Jeffrey to New York, going with her on board the vessel which was to take her from a country she so affected to dislike.

"I dare say you'll be Maggie somebody else ere I meet you again," she said to Maggie, at parting, and Mr. Carrollton, on her journey home, found it hard to keep from asking her if for the "somebody else" she would substitute his name and so be "Maggie Carrollton"

This, however, he did not do; but his attentions were so marked, and his manner toward her so affectionate, that ere Hillsdale was reached there was in Maggie's mind no longer a doubt as to the nature of his feelings toward her Arrived at home, he kept her constantly at his side, while Hagar, who was suffering from a slight attack of rheumatism, and could not go up to the stone house, waited and watched, thinking herself almost willing to be teased for the secret, if she could once more hear the sound of Maggie's voice. The secret, however, had been forgotten in the exciting scenes through which Maggie had passed since first she learned of its existence; and it was now a long, long time since she had mentioned it to Hagar, who each day grew more and more determined never to reveal it.

"My life is almost ended," she thought, "and the secret shall go with me to my grave Margaret will be happier without it, and it shall not be revealed"

Thus she reasoned on that rainy afternoon, when she sat waiting for Maggie, who, she heard, had returned the day before. Slowly the hours dragged on, and the night shadows fell at last upon the forest trees, creeping into the corners of Hagar's room, resting upon the hearthstone, falling upon the window pane, creeping up the wall, and affecting Hagar with a nameless fear of some impending evil. This fear not even the flickering flame of the lamp, which she lighted at last, and placed upon the mantel, was able to dispel, for the shadows grew darker, folding themselves around her heart, until she covered her eyes with her hands, lest some goblin should spring into

ONE LONDON AGENT HAS BOOKED 400 UNDER CUT RATE

London, May 31.— The ten-dollar rate from London to New York is sending crowds of emigrants westward, but they are of the lower and alien classes. Their movement northward into Canada will demand special vigilance at the boundary by immigration inspectors, if Canada is not ready one London agent has booked 400 at the new rate.

The Canadian emigration authorities show no immediate desire for the extension of the war in rates to the St. Lawrence trade. They say that British emigrants of the class Canada desires will go whatever the rate is. Every second class passage on every regular St. Lawrence liner is booked until August. So great is the the pressure Canada-wards, quite apart from the new rate, that the Allans are contemplating special Glasgow emigrant steamer arrangements.

The Anchor and Donaldson lines also contemplate entering the St. Lawrence emigration trade.

It is fully expected that this year's total will exceed last year's exceptional figures. The class of emigrants is excellent.

New York, May 31.—Surgeons of St. Catherine's Hospital extracted from the palm of nine-year-old Rosalie Layko's hand a sharp pencil two and a half inches long, which the child swallowed in January. The child lives at No 195 Montrose street, Williamsburg.

Immediately after she swallowed the pencil the family physician vainly endeavored to locate it. There were no ill effects, and the pencil was forgotten. Her hand began to swell yesterday, and her mother took her to the hospital. Dr. Wood made an incision and to the mother's astonishment the pencil was revealed.

Mrs. Layko said that some weeks ago the child's shoulder began to swell, but the swelling was quickly reduced. Later she complained of pains in the elbow. About a month after she swallowed the pencil she had a severe pain in the right leg Dr. Wood said the pencil had probably been present at each swelling.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO NAVY

Lord Milner Emphasizes Need at Big Transvaal Meeting

London, May 31.—At Johannesburg a mass meeting enthusiastically endorsed the principle of colonial co-operation in support of the navy. Lord Milner said the colonies were vitally interested in the welfare of the navy and all ought to contribute to its maintenance and expense. The navy was more than English, and should be as much Canadian, African and Australian. Colonial contributions towards the maintenance of the navy were steps in the direction of Imperial Federation. He did not care whether the Federal Council of the Empire sat in Ottawa, Sydney or South Africa, provided the future of the British people held together.

Sir George Farrar claimed that the Transvaal, in return for naval contributions, should have representation on the Defence Committee.

London, May 30.—The report of the Royal Commission on the Volunteer and Militia Forces, especially recommends conscription as the only means of providing a home defence army adequate for the protection of the country in the absence or partial absence of the regular troops.

The commissioners are of the opinion that the principles adopted by all the other great European states must be largely adopted by Great Britain and that it is the duty of every able bodied citizen to be trained for national defence.

They point out that the necessary training would involve a period of continuous service with the colors, under an instruction body of specially educated and highly trained officers, and they consider one year of such continuous training would suffice, with a few weeks attendance at the manoeuvres for a year or two afterwards.

The commissioners estimate that such a scheme would provide about 350,000 trained men annually at a cost probably less than that of the present system.

LADY BRUTALLY ASSAULTED

Struck Down While Returning Home from Church on Sunday Evening

While returning to her home near Downer's Corners, on Sunday evening, a lady was brutally assaulted by a man, who leaped out from behind some bushes on the roadside and struck with his fist, knocking her down and kicking her several times. She screamed loudly for help, and a lady in the neighborhood, hearing her cries, went to her and when the camp made off across the fields. The lady's husband was soon on the scene, but too late to chastise the assailant. He drove his wife rapidly home, after which he proceeded to try and find the assailant, but to no purpose

The lady's husband was out driving at the time and she expected him to overtake her on the way home. Her injuries are such as to compel her to keep to her bed, but no serious result is, we understand, likely to follow.

DOURO.

The annual picnic will be held on Thursday, June 23rd. The object of the picnic is to obtain funds to decorate St. Joseph's church with stained glass windows. The work is being done by Mr. Lyons of Church street, Toronto.

The 40 Hours in St. Joseph's church Douro, was a great success. Over 700 people attended their religious duties Vicar General Browne, Rev. Father Dorling, C.S.S.R., Toronto and Rev. Fathers Fitzpatrick, of Emsmore, Crowley, of North Bay, John O'Brien of Peterborough, and Kelly, of Douro, took part in the devotion. The 40 Hours commemorates the 40 Hours during which the Sacred Body of Christ lay in the Tomb.

A RARE CHANCE
FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.
BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non-assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of the State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion. Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

Property includes six full claims, with a 38 foot ore body extending across 3200 feet of this property, determined by a tunnel 500 feet and open cuts and shafts every one in ore. Why does St. Louis Gold Mining Co. offer the investor a chance for a money.

1 Do you know that its title is free and clear?

2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?

3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?

4 Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.

5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?

6 Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.

7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.

8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.

9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.

If you have transgressed against the laws of nature, you must suffer. Self abuse, later excesses and private diseases have wrecked thousands of promising lives. Treat with scientific physicians and be cured. Avoid quacks. E. A. Sidney, of Toledo, says: "At the age of 14, I learned a bad habit and at 19 contracted a serious disease. I treated with a dozen doctors, who all promised to cure me. They got my money and I still had the disease. I had given up hope when a friend advised me to consult Drs. K. & K., who had cured him. Without any confidence I called on them, and Dr. Kennedy agreed to cure me or no pay. After taking the New Method Treatment for six weeks I felt like a new man. The drains ceased, wormy veins disappeared, nerves grew stronger, hair stopped falling out, urine became clear and my sexual organs vitalized. The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic values, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless you really are interested, because you waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9 000 feet on the vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $38.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 50 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary, Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

75 Cents Per Share, Par Value $1.00

INVESTORS are afforded every opportunity for the strictest investigation regarding the property and the reputation of the officers and directors. Highest banking references.

Mr. C. B. Robertson Presented with a Gold Chain and Locket

Mr. C. B. Robertson, who is severing his connection with the Canadian General Electric Company, to take up ranching in Alberta, was the recipient of a gold chain and locket from his fellow employees at the Y. M. C. A. building on Monday evening. For fourteen years an employee of the company and latterly as foreman of the machine shops he had so far engratiated himself into the respect an esteem of his fellows that they could not suffer him to depart from amongst them without some token of respect, hence the meeting and presentation.

Mr. Robertson was largely identified with good works, while engaged in the company's employ was mainly instrumental in organizing the mutual benefit society and otherwise active in promoting the employees' interests.

ADMIRAL HORSEY MAKES AN INTERESTING SUGGESTION IMPERIAL RULING AS TO COLONIAL PREFERENCES

London, June 1.—Admiral Horsey wants territorial waters promptly defined, possibly making the distance five miles, as wanted by the Americans. He says that a reasonable rule would be that any inland sea, bay or inlet which cannot be entered without passing through neutral waters shall be constituted for war purposes a mare clausum. An instance of this rule would be Conception Bay, Newfoundland.

DREYFUS CASE WILL NOT DOWN

Paris, June 1.—An officer named D'Autriche, attached to the Accountants' Department of the War Office from whose accounts, it is stated, 25,000 francs are missing, is imprisoned at Mont valerien, awaiting trial by a court-martial. The newspapers report that the money was used by the staff to suborn witnesses who testified against Capt. Dreyfus at the Rennes trial. Other arrests are impending.

MORE FIGHTING IN THIBET.

London, June 1.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Chumbi, India, says the British expedition on May 26, after a fight of eleven hours, expelled the Thibetans from the village of Palla, close to the British camp at Gyangtse. A British lieutenant and three Sepoys were killed and three officers and nine men were wounded. The Thibetans suffered heavily, and 37 of them were taken prisoners. Palla is a walled stronghold from which the Thibetans started building works with a view of outflanking the British position.

THE U. S. WARSHIPS AT TANGIER

Tangier, June 1.—The United States gunboats Castine and Marietta arrived here during the night, completing (with the cruisers Brooklyn and Atlanta, which arrived yesterday), the American squadron sent here in connection with the kidnapping by the bandit Raisuli of Ion Perdicaris, the American, and his step-son Cromwell Varley, a British subject. The population is deeply impressed by the assembling of so many war vessels, and people living outside the city are removing here for safety.

A FINE PRODUCT OF OHIO.

Sweets from the Maple Trees of Geauga County to Be Exploited at St. Louis Exposition.

An organized effort is to be made to show visitors to the St. Louis exposition what kind of sugar, sirup and confections are produced in the small county of Geauga, one of the least of the 88 in Ohio in population, and by no means great area. The sweets which come from the noble maple trees of the Geauga hills and little valleys will be displayed attractively and pushed for sale with energy and intelligence. The result, says the Cleveland Leader, will doubtless be a revelation to multitudes of Americans and nearly all the foreigners who test the maple products of Ohio.

Few normal human beings have to acquire a taste for such maple sugar, maple sirup, maple wax, and maple cream as Geauga county and several of its neighbors know how to make. The first sample wins its way. People differ much as to olives. Many people find it hard to learn to enjoy raw oysters. Several popular food products gain favor slowly with many persons who come, in the end, to relish them greatly. But pure maple sweets, well prepared, are different. They make instant conquest of the average palate.

The trouble is, in many great centers of population, natural markets for large quantities of any fine food, that maple products, at their best, are hardly known. Doctored and half-spoiled maple sirup and maple sugar, so-called, kill the demand for anything sold under the same name. Imitations prevent the average consumer from understanding how delicious maple sweets can be, when they are well made. Hence the Geauga county undertaking at St. Louis will be a work of education.

Persons of nice and discriminating taste who once try Western Reserve maple sirup and maple sugar have little liking for any other. There are residents of distant cities who have Ohio sugar and Ohio sirup sent to their homes hundreds of miles away, because they cannot get such products of the maple tree anywhere else.

Such appreciation of honest Ohio sirup and sugar, made by the intelligent use of the pure sap of the splendid maple trees which nature planted thickly in many counties of this state, will be much wider and more general after the St. Louis exposition. Many more people will understand what Western Reserve maple products are and how far they outclass most of the stuff sold in other parts of the country as maple sirup and maple sugar.

In the end it will probably be regretted by the owners of farms in such counties as Geauga that more care has not been taken to save the beautiful and stately maples of Ohio. Too many have been cut down for firewood. There has been too much carelessness of the maple groves. A good deal of land has been cleared of fine maple timber which would have been more profitable than the crops grown where the forests used to stand.

Perhaps the appreciation of maple sweets may become so general and so keen that the market demand will lead to the planting and careful nurture of large numbers of maple trees, in the best sugar sections of the Western Reserve. That would be a good thing for the state. It would afford solid promise of much valuable timber, many years hence, as well as great crops of maple sugar and maple sirup.

BIT OF NATURAL HISTORY.

Peculiarities of the Owl Family by One Who Has Made a Study of Birds.

All owls are birds of prey, and according to their size and strength they hunt and kill all manner of creatures, from beetles and grasshoppers to grouse, Canadian hares and skunks. They capture and kill their prey with their feet, and tear it to pieces with their strong hooked bills. With the flesh of their victims they eat more or less of the fur, feathers and bones, and afterwards eject these indigestible parts from the mouth in the form of pellets, says Woman's Home Companion.

In size the American owls vary greatly, the giant great gray owl of the north measuring sometimes 30 inches from the tip of its bill to the tip of its tail, while the tiny elf-owl of southern California, southern Texas and Mexico measures often but five and one-half inches.

Most owls prefer the night and the and the few species which are the exception prove the rule. They are all strange-looking birds, but the strangest looking of them all is the barn-owl, or monkey-faced owl, as some people call it. This weird bird, which is found at least occasionally in almost all parts of the United States, has a faculty of hiding so skilfully in the old wells, deserted mine shafts, bell towers and hollow trees, in which it makes its home, that it is very seldom seen. The capture of a specimen often creates a stir in the neighborhood, many people regarding the captive as half bird and half monkey. Only a few weeks ago I saw a barn-owl described in one of the monthly magazines as a "freak of Nature." Its unbirdlike appearance is accounted for largely by the conspicuous facial disk, which is very light-colored, heart-shaped, and beset with black, almost human eyes and a down-turned, noselike bill. Almost all the owls are beneficial to the farmer, but this one is more so than most of the others, preying chiefly on rats, mice, gophers, ground squirrels and cotton-rats.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 235 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

ESTABLISHED 1874

ENDOWMENTS AT LIFE RATES

HOW do the rates compare with those of other companies?

The rates are the same as the principal Canadian Companies charge for "Whole Life" and "Twenty Payment Life" policies

WHERE can these policies be secured?

From any agent of the LONDON LIFE.

WHEN do these policies become endowments and are the endowments guaranteed or estimated?

The policies mature as endowments at about expectation of life and are absolutely guaranteed.

WHAT kind of settlement does the LONDON LIFE give at the end of twenty years?

FIVE OPTIONS or methods of settlement are offered at the end of twenty years.

The guaranteed cash surrender is the largest in Canada for the premium paid.

WHAT options are given policy holders in case of lapse or surrender

The policy holder may select one of four options.

1st. PAID UP INSURANCE for reduced amounts payable as endowments at maturity period.

2nd. EXTENDED INSURANCE for a fixed number of years and months for full amount of policy less premiums and interest thereon unpaid.

3rd. CASH LOANS.

4th. CASH SURRENDER VALUES.

Not Only Relief, but Lasting Cure

Is What You Get From Catarrhozone Which Eradicates Every Trace of Catarrh From the System.

Relief is a good thing, but we soon get tired of it and look for a remedy that will drive the seeds of Catarrh right out of the system. It is only a waste of time to trifle with internal dosing. You must treat Catarrh locally because it is a local disease.

The most sensible treatment is Catarrhozone which really does reach the diseased membranes in a most thorough way. Every case of catarrh can be cured if Catarrhozone is used. It unquestionably penetrates every air cell and air passage of the breathing organs. It completely destroys the catarrh germs and heals all the inflamed surfaces.

Every requirement of an ideal catarrh cure is embraced in Catarrhozone. Other treatments may have failed to even bring relief, but one trial is sufficient to prove merit in Catarrhozone not found in the ordinary snuff or wash that unscrupulous people sometimes recommend for catarrh.

If you are subject to colds, catarrh or throat trouble you will find quick relief and lasting cure in fragrant, healing Catarrhozone. Mrs E. P. Fairbanks, of Durham, was cured of chronic catarrh by this remedy and endorses it in the following letter, which speaks for itself;

"I suffered continually from catarrh which affected my throat. My nostrils were usually inflammed and I was greatly bothered with droppings in the throat which made me sick at my stomach. I had a bad taste in my mouth, and felt a ringing in my ears. I read of Catarrhozone and commenced to use it. In a few days it helped me more than I ever expected. I used if four times daily and it two weeks most of the disagreeable symptoms disappeared. I continued the Catarrhozone treatment for six weeks and was perfectly cured. The catarrh has never returned."

Every complete outfit of Catarrhozone sufficient for two months' use is guaranteed to permanently cure, trial size 25c. Sold by druggists or by mail from N. C Polson & Co. Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS

Particularly Sad Death

A particularly sad death took place yesterday morning when Miss Regina M., daughter of Mr. Wm. C. Buck, 384 Sherbrooke street, passed away, aged 24 years. The deceased young lady had been ill for some time with consumption, and her death therefore was not unexpected. She was greatly beloved by all who knew her and will be greatly missed. The funeral will take place to-morrow morning from the family residence to the R C. cemetery.

Large Party of Girls

A party of 121 girls arrived yesterday at "Hazel Brae," from Dr. Barnardos, homes in England. They range from 4 to 16 years of age. The party was in charge of Mrs. A. R owen, Miss Harris and Mr. and Mrs Lloyd, and sailed on the SS. Kensington on May 19th, arriving in Quebec on Monday. They are all bright, intelligent looking children, and applications indicate that they will be placed in comfortable homes throughout the country.

Obituary

We regret to chronicle the death of Mrs. Haskill, Port Hope, mother of Messrs. Fred and Arl Haskill, town. The Guide has the following obituary notice: The subject of this notice, Aurilla Gage, was born in the Township of Hamilton, near what is known as Gage's Creek, in October, 1824. She was married on November 19th, 1845 to her late husband, Mr. Jeduthan Haskill and settled in Port Hope, where she has resided until her death which occurred on Monday, May 30th. Four sons and three daughters live to mourn her departure. Frederick and Allen, reside in Peterborough; Edward and Wilkins, Port Hope; Elson, Mrs Chestnut, town; Mrs. C. Adamson and Maude at home. Mrs. Haskill was a member of the Baptist church and a sincere Christian lady. All her old friends mourn her departure.

The attendance at the

Peterboro' Business College

is larger this year than ever

WHY?

Because we are keeping up with the growth of Peterborough, the "Electric City," which is fast becoming a leading manufacturing centre in Canada.

Over 30% of these graduating are placed in good positions in Peterborough. Attend school where you have such prospects.

NOW IS THE TIME TO ENTER

If you cannot attend our school write for a letter regarding our correspondence course

WM. PRINGLE, Principal.

Many Fish Killed

On Monday while the American Cereal Company's new electric generator was being tested, a wire screen, which had been placed in the water below the wheel in the raceway, became electrified, with the result that many fish were killed. The fish are quite plentiful in the raceway just now, and as they touched the screen, were instantly electrocuted. It is said that dozens of bass and a number of muskinonge were killed, and were gathered in by the boys as they floated down stream.

An Old Resident Gone

We regret to chronicle the demise of Mr. John Parnell, an old and respected resident of Peterborough, which sad event occurred suddenly at noon yesterday. For some time Mr. Parnell has suffered from heart failure, but his death was not expected. He leaves to mourn his demise a wife, three sons and four daughters — Messrs. Richard, Walter and Fred, of town, and Mrs. Harvey, of Bright, Ont.; Mrs. Wm. King, Mrs. H. Sanderson and Miss Bertha, of town. He was about 65 years of age. The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon from the family residence, 789 Water street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

PASTOR INVITED TO REMAIN

Rev. J. G. Lewis of the Mark St. Church Invited to Stay Longer

Mark Street Quarterly Board of the Methodist Church, at a meeting held recently, gave the pastor, named above, a unanimous invitation to remain with them for another year.

The board expressed much satisfaction with the good work done by Mr. Lewis. The finances of the church are said to be in a healthy condition, while the membership has increased under his pastorate, and the spiritual work stimulated in no small degree.

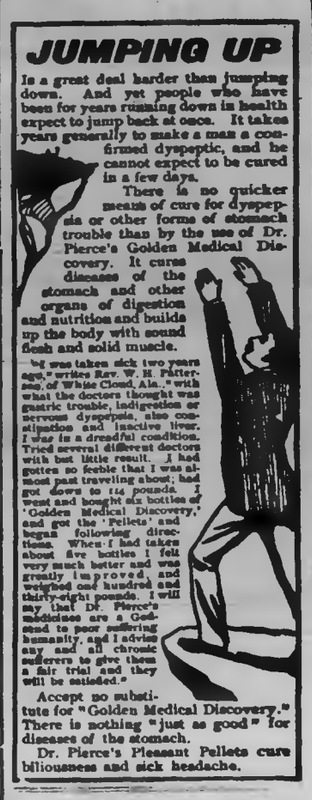
JUMPING UP

Is a great deal harder than jumping down. And yet people who have been for years running down in health expect to jump back at once. It takes years generally to make a man a confirmed dyspeptic, and he cannot expect to be cured in a few days.

There is no quicker means of cure for dyspepsia or other forms of stomach trouble than by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition and builds up the body with sound flesh and solid muscle.



"I was taken sick two years ago," writes Rev. W. H. Patterson, of White Cloud, Ala., "with what the doctors thought was gastric trouble, indigestion or nervous dyspepsia, also constipation and inactive liver. I was in a dreadful condition. Tried several different doctors with but little result. I had gotten so feeble that I was almost past travelling about; had got down to 114 pounds. I read and bought six bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and got the 'Pellets' and began following directions. When I had taken about five bottles I felt very much better and was greatly improved, and weighed one hundred and thirty-eight pounds. I will say that Dr. Pierce's medicines are a God-send to poor suffering humanity, and I advise any and all chronic sufferers to give them a fair trial and they will be satisfied."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

RUSSIAN CASUALITIES AT KIN CHOU WERE 830

Guns Made Useless--No News from Port Arthur and Little from Other Centres of Operations

There is a practical famine of war news today. The report from Rome yesterday that General Kuropatkin had suffered a serious defeat at the hands of General Kuroki has not been confirmed, and may be added to the many inventions which the war has produced. Details of the fight at Vangenfuchu, near Liao Yang, on Monday last, from Russian sources, state that their losses were seventeen killed and twenty-three wounded, and Lieut. Meyer and another officer, whose name has not been ascertained, wounded. The Japanese losses were very considerable. One squadron of the 13th Japanese Cavalry was annihilated in a hand-to-hand encounter, and another squadron, which came to its assistance suffered great loss from the fire of our frontier guards and riflemen. We captured 19 horses."

VICTORY AT VAGENFUCHU.

Liaoyang, May 31.—Delayed in transit.—The Japanese lost 200 killed and a number of horses killed in the fight at Vagenfuchu yesterday. The Russians opened fire at 8 o'clock in the morning, and after two hours and a half of long range fire the Japanese, under General Akkiama, prepared to charge and rush the force, which had been harassing them for 21 days. In the meantime General Samsonoff was approaching Vagenfuchu with a force of cavalry. It was a sight worth seeing when, at the word of command, the Russian squadrons formed and rushed like a whirlwind across the terribly cut up country, clearing away all obstacles, the batteries at the same time trotting along the frightful roads. Having passed the railway station, the troops came under the fire of the Japanese machine guns, but withdrew without suffering much loss.

A JAP SQUADRON WIPED OUT.

The fourth and sixth companies of the 8th Siberian Cossacks furiously charged the Japanese cavalry with lances, attacking both flanks. In a few minutes they literally cut the whole squadron into pieces. This was the first time lances were used, and they struck terror into the enemy. In some cases the lances pierced the riders through and wounded their horses.

COMPELLED JAPANESE TO RETIRE

The Japanese infantry, numbering four battalions of 300 men to a company and eight squadrons of cavalry, attempted to advance, but the Russian batteries opened, and soon the slope up which the enemy was advancing was covered with black spots and the enemy was forced to scatter and retire. Some of the Japanese cavalry were wonderfully dashing, charging with shouts upon the Russians, who met and scattered them.

A Cossack who had lost his lance used sword wrenched a sword from a Japanese officer and cut off the officer's head.

The Cossacks picked up boots which had been taken off by the Japanese in order to facilitate their flight and flourished them on their lances as trophies.

The Japanese used the Boer trick of displaying dummies, but the Cossacks did not waste a shot on them.

General Samsonoff highly praised the practice of the Russian gunners.

Kaichow, Liaotung peninsula, June 2.—A Russian who was wounded in the fight near the station at Vagenfuchu says General Samsonoff, attacked the Japanese near the railroad, a mile from Vagenfuchu Station. A corpse of the frontier guards was the hero of the fight. His sergeant was lying wounded, and a Japanese officer was about to ride over him when the corpse unhorsed the Japanese, mounted the latter's horse and placed the wounded man on his own charger. The Japanese cavalry engaged were the 13th Regiment. Their horses were splendid animals.

Kaichow, or Kaiping, is on the railroad about twenty miles south of Newchwang.

EVACUATE SAIMATSZA.

St. Petersburg, June 3.—The War Office has received reports showing that the Japanese are falling back from Siuyen (southwest of Dengwangcheng), and in the meantime advancing on Saimatsza, (almost due north of Fengwangcheng). Both movements are taken to indicate the continued desire of the Japanese to screen the operations before Port Arthur. There is not the slightest foundation for the report that the Russians will abandon their positions east of Haicheng.

As regards the operations north of Fengwangcheng the Cossacks have retired from Saimatsza, with the additional loss of two officers and seven men wounded. Saimatsza is now held by a strong Japanese garrison.

General Samsonoff, who is operating south of Kaichow, is understood to have a strong force of troops and to be likely to harass the Japanese outposts.

JAPS MEET WITH DEFEAT TWO HUNDRED KILLED

Rumored That Part of Kuropatkin's Army Has Been Routed--A Japanese Squadron Wiped Out

St. Petersburg, June 3.—General Sakharoff has telegraphed as follows, under yesterday's date, to the General Staff:

"According to reports the Japanese commander in the action of May 30 near Vagenfu has had three battalions of infantry in reserve. Our losses were seventeen killed and twenty-three wounded and Lieut. Meyer and another officer whose name has not been ascertained, wounded. The Japanese losses were very considerable. One squadron of the 13th Japanese Cavalry was annihilated in a hand-to-hand encounter and another squadron, which came to its assistance, suffered great loss from the fire of our frontier guards and riflemen. THE GIANTS OF THE RAILROAD.

The C. P. R.'s Wonderful Mogul Engines.

PULL FOUR HUNDRED CARS

Locomotives are Far More Powerful than in Early Days.

The Times' reporter was standing on the C.P.R. platform yesterday when one of the great mogul engines "pulled in," as the trainmen say. The train consisted of perhaps a quarter of a mile of empty cars.

"The giant freight locomotive of today," said an employee, "walks away easily with many times the load hauled by the freight engine of twenty-five years ago, and it has simply revolutionized the freight traffic business.

"The old-time freight engines weighed from 60,000 to 90,000 pounds, exclusive of the tender, which weighed from 45,000 to 60,000 pounds. In those days the freight cars were from twenty-six to twenty-eight feet long, their average weight was ten tons, the maximum load carried to a car was ten tons, and the average number of cars to a train was twenty-five or thirty.

"Call the number of cars to a train thirty, for the sake of illustration, and say that each car was loaded to its maximum capacity, and you have a train of cars weighing 300 tons, carrying a load of the same weight, making, as hauled by the old-time locomotives, a total load of 600 tons.

"The big modern freight locomotive weighs from 195,000 to 220,000 pounds, exclusive of the tender, which weighs about 140,000 pounds; or, to put these engine weights in tons, while the old engine, with its tender included, weighed altogether approximately sixty-seven tons, the modern engine, with its tender complete, weighs about 178 tons, and this giant locomotive can haul on a level road 100 loaded cars, and these cars are heavier than the old-time cars and all carrying much heavier loads.

CAPACIOUS BOX CARS.

"There are now made box cars of a capacity of forty tons, and on some roads of fifty tons. The forty-ton car, for example, is forty feet long and weighs nineteen tons.

"Observe the capacity of this car is more than double the weight of the car itself, while in the old-time car, while the capacity and the weight of the car equal, there was as much dead weight hauled as freight. In all modern car building by better and more scientific construction a constant effort has been made, and with increasingly successful results, to increase the car capacity in proportion to the weight of the car.

"But, while such highly economical cars have now come in use, the great majority of the cars running through out the country have not yet been brought up to so high a standard. If you should take the cars as you actually find them running today you would find them to average a length of about thirty-five feet and a weight of fifteen tons as against the old-time twenty-eight foot, ten-ton freight car.

"As to the load now carried, it is pretty difficult to strike an average, but that could probably be set down at twenty-five tons, as against the old-time maximum ten-ton load, making the present day average box car and load together weigh forty tons, against the old-time total of twenty tons.

"And now if you will take a train of today of sixty loaded cars, which is far below the average for level roads, you will find a big engine hauling a train of twice as many cars as were hauled in an old-time train, and these loaded cars weighing twice as much, or sixty cars of a total load of forty tons each, making the total load hauled now four times the old load, or 2,400 tons against 600.

"And don't forget that while in the 600-ton load more than 50 per cent. was dead weight, in the 2,400-ton load the dead weight is only about 38 per cent. and the revenue weight about 62 per cent. And, as we have seen, in the most modern cars the proportion of the freight weight carried to the dead weight is larger still.

"We have used as a basis for figuring a train of sixty average cars. But, as I have said, that would be far below the average of the number of cars hauled by great trunk lines running through level regions. On such lines they have trains of 100 loaded cars, making the weight hauled, say, 4,000 tons; and trains of ninety-five loaded cars are not uncommon, and the average number of cars to a train on such roads might be set down at eighty-five to ninety.

"These figures are largely approximate, but they show the revolution in freight hauling that has been wrought with the aid of the modern freight locomotive.

VERY ECONOMICAL.

"The great locomotives have increased the efficiency of the railroads in many ways. If, for instance, it should be sought to haul with engines of the old power, the enormously increased amount of freight that the railroads have now to handle, there would be so many trains on the roads that they couldn't move and the roads would be practically blocked.

"Of course the big locomotive is vastly more economical. It costs twice as much as the old-time locomotive did, to begin with, but that is really an inconsiderable item as compared with the increase in the amount of the work it does.

"The big engine can be run by the same number of men that handled the little one, and with power brakes on the cars the same crew can handle the bigger train. Labor costs much more than it formerly did, and the big engine burns more fuel and, of course, the cost of the supplies needed for the running of the big train is greater and so is the cost of repairs; but all this greatly increased expense is spread over so much freight hauled that the actual cost of hauling has been reduced and freight is now hauled cheaper than ever.

ROADS HAVE BEEN IMPROVED.

"The great modern freight locomotive couldn't be used on roads as they used to build them, and so they lay nowadays far heavier rails than formerly, where they used to put down rails of fifty to sixty pounds to the yard they now lay 100-pounds rails to sustain the added weight of the great engine.

"And as far heavier rails are laid for these great engines to run on, very different appliances and machinery are used in handling them when off the road. In old times, for example, when they had one of those little old engines in the shop for repairs, if they had occasion to raise it the usual to jack it up. Nowadays they have tremendous cranes that will lift one of these ponderous engines as easily as the great engine itself will haul its heavy load on the rails.

"And as to the roads again, besides being relaid with far heavier rails, they have been further improved and the hauling of far heavier loads over them made possible by far better construction and by the straightening out of curves and the reduction of grades, and all these improvements have of course contributed greatly to the present day efficiency of the roads in hauling freight, but all these things together wouldn't count for much without the modern freight locomotive, the giant engine that walks away across the country easily hauling a hundred loaded freight cars."

STREET LIGHTING CONTRACT.

Cost of Lighting Being Very Much Reduced

Ottawa is having a row over the contract which has just been entered into for street lighting, the price being $52 per year. The Journal maintains that municipal lighting would have reduced the price to $40 per lamp. Here's what our contemporary says:

Meanwhile, in support of the idea, that street lighting can be done for a good deal less than $52 per light, it may be noted that City Engineer Barrow, of Hamilton, who is getting information about such matters in view of the expiry soon of the Hamilton street lighting contract, has received the following interesting letter from Charles H. Lamphiers, city electrician, of Springfield, Ill.;

"Some eight years ago a stock company was formed here by certain public-spirited citizens to build a municipal lighting plant. No money was advanced by any one but their credit enabled them to borrow the money. The plant was built, and the city paid the company $60 per lamp. The difference between the actual cost of the operation and the price agreed upon for these lamps paid for the plant, which the city now owns, but has leased, still paying the $60 a year per lamp. We expect, within the next year, to take charge of the plant, and to operate it ourselves, and believe that we can make light for less than $40 a year per lamp. The cost of operating has been materially reduced by the enclosed arc lamp. We pay $2 a ton for coal, and hire fifteen men at an average wage of $2.15 a day."

Here is a plant which for years past has been actually operating at so much less than $60 per lamp that the difference has bought the plant for the city. What will be the case before ten years have, with all electric appliances becoming cheaper or more efficient? But Ottawa is to be tied to $52 per street lamp for ten years to come, with an expert report in his possession estimating that the lighting can already be done at $38 per lamp, and with Hull actually doing the business last year at $42 per lamp.

KUROKI HALTS MAIN ADVANCE.

To Wait Development of Port Arthur Operations.

DELAYED AT MOTIEN PASS.

Japanese Transports Landing More Troops between Port Adams and Port Arthur.

London, June 2.—The occupation of Dalny by the Japanese as the only really important war news. Nothing that is authentic can be reported regarding the operations against Port Arthur. The Shanghai correspondent of the Standard reports that the Russians have retreated beyond Chenkuchengtan. It is believed that the resources of the garrison are severely taxed by the influx of the troops wounded in the recent fighting, but none of the stories from Chinese sources demand much credence.

There are no further indications of a southward movement by the Russian main army. One of the correspondents who reported the movement yesterday says that its southward advance has been checked by the Japanese cavalry occupying the main roads. Japanese cavalry is reported to have been moving in the northwest for days. There is severe skirmishing daily, and the casualties are often numerous.

It is stated that the Japanese have drawn a strong screen across the northern part of the Liao Tung peninsula from Pitsewo to Port Adams while their transports continue landing more and more troops between that line and Port Arthur.

The reports of the movements of Gen. Kuroki, commanding the first Japanese army, continue to be conflicting, but so far as can be judged it is true, as has been previously stated, that he does not intend to advance in strength until the operations against Port Arthur are successful, or at least more developed.

A story that the Japanese have occupied the Motienling Mountains is doubtful. The Standard's correspondent with the Japanese headquarters refers incidentally to Motien Pass as likely to delay for a time, although it cannot altogether prevent the Japanese advance, as the pass can be turned on either flank. He says there are no Russians within 15 miles of Feng Wang Cheng, or eastward of the Taysng River, which is 30 miles towards Siuyen.

Unconfirmable reports recur that the Japanese who are now blockading Vladivostock have thickly mined the bay under cover of the recent fogs.

Gossip is also busy with the Russian Baltic fleet, but the numerous rumored dates for its departure are not worth attention. It is stated that the line steamers recently purchased by Russia have been armor plated and that guns have been mounted on them.

WARSAW.

The balmy south breezes are blowing over the hills and braes of Dunmer, bringing us health, wealth and joy. Many new sailing craft are seen this season on the lake. A triangular race course is being marked out, finishing at the mill, and soon there will be races every Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Reg. G. Hendren has put in a side line of flowers, roots and bulbs. His geraniums are magnificent, while his stock of burdock and dandelion roots is unsurpassed in the county. Give him a call for tomato and celery plants.

The K.G.P.S. held a smoking concert in the school last Tuesday evening. A splendid drama was presented by local talent, entitled "Thaddeus of Warsaw," in which Mr. Richard Smythe took the part of the villain, to perfection. He was ably seconded by Mr. Clarence Watts, who acted the part of Thaddeus. The duel was the leading feature of the evening, some beautiful sword play being indulged in by the actors. Between the acts some songs were sung, including a baritone solo "Kipling's Recessional," by Mr Reg. G. Hendren and a comic duet by Mr. Harold Choate and Dr. Michell of the village, Mr. Roland Kidd accompanied the songsters and his perfect handling of the "ivories" was universally admired. The society took in 62 1-2 cents, which was given to the Hospital for Sick Children.

A most enjoyable tea was given on the golf links by the ladies of the village, on the occasion of the friendly game played between the ladies of Lakefield and Warsaw. The weather was perfect and playing first class, but the Warsaw ladies were beaten, being 43 1-4 points behind.

The Warsaw planing mill was obliged to lose down on Saturday, owing to the foreman being absent. It appears that a new horse was brought into the village, and so the staff was given a holiday. Sufficient reason surely.

The sidewalk on Choate's corner is commencing to sag and soon no steps will be needed. Some ignoramus took one plank from the sidewalk in front of Hendren's clothing store and the proprietor nearly came to grief. An example should be made of such characters.

Mr Harold Choate is visiting in Toronto at present and we all miss him very much. May he speedily return to us.

An early closing by-law is now before the council and soon all the stores will close at 5.30 p.m. daily (including Sunday). This will give the clerks a chance to take in the daily excursions which leave the Warminster lighthouse at 9.30. Tickets single, 6 1-4 cents; double 17 cents. Special low rates for families.

KUROPATKIN IS NOT ADVANCING.

No Signs of Movement South from Liaoyang.

JAPS LANDED AT KAIPING.

Second Russian Position on Liaotung Peninsula is Weak and not Likely to be Defended.

London, June 2.—The Times to-day has the following.—With the Japanese first army, May 31.—There is no sign of any movement in the army. The Japanese state there are no indications that the Russians are advancing in force south of Liao Yang in this direction. It is improbable they will make a stand before Liao Yang, as all the positions on the Pekin road, including the pass through the Motienling range, can easily be outflanked on either side.

A DESPERATE VENTURE.

London, June 2.—The Times to-day has the following:—At sea on board the Haiman May 31, via wireless telegraphy to Weihaiwei:—Later details from the Kwantung peninsula show that Gen. Oku undertook operations on May 25 and 26 which few generals would undertake in view of the enemy's strength and the nature of the prepared works they occupied. The fourth Japanese division, upon which fell the brunt of the fighting, after debouching from Kinchou, had to contract its front to half of its normal extension in order to carry these prepared works before it reached the enemy's main position. During this advance it was swept by an effective range by the concentrated fire of the whole Russian position, which covered a front of six miles. Under such circumstances no troops could keep the formation in which they originally advanced to the attack. It was in reaching the village of Mauchiaging that the issue hung longest in the balance. From that point the undertaking seemed almost impossible. The attack however, made headway by sheer weight of numbers and fresh troops.

Two months ago there was much interesting speculation in regard to the revolution in naval warfare thought to have been rendered inevitable by the pronounced success of the torpedo-boat at Port Arthur, but the torpedo-boat will be practically obsolete after July 29 when the prohibition of the torpedo-balloon by The Hague conference treaty expires.

The only objection offered to the torpedo-balloon at The Hague was that on account of its lack of precision it would be more destructive to noncombatants than to combatants. In spite of this objection, however, the effort to enjoin it for all time failed. The grand committee would go no further than to prohibit it for five years from the adjournment of the conference, and even then to stipulate that if in the meanwhile new inventions should secure the requisite precision the prohibition should become inoperative.

As a matter of fact, the dirigible balloon of Santos-Dumont, not to speak of many similar devices, long ago solved the problem of precision, but the last shadow of the prohibition, regardless of precision, vanishes July 29. After that date it will be strictly in accordance with the law of nations for an army to drop torpedoes from the skies into the camp or on the forti in enemy.

The most important use to which such engines of war could be put would probably be the reduction of fortresses on the seashore by an enemy's fleet, Port Arthur furnishing a fine illustration. As they must be ready to recive the Baltic fleet, that Japanese cannot wait for July 29, but if they could do so it is easy to see how, with their singular experience in the use of explosives, they could tear Port Arthur to atoms and put its garrison to flight, without the loss of a man, by the use of the torpedo-balloon.

The finest work in this line, of course, could be done by a dirigible ballon managed by an aeronaut, but the same ultimate effect could be procured by sending up, when the wind was favorable, a large number of cheap balloons which would release and drop torpedoes by clockwork. These balloons might be made of paper and operated by the air and therefore be the cheapest torpedo service ever known. Such a bombardment would shatter the nerves of the bravest man that ever breathed and put to flight an army of a million men.

Such warfare it will be observed, could be dangerous only to large stationary objects, like a fortified port or a great city, as an army or a fleet of vessels could easily keep out of harm's way. One of the most dreaded effects would be the easy destruction of a great city or the collection of an immense ransom from it in lieu of a bombardment. Under certain circumstances it would be entirely within the range of possibilities that an enemy might say to the City of London of the City of New York: "Hand over $500,000,000 by tomorrow noon or nothing will be left but a blackened waste."

Unfortunately the torpedo-balloon and so far as actual experience goes the torpedo-boat seem to be much more available for invasion than for defense, and therefore they do not bring us much nearer the desired era of peace on earth and good will to men.

VIOLENT SCENE IN COURT

Man Accused of Fraudulently Claiming a Body at Iroquois Fire.

Chicago, June 3.—Choking and gasping, and with eyes rolling, John Mahnken, accused of fraudulently identifying the body of Mrs. Frank R. Greenwald, an Iroquois fire victim, in order to steal her money, suddenly jumped to his feet in Judge Chifford's court room yesterday and pointed frantically at an imaginary spectre which he thought stood confronting him. While the spectators looked on in terror the man frothed at the lips and waved his arms wildly. He was overpowered and thrown to the floor, where it took half a dozen police officers to hold him. Paroxysm after paroxysm shook him and he had to be unbacked and taken into an anteroom.

When quiet was finally restored Mahnken's lawyer decided to let the case go to the jury without argument. Almost immediately the twelve men filed back and the foreman announced the verdict of "guilty." If the insanity was feigned it failed to move the jury.

The technical charge against Mahnken was perjury, and it was proved that he had taken the body of Mrs. Greenwald from a morgue and had it buried as his aunt. The motive was to gain possession of the $400 found on the body.

THE OPENING SESSION OF CONFERENCE

Rev. J. P. Wilson, of George Street Church Elected President

Bishop Carman Addressed Conference on Church Union Question

On the opening of the Conference yesterday morning, after prayer and praise had been attended to, the election of a president was taken up. There were 189 votes cast and the number required for election was 98. Rev. Mr. Wilson received 135 being a large percentage of those present, and was consequently declared elected, which brought out enthusiastic applause from his friends present. The two receiving the next highest number of votes for the position were Rev. W. J. Jolliffe, who polled 26, and Rev. Dr. Dyer, who secured 18. The highest received by any of the others were 3. The following gentlemen receiving the latter number, or less, (but who, of course, had no aspirations for the honor, but could not prevent their friends from showing their good will toward them): Rev. G. W. Henderson, Rev. J. C. Wilson, Rev. C. L. Thompson, Rev. F. B. Stratton, Rev. R. McCullough, Rev. J. A. McCamus, Rev. C. Parker, Rev. D. Balfour and Rev. Bell.

On ascending the platform Rev. Mr. Wilson was kindly greeted by the Rev. Dr. Carman, who hoped that he would be accorded the loyalty of his brethren, and that under his presidency trusted that it might be a year of great success and progress for the church. Mr. Wilson was at this juncture the recipient of a couple of extra nice bouquets from two little girls, Miss Alma Kaufman presenting one on behalf of the Board, and Miss Jessie Crossman one on behalf of her father. Mr. Wilson received the flowers graciously and was gallant enough to kiss each of them.

Rev. Mr. Edmison, who is the retiring president, saluted his successor kindly and expressed pleasure at being able to present him with the insignia of office—a cane, which the speaker said was a piece of the old Hay Bay Church, the cradle of Canadian Methodism.

Rev. Mr. Wilson replied briefly. The attack which he had received grew on the ground within a few miles of where he was born. The old structure had been a very familiar one to him all through his boyhood days, and he was very glad to hold the cane on that account. He also made reference to the Rev. Dr. Carman, who was chancellor when he (Mr. Wilson) received his honors at the university, and was chairman when he received his orders as elder, and now he was glad to have Empressed when he was receiving the highest honors that the church could bestow upon him.

In an address to the Conference Rev. Dr. Carman spoke cheerfully on church union. He thought the time was not unfavorable for ministers to look with community of thought on this important question. He had been deeply affected by the calling of the roll; there were those who had passed to the great beyond. He had often been moved to tears by reading the last chapter of Romans. The subject greatly to the front at this time was church union. It must be viewed from different sides and not with haste. It was a proposition not of terror but of magnitude. There were aspects in which he thought the Methodist church had pre-eminence, but when the relationship of the churches were considered all were historic and entitled to be considered as such. It was a great advance when the Methodist churches united and the church in Peterborough was historic in that particular. That union was for the Kingdom of God. In this respect the church had history and experience. He would be sorry if earthly considerations were to be the trumpet in the movement. It was necessary that all should see eye to eye and Divine love and redemption must be kept steadily in view.

Rev. Dr. Chown had unbounded confidence in the brethren of other churches. The speaker favored the movement, but held it would be unfortunate to be rash or hasty in the matter.

Rev. D. N. Drew was elected secretary of the Conference, and on his nomination W. A. Tucker, statistical secretary; R. W. Clarke, lay assistant D. S. Houck, assistant secretary; W. S. Smart and R. A. Whattam, Conference messengers.

The people of George street church will, of course, be pleased to see their present pastor elevated to the highest position in the gift of his fellow ministers, but the rejoicing will not be shared by them alone, for the people of Peterborough, irrespective of class or creed, recognize in Mr. Wilson a man well qualified to adorn the position. The Times, with the people of Peterborough generally, congratulate the president-elect on the well-deserved honor conferred upon him.

Water Supply for G.T.R.

The water supply for the engines of the Grand Trunk has given the officials of that road much cause for consideration, not only in Guelph but in Stratford and other places. They have now decided that they can pump their own water at a much lower expense in Guelph than the present cost. The result of their deliberations is that they will build a large and up to date pump house at Guelph Junction capable of supplying sufficient water for the future mogul engines which will be placed on the route.

DALNY'S FALLS A VERY BITTER PILL

Prominent Russians Are not Able to Conceal Grief

THE DISCONTENT GROWING

An Unconfirmed Report That a Japanese Battleship Has Gone Aground.

St. Petersburg, June 4.—Dalny's fall is a bitter pill to Russian imperialists of every shade of opinion. The press feigns nonchalance, but wherever men speak freely their utterances are full of grief for the past and anxiety for the future. Rumors are current of attempts on the lives of Cabinet Ministers; stories are told of strife and recrimination in the highest Government circles. The Czar is said to have broken down completely, to deny himself to everybody. These reports are probably only symptoms of the prevailing consternation. A press correspondent is unable to confirm any of them; yet the gravity of the crisis is obvious. The ablest politicians are losing their composure, and the atmosphere is charged with excitement and uncertainty. The house of Von Plehve, Minister of Interior, is surrounded by armed police and detectives, and no one can approach it without a special permit. The entrance hall is guarded by Cossacks. Cossacks stand outside the Minister's door. All visitors, except well known officials, are searched. Von Plehve is never alone; his coachmen and footmen are armed, and his carriage makes its way amid armed guards on bicycles. The other Cabinet Ministers are carefully guarded, but their precautions are less extraordinary than those of the man whom the public holds accountable for many of the nation's misfortunes. Reliable reports from the Provinces state no Governor is sure of his personal safety. The Governors of Odessa, Kievia, Kifles and Warsaw never enter the streets without escorts of armed police and Cossacks. The houses of responsible officials are constantly watched, and even the chiefs of police receive no strangers except after they have been searched. Prince Galitzin, Governor of Tiflis, much to the amusement of the public, recently employed a battalion of sappers for two weeks to dig about his premises for suspected mines.

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and boards, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have structure that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotence, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interest of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him. He sends the method, as well as many booklets on the subject, including the one that contains the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him wisely

TORPEDO-BALLOONS

Two months ago there was much interesting speculation in regard to the revolution in naval warfare thought to have been rendered inevitable by the pronounced success of the torpedo-boat at Port Arthur, but the torpedo-boat will be practically obsolete after July 29 when the prohibition of the torpedo-balloon by The Hague conference treaty expires.

The only objection offered to the torpedo-balloon at The Hague was that on account of its lack of precision it would be more destructive to noncombatants than to combatants. In spite of this objection, however, the effort to enjoin it for all time failed. The grand committee would go no further than to prohibit it for five years from the adjournment of the conference, and even then to stipulate that if in the meanwhile new inventions should secure the requisite precision the prohibition should become inoperative.

As a matter of fact, the dirigible balloon of Santos-Dumont, not to speak of many similar devices, long ago solved the problem of precision, but the last shadow of the prohibition, regardless of precision, vanishes July 29. After that date it will be strictly in accordance with the law of nations for an army to drop torpedoes from the skies into the camp or on the fortifications of an enemy.

The most important use to which such engines of war could be put would probably be the reduction of fortresses on the seashore by an enemy's fleet, Port Arthur furnishing a fine illustration. As they must be ready to receive the Baltic fleet, that Japanese cannot wait for July 29, but if they could do so it is easy to see how, with their singular expertness in the use of explosives, they could tear Port Arthur to atoms and put its garrison to flight, without the loss of a man, by the use of the torpedo-balloon.

The finest work in this line, of course, could be done by a dirigible balloon managed by an aeronaut, but the same ultimate effect could be produced by sending up, when the wind was favorable, a large number of cheap balloons which would release and drop torpedoes by clockwork. These balloons might be made of paper and operated by hot air and therefore be the cheapest torpedo service ever known. Such a bombardment would shatter the nerves of the bravest men that ever breathed and put to flight an army of a million men.

Such warfare, it will be observed, could be dangerous only to large stationary objects, like a fortified port or a great city, as an army or a fleet of vessels could easily keep out of harm's way. One of the most dreaded effects would be the easy destruction of a great city or the collection of an immense ransom from it in lieu of a bombardment. Under certain circumstances it would be entirely within the range of possibilities that an enemy might say to the City of London of the City of New York: "Hand over $500,000,000 by tomorrow noon or nothing will be left but a blackened waste."

Unfortunately the torpedo-balloon and so far as actual experience goes the torpedo-boat seem to be much more available for invasion than for defense, and therefore they do not bring us much nearer the desired era of peace on earth and good will to men.

LAWS FOR SNOW CLEANING

The U. S. Court of Appeals has handed down a judgment that Congress had no power to pass a law requiring householders in Washington to remove snow from the sidewalks in front of the premises owned or occupied by them within a prescribed time after each snowfall, and imposing a penalty for neglect or refusal to comply with the statute. Under this law a number of fines were imposed during the past winter. Most of them were paid, but one citizen refused payment and carried his case from the magistrate's court to the Court of Appeals on the contention that Congress had no authority to enact such a law. The court sustained the contention of the appellant and in setting aside the judgment of the police court said:

"This class of legislation is undoubtedly an attempt on the part of the municipality to shift to the shoulders of the individual citizen the burden which is primarily incumbent on it, namely, that of keeping the street and thoroughfares in proper condition for the purpose for which they are intended. That this duty is primarily upon the municipality cannot be questioned."

The act of Congress thus discredited on constitutional grounds is practically similar to the ordinances on this subject in force in most cities. For this reason the decision of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia is of great significance and will undoubtedly be quoted as a precedent in efforts to resist any attempt on the part of municipalities to compel the assistance of citizens in sidewalk cleaning.

Though this decision was given by an American court, its public interest extends beyond the confines of the Republic.

Learn The Art of Resting

Rest is a True Food for the Body and Strength for the Spirit. Almost a Lost Art Now.

The absence of rest accounts for much of the ill-health, irritability and despondency that we find everywhere about us. We can't eat our pudding and have it, nor can we go on wasting our energies without soon reaching the limit of our reserve power.

Better not let it go on this far. Much wiser to take Ferrozone when that tired enervated feeling is first noticed. Nervous collapse is avoided in this way. If you feel the need of rest, but can't get it because of overwrought nerves, nothing in the world will do you so much good as Ferrozone, which is noted for promptly restoring perfect health in just such cases as yours.

Perhaps you wonder how Ferrozone does this. The first result of Ferrozone is a better appetite. Everything you eat is digested and properly assimilated. The natural outcome of this is the formation of pure blood, the fundamental basis of health. When the body is given a new supply of blood the circulation is quickened. This gives the weak nerves something to feed upon. They quickly lose their sensitiveness, and your old irritable companions become a help instead of a drawback. Pretty soon you begin to feel the vim and buoyancy that Ferrozone always brings. Your strength increases, you can work longer, toil harder, sleep better than ever before.

If half the pale, nervous people could only realize how beneficial Ferrozone is, there would be a lot more happiness in the world. No remedy applies so directly to the peculiar ills from which women suffer. It is a specific for anaemia and brings a ruddy glow of health to pale cheeks in a remarkably short time. In all diseases arising from impairment of blood or nerve tone, in cases where a tonic is needed to stimulate appetite and digestion, nothing is more helpful than Ferrozone. It replaces tiredness and lack of energy by a reserve of force, and maintains such a healthy condition of the system that sickness is impossible.

Every person, man, woman, or child who wants more strength, more flesh, stronger nerves, purer blood, should use Ferrozone. Price 50c. a box, or six boxes for $2.50, at druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

NEW YORK STREETS.

HOW SOME OF THE OLD ONES GAINED THEIR NAMES.

Trinity Church Had More to Do With Bestowing Them Than All Other Authorities Combined—The Reason Broadway Killed Hudson Street.

The churchwardens of old Trinity church had more to do with naming the streets in the lower part of old New York than all other authorities combined. To be sure, the quaint burgomasters, before the first Trinity church was built, after hearing the pros and cons of landowners, found names for many streets significant of certain established facts, for streets and byways below Maiden lane on the easterly side of the Meere straat, afterward changed to Great George street, in honor of King George, by the authorities of Trinity. Then our patriots ignored the name and called it Bloomingdale road and then the Broad way, simplified into Broadway.

The present Trinity church, at the head of Wall street, is the third edifice of that name, the two preceding structures erected upon the same ground having been burned, but the first was one of the first churches erected in this city, and Trinity has always been the wealthiest corporation, patronized by the richest and most influential families for ages. The churchwardens of this church had their own way about naming the streets from the church to what is now Twenty-third street, west of Broadway, along the Hudson river front, because they owned that immense property.

In the olden time Queen Anne of England owned what was known as the Queen's farm, which covered the land commencing at St. Paul's church and extending to what is now Twenty-third street, bounded by Broadway on the east and the Hudson river on the west.

Vestry street was so styled by Trinity because the church had a vestry in that street between Hudson and Greenwich streets. Church street was so called because it bounded the west side of St. Paul's churchyard. Rector street was honored by the residence of the rector of Trinity. Barclay and Vesey streets were named after two clergymen of the church.

Trinity's officials determined that the main artery of the city should run through its land, and, grounded in their belief in their ability to carry out their intention, Hudson street was laid out. St. John's park and many other improvements were offered as inducements to purchasers of land, and St. John's chapel was erected and finished in 1803, one of the handsomest pieces of church architecture in the city. Trinity counted without an expression of the majority of the people and failed in its endeavor.

The arrogance of the church fretted the good people, and more to spite the churchwardens than because Broadway was nearer the center of the city Broadway acquired the preference, and the glory of Hudson street departed, never to return.

It has been remarked that the streets laid out by Trinity on the farm are all perfectly straight, while many in the lower part of the city are wonderfully crooked. The explanation of this lies in the fact that scarcely a small hill existed on the farm, while below there crooked lanes and byways, to say nothing of cow paths, were turned into streets, which ran in devious ways around hills, valleys and swamps. Many streets were named after the owners of property adjacent to or through which the ways were laid.

Moore street was originally the line of the first wharf erected in the city. Colonel Moore was formerly a large owner of the lots when first built upon. John street was named after John Harpending, who resided in Broadway, and John street when first laid out passed through his garden. Cortlandt, Dey and Beekman streets were carried through the property of the men after whom they were named. Ann street was named after Ann Beekman. Vandewater, Roosevelt, Rutgers, Gouverneur, Harrison, Lispenard, Bayard, De Lancey, Rivington and Willett streets were so designated because they passed through the property of people bearing these names.

Hester street was named after one of the Bayard family and Catharine after Catharine Rutgers. Henry street was named after a son of the Rutgers family, and Jacob street bounded the Jacob Leisler estate. Frankfort street was also a boundary of the same estate. Leisler was a native of Frankfurt. James street was named after a member of the De Lancey family, as was also Oliver street. Batavia lane was so called because the Roosevelt estate, through which this street was run, was called New Batavia.

Division street was originally the division line between the De Lancey and Rutgers farms. Leonard street was named after one of the Lispenards, and Orchard street was cut through the orchard of the De Lancey farm. Sheriff street was called after Sheriff Willett, through whose estate it was carried. Mangin and Goerck streets were named after the two city surveyors who laid out the river line.

The first mayor of New York after the Revolution, a true patriot, was James Duane, who was honored by the naming of Duane street after him.

Elm, Orange and Mulberry streets were laid out through public property in the vicinity of the Collect pond and owe their names to the peculiarities they suggest. Cherry street was originally run through "the road by the cherry trees" and named accordingly.

Living In Rome.

Think of securing a cook for $7 a month! That is the price Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott says she pays in Rome. A seamstress works for 50 cents a day, and an up to date doctor receives $1 for a visit. Good hotels charge 12 francs (about $2.40) a day. Meat, chickens, eggs, fish, fruit and groceries are also cheap, but their cost is made up for by the exorbitant price of all imported groceries. Even the very rich cannot procure rapid transit, steam heat or express service, conveniences which the great majority of Americans enjoy.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company. The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as a safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups; namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 30 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 670 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflict as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented.

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78⅝ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented.

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory	752½ acres.
" " Mill and building sites	55 "
" " Timber properties	90 "
Total	903⅝ acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

Complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government from which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

Total cost of development to date, present management,	$53,000.00
" " " " " former owners	18,000.00
" " surface improvements, buildings, saw mill plant, horses, Wagons, ore cars, track, tools, etc.	17,000 00
" " Machinery paid for and to be installed	6,000 00
	$99,000.00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $26,000 00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet. We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 200 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver. These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built.

In the meantime only the high grade smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will aid us materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905, and be continuous thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock, the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3.50 to $4.00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our Stockholders. These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments. By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18.00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of production is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,
ROBERT HARRISON.

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

life before her.

The sound of the gate latch was heard, and footsteps were approaching the door, not the bounding step of Maggie, but a tramping tread, followed by a heavy knock, and the next moment a tall, large man appeared before her, asking shelter for the night. The pack he carried showed him at once to be a peddler, and upon a nearer view, Hagar recognized in him a stranger who, years before, had craved her hospitality. He had been civil to her then, she did not fear him now, and she consented to his remaining, thinking his presence there might dispel the mysterious terror hanging around her. But few words passed between them that night, for Martin, as he called himself, was tired, and after partaking of the supper she prepared, he retired to rest. The next morning, however, he was more talkative, kindly enlightening her with regard to his business, his family and his place of residence, which last he said was in Meriden, Connecticut.

It was a long time since Hagar had heard that name, and now, turning quickly toward him, she said: "Meriden? That is where my Hester lived, and where her husband died."

"I want to know," returned the Yankee peddler, "What might have been his name?"

"Hamilton—Nathan Hamilton. Did you know him? He died nineteen years ago this coming summer."

"Egzactly!" ejaculated the peddler, setting down his pack and himself taking a chair, preparatory to a long talk. "Egzactly: I knowed him like a book. Old Squire Hampleton, the biggest man in Meriden, and you don't say his last wife, that tall, handsome gal, was your darter?"

"Yes, she was my daughter," answered Hagar, her whole face glowing with the interest she felt in talking for the first time in her life with one who had known her daughter's husband, Maggie's father. "You knew her? You have seen her?" she continued; and Martin answered: "Seen her a hundred times, I'll bet. Anyhow, I sold her the weddin' gown, and now I think on't, she favored you. She was a likely person, and I allus thought that proud sister of hisn, the widder Warner, might have been in better business than takin' them children away as she did, because he married his hired gal. But it's as well for them. I s'pose, particularly for the boy, who is one of the fust young men in Wooster, now. Keeps a big store."

"Warner, Warner!" interrupted old Hagar, the nameless terror of the night before creeping again into her heart. "Whose name did you say was Warner?"

"The hull on 'em, boy, girl and all, is called Warner now—one Rose and t'other Henry," answered the peddler, perfectly delighted with the interest manifested by his auditor, who, grasping at the bedpost and moving her hand rapidly before her eyes, as if to clear away, a mist which had settled there, continued, "I remember now Hester told me of the children, but one, she said, was a step-child; that was the boy, wasn't it?" and her wild, black eyes had in them a look of unutterable anxiety, wholly incomprehensible to the peddler, who, instead of answering her question, said: "What ails you, woman? Your face is as white as a piece of paper?"

"Thinking of Hester always affects me so," she answered, and stretching her hands beseechingly toward him, she entreated him to say if Henry were not the step-child.

"No, marm; he warn't," answered the peddler, who, like a great many talkative people, pretended to know more than he really did, and who in this particular instance was certainly mistaken. "I can tell you egzactly how that is: Henry was the son of Mr. Hampleton's first marriage, Henry Hampleton. The second wife, the one your darter lived with, was the widder Warner, and had a little gal, Rose, when she married Mr Hampleton. This widder Warner's husband's brother married Mr. Hampleton's sister, the woman who took the children, and had Henry change his name to Warner. The Hampletons and Warners were mighty big feelin' folks, and the old Squire's match mortified 'em dreadfully."

"Where are they now?" gasped Hagar, hoping there might be some mistake.

"There you've got me!" answered Martin. "I haven't seen 'em this dozen year; but the last I heard, Miss Warner and Rose was livin' in Wooster. But what the plague is the matter?" he continued, alarmed at the expression of Hagar's face, as well as at the strangeness of her manner.

Wringing her hands as if she would wrench her fingers from their sockets, she clutched at her long white hair, and rocking to and fro, moaned, "Woe is me, and woe the day when I was born."

From every one save her grandmother Margaret had kept the knowledge of her changed feelings toward Henry Warner; and looking upon a marriage between the two as an event surely expected, old Hagar was overwhelmed with grief and fear. Falling at last upon her knees, she cried, "Had you cut my throat from ear to ear, old man, you could not have hurt me more. Oh, that I had died years and years ago! But I must live now, live!" she screamed, springing to her feet; "live to prevent the wrong my own wickedness has caused."

Perfectly astonished at what he saw and heard, the peddlar attempted to question her, but failing to obtain any satisfactory answers, he finally left, mentally pronouncing her "as crazy as a loon." This opinion was confirmed by the people on whom he next called, for, chancing to speak of Hagar, he was told that nothing which she did or said was considered strange, as she had been called insane for years. This satisfied Martin, who made no further mention of her, and thus the scandal which his story might otherwise have produced was prevented.

In the meantime, on her face old Hagar lay, moaning bitterly, "My sin has found me out; found me out; and just when I thought it never need be known. For myself, I do not care, but Maggie, Maggie, how can I tell her that she is bone of my bone, flesh of my flesh—and me, old Hagar Warren.

"It would be impossible to describe the scorn and intense loathing concentrated in the tones of Hagar's voice as she uttered these last words, "and me, old Hagar Warren!" Had she indeed been the veriest wretch on earth, she could not have hated herself more than she did in that hour of her humiliation, when, with a loud voice, she cried, "Let me die; oh, let me die, and it will never be known!" Then, as she reflected upon the terrible consequence which would ensue were she to die and make no sign, she wrung her hands despairingly, crying, "Life, life, yes, give me life to tell her of my guilt; and then it will be a blessed rest to die. Oh, Margaret, my precious child, I'd give my heart's blood, drop by drop, to save you; but it can't be; you must not wed your father's son; oh, Maggie, Maggie!"

Fainter and fainter grew each succeeding word, and when the last was spoken, she fell again upon her face, unconscious and forgetful of her woe. Higher and higher in the heavens rose the morning sun, stealing across the window-sill, and shining aslant the floor, where Hagar still lay in a deep, deathlike swoon. An hour passed on, and then the wretched woman came slowly back to life, her eyes lighting up with joy as she whispered, "It was a dream; thank Heaven, 'twas a dream;" and then growing dim with tears, as the dread reality came over her. The first fearful burst of grief was passed, for Hagar now could weep, and tears did her good, quelling the feverish agony at her heart. Not for herself did she suffer so much as for Mag, trembling for the effect the telling of the secret would have on her. For it must be told. She knew that full well, and as the sun fast neared the western horizon, she murmured, "Oh, will she come to-night, will she come to-night?"

Yes, Hagar, she will. Even now her feet, which, when they backward turn, will tread less joyously, are treading the woodland path. The half-way rock is reached—nearer and nearer she comes—her shadow falls across the floor—her hand is on your arm—her voice is in your ear—Maggie Miller is at your side—Heaven help you both!

FOUR DAYS' CRUISE OFF PORT ARTHUR

The Everything Quiet in that Vicinity Just at Present.

ATTACK MADE ON MONDAY.

Evacuation or Daily Recent Fight with Cossacks Stoessel's

Che Foo, June 2.—For four days past a despatch boat with a Star correspondent on board has cruised around the peninsula, never far from Port Arthur. The cruise has been made throughout the day; at night the boat has anchored under the shelter of the Miaotao Islands. During this time not a single Japanese ship has been seen nor has a shot been heard in the direction of the fortress.

It seems as though the Japanese are avoiding another general naval engagement with the forts for account of the extreme danger from floating mines.

A Chinese junk struck one of these floating mines a few days ago near the peninsula and was annihilated. Junks have been seen attempting to run the blockade and some have successfully accomplished their object.

DEVASTATE 43 VILLLAGES.

Details of Armenian Massacres Tell Terrible Tale of Fire and Death.

Over 20,000 Men Take Part in Raids, Killing All Christians in Their Path.

Paris, June 2.—The government's advices concerning the details of the Armenian massacres are not definite, but the official view is that the depredations are grave.

Deputy De Pressense, socialist, who has confidential relations with the foreign office, has received a telegram from Baku saying the Turkish forces operating against the Armenians consisted of 12,000 regulars and 16,000 Kurds, with fifteen guns. The dispatch further assert that forty-three villages were burned and that their inhabitants were killed. The male Armenians are said to have made a desperate resistance on the summit of Mount Antok.

M. De Pressense has forwarded the dispatch to Foreign Minister Delcasse, with a letter announcing that he will question the minister in the chamber of deputies concerning what steps French diplomacy intends to put a stop to this lamentable crime.

The officials believe that M. De Pressense's dispatch correctly states the devastation the Turks have wrought.

A RARE CHANCE

FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.
BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non-assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details. The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion. Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

A Great Composer.

"It was a mistake to ask that man if he thought America would ever produce a great composer. I am afraid you hurt his feelings."

"I don't see why," responded the musical young woman.

"He is the inventor of a soothing syrup."

Sheer Waste.

Wife—John, is there any poison in the house? Husband—Yes. But why do you ask? Wife—I want to sprinkle some on this piece of angel cake and put it where the mice will get it. Wouldn't that kill them? Husband—Sure; but it isn't necessary to waste the poison.

Wanted Details.

"It was like this," said the private citizen. "Just as the three burglars crawled in at the kitchen window the clock struck 1, and"—

"Excuse me," said the great detective, "but which one of the three did the clock strike?"

Impartial.

"Mr. Singleton prides himself on being strictly impartial."

"Yes," answered the unamiable man; "I once went shooting with him. He didn't seem to care whether he hit the rabbit, the dog or one of his friends."—London Tit-Bits.

The Spartan Japanese Father.

The Spartan character of the Japanese father may be gathered from two facts mentioned by Consul Dalgorn Goh in the admirable address on family relations in Japan which he delivered before the Japan society. The Japanese child calls its father "Oto-san" and its mother "Jibo"—which mean "strict father" and "benevolent mother"—and Mr. Goh quoted a Japanese boy who classified the Japanese father as one of the "four fearful things of the world—earthquake, thunder, conflagration and father."—London Truth.

Macaronic Verse.

Macaronic verse is verse written in more than one language or one language twisted to appear like another. For example, a long poem on wine, dating from early in the sixteenth century, begins:

The best tree, if ye take intent,
Inter ligna fructifera,
Is the vine tree by good argument,
Dulcis ferens pondera.

Another example of the second kind mentioned is Dean Swift's imitation Latin poem beginning "Mollis abeti, hasta acuti," which in English reads, "Molly's a beauty, has an acute [illegible]."

More Important.

"With your daughter as my wife, sir, I can conquer the world."

"But that isn't the question. Can you make enough money to keep your self in clothes?"—Life.

Property includes six full claims, with a 38 foot ore body extending across 3200 feet of this property, determined by a tunnel 500 feet and open cuts and shafts every one in ore. Why does St. Louis Gold Mining Co. offer the investor a chance for a money.

1. Do you know that it's title is free and clear?
2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.

GREAT BATTLE OF THE WAR IS NOW AT HAND

The Russian Army in Port Arthur Will Die Hard ---Togo Fails to Block Harbour.

London, June 1.—The report that General Kuropatkin was sending an army to the relief of Port Arthur turns out as might have been expected to be an invention. General Kuropatkin is no more in a position to send an army to the relief of Port Arthur than Port Arthur is in a position to send an army to the relief of General Kuropatkin. The General is indeed said to be through political pressure again moving his forces in Manchuria southward, but the movement is regarded as suicidal. The fall of Port Arthur cannot be long deferred, and that event will set free another Japanese army for operation against Kuropatkin should the Russian Government decide to prolong a war that will then become absolutely and obviously hopeless. The Russian evacuated Dalny so hastily that they left an enormous accumulation of stores, which they had not time to destroy. June 20th is the date publicly announced in Tokio for the capture of Port Arthur, but Admiral Togo has again been at work trying to perfect the blocking of the channel, and it will not be at all astonishing if the date given out is intended to mislead the enemy. In 1894 the Japs took about a fortnight to march down the peninsula, and less than forty-eight hours to capture the fortifications, the town and the port. They have a different enemy with which to contend this time; but if the Russians have improved upon the Chinese defences, the Japs, too, have not been idle in improving their equipment in the last ten years. During the present war the unexpected has frequently happened, and if there were anywhere for the Port Arthur garrison to "fall back to in good order" we might expect them to get out as quickly as the troops got out of Dalny. As it is, a sanguinary battle seems inevitable.

RUSSIAN GUNBOAT DESTROYED.

Some of the refugees also say the Russians destroyed the gunboat Bobr which is believed to have taken part in the battle of Thursday last at Kinchou and Nanshan Hill, and three torpedo boats. Others say these vessels returned to Port Arthur. The docks and piers at Dalny were not destroyed.

Bandits occupied the city after the Russians left and levied tribute on the inhabitants. A Chinese contractor, who had built most of Dalny for the Russians, was held for ransom and his clerks were killed. The town was still burning on May 28 when the refugees started for Chefoo. The Japanese had not appeared at Dalny up to that time. One junk which was leaving Dalny was sunk by bandits, and fifty persons were drowned.

The Chinese who have arrived here did not leave Dalny or Talienwan because they were afraid of the Russians or Japanese. They fled from the bandits who entered these two towns.

The Russian gunboat Bobr was a small vessel of 950 tons.

RUSSIANS GIVE UP HOPE.

Refugees who continue to arrive here from the southern part of the Liao Tung Peninsula report daily fighting there, and severe losses by both armies, but the reports are not confirmable officially. The Russians here are depending on the press bulletins for news from that vicinity.

The very highest Russian authority here, while not believing that Port Arthur will fall, admits that its loss would be a terrible blow to the Russian arms. The same authority says that Russia may send a large army to the south of New Chwang in the event of General Stoessel being able to hold his own at Port Arthur. This, however, is not possible at present, owing to the positions occupied by the Japanese armies operating from the Yalu River and Taku Shan. The Russians are not sanguine as to the outlook for Port Arthur.

Heavy rains are daily making the roads almost impassable.

Mukden, June 1.—According to advices received here, General Stoessel's force has taken up a strategical position near Port Arthur, which is supported by the guns of the outlaying batteries and the fortress.

There is little change in the situation to the eastward of Liao Yang.

St. Petersburg, June 1.—The Russian press is sparing of its comments on the Kin Chou affair, but there is an evident disinclination to accept the Japanese official reports in their entirety. The general tone of the papers indicate the belief that even the fall of Port Arthur would not decide the war.

Much praise is given for the splendid defence of Nanshan, made by the Russians against superior numbers.

ECHOES OF THE CONFLICT.

By an imperial ukase just issued in St. Petersburg, the control of the ports of Reval, Sveaborg and Libau and all the naval forces of the Baltic has been transferred to the commandant of the port of Cronstadt to assure uniformity in the measures adopted for the defence of the coasts of the Baltic during the war.

After a long period of quibbling the Corean Cabinet has granted the Japanese Government fishing rights off the west coast province of Corea.

The statement emanating from Paris that General Kuropatkin was sending 30,000 troops to the southward in an attempt to save Port Arthur from the Japanese is declared at St. Petersburg to be untrue.

Many women and children and male civilians are leaving Harbin.

Seventy condemned Chinese bandits are at Liao Yang awaiting execution. The local Chinese governor, in view of the troublesome times, has been empowered to behead bandits without referring their cases to the Chinese authorities at Mukden.

Japan announces that the war correspondents now "bottled up" in Tokio will be allowed to leave Tokio on June 10 in time to see the capture of Port Arthur, which is expected to occur about June 20.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:—The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

THE FISHING SEASON.

The Bass Fishing Season Opens on June 16th.

Our citizens and residents at all points along the Kawartha Lakes will learn with much satisfaction that the order to extend the close season for bass and muskinge to July 1st—two weeks later than heretofore, has been cancelled by the Ontario Fisheries Department for this season at least, and fishermen may inaugurate their favorite summer sport on Thursday morning, June 16th, at any hour they may select as the most propitious.

No doubt the decision to continue the old arrangements was influenced by the many protests forwarded to the Department from all parts of the Province by the fishery inspectors and overseers. The Lindsay inspector pointed out that the extension of the close season to July 1st would debar nearly every farmer, and those so employed, from all enjoyment of the sport until the fall, because fishing is out of the question during the harvesting season. This would give to the American tourist almost a monopoly of the sport of killing the fine game fish with which our lakes are stocked.

Mr. Brady, the Lindsay officer, also directed the attention of the Department to an anomaly in the regulation. Heretofore fishing in Rice Lake has opened two weeks earlier than elsewhere, and it transpired that the reason urged by the people of the district when applying for the concession was that when the water is low the growth of rice and weeds renders trolling a very difficult if not impossible sport. Mr. Brady very properly brought the attention of his superiors the fact that a much larger area of the Kawartha waters is subject to the same conditions, including Scugog Lake and River, Emily Creek and Pigeon River and Creek aggregating in all about 100 miles. These stretches should be governed by the same regulations as are framed for Rice Lake, and Mr. Brady is entitled to the thanks of fishermen generally for his action in calling attention to the matter.

TO SUCCEED REV. J. P. WILSON

Rev. W. J Crothers, M.A. B.D.—Where He Has Previously Labored

Rev. W. J. Crothers who will in all likelihood enter upon the pastorate of the George Street Methodist church in the near future, has a record for good work in the ministry. He was President of the Bay of Quinte Conference in 1900, and one of the representatives from Canada to the Ecumenical Conference, held in London, England, in the year 1901. He has filled pulpits in Ottawa, Carleton Place, Port Hope, Napanee and Belleville, and in each of the places named did good work.

Mr. Crothers was born at Phillipsburg, P.Q., and was educated in the local school and passed his arts course at McGill College, where he took honors, graduating in 1872, and entered the ministry the same year. He was ordained in 1876.

His appointment to the George street church is a popular one with the members of the congregation. We will heartily welcome the reverend gentleman as a citizen of Peterborough.

150 SPECKLED BEAUTIES

Messrs. Danny Simons' and Herb Snowden's Good Luck

Mr. Danny Simons, Peterborough's clever commedian, who is enjoying a well earned rest of a few weeks, accompanied by Mr. Herb. Snowden, returned yesterday from a fishing trip to St. Peter's Lake, near Bancroft. They had phenomenal luck, having landed 150 as fine speckled trout was was ever hooked by any pair of nimrods in this or any other land.

When fishing ceased to be a pleasure, and they had secured all they could decently carry back with them, they decided to return to town. During their absence in the camp Danny had grown a stupendous crop of black whiskers, which looked natural to those who had seen him in his make up as "Dusty Rhodes," while Herb's face would create the envy of any professional hobo.

MORE EASTERN TROUBLE

Most Brutal Anti-Jewish Outbreak in Bessarabia

Berlin, May 30.—Reports have reached this city from Austrian sources that the town of Chotin, Bessarabia, near Kishine, was the scene of a brutal anti-Semitic outbreak on Wednesday and Thursday. One hundred Jews were injured. The synagogue was destroyed and numerous Jewish homes and stores were plundered by the mob, which is said to have numbered 3,000.

Russians, Greeks, Armenians and Roumanians joined in the attack. Priests, prominent citizens and even women and children took a hand. The the river; women and girls were subJews were dragged out of their houses, beaten, kicked and ducked injected to cruel indignities. Only after the mob had accomplished its purpose did the Russian mounted police appear on the scene.

Even then the rioters, apparently believing the police would not molest them, continued their work, but were finally suppressed. However, they announced their intention to renew the attack some other day. The Jews in Chotin are panic stricken and many of them had fled to Austria.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals — the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 1000 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company

of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless you really are interested, because on waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Ore peas owns 9,000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $39.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 500 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

A PRETTY JUNE WEDDING

Nuptials of Mr. Edward Wandby and Miss Harriet Ellen Heal

Yesterday afternoon the George street Methodist parsonage was the scene of a very interesting event, when Miss Harriet Ellen, daughter of Mr. James Heal, Dublin street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Edward Wandby, of Toronto.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Wilson. The bride was prettily gowned in white and carried white flowers. She was attended by her sister, Miss A. G. Heal, who was similarly attired. The groom was supported by Mr. A. W. Fife.

Mr and Mrs Wandby will reside in Toronto.

HEADDRESS PARTY NOW.

Wigs and Beribboned Hats Make Gay a Recent Swell London Reception.

The feature of a recent week was the amusing and picturesque headdress party given by Mr and Lady Feodorovna Sturb, the sine qua non of which was that al the guests had to wear fancy headgear, an exception being made only in the case of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught.

Undoubtedly the most becoming and most effective costume was that worn by the hostess herself. With a beautifully made white muslin dress and a blue sash she wore a high hat of white muslin and lace, trimmed with an edging of lace around the brim. Her hair was beautifully coiffured and powdered gray. Mrs. George Cornwallis-West caused amusement when she arrived. She had donned a blonde wig, like that worn by Marguerite, with long plaits, which completely changed her appearance. Her husband was disguished under a coal-black wig and mustache.

Mrs. George Keppel's headdress was novel. It was a wig of the Louis XVI. period, made in the palest green blue, with one long curl falling down the neck. In this novel wig was fastened a large blue and silver bat with electric eyes Her dress was of white satin, trimmed with white lilies, cherries and lace.

Mrs. John Mendies wore an enormous white mob cap, trimmed with a great bow of cherry-colored ribbons. Mme. Van Andre looked handsome, but one missed her beautiful hair under a fair wig of the period when hair was dressed high with great combs at the back. Mrs. Newhouse's headdress also was of this period.

FINDS HER LOVER IN JAIL.

End of Romance of a Chicago Girl Which Had Its Inception in a Matrimonial Advertisement.

After a correspondence that had lasted several months, and which was begun in answer to a matrimonial advertisement, Hattie Peffel recently arrived at Binghamton, N. Y., to find that the man she expected to marry was a prisoner in the Broome county jail. Brought to trial on a charge of forgery, he pleaded guilty, and Miss Peffel, broken-hearted, returned to Chicago.

James C. Rankin, alias Norman Kirk, last December put an advertisement for a wife in a matrimonial paper. Miss Peffel answered it. The correspondence led to the interchange of photographs and it was arranged that they should marry. Then Rankin was arrested, but he continued to write, directing his letters from 50 Collier street, which is the jail number. She had no suspicion of the true state of affairs, and recently sent Rankin $35 in response to a request. The money was intercepted by the jail authorities and turned over to the dupe when she arrived.

HELD IN REVERENCE.

SEQUOYAH OF THE CHEROKEES THE GREATEST CHIEF.

Life Work of the Wonderful Red Man Devoted to the Interests of That Tribe — A Statue in Prospect.

The effort on the part of several prominent Cherokee Indians to erect a statue in the capitol square at Tahlequah, I. T., to the memory of Sequoyah has renewed interest in this wonderful Indian, says the Kansas City Journal. He is unquestionably the greatest Indian this nation ever produced, and is so revered by the full-blood Cherokees, but as these do not form the most considerable part of the tribe, and the mixed bloods control affairs in the national council, bills for a monument to perpetuate his memory in marble have heretofore failed. A number of prominent men have been interested in the project this time, however, and it is hoped the bill will pass. No one doubts that President Roosevelt will sign the bill making it possible to erect the monument at once. Athough Sequoyah is the especial favorite of the full-blooded Cherokees, he was not one of their members. His life work, however, was devoted to their interests. This work was the formulating of an alphabet which consists of 85 characters. So simple is it that it has been learned by students in from three to four days, and it is grounded on such thorough principles that when learned by one knowing the spoken language no difficulty is experienced in reading. It has been pronounced one of the most complete alphabets in existence, and for it Sequoyah has been dubbed "the American Cadmus."

Sequoyah was born in 1770, in Georgia, where the Cherokee tribe was then living. His mother was a full-blooded Cherokee and his father a German trader, known as George Geist or Guess. In 1831, with other members of the tribe, Sequoyah moved to the Indian territory and lived on a little farm in a district known by his name, some 12 miles north of Muldrow. There it was that he, though wholly uneducated, fashioned the letters for his alphabet, which will doubtless live as a study long after the last Indian has passed away. He was a farmer and counted well-to-do, as he owned cattle, hogs and horses. A personal description of him, secured several years ago from Mouston Beng, of Fort Gibson, who has since died, shows that Sequoyah was a slender man, with fine features and a pleasant expression. He was lame in one arm, due to a white swelling he was afflicted with when a boy. When he traveled abroad he rode a white mule. In 1842, in company with his son and another Indian, he started on a trip west to try to find a band of Cherokees which had gone there years before.

The party traveled in a cart, drawn by a yoke of oxen, but had horses with them. Somewhere in the northern part of Mexico Sequoyah became separated from his companions, and they were compelled to return without him. He was never heard of again, and it is supposed perished from want. At the time of his disappearance he wore a large silver medal, presented to him by congress in recognition of his services toward the uplifting of the Indians.

The written language he invented has been of great use to people dealing with the Indians. Soon after it was made public the Bible and many other books were translated into Cherokee, and a paper known as the Cherokee Advocate started. This newspaper is still in existence. One-half of it is printed in English and the other in Cherokee. The office is located at Tahlequah, capital of the Cherokee nation.

AN ARCTIC HEALTH RESORT

Swedish Government Will Establish One Far North of the Polar Circle.

A curious health resort is about to be established in Lapland, way beyond the polar circle, according to news received from Stockholm, Sweden. The intention of the government is to erect a sanitarium on the shores of Lake Torne, a long and beautiful sheet of water at Wassijauve, the end of the Ofote railroad. The latter, by the way, is in itself a curious institution in that in a distance of 121 miles it boasts of only one solitary station. This is not anywhere near any human habitation, but right on the line between Sweden and Norway, and it was erected only for the requirements of the customs office.

The sanitarium would be an ideal one for people with weak nerves who need absolute rest. Aside from the small settlement of Wassijauve the country is absolutely void of any signs of human existence, except for a few Laplanders who, with their herds of reindeer, pass through once in awhile.

Guests at the arctic sanitarium will have for their only object of interest, aside from the scenery, a scientific station which has been erected by the government out of funds subscribed privately by scientists and laymen interested in the object of the station. The observations and investigations to be conducted here will be various. In summer biological, geological, botanical, entomological and other researches will be made, while at all seasons meteorological, magnetic and other observations are to be made. The station is a solidly built blockhouse containing seven rooms, and it is proposed to build the sanitarium in the same way.

Not Only Relief, but Lasting Cure

Is What You Get From Catarrhozone Which Eradicates Every Trace of Catarrh From the System.

Relief is a good thing, but we soon get tired of it and look for a remedy that will drive the seeds of Catarrh right out of the system. It is only a waste of time to trifle with internal dosing. You must treat Catarrh locally because it is a local disease.

The most sensible treatment is Catarrhozone which really does reach the diseased membranes in a most thorough way. Every case of catarrh can be cured if Catarrhozone is used. It unquestionably penetrates every air cell and air passage of the breathing organs. It completely destroys the catarrh germs and heals all the inflamed surfaces.

Every requirement of an ideal catarrh cure is embraced in Catarrhozone. Other treatments may have failed to even bring relief, but one trial is sufficient to prove merit in Catarrhozone not found in the ordinary snuff or wash that unscrupulous people sometimes recommend for catarrh.

If you are subject to colds, catarrh or throat trouble you will find quick relief and lasting cure in fragrant, healing Catarrhozone. Mrs E. P. Fairbanks, of Durham, was cured of chronic catarrh by this remedy and endorses it in the following letter, which speaks for itself:

"I suffered continually from catarrh which affected my throat. My nostrils were usually inflammed and I was greatly bothered with droppings in the throat which made me sick at my stomach. I had a bad taste in my mouth, and felt a ringing in my ears. I read of Catarrhozone and commenced to use it. In a few days it helped me more than I ever expected. I used it four times daily and it two weeks most of the disagreeable symptoms disappeared. I continued the Catarrhozone treatment for six weeks and was perfectly cured. The catarrh has never returned."

Every complete outfit of Catarrhozone sufficient for two months' use is guaranteed to permanently cure, trial size 25c. Sold by druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co. Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

Circus Coming

Mr. F. O. Miller, the genial representative of Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros. all united and grandly augmented world's famous feature shows, was in town yesterday. The advertising car is in town today. This mammoth aggregation is billed for July 2nd.

Obituary

Mrs. Jane Wilkinson a lady of some 70 years of age, died at the Protestant Home here, on Wednesday night. She leaves three daughters to mourn her loss, Mrs. T. Hooper, in town, and two in Toronto, and two sons, Richard, of Peterborough, and Edward, of Fenelon Falls, where the body was taken for burial. She was an invalid for some time past.

A Veterinary's Good Work

Uxbridge Journal: Last summer a road mate belonging to Geo. Dick, of Scott, had a leg broken at the fetlock. Veterinary Plank was called in and inc sed the part in plaster of paris, although he himself was not particularly optimistic of the result. The plaster was kept on for seven or eight weeks, and when it was taken off it was found that the bone had knit. Mr. Dick is now working the horse with the others. The case is regarded as out of the common.

MILITIA CAMP

Kingston Camp will Open on the 28th of June

Militia camps are to be held this year at London, Kingston and Niagara-on-the-Lake. The camp at Kingston will commence on the 28th of this month, under the command of Lieut.-Col. Buchan, C.M.G., A.D.C., D.O.C. 3rd Dist.—Col. Edwards, R.O. Brigade Major.

Preparations are now being made and it is expected that there will be a good turn out all along the line.

The attendance at the

A BAD ACCIDENT

Albert Carr, of Tweed, Had Both Legs Taken Off

Yesterday morning the train from Tweed brought a man by the name of Carr to this town for hospital treatment. He met with a serious accident at the former place the night previous. From what can be gathered he was returning home from his work and encountered a train on the way, and wishing to save time tried to pass by crawling under a flat car, when the engine gave the train a hunt, thus causing the wheel to pass over both legs, one of which was completely severed at the knee and the other so badly crushed that amputation had to be resorted to. The shock was a severe one and his condition is most precarious. He is now in Nicholls Hospital, and the doctors are as yet uncertain as to the result of his injuries. He is a man of about 45 years of age and is married.

WEDDED IN TORONTO

Nuptials of Miss Helena E. Mallory and Mr. C. O. Harding D.D.S.

On Wednesday afternoon a very pretty "daisy" wedding took place at St. Margaret's church, Toronto, when Miss Helena Edith Mallory, only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. C. Mallory, was united in marriage to Mr. Charles Ormsby Harding, D.D.S., of Ridgetown, formerly of St. Mary's. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robert Moon.

The bride was given away by her father and was gowned in white duchesse satin, trimmed with pearls and chiffon. The conventional veil was held in place by a wreath of lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor was Miss Rous the bride's cousin, and the bridesmaids were Miss Eva Braddell Peterborough and Miss Dolly Dudley. Miss Rous was in ecru silk voile over yellow taffeta, with high yellow girdle. Miss Braddell was in a net robe of white over yellow taffeta and Miss Dudley was also in white. The three wore large cream hats and carried large sheafs of daisies tied with long white ribbons.

WATCHED AND CHAINED

Mr. G. R. Stephens, formerly Train Despatcher Here, Honored

Lindsay Post: Monday evening the employes in the various departments of the Grand Trunk Railway System met in the parlors of the Simpson house to make a presentation to Mr. G. R. Stephens, Chief Train Despatcher, who has successfully held this responsible position at Lindsay for the past twelve years, having been identified in a similar position at Peterborough and Port Hope previous to coming to Lindsay. Mr. Stephens has been assigned duties in the office of the Superintendent of the Northern Division of the Grand Trunk railway, with headquarters at Allandale.

Mr. A. M. Patton, the well known and popular G.T.R. agent at this point, acted as chairman, and in a few remarks briefly explained the object of the gathering and called upon Despatcher F. A. Bull, who read an address from fellow employees, and presented Mr. Stephens with a valuable watch and chain, which was gratefully accepted and the address suitably replied to.

Mr. Stephen's many friends in Peterborough are pleased to hear of the honor done him at Lindsay, and trusts that he may be equally successful in winning the good opinion of his fellow employees at Allandale.

BREEZY LOCAL BREVITIES.

By The Times Reporters on Their Daily Rounds

—St. Paul's church choir will not rehearse this week.

—The Never Learn are running an excursion on Tuesday 14th.

—Bass fishing commences this year as usual, on the 16th of this month.

—The excursion from Auburn has been postponed until the 11th of this month.

—The Board of Health will meet this evening at 8 o'clock in the office of the town clerk.

—The Finance Committee of The town council meets this evening at 7.30 o'clock.

—The new power plant of the Cereal Company was tested on Monday, with satisfactory results.

—Clear and green imitation cut glass vases—just the thing for long stem flowers. Prices 15 25 and 30 cents. Times Bookstore.

—The excursion of the Olympic Club around the lakes yesterday was fairly well attended, though the day was anything but a pleasant one especially in the forenoon.

—The Ontario Historical Society is in session at Windsor this week, and among other papers read was one by Col. Rogers on "The Missionaries."

—The funeral of the late Regina M. Buck will take place from her parent's residence, 384 Sherbrooke street at 10 o'clock this morning.

—The regular meeting of primary and junior union takes place this evening in the Y.M.C.A. The lesson for Sunday will be in charge of I. Fisher and Mr. A. J. Johnston.

—The Living Canada Co., who made such a success in Massey Hall, Toronto, last week, will open a five nights' engagement here on Monday. They show some good pictures of the Russia-Japanese war.

—A boy was up before the magistrate in the police court yesterday morning, charged with breaking windows. His father was ordered to repair the damage and pay costs. This was all that occupied the attention of the court.

—The cabbies are wearing a smile these days. June is the month noted for weddings. In Toronto one day this week one liveryman is said to have had to refuse something like one hundred orders. There may not be that many marriages consummated in Peterborough, but the livery men are expecting quite a number. Just the same.

"I lost courage and thought I would never regain my health."

"Three years of delicate health trying doctors' prescriptions and patent medicines" without benefit might well sap the courage of any woman. And yet Mrs. Bryant proved that the question of the cure of womanly disease is only a question of using the right remedy. A few doses of 'Favorite Prescription' restored her courage and revived her hope, because she could see "a decided change from the first." Three months' use of the medicine restored her to perfect health.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures irregularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

Mrs. Sarah Bryant, President of Memphis Social Science Club, residing at 271 Atkinson Ave., Memphis, Tenn., writes: "I suffered with delicate health for three years, trying doctors' prescriptions and patent medicines until I lost courage and thought I would never regain my health; but a few doses of your 'Favorite Prescription' made me change my mind. Could see a decided change from the first, so I kept on taking it for three months faithfully and am now in perfect health."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

RUSSIA AND GERMANY HAVE ENTERED INTO A REMARABLE SECRET TREATY

Will Not go to War With Each Other During Lives of Present Rulers

Japanese Advancing on Port Arthur as Rapidly as Possible Big Battle, Now on

Berlin, June 3.—From a source that may be described as unimpeachable, a Daily Star correspondent learns that a remarkable secret alliance exists between Russia and Germany, consisting of a personal compact between the Czar and the Kaiser, whereby the two empires bind themselves never to make war on each other as long as the Czar, the Kaiser, and the present Crown Prince of Germany is alive. The Kaiser's alarm over his health and approach of the Japanese war were the immediate inspirations of the agreement which was sealed at Wiesbaden last November, the week before the operation on the Kaiser's throat.

Russo-German relations in consequence today are more intimate than at any time during the past hundred years, and cause responsible German statesmen to snap their fingers in the face of the Franco-Russian alliance.

When the Kaiser went to Wiesbaden he was afraid he was suffering from a fatal disease and desired to confer with the Czar in order that he might bequeath to the young inexperienced Crown Prince a hard and fast understanding with Russia. Nicholas was profoundly impressed by William's anxieties. The Kaiser informed him that he was prepared to guarantee that Germany would keep peace with Russia not only for the period of his own reign, however long or short, but also for the period of the Crown Prince's life. In return the Czar was asked to guarantee that Russia would never threaten Germany. The Czar assented but demanded a pledge of Germany's benevolent neutrality in the event of a war with Japan which he forecast as an eminent danger.

This solemn peace compact is responsible for the active pro-Russianism of the German Government during the present crisis of world history. Notwithstanding its existence, however, German statesmen and soldiers of the highest rank are secretly chuckling over the Czar's misfortunes in the Far East.

BIG BATTLE NOW ON

Heavy Cannonading Heard in Vicinity of Port Arthur

Tokio, June 4.—Heavy cannonading was heard last night in the vicinity of Port Arthur, and it would appear that Admiral Togo is again at work bombarding the city. It is more than likely he is assisting the land forces and that a big battle is now on.

RUSSIA TRAIN CONVICTS

An Attack on Sakhalin Island will Settle Whether They will Fight

St. Petersburg, June 4—When the Japanese attempt to seize the Island of Sakhalin, a purpose they are known to cherish, the Russian convicts will be weighed in the military balance. The Czar has sanctioned the enrollment of those "volunteers" for the work of defending the island but not to reinforce the army in Manchuria. No regiment of Russian regulars would tolerate such men in its ranks. The first detachment of the convicts were organized two months ago. They have been constantly drilled since then and are digging trenches, mounting guns and practising rifle fire.

Russian officers employed in this service report that the raw material is excellent and the soldiers intelligent, obedient, and ready and fight.

Persons acquainted with the rigours of prison life in Sakhalin have little doubt that the convicts are desirous of showing up well in the sphere of comparative liberty they now enjoy.

KNOCKERS HAMMER

The Moon the Knockers Hammer the Great or the Stamper to the Oregon

The report of rich discoveries come in almost daily from the Greenhorn, Blue Mountain districts. Many of the properties were worked this winter, and since the snow has gone word comes in from all sections of strikes, some running very high in values. No less than twelve new mills of various types are being installed in Baker County alone. Many of the older prospects are going to resume, among them is the Bald Mountain Mammoth and Monumental. In former days these mines produced rich ore on the surface or first zone, but being inaccessible by wagon with heavy machinery and not having up to date treatment for the lower grades of ore, these mines have been idle. Good roads and a duction works now will enable the management to resume operation with a certainty of profit.

The Minersville district, known to be famous for its rich placers, is a camp but little known as regards its lode claims. The range north is about 10,000 feet above sea level, and the eruption is very pronounced, and if theory is a basis to judge by, these ledges coursing through this range have been the feeders of the native gold in the gulches below. Mr. R. E. Royce, an old prospector and placer miner who spent many summers in this gulch, selected and located the first and second chance, Big Oregon and Wide Guage on the Mother lode, now owned and operated by the St. Louis Gold Mining Co. The ledge is a decomposed quartz, carrying free gold, and it is only a matter of development to prove its great values. There is no vein more promising than this one, and the management has reason to expect great results or discoveries in the next 300 feet of work. The entire ore body, which is 32 feet wide, is purely crindering quality. The nuggets found in the various gulches below the St. Louis Gold Mining Co. property in 1872 and '73 is what belied to make Baker County known to the world to be a veritable treasury box of gold.

The above company is offering a small block of stock to develop their ledge and I trust the readers will investigate the merits of this property at once through R. J. Kidd, Agent, Peterborough, Ont.

AMERICAN FAVOR JAPAN

It Was also Announced That China had Become a Signatory to Geneva Convention

New York, June 4.—At the dinner of the American Asiatic Association at Sherry's last night at which Prince Lun was the guest of honor, the announcement was made that China has become signatory to the Geneva convention. In making the announcement John Foord, former minister to Chili, who acted as toastmaster, said in part:—

"Since we last had the pleasure of entertaining Sir Liang, he has been largely instrumental in the successful negotiations of the new treaty of commerce between China and the United States. I have his permission to make the very important announcement tonight that the latest, if not also the greatest, of his diplomatic achievements has been the bringing in of the Empire of China as a signatory of the Geneva convention. That, as you are aware, is the most recognizable bond between the civilized powers of the world, involving, as it does, a common agreement as to the rules of civilized warfare and rendering possible international co-operation in the care of the wounded. The government of China has not only become one of the signatories of the Geneva convention, but a Red Cross Association has already been organized under the auspices of the Empress Dowager, who has given substantial evidence of her sincerity in this movement by personal subscription of one hundred thousand taels."

In speaking of the announcement Mr. Foord said that Sir Chin Tung Tiang Cheng, the Chinese ambassador, who was a guest at the dinner, had been advised by cable from Peking of the action of the government.

Toastmaster Foord aroused the wildest enthusiasm of the evening by toasting the Japanese navy. Half of the diners had gone, but those who remained cheered and cheered again and broke their glasses on the floor after drinking the toast.

Rear Admiral Frederick Rodgers, commandant of the Brooklyn navy yards, who was to have responded to the toast of "The Navy," was absent. After announcing this, Mr. Foord said:

"I cannot refrain, even with my notions of observing strict neutrality, from speaking of another navy than that which we would have toasted has Rear Admiral Rodgers been here. Gentlemen, I ask you to drink to the success of the Japanese navy, of whom we have here a most fitting representative, Captain Takeshita, naval attache of the Japanese legation in Washington.

After the prolonged cheering and the breaking of the glasses, Capt. Takeshita said:

"In drinking this health I wish to thank you, but I wish also that you shall drink to the Japanese navy—Banzai." This is the Japanese shout of "victory."

None of the military men present would discuss the incidents after the dinner.

ANGLO-RUSSIAN ALLIANCE

Settlement of Canadian Sealing Claims, Sets St. Petersburg Talking About the Chances of a Commercial Treaty Between Britain and Russia

St. Petersburg, June 3.—The comment here on the settlement of the Russian-Canadian fishery dispute is very significant. The agreement is welcomed by the Russian press as evidence of the increasing probability of an Anglo-Russian alliance, the papers pointing out that public opinion in Great Britain, France and Russia is becoming more favorable, the war, instead of proving an obstacle to an alliance, serving as one of the arguments in its favor.

More significant still is the strong intimation of the Novosti foreshadowing that a commercial treaty between the two countries will pave the way to a purely commercial rapprochement. The Novosti adds: "The realization of this is easier, as both Russia and Great Britain are bound by enormous commercial dealings. It is true that Russia is further from Great Britain than France but she is nearer India, whose railways could be joined with Russia's."

The paper makes the further point that, without such a commercial treaty, any political agreement would be very frail.

Although it is impossible to ascertain at this time whether the question of such a commercial treaty has actually been taken up, the possibility of its being the next step in the programme towards a political agreement arouses the keenest interest in diplomatic circles, where it is considered fraught with most far-reaching importance. The United States probably, will be the chief loser by such a treaty. America has already suffered from the differential duties levied against her in retaliation for the imposition of a countervailing duty on Russian sugar, imports of American agricultural machinery etc., which a few years ago was very large, having fallen almost to nothing. With tariff concessions Great Britain is bound to succeed to all this trade with its big potentialities for the future. The impression is growing that Great Britain is playing a shrewd game for big stakes, commercially as well as politically, and while a complete agreement would be mutually advantageous to both Russia and Great Britain, it would be at the expense of the United States in both these directions.

ANOTHER EMIGRATION SWINDLE.

London, June 3.—The police are hunting for a man named Williams, who has been trading upon the gullibility of intending English emigrants to Canada. Williams opened an office near the Bank of England, offering a cheap passage to Canada, and employment there. Deposits made amounted to $4,000 in two weeks. The tickets were promised for June 1, but Williams disappeared on May 31.

OUR NEW FISHERY CRUISER.

London, June 3.—The Vickers-Maxim Company is waiting for instruction from the Canadian Government as to the launching of the new fishery cruiser Canada. The ceremony occurs at Barrow on the 11th inst. Princess Louise was asked to perform the christening, but had a previous engagement, which she regretted accordingly.

A BIG DAY WITH THE BIG ONE

Wild Beasts, Sensational Features, Fine Horses, Great Acts, Clowns and Collosum Races Galore.

In their wild beast, arenic and hippodromatic departments the management of the great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Enormous Shows United, having reached the limit of transportation facilities, now appear to have concentrated their resources, research and enterprise upon the production of especially great and novel features, to such extent that feature hunting has apparently become a gigantic fad with them. The proof of this is found in the unprecedented popularity they have attained at Madison Square Garden, New York City, and wherever their own metropolis of tents has been pitched. Nothing at home worth exploiting seems to have escaped their eyes, and their announcements indicate how thoroughly they have ransacked all foreign fields in search of genuine thrillers and originalities. Their collection of wild beasts has always been conspicuous for colossal completeness, and among other big things they have added to it an Arctic assemblage of full fourteen living Polar Bears, a greater number of those only North Pole discoverers than even any seeker of the same has ever seen at any one time. They have lured from the gay capital of France its most popular equestrian, La Famille Lecuyson, whose combined equestrian and park-brake bareback and acrobatic novelties will doubtless amaze all beholders here, as they did there, and which are the only absolutely new equestrian performances seen in any arena for over fifty years. Another arenic European celebrity, who for the first time visits this country, is Mons. Hubert, his original equestrian acts including leaping from the ground to a horse's back whilst holding a sulky on high by its thills, and balancing a park cart on his chin. From abroad also come to us for the first time the Szarvasi Frencz Troupe of Hungarian Magyars, whose dances, acrobatic feats and tribal melodies are described as both intensely thrilling and interesting. The four merry Martinekz, who have set all Europe laughing from ear to ear, have been added to the whole comic circus of all-convulsing clowns, which feature this great show was the first to introduce. At the head of all home features unquestionably stands the world-famous Aurora Zouaves, aptly described by the New York Journal as "a huge red-legged centipede, whose celerity and precision have astounded the military world." It is universally admitted among army experts that, in both manoeuvers and manual, they eclipse anything ever known.

The horse show in this exhibition deserves more than passing mention, as having, possibly, the most numerous and magnificent collection of its kind, in which the most noted, noblest and most beautiful breeds are conspicuous. Many of them, too, have been taught to perform the most intricate and dainty feats, including the genuine cakewalk, which the New York press pronounced incomparable. Thousands of columns have been written in praise of the Forepaugh dancing elephants, and the Sells Brothers gigantic soldier tuskers, and it has been repeatedly illustrated that they well deserve the compliment. In passing over the hundred champion circus acts in the three rings, on the elevated stages and in mid-air, as well as the exciting contests on the hippodrome course, we ought to mention Diavolo, in his dare-devil act of looping the loop on a bicycle; Prodigious Porthos, who performs the seemingly incredible feat of leaping across a chasm fifty feet in width on his flying cycle, and Cyclone, who, starting on an absolutely perpendicular line, actually scales "The Devil's Chimney" awheel, at almost incalculable centrifugal speed. This trio are simply inimitable, and the sole masters of the astounding specialties in which they appear. The free street parade is in keeping with the general magnitude and wealth of the show and presents a decided novelty in the production of a small army, different divisions of which are uniformed and armed so as to represent our country's warlike progress from the Revolution to the Cuban campaign. This mammoth aggregation will visit Peterborough on Saturday, July 2nd.

S. A. Band Concert

A band concert is announced to take place in the Salvation Army Barracks on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The delegates to the great International Conference, to be held in London, England, will bid farewell to the brethren. A good programme is being arranged. Rev Mr. Shimeswaite will preach to the Salvation Army and their friends to-morrow evening.

A WELL-MERITED TRIBUTE

Messrs. J.J. Turner & Sons as High Class Decorators

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons have received the following letter which speaks for itself.

Chatham, Ont., June 1, 1904.

J. J. Turner & Sons, Peterborough, Ont.

Gentlemen,—I take pleasure in enclosing you cheque in settlement of your bill for decorating the streets here for our recent K. O. T. M. Convention. I wish to say in connection therewith that I have had considerable experience in handling affairs of this kind and that I consider that the decoration you gave us on this occasion was the very best that I have had the pleasure of seeing at any time, and your firm certainly deserve a great deal of credit for the magnificent display which you put up for us last week. We have the city decorated this week for the Oddboy's Reunion by an American firm, charging the same price as you did, that is so far inferior as to cause considerable adverse comment, by almost every person who had the pleasure of comparing the two displays; and it certainly reflects great credit on you as Canadians and decorators when your work shows up to such a great advantage alongside your competitors.

Yours truly,
G. W. SULMAN

FOOTBALL.

Keene is scheduled for a game with the Quakers on the Oval this afternoon.

The O.C.W. journey to Chemong on Saturday to play the return match with Bridgenorth. The following will comprise the Wanderers team: Goal, Wright; backs, Whitlow (Captain), Evans; half backs, Strainge, Hawkins and Bradlow; forwards, Lyon, Hend, Reid, Greattrix, Stamper; reserves, Dixon, Marshall. Buses leave the Crown Hotel at 4 o'clock sharp. All members and friends wishing to accompany the team should be at the Crown Hotel not later than 4 o'clock. Back up Wanderers.

LACROSSE.

The first game in the Trent Valley Lacrosse League was played on the Murray Street school grounds last evening between the T.A.S. and Port Hope. The game was closely contested and resulted in a draw, 1—1. A large crowd witnessed the match.

BASEBALL.

The Varsity baseball nine will meet Manager Whitcroft's aggregation on the school grounds this afternoon. A hot game is assured the public. Before the ball game takes place a lacrosse match between the Weston Lacrosse team and the Peterboroughs will be played.

RECEIVED INTO MINISTRY.

Interesting Service at the Evening Session of the Conference Yesterday

The evening session of the Conference was taken up by the reception of three young men probationers into the ministry of the church. Each of the applicants spoke briefly, giving an account of their call to preach the Gospel, telling how they had been converted and the spirit which actuated them in seeking admission into the church. All had passed the regular college course necessary for the undertaking of the work and had laboured in different fields during their probation, and asking an interest in the prayers of all Christian people, as well as the members of the Conference. Some of the testimonies of the applicants were very interesting and it was moved and seconded that they be received into the full work of the church. The ordination to take place later.

The charge to the young men, by the mover of the resolution, was not only able, but eloquent and dealt with many phases of ministerial life. The ground was well covered and the address was not only practical but deeply interesting to those in attendance, as well as to the newmen who are seeking admission. In fact, while the speaker disclaimed any ability as a preacher, and would rather another had been called to do the work, his remarks met with general approbation.

The seconder also spoke briefly and eloquently. The church was well-filled throughout the proceedings.

Cars Derailed

An accident occurred near Birdsalls on the Grand Trunk yesterday morning, by which four cars of a freight train were derailed, and thrown into the ditch. The accident was caused by a flange on one of the car wheels breaking. The Bellsville local was delayed for several hours, and the Lakefield train was despatched to bring the passengers to Peterborough.

BIG BATTLE IN PROGRESS NEAR PORT ARTHUR

Hostile Armies Said to be Engaged in Big Battle--Japs Claim a Victory

Yiao Ying, June 4.—There are persistent rumors that another great battle is in progress near Port Arthur.

Continuous cannonading has been heard from the south.

An additional force of 15,000 Japanese is reported to have landed at Taku Shan.

JAPANESE CLAIM A VICTORY.

Tokio, June 4.—A body of Japanese encountered and defeated a mixed force of Russian cavalry, infantry and artillery near Lichatun, nine miles north of Polandien, on Monday last, May 30. The engagement began at 12.30 p.m. and lasted for two hours, the Russian troops finally being driven northward. The Japanese had one officer and 25 men killed and 4 officers and 33 men wounded. The Russian losses are unknown. The movement of the Russian forces southward indicate a possible effort to relieve Port Arthur.

The fighting reported from Tokio as having occurred "near Lichatun, nine miles north of Polandien, on Monday last," is evidently identical with the engagement reported from Liao Yang on May 30 by a correspondent, as having occurred at Venenfuhu (possibly near Wafangtien), which is about nine miles north of Polandien on the Liao Tung peninsula. It was in this engagement that the Cossacks under General Samsonoff, were reported to have annihilated a squadron of Japanese. The Japanese were commanded by General Akkujama.

Vafangow, June 2, via Liao Yang, June 3.—A continuation of the fighting was expected here to-day, but the Japanese did not appear in force. A reconnoitering party, however, exchanged shots with the enemy's scouts and the latter were driven off leaving two dead men on the field. To-morrow, probably, will determine whether the Japanese are strong enough to take Vafangow.

AT THE RUSSIAN HEADQUARTERS

Mukden, June 4.—For two days past rumors have been current of severe fighting on the Liao Tung peninsula. Details are lacking, but the fact that fighting has been general throughout the peninsula is officially admitted. The Russians have pushed their outposts south of Wafangtien, on the railway, while the Japanese occupy the country from the shores of Corea Bay inland to the vicinity of Siu Yen. The fact that a Japanese army estimated to number 80,000 men is concentrated south of Kin Chou is regarded as indicating the region where decisive battles will be fought.

RUSSIANS ARE MARCHING SOUTH

Reported Attempt to Relieve Port Arthur

THE ORDER OF THE CZAR.

An Alleged Result of War Council at St. Petersburg.

The Japanese Have Evacuated Sakhalair e The Latest Estimates of their Forces in the Field.

London, June 4.—Telegrams from different points seem to confirm the rumor that General Kuropatkin is attempting a diversion in the direction of Port Arthur. Russian reinforcements according to a despatch from Tientsin, are moving southward from Kaiping towards Wafangtien, under General Stakelberg. They comprise a battery of artillery, four Siberian regiments and a detachment of Cossacks, aggregating 12,000 men. Another brigade is following, the intention being to engage the Japanese now attacking Port Arthur in their rear.

The Standard's correspondent at Tientsin sending the same news says "The Russian force in the engagement at Wafangtien, May 30, is supposed to have been formed of four Siberian regiments, which were reported to have left Tachiachao, May 28, and to be the first portion of a relieving column for Port Arthur. The railway is fairly intact from the north to Wafangtien, but is completely destroyed from there to Pulantien. The Japanese are uncontested over this demonstration, being convinced that it will be impracticable for the Russians to move a sufficient force to prove effective.

A DESPERATE MOVE.

These reports are received with a certain measure of scepticism in London. The belief here is that if Gen. Kuropatkin is undertaking such a desperate move he can only be doing so in deference to strongest political pressure and against his own judgment. No further news of any kind has been received about the movements of the Japanese forces. Both Generals Kuroki and Oku are working with the utmost secrecy.

PORT ARTHUR'S STRENGTH.

The Daily Telegraph's well-informed Tokio correspondent estimates the total defending force in Port Arthur at 30,000. "This is a most formidable army, he says, "and it will be a marvellous achievement to carry by assault such a place, with more than a score of great landward forts disposed at a distance of fifteen miles from the harbor. Still, the reduction of the place can be undoubtedly accomplished."

FOR DEFENCE OF LIAOYANG.

According to the Chronicle's Tokio correspondent the Russians have completed eleven fortresses at Liaoyang and are laying mines at a distance of 5,000 feet around them.

KUROPATKIN ACTING ON ORDERS

"Viceroy Alexieff and Gen. Kuropatkin, having asked the Emperor to settle their dispute, his Majesty summoned a council of war, including Minister of War Sukharoff, Marine Minister Avellan and Minister of the Interior Plehve. The council debated for several hours at Tsarskoye Selo. I have reason to believe that the necessity of preserving the naval base at Port Arthur and the loss of prestige that the fall of Port Arthur would entail, were the arguments which prevailed in the council.

"Gen. Kuropatkin has, therefore, been advised to attempt to relieve the fortress, but to act with the greatest prudence. A general whom I interviewed on the decision of the council, said: "If Kuropatkin is weak enough to advance he will commit a second blunder. The number of his troops and the conditions under which he acts are unfavorable. He might meet an almost irreparable reverse and Port Arthur be farther from relief than ever. If we try to relieve Port Arthur we will in doing exactly what the Japanese want."

PORT ARTHUR'S SUPPLIES

The Civilians Must Look Out for Themselves.

St. Petersburg Despatches Say a Number o Submarines are Being Sent to the Far East.

London, June 4.—The Times today has the following from Weihaiwei, dated yesterday: "I have just returned from a cruise on the Times steamer Haimun of Kinchow Bay and have been able to glean some further particulars of the engrossing operations on the Liaotung peninsula. Eyewitnesses say that on midday of the 26th the Kinchow column presented an unprecedented military spectacle with 40,000 Japanese troops massed behind the western spur of Mount Sampson, and under such small cover as was afforded by the Sukiatun twin peaks. While withing 2,000 yards of the Russian works there was so little room to deploy for attack that battalions of Japanese infantry had to stand waiting in the sea the whole time. It was a veritable inferno of all arms, and shells from the Russian batteries ploughed into the serried masses around Kinchow the Japanese guns replying as battery after battery came into action from the Chilichwang and Kaichiyan flats while a sustained fire from they unseats kept the line of the Russians works fringed with bursting projectiles.

MAC'S LUCK.

The Young Woman Reporter's Story.

The following food tale written by a clever young newspaper woman is a true story that came under her personal observation.

"I have been with the ——— (a paper in a Calif. town) for nine years and Mac has been with us all that time and I do not know how much longer. Mac's full name is MacClellan. Before the Linotypes came in he was a good printer and was one of the first to learn the machine, and is now, about the age of 42, one of our very fastest operators.

"Last winter and the winter before Mac, probably from constant work and improper food, got badly run down, could not eat much, what little he did eat did not do him much good and he always complained he could not keep warm.

"I missed him for awhile until yesterday I overtook him on the street going toward the office, and hardly knew the man; had it not been for the familiar walk I would surely have passed without recognising him. He was stout, his face was round and ruddy and his eyes bright as I had never seen them before.

"I said 'Mac, I hardly knew you, what on earth have you been doing to get so fat?' He replied 'Grape-Nuts, nothing else. I started in on Grape-Nuts food three months ago when I weighed 138 and was feeling miserable, but now I weigh 160 and feel better than I ever felt in my life. I quit my old diet and went on Grape-Nuts and that's the whole story.'" Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Exercise is necessary but there's no nourishment in it, and proper food alone can supply that. Grape-Nuts for 10 days is a pleasant trial and proves big things.

There's a reason.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

YOU PAY ONLY IF CURED.

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write for It This Very Day.

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and state boards of medical examiners, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have suffered that they have been unable to get cured, prostate trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

DR. S. GOLDBERG,

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him, and if he accepts your case for treatment it is equivalent to a cure, as he does not under any consideration accept incurable cases for treatment; and, remember, if he does accept your case you may pay when you are cured. He sends the method, as well as his booklet on the subject, concealed, and the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

THE KROPATKIN PLAN.

(Written for The Times.)

Undaunted by the yellow tide
The Japs crossed o'er the Yalu wide
And then and there the foe defied.

Bold Kuropatkin shook his head
When he was told his men had fled
"We'll lure 'em on," he smilingly said.

The Japs advanced on every hand
They overran the mighty land,
And Russia failed to make them stand,

Bold Kuropatkin watched the foe,
He watched his legions turn and go;
"We'll lure 'em on," he chuckled low.

Then Moscow's ramparts loomed in sight,
And still the Russians held their flight,
And still the Japs marched day and night.

Bold Kuropatkin winked his eye;
He saw his famous Cossacks fly;
"We'll lure 'em on," was still his cry.

St. Petersburg came next in view,
And round its walls the Jappies drew
A living cordon, strong and true.

Bold Kuropatkin didn't stay,
But northward still he held his way;
"We'll lure 'em on," was all he'd say.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

Owing to the unexpected and unforeseen circumstances over which he had no control General Kuropatkin has again postponed the date of his triumphal march through Japan.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS

WESTWOOD.

—We are pleased to see Geo. Humphries again in our midst. He enlisted in the S.A.C. a few years ago and remained in Africa till a few months ago. He stood the trial well.

—Mr W Colby was out wheeling on Sunday, and on Monday he took a walk.

—The Quakers, being skilled hands in the manufacture of farmer's produce, certainly found no trouble in handling the Caughnawagas.

—Mr. Jerrie Hefferman has been unable to draw the mail owing to a mishap to his horse, and has employed Mr John Esson to fill the vacancy.

—Tuesday, the 24th, was an exciting day in Westwood; shops were closed and the shop-keepers were out for an airing parading the streets and stopping the electric cars throwing fire-crackers into every one's face, and as the policemen were all out shooting woodchucks, it continued away on in the night. Bon fires blazed from dark until morn, so it was needless to turn on the electric lights to light the streets.

—Norwood's Football Club dropped out of the League and no doubt Bridgenorth will be the next best of the district.

—Miss Mary Ryan, of Peterborough, is visiting her brother, Mr. James Ryan, of this place.

Wages for teams to be $2.50 per day.
Wages for men to be $1.25 per day.

WARSAW.

The balmy south breezes are blowing over the hills and braes of Dummer, bringing us health, wealth and joy. Many new sailing craft are seen this season on the lake. A triangular race course is being marked out, finishing at the mill, and soon there will be races every Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Reg. G. Hendren has put in a side line of flowers, roots and bulbs. His geraniums are magnificent, while his stock of burdock and dandelion roots is unsurpassed in the county. Give him a call for tomato and celery plants.

The K.G.P.S. held a smoking concert in the school last Tuesday evening. A splendid drama was presented by local talent, entitled "Thaddeus of Warsaw," in which Mr. Richard Smythe took the part of the villain to perfection. He was ably seconded by Mr. Clarence Watts, who acted the part of Thaddeus. The duel was the leading feature of the evening, some beautiful sword play being indulged in by the actors. Between the acts some songs were sung, including a baritone solo "Kipling's Recessional," by Mr. Reg. G. Hendren and a comic duet by Mr. Harold Choate and Dr. Michell of the village, Mr. Roland Kidd accompanied the songsters and his perfect handling of the "ivories" was universally admired. The society took in 62 1-2 cents, which was given to the Hospital for Sick Children.

A most enjoyable tea was given on the golf links by the ladies of the village, on the occasion of the friendly game played between the ladies of Lakefield and Warsaw. The weather was perfect and playing first class, but the Warsaw ladies were beaten, being 43 1-4 points behind.

The Warsaw planing mill was obliged to close down on Saturday, owing to the fireman being absent. It appears that a new horse was brought into the village, and so the staff was given a holiday. Sufficient reason surely.

The sidewalk on Choate's corner is commencing to sag and soon no steps will be needed. Some ignoramus took one plank from the sidewalk in front of Hendren's clothing store and the proprietor nearly came to grief. An example should be made of such characters.

Mr. Harold Choate is visiting in Toronto at present and we all miss him very much. May he speedily return to us.

An early closing by-law is now before the council and soon all the stores will close at 5.30 p.m. daily (including Saturday). This will give the clerks a chance to take in the daily excursions which leave the Warminster lighthouse at 9.30. Tickets single, 6 1-4 cents; double 17 cents. Special low rates for families.

Are You Nearing the Turn of Life?

Unmistakable signs of 'the change' a Headache, Sleepless Nights, Nervousness, Hysteria and Melancholia—Watch for these Symptoms if past Forty five.

When the turn or change of life make its appearance you will notice severe pains shooting through the loins. As a rule the change is gradual. In most cases it is marked by irregularity of the menstrual flow. It is most important to maintain as high a degree of vigor as possible. All strength should be conserved, and Ferrozone should be taken three times daily until the crisis is past. Ferrozone not only acts on the blood giving it purity and richness, but acts directly on the womanly organs in such a way as to lessen the strain and severity of this trying time.

Mrs. Martha M. Macadam, of St. George, writes: "About two years ago I was greatly run down and felt as if I was going to die. I was in a nervous excited state, and had the most dreadful pains every month. Irregularities that I never had before commenced, and I didn't know what was wrong. I consulted the doctor and learned I was approaching a very critical time. I started on a course of Ferrozone, and took one tablet along with every meal for about six months. Ferrozone had a direct action, and helped me immensely. My nervousness went away, and so did all the other worrying symptoms. Ferrozone is a remedy that all women should use, because it insures regularity, freedom from pain and headache. It is a remarkable re-builder and tonic, and saw me safely through my trouble."

Ferrozone is exactly the remedy you need. Don't believe an unscrupulous dealer who may try to sell you a base substitute that affords him more profit. Insist on Ferrozone. Price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all druggists or by mail, from The Ferrozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

STREET LIGHTING CONTRACT

Cost of Lighting Being Very Much Reduced

Ottawa is having a row over the contract which has just been entered into for street lighting, the price being $52 per year. The Journal maintains that municipal lighting would have reduced the price to $40 per lamp. Here's what our contemporary says:

Meanwhile, in support of the idea that street lighting can be done for a good deal less than $52 per light, it may be noted that City Engineer Barrow, of Hamilton, who is getting information about such matters in view of the expiry soon of the Hamilton street lighting contract, has received the following interesting letter from Charles H. Lamphiers, city electrician, of Springfield, Ill.:

"Some eight years ago a stock company was formed here by certain public-spirited citizens to build a municipal lighting plant. No money was advanced by any one but their credit enabled them to borrow the money. The plant was built, and the city paid the company $60 per lamp. The difference between the actual cost of the operation and the price agreed upon for these lamps paid for the plant, which the city now owns, but has leased, still paying the $60 a year per lamp. We expect, within the next year, to take charge of the plant, and to operate it ourselves, and believe that we can make light for less than $40 a year per lamp. The cost of operating has been materially reduced by the enclosed arc lamps. We pay $2 a ton for coal, and hire fifteen men at an average wage of $2.15 a day."

Here is a plant which for years past has been actually operating at so much less than $60 per lamp that the difference has bought the plant for the city. What will be the case before ten years hence, with at

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as a safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups; namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 30 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 570 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflict as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented.

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78½ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented.

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory	758½ acres
" " Mill and building sites	55 "
" " Timber properties	90 "
Total	903½ acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

Complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government from which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

Total cost of development to date, present management,	$53,000.00
" " " " former owners	18,000.00
" " surface improvements, buildings, saw mill plant, horses, wagons, ore cars, track, tools, etc.	17,000 00
" " Machinery paid for and to be installed	6,000 00
	$99,000.00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $26,000.00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet. We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 200 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver. These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built.

In the meantime only the high grade Smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will aid us materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905, and be continued thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years, from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock, the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3.50 to $4.00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our stockholders. These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments. By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18.00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of production is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,

THE GIANTS OF THE RAILROAD.

The C. P. R.'s Wonderful Mogul Engines.

PULL FOUR HUNDRED CARS

Locomotives are Far More Powerful than in Early Days.

The Times' reporter was standing on the C.P.R. platform yesterday when one of the great mogul engines "pulled in," as the trainmen say. The train consisted of perhaps a quarter of a mile of empty cars.

"The giant freight locomotive of today," said an employee, "walks away easily with many times the load hauled by the freight engine of twenty-five years ago, and it has simply revolutionized the freight traffic business.

"The old-time freight engines weighed from 60,000 to 90,000 pounds, exclusive of the tender, which weighed from 45,000 to 60,000 pounds. In those days the freight cars were from twenty-six to twenty-eight feet long, their average weight was ten tons, the maximum load carried to a car was ten tons, and the average number of cars to a train was twenty-five or thirty.

"Call the number of cars to a train thirty, for the sake of illustration, and say that each car was loaded to its maximum capacity, and you have a train of cars weighing 300 tons, carrying a load of the same weight, making, as hauled by the old-time locomotives, a total load of 600 tons.

"The big modern freight locomotive weights from 196,000 to 220,000 pounds, exclusive of the tender, which weighs about 140,000 pounds; or, to put these engine weights in tons, while the old engine, with its tender included, weighed altogether approximately sixty-seven tons, the modern engine, with its tender complete, weighs about 173 tons, and this giant locomotive can haul on a level road 100 loaded cars, and these cars are heavier than the old-time cars and all carrying much heavier loads.

CAPACIOUS BOX CARS.

"There are now made box cars of a capacity of forty tons, and on some roads of fifty tons. The forty-ton car, for example, is forty feet long and weighs nineteen tons.

"Observe the capacity of this car is more than double the weight of the car itself, while in the old-time car, while the capacity and the weight of the car equal, there was as much dead weight hauled as freight. In all modern car building by better and more scientific construction a constant effort has been made, and with increasingly successful results, to increase the car capacity in proportion to the weight of the car.

"But, while such highly economical cars have now come in use, the great majority of the cars running through out the country have not yet been brought up to so high a standard. If you should take the cars as you actually find them running today you would find them to average a length of about thirty-five feet and a weight of fifteen tons as against the old-time twenty-eight foot, ten-ton freight car.

"As to the load now carried, it is pretty difficult to strike an average, but that could probably be set down at twenty-five tons, as against the old-time maximum ten-ton load, making the present day average box car and load together weigh forty tons, against the old-time total of twenty tons.

"And now if you will take a train of today of sixty loaded cars, which is far below the average for level roads, you will find a big engine hauling a train of twice as many cars as were hauled in an old-time train, and these loaded cars weighing twice as much, or sixty cars of 80 tons load of forty tons each, making the total load hauled now four times the old load, or 2,400 tons against 600.

"And don't forget that while in the 600-ton load more than 50 per cent. was dead weight, in the 2,400-ton load the dead weight is only about 38 per cent and the revenue weight about 62 per cent. And, as we have seen, in the most modern cars the proportion of the freight weight carried to the dead weight is larger still.

"We have used as a basis for figuring a train of sixty average cars. But, as I have said, that would be far below the average of the number of cars hauled by great trunk lines running through level regions. On such lines they have trains of 100 loaded cars, making the weight hauled, say, 4,000 tons; and trains of ninety-five loaded cars are not uncommon, and the average number of cars to a train on such roads might be set down at eighty-five to ninety.

"These figures are largely approximate, but they show the revolution in freight hauling that has been wrought with the aid of the modern freight locomotive.

VERY ECONOMICAL.

"The great locomotives have increased the efficiency of the railroads in many ways. If, for instance, it should be sought to haul with engines of the old power, the enormously increased amount of freight that the railroads have now to handle, there would be so many trains on the roads that they couldn't move and the roads would be practically blocked.

"Of course the big locomotive is vastly more economical. It costs twice as much as the old-time locomotive did, to begin with, but that is really an inconsiderable item as compared with the increase in the amount of the work it does.

"The big engine can be run by the same number of men that handled the little one, and with power brakes on the cars the same crew can handle the bigger train. Labor costs much more than it formerly did, and the big engine burns more fuel and, of course, the cost of the supplies needed for the running of the big train is greater and so is the cost of repairs; but all this greatly increased expense is spread over so much freight hauled that the actual cost of hauling has been reduced and freight is now hauled cheaper than ever.

ROADS HAVE BEEN IMPROVED.

"The great modern freight locomotive couldn't be used on roads as they used to build them, and so they lay nowadays far heavier rails than formerly, where they used to put down rails of fifty to sixty pounds to the yard they now lay 100-pound rails to sustain the added weight of the great engine.

"And as far heavier rails are laid for these great engines to run on, very different appliances and machinery are used in handling them when off the road. In old times, for example, when they had one of those little old engines in the shop for repairs, if they had occasion to raise it they used to jack it up. Nowadays they have tremendous cranes that will lift one of these ponderous engines as easily as the great engine itself will haul its heavy load on the rails.

"And as to the roads again, besides being relaid with far heavier rails, they have been further improved and the hauling of far heavier loads over them made possible by far better construction and by the straightening out of curves and the reduction of grades, and all these improvements have of course contributed greatly to the present day efficiency of the roads in hauling freight, but all these things together wouldn't count for much without the modern freight locomotive, the giant engine that walks away across the country easily hauling a hundred loaded freight cars."

KUROPATKIN IS NOT ADVANCING.

No Signs of Movement South from Liaoyang.

London, June 2.—The Times to-day has the following.—With the Japanese first army, May 31—There is no sign of any movement in the army. The Japanese state there are no indications that the Russians are advancing in force south of Liao Yang in this direction. It is improbable they will make a stand before Liao Yang, as all the positions on the Pekin road, including the pass through the Motienling range, can easily be outflanked on either side.

A DESPERATE VENTURE.

London, June 2.—The Times to-day has the following.—At sea on board the Haimun May 31, via wireless telegraphy to Weihaiwei.—Later details from the Kwantung peninsula show that Gen. Oku undertook operations on May 25 and 26 which few generals would undertake in view of the enemy's strength and the nature of the prepared works they occupied. The fourth Japanese division, upon which fell the brunt of the fighting, after debouching from Kinchou, had to contract its front to half of its normal extension in order to carry these prepared works before it reached the enemy's main position. During this advance it was swept by an effective range by the concentrated fire of the whole Russian position, which covered a front of six miles. Under such circumstances no troops could keep the formation in which they originally advanced to the attack. It was in reaching the village of Mauchiaging that the issue hung longest in the balance. From that point the undertaking seemed almost impossible. The attack however, made headway by sheer weight of numbers and fresh troops.

Two months ago there was much interesting speculation in regard to the revolution in naval warfare thought to have been rendered inevitable by the pronounced success of the torpedo-boat at Port Arthur, but the torpedo-boat will be practically obsolete after July 29 when the prohibition of the torpedo-balloon by The Hague conference treaty xpires.

The only objection offered to the torpedo-balloon at The Hague was that on account of its lack of precision it would be more destructive to noncombatants than to combatants. In spite of this objection, however, the effort to enjoin it for all time failed. The grand committee would go no further than to prohibit it for five years from the adjournment of the conference, and even then to stipulate that if in the meanwhile new inventions should secure the requisite precision the prohibition should become inoperative.

As a matter of fact, the dirigible balloon of Santos-Dumont, not to speak of many similar devices, long ago solved the problem of precision, but the last shadow of the prohibition, regardless of precision, vanishes July 29. After that date it will be strictly in accordance with the law of nations for an army to drop torpedoes from the skies into the camp or on the fortifications of an enemy.

The most important use to which such engines of war could be put would probably be the reduction of fortresses on the seashore by an enemy's fleet. Port Arthur furnishing a fine illustration. As they must be ready to receive the Baltic fleet, that Japanese cannot wait for July 29, but if they could do so it is easy to see how, with their singular expertness in the use of explosives, they could tear Port Arthur to atoms and put its garrison to flight, without the loss of a man, by the use of the torpedo-balloon.

The finest work in this line, of course, could be done by a dirigible ballon managed by an aeronaut, but the same ultimate effect could be produced by sending up, when the wind was favorable, a large number of cheap balloons which would release and drop torpedoes by clockwork. These balloons might be made of paper and operated by hot air and therefore be the cheapest torpedo service ever known. Such a bombardment would shatter the nerves of the bravest men that ever breathed and put to flight an army of a million men.

Such warfare, it will be observed, could be dangerous only to large stationary objects, like a fortified port or a great city, as an army or a fleet of vessels could easily keep out of harm's way. One of the most dreaded effects would be the easy destruction of a great city or the collection of an immense ransom from it in lieu of a bombardment. Under certain circumstances it would be entirely within the range of possibilities that an enemy might say to the City of London of the City of New York; "Hand over $500,000,000 by tomorrow noon or nothing will be left but a blackened waste."

Unfortunately the torpedo-balloons and so far as actual experience goes the torpedo-boat seem to be much more available for invasion than for defense, and therefore they do not bring us much nearer the desired era of peace on earth and good will to men.

—The excursion from Auburn has been postponed until the 11th of this month.

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to wit:—The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 986 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

CHAPTER XIX.

"Hagar! Hagar!" exclaimed Mag, playfully bounding to her side, and laying her hand upon her arm. "What aileth thee, Hagar?"

The words were meet, for never Hagar in the desert, thirsting for the gushing fountain, suffered more than did she who sat with covered face and made no word of answer. Maggie was unusually happy that day, for but a few hours before she had received Henry's letter, making her free to love Arthur Carrollton, who she well knew only waited a favorable opportunity to tell her his love, so with a heart full of happiness she had stolen away to visit Hagar, reproaching herself as she came for having neglected her so long. "But I'll make amends by telling her what I'm sure she must have guessed," she thought, as she entered the cottage, where, to her surprise, she found her weeping. Thinking the old woman's distress might possibly be occasioned by her neglect, she spoke again. "Are you crying for me, Hagar?"

"Yes, Maggie Miller, for you—for you!" answered Hagar, lifting up a face so ghastly white that Maggie started back in some alarm.

"Poor Hagar, you are ill," she said, and advancing nearer she wound her arms around the trembling form, and pillowing the snowy head upon her bosom, continued soothingly: "I did not mean to stay away so long. I will not do it again, but I am happy, Hagar, so happy, Hagar, so happy that I half forgot myself."

For a moment Hagar let her head repose upon the bosom of her child, then murmuring softly, "It will never lie there again," she arose and, confronting Maggie, said: "Is it love which makes you so happy?"

"Yes, Hagar, love," answered Margaret, the deep blushes stealing over her glowing face.

"And is your intention to marry the man you love?" continued Hagar, thinking only of Henry Warner, while Margaret, thinking only of Arthur Carrollton, replied, "If he will marry me, I shall most surely marry him."

"It is enough. I must tell her," whispered Hagar; while Maggie asked, "Tell me what?"

For a moment the wild eyes fastened themselves upon her with a look of yearning anguish, and then Hagar answered slowly: "Tell you what you've often wished to know—my secret!" the last word dropping from her lips more like a warning hiss than like a human sound. It was long since Mag had teased for the secret, so absorbed had she been in other matters, but now that there was a prospect of knowing it, her curiosity was reawakened, and while her eyes glistened with expectation, she said: "Yes, tell it to me, Hagar, and then I'll tell you mine," and all over her beautiful face there shone a joyous light as she thought how Hagar, who had once pronounced Henry Warner unworthy, would rejoice in her new love.

"Not here, Maggie—not here in this room can I tell you," said old Hagar; "but out in the open air, where my breath will come more freely;" and leading the way, she hobbled to the mossy bank where Mag had sat with Arthur Carrollton on the morning of his departure for Montreal.

Here she sat down, while Maggie threw herself upon the damp ground at her feet, her face lighted with eager curiosity, and her lustrous eyes bright as stars with the excitement. For a moment Hagar bent forward, and folding her hands one above the other, laid them upon the head of the young girl as if to gather strength for what she was to say. But all in vain; for when she essayed to speak, her tongue clave to the roof of her mouth, and her lips gave forth unmeaning sounds.

"It must be something terrible to affect her so," thought Mag, and taking the bony hands between her own, she said, "I would not tell it, Hagar, I do not wish to hear."

The voice aroused the half-fainting woman, and withdrawing her hand from Maggie's grasp, she replied, "Turn away your face, Margaret Miller, so I cannot see the hatred settling over it, when I tell you what I must."

"Certainly; my back if you prefer it," answered Mag, half playfully; and turning around, she leaned her head against the feeble knees of Hagar.

"Maggie, Maggie," began the poor old woman, lingering long and lovingly over that dear name, "nineteen years ago, next December, I took upon my soul the secret sin which has worn my life away, but I did it for the love I had for you. Oh, Margaret, believe it, for the love I had for you, more than for my own ambition;" and the long fingers slid nervously over the bands of shining hair just within her reach.

At the touch of those fingers, Mag shuddered involuntarily. There was a vague, undefined terror stealing over her, and impatient to know the worst, she said, "Go on. Tell me what you did?"

"I can't—I can't—and yet I must," cried Hagar. "You were a beautiful baby, Mag, and the other one was sickly, pinched and blue. I had you both in my room the night after Hester died; and the devil—Maggie, do you know how the devil will creep into the heart and whisper, whisper till the brain is all on fire? This thing he did to me, Maggie, nineteen years ago; he whispered—whispered dreadful things, and his whisperings were of you."

"Horrible! Hagar!" exclaimed Maggie. "Leave the devil, and tell me of yourself."

"That's it," answered Hagar. "If I had but left him then, this hour would never have come to me; but I listened, and when he told me that a handsome, healthy child would be more acceptable to the Conways than a weakly, fretful one—when he said that Hagar Warren's grandchild had far better be a lady than a drudge—that no one would ever know it, for none had noticed either—I did it, Maggie Miller; I took you from the pine board cradle, where you lay—I dressed you in the other baby's clothes—I laid you on her pillow—I wrapped her in your coarse white frock—I said that she was mine, and Margaret—oh, Heaven! can't you see it? Don't you know that I, the shriveled, skinny bag, who tells you this, am your own grandmother!"

There was no need for Maggie Miller to answer that appeal. The words had burned into her soul—scorching her very life-blood and maddening her brain. It was a fearful blow—crushing her at once. She saw it all, and knew there was no hope. The family pride, at which she had often laughed, was strong within her and could not at once be rooted out. All the fond household memories, though desecrated and trampled down, were not so soon to be forgotten. She could not own that half-crazed woman for her grandmother! As Hagar talked, she had risen to her feet, and now, tall and erect as the mountain ash which grew on her native hills, she stood before her, every vestige of color faded from her face, her eyes dark as midnight and glowing like coals of living fire, while her hands, locked despairingly together, moved slowly toward Hagar, as if to thrust her away.

"Oh, speak again," she said, "but not the dreadful words you said to me just now. Tell me they are false—say that my father perished in the storm, that my mother was she who held me on her bosom when she died that I—oh, Hagar, I am not—I will not be the creature you say I am. Speak to me," she continued; "tell me, is it true?" and in her voice there was not the olden sound.

Hoarse—hollow—full of reproachful anguish it seemed, and bowing her head in very shame, old Hagar made her answer: "Would to Heaven 'twere not true—but 'tis—it is! Kill me, Maggie," she continued; "strike me dead, if you will, but take your eyes away. You must not look thus at me, a heartbroken wretch."

But not of Hagar Warren was Maggie thinking then. The past, the present, and the future were all embodied in her thoughts. She had been an intruder all her life; had ruled with a high hand people on whom she had no claim, and who, had they known her parentage, would have spurned her from them. Theo, whom she had held in her arms so oft, calling her sister and loving her as such, was hers no longer; nor yet the fond woman who had cherished her so tenderly—neither was hers, and in fancy she saw the look of scorn upon that woman's face when

KUROKI HALTS MAIN ADVANCE.

To Wait Development of Port Arthur Operations.

DELAYED AT MOTIEN PASS.

Japanese Transports Landing More Troops Between Port Adams and Port Arthur.

London, June 2.—The occupation of Dalny by the Japanese is the only really important war news. Nothing that is authentic can be reported regarding the operations against Port Arthur. The Shanghai correspondent of the Standard reports that the Russians have retreated beyond Chentschengan. It is believed that the resources of the garrison are severely taxed by the influx of the troops wounded in the recent fighting, but some of the stories from Chinese sources demand much credence.

There are no further indications of a southward movement by the Russian main army. One of the correspondents who reported the movement yesterday says that its southward advance has been checked by the Japanese cavalry occupying the main roads. Japanese cavalry is reported to have been moving in the northwest for days. There is severe skirmishing daily, and the casualties are often numerous.

It is stated that the Japanese have drawn a strong screen across the northern part of the Liao Tung peninsula from Pitsewo to Port Adams while their transports continue landing more and more troops between that line and Port Arthur.

The reports of the movements of Gen. Kuroki, commanding the first Japanese army, continue to be conflicting, but so far as can be judged it is true, as has been previously stated, that he does not intend to advance in strength until the operations against Port Arthur are successful, or at least more developed.

A story that the Japanese have occupied the Motienling Mountains is doubtful. The Standard's correspondent with the Japanese headquarters refers incidentally to Motien Pass as likely to delay for a time, although it cannot altogether prevent the Japanese advance, as the pass can be turned on either flank. He says there are no Russians within 15 miles of Feng Wang Cheng, or eastward of the Tayang River, which is 30 miles towards Sinyen.

Unconfirmable reports recur that the Japanese who are now blockading Vladivostock have thickly mined the bay under cover of the recent fogs.

Gossip is also busy with the Russian Baltic fleet, but the numerous rumored dates for its departure are not worth attention. It is stated that the line steamers recently purchased by Russia have been armored and that guns have been mounted on them.

A RARE CHANCE FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.

BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details. The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion. Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

1. Do you know that its title is free and clear?
2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic values, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless y eally are interested, because on waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9 000 feet on the vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $38 25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and limiter land. water power of 50 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary, Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

BRITAIN'S LOSS IS VERY HEAVY

Decision of House of Lords in the Winans Case Stops Tax.

OVER A MILLION DOLLARS!

The Eccentric Ship-Builder with Baltimore Interests Declared an American.

London, June 3.—His cherished plan for spindle-shaped ships, it turns out, determined the judges in the final court of appeal in the British House of Lords to declare that William L. Winans who had lived fifty years in England, died an American.

The British inland revenue office wanted to claim $1,000,000 as legacy and succession duties on the $12,000,000 estate of this eccentric man. All the lower courts had decided in favor of the British crown, but an appeal by his two sons has resulted in an irreversible decision being given by the House of Lords, by the Lord chancellor and Lord Macnaghten, the other judge, Lord Lindley, dissenting.

For forty years Mr. Winans labored to get his ships approved by Congress but in vain. He had an office in London, with a staff of engineers and draughtsmen working out the problem, and one official's sole duty was to look after the taking out of the patents which he was continually covering his designs. He spent nearly $4,000,000 in trying to bring these cigar shaped ships into use.

STIRRED UP HIGHLANDERS.

He bought a property in Baltimore called Ferry bar for the purpose of being used, as he said in a letter, "for the service of the seagoing steamers of the spindle shaped form." These vessels were to be able to cross the Atlantic without pitching or rolling and to have phenomenal speed. But, alas, even the exertions of a millionaire could not accomplish this, and with his death nothing more has been heard of the cigar-boxes.

So, although for half a century Mr Winans was resident in England, he had a splendid house in Brighton and one at London, he did not naturalize and therefore his intention to return to his native country must be held to be proved.

Certainly he stirred up the highlanders in a way no other American has done. He was the first citizen of the United States to take up deer stalking in the northern part of Scotland. He was the monarch of a bigger stretch of land than any other man except the Duke of Sutherland. He rented fully half a million acres of the most desolate country in Ross and Invernessshire. Far up in the wilds of Monar or Pait, thirty miles from anywhere, there ran over bog and dale, hill, heather or burn an eighty foot deer fence of the newest of galvanized wire. This was his way of keeping his deer from going to make sport in the neighboring country.

TOOK POT SHOTS AT DEER.

At loggerheads with all the highland lairds round about, he used to take his walks carrying a revolver, of which he was a noted exponent. It cost him a fortune a year for the rent alone of the barren wilderness. The lodge of Alfaric cost him many thousand dollars and he upheld for years an army of ghillies and foresters, stalkers, coachmen and indoor and outdoor servants.

On fine days he was carried on a pony up the mountain to some snug cornie, where he sat, gun in hand, with luncheon laid out close by. The keepers drove the deer past him and he took pot shots. He said it was better than sneaking up behind a deer and shooting him at his breakfast.

Every deer he shot cost him about $5,000.

Even after he ceased to visit Scotland he kept the large deer forest in hand.

VIOLENT SCENE IN COURT

Man Accused of Fraudulently Claiming a Body at Iroquois Fire.

Chicago, June 3.—Choking and gagging, and with eyes rolling, John Mahnken, accused of fraudulently identifying the body of Mrs. Frank R. Greenwald, an Iroquois fire victim, in order to steal her money, suddenly jumped to his feet in Judge Clifford's court room yesterday and pointed frantically at an imaginary spectre which he thought stood confronting him. While the spectators looked on in terror the man frothed at the lips and waved his arms wildly. He was overpowered and thrown to the floor, where it took half a dozen police officers to hold him. Paroxysm after paroxysm shook him and he had to be manacled and taken into an anteroom.

When quiet was finally restored Mahnken's lawyer decided to let the case go to the jury without argument. Almost immediately the twelve men filed back and the foreman announced the verdict of "guilty." If the insanity was feigned it failed to move the jury.

The technical charge against Mahnken was perjury, and it was proved that he had taken the body of Mrs. Greenwald from a morgue and had it buried as his aunt. The motive was to gain possession of the $400 found on the body.

Water Supply for G.T.R.

The water supply for the engines of the Grand Trunk has given the officials of that road much cause for consideration, not only in Guelph, but in Stratford and other places. They have now decided that they can pump their own water at a much lower expense in Guelph than the present cost. The result of their deliberations is that they will build a large and up to date pump house at Guelph Junction capable of supplying sufficient water for the large Mogul engines which will be placed on the route.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,800 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 225 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

ENDOWMENTS AT LIFE RATES

HOW do the rates compare with those of other companies?

The rates are the same as the principal Canadian Companies charge for "Whole Life" and "Twenty Payment Life" policies

WHERE can these policies be secured?

From any agent of the LONDON LIFE.

WHEN do these policies become endowments and are the endowments guaranteed or estimated?

The policies mature as endowments at about expectation of life and are absolutely guaranteed.

WHAT kind of settlement does the LONDON LIFE give at the end of twenty years?

FIVE OPTIONS or methods of settlement are offered at the end of twenty years.

The guaranteed cash surrender is the largest in Canada for the premium paid.

WHAT options are given policy holders in case of lapse or surrender

The policy holder may select one of four options.

1st. PAID UP INSURANCE for reduced amounts payable as endowments at maturity period.

2nd. EXTENDED INSURANCE for a fixed number of years and months for full amount of policy less premiums and interest thereon unpaid.

3rd. CASH LOANS.

4th. CASH SURRENDER VALUES.

WHAT THEN?

Air Carries Healing Medicine

THAT CURES COLDS, CATARRH AND DISEASES OF THE THROAT LUNGS AND BRONCHIAL TUBES

About the healing power of the air of the pine woods everybody knows, but to supply it in the form of medicine seemed almost beyond realization. After many years of careful study a scientific remedy now known as Catarrhozone has been produced which enables the sufferer to breathe into his lungs all the healing properties of the balsamic pine woods air. This marvellous remedy has conquered catarrh. It unquestionably does cure it permanently.

You cannot fail to be cured by Catarrhozone, because it reaches and destroys the cause of the disease. You simply inhale the antiseptic vapor. It instantly spreads to every part of the breathing organs. The microorganisms infecting the diseased tissues of your nose, throat and lungs die instantly. There is nothing left to cause inflammation. Any spots that are raw and sore are quickly healed by Catarrhozone and you are soon completely cured.

It is impossible to breathe through a Catarrhozone inhaler without at once feeling better. Your head is cleared of mucous discharge, your nostrils are cleansed of all putrid matter, the phlegm is removed from your throat. Every trace of catarrh is searched out of the system by Catarrhozone, which thoroughly disinfects and purifies every organ of the body.

Catarrhozone is the only natural remedy for catarrh. It cures by cleansing and purifying all diseased tissues, not by deadening the stomach by drugs. It is a clean, simple and satisfactory remedy that is endorsed by the clergy, and universally prescribed by the medical profession because it is scientific and absolutely certain to effect lasting cures.

Don't be misled into accepting a substitute for Catarrhozone, which alone can cure thoroughly. It is so powerfully healing that colds disappear in an hour, coughs in two hours and even chronic catarrh in a comparatively short time. Two months' treatment $1, sample size 25c. At druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

Favors Port Hope

Mr. J. A. Culverwell, of Peterborough, was in Bowmanville last week and addressed a public meeting of the citizens on the subject of the Lake Ontario terminus of the Trent Valley Canal. He so impressed the people present that a resolution in favor of Port Hope was unanimously passed.

At Stony Lake

The summer season at Stony Lake has opened and already a large number of people are visiting there and enjoying the beauties of the lake. A number of the cottages were occupied for the 24th. The water is still quite high and some of the cottages and wharves are still submerged. A new wharf has been built at McCracken's Landing and is a great improvement over the old structure. The new steamer "Stony Lake" will be ready for launching between June 15 and Dominion Day.

BREEZY LOCAL BREVITIES.

By The Times Reporters on Their Daily Rounds

—The Finance Committee met last night.

—There were no cases before the police magistrate yesterday.

—The close season for bass and maskinonge in Rice Lake ended on Tuesday last.

—The Rev. G. N. Clegg will address the Gospel meeting at the Y.W.C.A. tomorrow afternoon. A good attendance is requested.

—Militia orders state that the Queen's African war medals for the Scottish Horse and 2nd Canadian Mounted Rifles will shortly be ready for issue.

—Quite a respectable crowd came in on the excursion from Belleville, Brighton and other places along the Grand Trunk line yesterday morning. They leave on the 9.15 train in the evening.

—Port Hope Times: The water in Lake Ontario last Thursday evening rose fully fifteen inches and after a few minutes receded. It is a rare thing to see the water rise and fall at this port.

—If blight or frost does not make its appearance, and there is no likelihood of the latter at this advanced date the strawberry crop will be satisfactory, as the blossoms are numerous and the berry is beginning to form.

—Owners of dogs, who have failed to secure tags, are being looked after. Yesterday morning there were more informations laid and parties who keep canines would do well to provide themselves with the necessary safeguards in this matter.

—Cobourg Sentinel-Star: Some anglers in fishing at the harbor the past week have caught black bass of a good size. It is strange to see this fish here, but it is said they are the outcome of spawn placed in the lake some time ago before the dams were broken away.

—The delegates and many of their friends attending the Bay of Quinte Conference, being held in the George Street Church, had a group photo taken yesterday at noon by Mr. Geo. E. Whitten. The picture was finished and placed in the show case by four o'clock in the afternoon.

—The first of the weekly band concerts took place in Victoria Park last night. Many excellent selections being rendered. The attendance was very large and all present seemed to appreciate the programme given. Peterborough citizens have good reason to be proud of their band, as well as the regiment to which it belongs.

—Port Hope is up against a police problem. Chief Douglas has resigned after 21 years of service but for what reason we are not told. The people wish him to stay, but a number who are willing to have cheap things, even if no good, are willing to let him go. He is getting $550 and it is believed that one can be had for $450. This is economy with a vengeance.

—The town of Barrie will in future get along without billiards, the council of that town having decided to do away with the game. The main reason given for the action is that boys of twelve years and under were permitted to gather in the billiard rooms and watch the games. One alderman remarked that "the hotel pool rooms served no good purpose, their tendency being wholly evil." The abolition of the bylaw was voted unanimously.

In the notice of regimental orders issued on Thursday evening, the annual inspection of the 57th Regiment will take place next week, Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 being ordered to parade for that purpose on Wednesday evening and Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8 on Thursday evening. Lieut.-Col. Hemming officiating in the company inspections which is preparatory to the whole regiment being inspected by Colonel Rubsan of Kingston. It is not settled yet as to what form the inspection will take place this year but it is very likely that Armour's Hill will again be the scene of the operation.

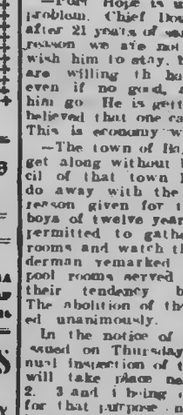
ONE LUNG

May be gone and yet the remaining lung will be amply sufficient to sustain a vigorous vitality. As a general thing few people make more use of both lungs than is equivalent to a healthy use of one lung.

These facts are all in the favor of the man or woman with weak lungs, even when disease has a strong grip on them.



Many a person living in health to-day has the lungs marked by the healed scars of disease.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes weak lungs strong. It cures obstinate, deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, bleeding lungs and other conditions, which, if neglected or unskilfully treated, find a fatal termination in consumption.

"I had been troubled with lung disease and pleurisy for a number of years and the trouble had almost become chronic," writes A. B. Blair, of Mayo, Ky. "Had several kinds of medicine from different physicians without much benefit. At last wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce and got his advice, and began using his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I have used twenty-five bottles. When I commenced taking it I had no appetite, my system was completely run-down, had no ambition to do anything. Now I feel better than I did before I got sick. Have a good appetite and am able to do my work. I gladly recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to all who are afflicted as I was."

Those who suffer from chronic diseases are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets assist the action of the "Discovery."

Successful Home Treatment.

Dr. Hartman's Cure for Female Diseases—A Generous Offer to Women.

Invalid Women are Applying by Thousands for Dr. Hartman's Free Home Treatment by Letter.

MRS. J. P. COADY, Treasurer of the Ivy Leaf Club, 1,702 6th Avenue, Council Bluffs, Iowa, writes:

"Peruna is no experimental medicine. I have used it off and on now for three years. At that time I was cured of irregular and painful menstruation. Since that time I have taken it for indigestion or whenever I felt overworked and in need of a tonic, and I have always found that it was of great benefit to me. I am therefore pleased and happy to say a word in its praise and shall gladly indorse it to my friends."—Mrs. J. P. Coady.

Miss Hattie Grace, 254 West 40th St., New York, writes:

"Peruna has changed me from a fretful, irritable, nervous woman into a healthy and a happy one. Nothing seems to worry and to fret me any more. Since early womanhood I suffered with bearing down pains and nervousness. I was thin and worried, but Peruna restored me. Those who knew me before cannot understand the change, but I can sum it all up in the blessed word, Peruna."—Hattie Grace.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ferguson, No. 1,161st St., Brooklyn, N. Y., President West Brooklyn Audubon Society, writes:

"I am pleased to tell what a blessing Peruna has been to me. Several years ago my constitution seemed broken down and I cared little whether I lived or died. I had taken so much medicine that the sight of a bottle made me sick. I had read about Peruna curing women, and I thought perhaps it would help me. I bought a bottle and before it was finished I felt better. I kept on taking it, and after three months' faithful use I was a well woman and able to do the work and undergo the strain of younger days."—Elizabeth Ferguson.

In view of the great multitude of women suffering from some form of female disease and yet unable to find any cure, Dr. Hartman, the renowned gynecologist, has announced his willingness to direct the treatment of as many cases as make application to him during the summer months without charge.

The treatment will be conducted by correspondence. The doctor will prescribe all medicines, applications, hygienic and dietary regulations necessary to complete a cure. The medicines prescribed can be obtained at all drug stores. This offer will hold good only during the summer months. Any woman can become a regular patient by sending a written statement of her age, condition of life, history and symptoms of her derangements.

All cases of female diseases, including menstrual irregularities, displacements, ulcerations, inflammations, discharges, irritation of the ovaries, tumors and dropsy of the abdomen, should apply at once and become registered as regular patients. All correspondence will be held strictly confidential.

As is well known, Dr. Hartman is the president of The Hartman Sanitarium, an institution which has a department devoted exclusively to the treatment of female diseases. He is thus brought to see thousands of such cases every year, the most of whom return to their homes to be treated by correspondence. The principal remedy he relies upon in such cases is Peruna, which every woman should have who has any affection of this kind. Those wishing to become patients should address Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

No one knows better than Dr. Hartman how much the women suffer with diseases peculiar to their sex. No one knows better than he does how many of them suffer with such diseases. Patiently, hopefully, wearily, and often silently, they eke out a miserable existence, year after year.

No martyr in poetry or heroine in romance makes a more touching appeal to human sympathy than the woman burdened with the cares of a family trying to carry the extra load of some tormenting and ever present female disease.

Dr. Hartman's sympathy for such is unbounded, and his willingness to help them limited only to his power.

NOTICE.

Take notice that the council of the Town of Peterborough, after a copy of this notice has been posted up for one month in six of the most public places in the immediate neighborhood of that part of Wolfe Street hereinafter mentioned and and published weekly for four successive weeks in the Morning Times newspaper, intends to pass a by-law for stopping up that part of Wolfe Street, in the Town of Peterborough, lying between the east side of George Street and the west side of the Reserve, along the bank of the River Otonabee, and exchanging the same when so stopped up for a new street in lieu thereof, running from George Street to the said Reserve immediately south of the tracks of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

And take notice that the said Council will, at the meeting to be held on the 4th day of July, 1904, hear any person or by counsel anyone whose land may be prejudicially affected thereby and who petitions to be heard.

She was well known and highly respected among her playmates, who feel the loss keenly. The funeral takes place from the above address this afternoon at 2.30 to the Little Lake cemetery.

Date Not Yet Decided

The Times is daily in receipt of inquiries as to the date of the formal opening of the lift lock, mostly from out of town readers. Enquiry at the Superintending Engineer's office brought forth the statement tha the date had not yet been fixed, but the opening would probably be announced in a few days.

JAPANESE GIVE RUSSIAN FORCES ANOTHER SLAP

Generally Admitted That Rumors of Fighting on Liao Jng Penisula are True

Tokio, June 5.—A body of Japanese encountered and defeated a mixed force of Russian cavalry, infantry and artillery near Lichiaton, nine miles north of Polandien on Monday last, May 30. The engagement began at 1230 p.m. and lasted for two hours, the Russian troops finally being driven northward. The Japanese had one officer and twenty-five men killed and four officers and thirty-three men wounded. The Russian losses are unknown. The movement of the Russian forces southward indicates a possible effort to relieve Port Arthur.

The fighting reported from Tokio, as having occurred "near Lichiaton, nine miles north of Polandien, on Monday last," is evidently identical with the engagement reported from Liaoyang, May 30, by a correspondent of the Associated Press, as having occurred at Vengenfuchi (possibly near Wafangtien), which is about nine miles north of Polandien on the Liaotung peninsula. It was in this engagement that the Cossacks under Gen. Samsonoff were reported to have annihilated a squadron of Japanese. The Japanese were commanded by Gen. Akkuiama.

FIGHTING GENERAL.

Mukden, June 5.—For two days past rumors have been current of severe fighting on the Liaotung Peninsula. Details are lacking, but the fact that the fighting has been general throughout the peninsula is officially admitted.

TAKE VAFANGOW TODAY.

Vafangow, June 4.—A continuation of the fighting was expected here today, but the Japanese did not appear in force. A reconnoitering party, however, exchanged shots with the enemy's scouts, and the latter were driven off, leaving two men dead on the field. Tomorrow probably determine whether the Japanese are strong enough to take Vafangow.

AS A SCREEN.

Kaichou, June 4.—The Japanese have moved a division up to Polandien as a screen for their operations on the Kwantung Peninsula, and also to arrest a possible Russian advance intended to interfere with the siege operations.

RUSSIANS ADVANCE.

Seoul, June 4.—The Japanese consul at Gensan reports a Russian advances on Koyuen, twenty-two miles north of Gensan. Their commissariat has arrived at Pukcheng.

WHERE KUROKI IS.

Liaoyang, June 4.—Gen. Kuroki's outposts now hold the line at Liaojudzi, Seliudjan and Chanlidzy. The Japanese forces disembarking at Takushan have reached Ulaossa. A division of the guards forms the connecting link between Ulaossa and Fengwangcheng. The Japanese landings at Pitsewo continue.

YAMAGATA HEAD.

London, June 5.—A despatch from Tokio to the Daily Express says that Field Marshall Yamagata has been appointed commander-in-chief of all the forces in the field. He is expected to proceed to the Liaotung district shortly.

NO LIGHT ON KUROPATKIN.

London, June 5.—No further light has been thrown on the mysterious rumor concerning Gen. Kuropatkins intentions. Despatches to the Morning Post from Shanghai and to the Chronicle from Newchwang repeat the reports of the movement of 15,000 Russians to Kaijing. The correspondents assert that five days' fighting took place at Wafangtien, and that the Russians are employing 4000 carts to remove munitions from Liaoyang to Kaiyuen, 70 miles north of Mukden.

The Morning Post's Shanghai correspondent also says that Gen. Mistchenko has sent 4000 cavalry of the Imperial Guard from Kuangchengtsu to cut off the Japanese at Pitsewo. No great reliance, however, should be placed on these despatches, which evidently have some common origin.

The same correspondent adds that the Russian squadron attempted a sortie, but was forced to turn, being threatened by the Japanese fleet.

HON. MR. STRATTON PRAISED

Rev. Dr. Chown Has Kind Words for the Provincial Secretary

At the London Methodist conference, Rev. Dr Chown, secretary of the department of social and moral reform, credited the Provincial Secretary's Department with an improved enforcement of the liquor law.

"The Department of the Provincial Secretary," said Dr. Chown, "has been true to our interests." The licenses branch of the Government was now administered in such a way as to give cold comfort to the liquor men. He had been consulted in regard to the appointment of some inspectors. He was confident no liquor would be sold in Toronto Junction, and believed the liquor men had given up hope there.

JAPS NOW CLOSE TO PORT ARTHUR.

Have Occupied First Line of Fortifications.

FEEBLE RESISTANCE SHOWN

Reports from Various Quarters of Heavy Cannonading in Vicinity of Beleaguered Fortress.

Rome, June 4.—A Tokio despatch to the Girnale d'Italia says that the Japanese have occupied the first line of the outer fortifications of Port Arthur after a feeble resistance.

The correspondent at Tokio of the News Agency Liberas says that four divisions of Japanese troops have occupied Kwantung Heights, on which they have placed heavy artillery, dominating Port Arthur.

OFFERS TO CAPITULATE ?

London, June 4.—The Tokio correspondent of the Standard says that a rumor is circulating principally in foreign circles, than Gen. Stoessel, the commander of the Port Arthur garrison, has proposed to surrender on condition that the garrison be permitted to march out with their arms and go to New Chwang. Among those who are well informed the story is discredited.

THE DEATH ROLL OF NANSHAN HILL

Japs Lost 744 Killed and 3,473 Wounded.

THIRTY-ONE OFFICERS SLAIN

Over One Hundred Officers, Including One Colonel, and a Major Among the Victims.

Tokio, June 4.—The total of the Japanese casualties at the Battle of Nanshan Hill, on May 26, is 4,304. They are divided as follows:

Thirty-one officers, including one major and five sergeant-majors, and 713 non-commissioned officers and men killed; 100 officers, including one colonel, one major, and twelve sergeant-majors, and 3460 non-commissioned officers and men wounded.

St. Petersburg, June 4. — Lieut.-Gen. Zelinsky, chief of staff to Gen. Kouropatkin, transmits to the Minister of War, under the date of June 2, a report of Gen. Stoessel, dated Port Arthur, May 28, as follows:

"After a fierce battle lasting two days, I ordered my position at Kinchau to be evacuated in the evening, for we had opposed to us at least three divisions, with 120 guns.

The enemy's fire, particularly that from our gunboats and six torpedo boats, completely annihilated our batteries mounted at Kinchau. The Fifth Regiment, which was posted on this spot, stood their ground heroically. The fire of this regiment, as well as that of the batteries and the gunboat Bobr, off Khoumouenga, inflicted enormous losses on the Japanese.

"Our losses amounted to 30 officers and 800 men killed or wounded. We blew up or damaged all our guns which the guns had not put out of action.

"It would have been inexpedient, certainly to bring us siege artillery during the fierce fighting.

"The battle May 26 began at 5 a.m and lasted until 8 p.m., when I ordered the position evacuated gradually. The exploding of our mines and fougadles was rendered impossible because the Japanese turned our position immediately. The Japanese advanced through water up to their waists under the protection of their ships.

"The spirit of our troops is excellent."

THE WEDGE DRIVEN HOME.

Seeing the failure of this attack, the gunboats and supporting artillery concentrated their whole fire upon one point where General Oku was determined to drive home his wedge, and by evening the works were practicable for a general who had such infantry as the Japanese and was prepared to take the responsibility for such fearful losses. It would seem as if the actual carrying of the works had been another Alma. One work gave way after waiting for the bayonet attack, and then the whole of the Russian works went over to the side of the Japanese, the Russians retiring before them.

RUSSIA'S AWFUL PLIGHT

The Terrible Perdicament of Kuropatkin Graphically Described

London, June 6.—Gen Kuropatkin's predicament elicits the professional sympathy of the British soldiers, who say that he is between the upper and nether millstones of obvious strategic wisdom and equally obvious political expediency. The following language of Die Reichswehr, a Russophile military organ of Vienna, is quoted as happily describing the position of the Czar's comander-in-chief. "He cannot advance, he ought to retreat, he cannot stand still." It is known in court circles that the highest persons in the Czar's confidence are urging Kuropatkin to strike.

Ex-Count Hayashi, the Japanese Minister to Great Britain, foresaw such a contingency months ago and Japanese statesmen and strategists are awaiting the result. Nothing would please them so much as to see the Russians advancing to the relief of Port Arthur. They held that the Czar by grasping the shadow of prestige, would forfeit the substance of power. The magnitude of such a disaster as losing the fortress with its ships, sailors, soldiers, mechanics, guns, ammunition and stores especially with its capacity to affect the imagination of the world is fully realized by the Japanese. They say, however, that it were better to lose all this than to lose it plus the Russian army in Manchuria.

It is possible that the magnificent drama about to be enacted at Port Arthur will be a naval battle. Nobody in this city is able to say that the Czar has actually commanded the imprisoned fleet to fight as the last resort, but the report is considered probable, and it is thought that the Russian admiral would have chosen such a course, provided the fair way of the harbor is unlocked. The condition of the fair way is doubtful. Light craft pass in and out, but no large vessels are known to have reached the roadstead recently. A fighting admiral would doubtless relish an engagement with the Russian ships on blue water, but as a prudent defender of the life of Japan he is expected to make still further efforts to insure the bottling of the enemy's fleet before the danger of from the land side drives it in desperation to the open sea. Should the court party at St. Petersburg induce the Czar to send Kuropatkin against the besieging army at Port Arthur the completeness of Japanese preparations for dealing with such a movement would speedily appear. It is thought the Russians could adopt no surer plan for involving their cause in quick, overwhelming calamity. The highest military men believe that if Kuropatkin had on his own account harbored any such intentions he would have acted while the Japanese dispositions were meagre and incomplete.

BATTERIES ANNIHILATED.

General Stoessel Tells the Story of the Kinchau Fight.

JAP BATTALIONS ANNIHILATED.

About midday, when the energy of the Russian defenders in the works in front of Kinchau village seemed to be exhausted by the gunboat fire which had driven the gunners from their places two Japanese battalions appeared over the saddle between the twin peaks. They were to make a desperate effort to carry the nearest Russian works. At first the struggling walls of Manchiaying gave them some cover, under which they had a moment's breathing space. Then the gallant little infantrymen crossed on again up the breast of the slopes of the Russian position. It was an impossible task, as the defenders were not sufficiently shaken. An avalanche of concentrated fire from the infantry in the trenches, machine guns in the Russian works and the quick firing field artillery supporting the defences, struck the Japanese. They melted away from this glacis like solder before a blow flame. A few who seemed to have charmed lives struggled on till they reached the wire entanglements. It was a vain, if heroic, effort, for within fifteen minutes these two battalions had ceased to exist except as a trail of mutilated bodies at the foot of the Russian glacis.

NEWS FROM THE OLD LAND.

The Frauds on Emigrants--Stealing Our Pottery Trade

London, June 4.—The Lancet says "The people of Ontario having determined to be temperate have step by step, and act by act attained a very substantial measure of success without seriously deranging the machinery of commercial prosperity. England is moving in the same direction but more slowly."

THE FRAUDS ON EMIGRANTS.

London, June 4.—The man named Williams, wanted for frauds on intending emigrants to Canada, has been arrested. He claims to come from Winnipeg. Mr. Charles Davis, M.P., will ask the Home Secretary in the House of Commons what steps he can take to protect the British emigrating public against rapidly increasing frauds.

AFTER OUR POTTERY TRADE.

London, June 4.—The chairman of the Staffordshire Chamber of Commerce has received a letter from the Duke of Sutherland stating that the present is a very good time for English potteries to make a special effort to capture the Canadian pottery trade. He says that no good pottery is manufactured in Canada most of that used coming from Belgium and France.

TO WELCOME OUR BOWLERS.

London, June 4.—The representatives of the Bowling League of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales have planned to give the Canadians an enthusiastic welcome on landing. Mr. C. J. Just, of the Canadian emigration offices, will represent Lord Strathcona. The Lake Manitoba is expected on Sunday.

THE PALMA TROPY MESS.

London, June 4.—With reference to the statement made yesterday by Gen Bird W. Spencer, president of the National Rifle Association, that the committee of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain had carefully considered the matter of the American special rifles and had agreed to their use, it is pointed out here that the reply of Col. C. R. Crosse, secretary of the National Rifle Association of Great Britain, on April 13 to General Spencer's letter containing similar statements absolutely denied that the question of the American barrels was ever brought before the council or committee of his association at or before the Bisley meeting.

THE ANGLO-RUSSIAN TREATY.

St. Petersburg, June 4—It is authoritatively stated that no negotiations have yet begun looking to a new commercial treaty between Russia and Great Britain. The negotiations for a treaty to allow firms in the United States and Russia to sue in the courts of Russia and the United States respectively have been completed and the treaty probably will be signed by the Foreign Minister, Count Lamsdorff and Ambassador McCormick in a few days. Under the existing Russian law United States corporations can be sued but cannot sue in the courts of the empire.

EMIGRATION FROM AUSTRALIA

London, June 4.—Owing to the depression in New South Wales and dissatisfaction with the working of the Arbitration Court, small capitalists and thrifty, well-to-do men are abandoning their property in Sydney and leaving by twos and threes on every boat for Canada and the United States.

CANADA IS STILL DIFFIDENT.

London, June 4.—Hon. Alfred Lyttelton, Colonial Secretary, replying to Mr Devlin's question as to whether Canada had been asked to contribute to the Imperial navy, said there was no record of any communication on the subject since the Colonial Conference.

BIG BATTLE PROGRESSING AT PORT ARTHUR

First Line of Outer Fortifications Occupied by the Japanese.

Chefoo, June 4.—Steamers which have arrived here from Newchwang report that firing in the vicinity of Port Arthur was heard last night. They saw only two Japanese cruisers. Chinese junks which have reached this port from the Cha River, west of Takushan, report that the Japanese have captured two Russian officers and forty soldiers disguised as Japanese.

Liaoyang, June 4.—There are persistent rumors that another great battle is in progress near Port Arthur. Continuous cannonading has been heard from the south. An additional force of 15,000 Japanese is reported to have landed at Takushan.

POLICE COURT CASES

Drunk and Disorderlies from the 5th Ward Fined

Saturday morning there were two young men before the Magistrate, and another man from the 5th Ward present, the latter for drunkenness and refusing to support his wife.

The former pleaded guilty and were fined $2.00 each; the latter appeared very penitent and said he would drink no more. He was locked up until 11 o'clock, when he was let go.

A dog tax case was settled out of court.

ARRESTED FOR FORGERY

F. Munro Raised a Note on the Dickson Company

Chief of Police Ruzzel received a letter on Wednesday from Mr. John Kennedy, the constable for Gooderham saying a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Peter Munro, on a charge of forgery. Munro, it is said, raised an order on the Dickson Co., and it was sold by John S. McCabe. Friday afternoon Constable McGinty came across Munro and arrested him. Constable Kennedy was informed by telegraph, and he asked to have the prisoner at the G.T.R. depot to meet the 11.35 train for Toronto.

Munro is about 30 years of age and is said to be quite intelligent looking. Prisoner had a free ride to Toronto on Saturday.

OLD TIME PRINTERS

Men Who Worked at the Business Over 50 Years

A few days ago Mr. Wilson, while looking over some old files of the Port Hope Guide, ran across a copy of the paper printed in 1853, containing a report of the death of the Duke of Wellington, which occurred in that year. He preserved the paper, and while talking of the death of the "Iron Duke" to one of his men at work in the office, was surprised to hear him say that he had set up the type of the article. Another printer, also an employee, said he "rolled" the forms when the paper containing the article was being printed on the old hand press. Both men are still doing business at the old stand, and, like the veteran proprietor, who is in his 80's, (but who looks like a youth of 60) would seem to be good for several years to come.

DR. MOFFAT DEAD

Deceased was a Prominent Citizen of Norwood

The many friends of Dr. Moffat, of Norwood, will learn with regret that he passed away on Saturday morning, at the age of 46 years. He had been ill since February last. The doctor practiced for some time in Norwood, and conducted a drug store as well. He was a man of many good parts. He was District Deputy Grand Master of the Masonic Order.

The funeral will be held this afternoon at two o'clock, when it is expected that the Most Worshipful Grand Master J. E. Harding, of London, will be present. Dr. Moffat is survived by a wife, one son and one daughter. The doctor was well known in and around Peterborough.

AMERICAN VISITORS HERE

Looking Into a Mine, the Star of the East, in Frontenac County

Several American visitors from Pittsburg, Pa., have been in town lately looking into the merits of a good mine, which is situated in Frontenac County. By all accounts it is a good one—or so at least the parties already interested in it think it. There are already some seven gentlemen here in connection with this mine and the opinion seemes to gain ground that it is no ordinary piece of property, some assays placing the amount of gold as high in value as $153,500 to the ton, and other samples from three lots of ore is given as $97.80 per ton. These are favorable showings certainly, and indicate that the mine is a good one. These tests are said to have been made at the Pittsburg Laboratory.

Mr. Smith, who arrived here a few days ago, and who was named in The Times, has already succeeded in disposing of some 70,000 shares of stock, in addition to his own holdings. The party are now visiting the mine and will spend a few days making investigation. The head office of the company will be located in Peterborough, and everything at present seems to indicate that operations will be carried on a big scale. So far the English company operating near Marmora has been doing well—as evidenced by the improvements made lately—and Frontenac has been generally looked upon as the better county of the two. There is no doubt, according to the assays made, but these gentlemen have got hold of a piece of property which will be heard from in the near future, if operations are pushed forward. The gentlemen now here are Messrs. Smith, Thumm, Admutz, Smelts, Schurtzel, C. Admutz, W. Hendrickson and Otto Admutz, all of Pittsburg.

A PETERBOROUGH BOY'S SUCCESS

Mr. M. T. Ostrom, Managing Director of Large Insurance Company

The many friends in Peterborough of Mr. M. T. Ostrom will be pleased to learn that he has about completed the organization of the Monarch Insurance Company. The act of incorporation has passed through the House of Commons, and is now awaiting the approval of the senate. In the meantime the company has fitted up elaborate offices in the Queen City Chambers on Church street, Toronto, and is ready to commence business as soon as its charter arrives.

The applicants for the charter are: Messrs. D. A. Gordon, capitalist, of Wallaceburg, Ont.; William Scott, principal of the Normal School, Toronto; George Stephenson, manager of the Anglo-Canadian Steel & Iron Company, Toronto; Edward D. Brown, managing director of the Dominion Brewing & Malting Company; D. W. Livingston, publisher, Toronto, Thomas H. Brown, Toronto; and Marshall F. Ostrom, Toronto. These parties have already associated with them a number of other prominent men, including James Cochrane, M.P.P., ex-Mayor of Montreal; Matthew Wilson, K.C., Chatham; Charles Hart, of Hart & Turkwell, Montreal; Alex. C. Hutchinson, Montreal; C. A. Duclos, K.C., Montreal; Henry Hamilton, president H. & C. Hamilton & Co., Montreal; T. P. Coffee, managing director the Trusts & Guarantee Co., Toronto, and Dr. G. P. Sylvester, Toronto.

The above-named gentlemen constitute the provisional Board of Directors. The authorized capital stock of the company is $2,000,000, a part of which will be sold to the public. Special features relating to the company have been set out in a prospectus that has just been issued.

Mr. Ostrom is an old Peterborough boy, and his success will be gratifying to very many of his friends in Peterborough.

—Sprinkle, sprinkle, water cart, what a source of joy thou art! How I love to see the spray, making puddles all the way.

—Here is a prospect that is almost heartbreaking. It is well-known that nature has a way of evening up things, and at the end of each year the temperature averages about the same. Now there is a shortage of 333 degrees of heat since January 1st. All these degrees will have to be added this summer to make the books balance.

—A local doctor tells this story on himself: After writing a prescription for a patient, the physician told him that the druggist would probably charge him 60 cents for filling it. Then the patient asked the physician to lend him the 60 cents. Thereupon the physician carefully scratched out a part of the prescription and handed it back with 10 cents, remarking: "You can get that filled for a dime. What I scratched out was for your nerves, but you need nothing for them."

—Lakefield is going into the construction of granolithic sidewalks.

LINDSAY WEDDING

The Young Couples and Their Family well Known in Peterborough

The marriage of Mr. Wm. Boyd Irwin and Miss Kathleen Rose Dunsford was solemnized in St. Paul's church, Lindsay, on Wednesday, by Rural Dean H. C. Marsh, rector. The bride's gown was of champagne silk voile trimmed with heavy flowers applique, and she carried a shower of handsome tea roses. Instead of the usual bridal veil, she wore a very becoming chiffon hat, trimmed with champagne silk. Miss Mary Dunsford, youngest sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miss B. Belcher, bridesmaid, both wearing dainty pale green gowns, trimmed with applique and carrying bouquets of pink roses. The groomsmen were Mr. Jarvis, of the Bank of Commerce, Peterborough, and Mr. Bonnell, Bobcaygeon. Messrs. Cust and Mowson Boyd, jun., and Mr. Logie, of Bobcaygeon, ushered the numerous guests into the church. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother. Mr. and Mrs. Irwin left for the west, the bride going away in a gown of grey French tweed, with hat to match. Among the invited guests were Mr. J. C. Belcher, Mrs. Martin Dunsford, Mrs. George Dunsford, Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Belcher, the Misses Belcher, Mrs. Hammond and Mrs. Irwin, of Peterborough. — Toronto Globe.

method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have despaired that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but liberates all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him, and if he accepts your case for treatment it is equivalent to a cure, as he does not undertake any case unless he feels sure he can cure. He does accept incurable cases for treatment; and, remember, if he does accept your case you may pay when you are cured. He sends the method, as well as his booklet on the subject, explaining the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free. Address him simply

LOSSES IN BATTLE.

The statement that a loss of 3,000 killed and wounded was sustained by the Japanese during the five days' fighting which culminated with the rushing of Nan Shan hill, is calculated at first thought to appal, but compared with losses in desperately contested battles of the past, gives only an impression that not very large numbers were engaged, says the Ottawa Journal. The comparatively light death list of the South African campaign due to the extreme regard of the commanders for the lives of the men and the open style of fighting which prevailed, has probably been responsible for the feelings of dismay with which the average person has heard of the Japanese loss. The total number killed on both sides during the three years' duration of the South African war, including those who died from wounds was far less than 18,000. Yet there were several engagements, each of which was as bloody as the recent operations around Kin Chau. At Colenso over a thousand British were killed and 2,000 wounded. At Spion Kop the losses though not actually so large were as large relatively to the numbers engaged.

But none of the South African battles nor any of the Japo-Russian battles so far can compare in proportionate death lists to the fatalities in notable battles of even the more recent previous campaigns, and certainly not to those of campaigns of the more distant past. History shows that despite the deadliness of modern weapons the casualties of modern battles are not anything as great as was prophesied.

Between 1860 and 1870 there were two campaigns the losses in which made the Boer war look like child's play. In the American civil war the number killed in battle, apart from the number who died from wounds was over 67,000. Over 43,000 died from wounds. In two of the battles of this war the losses were fearful. At Antietam the Federals had 12,000 killed and wounded, while the fatalities of the Confederates were variously estimated from 9,000 to 25,000. At Gettysburg the Federals had 2,834 killed and 13,709 wounded, a total of nearly 17,000, while the Confederates lost 30,000. In this battle, Pickett's division of Southerners, 15,000 strong, which came up fresh on the night of the second day of the fight, was almost completely wiped out inside of a few hours.

In the Franco-Russian war of 1870 the battle of Gravellotte, near Metz, witnessed the sudden destruction of between 5,000 and 6,000 of the finest reserves of the German army, all married men, whom Von Moltke sent forward in a desperate effort to carry the day. He said, "The married men will win or will not come back." Very few of them returned.

The farther back one goes into history, and the more crude the arms employed, the greater we find the losses.

After the battle of Waterloo over 50,000 dead and wounded strewed the field. These figures included the French killed in the rout. The Allies lost over 22,000 killed and wounded, the French over 35,000. In the battle of Talavera in the Peninsular war in Spain, in 1809, the British and Spanish allies in two days' fighting lost 6,268 killed and wounded. At Vittoria, in the campaign, the allies in two days' fighting lost over 6,000. In both cases the French loss was greater. At Alma in the Crimean campaign, the British and French allies lost 3,400 killed and wounded. At Inkerman the Russians are believed to have lost over 15,000 men.

Going back to more remote—and perhaps less trustworthy—narrations of battle, one is told that in the battle of Bannockburn, when the Scots under Bruce routed the English, under Edward II., the English are stated to have left 30,000 common soldiers, 200 knights and 900 squires on the field, killed and wounded. In 1346 the famous Edward III. crossed over into France and the battle of Crecy was fought. Thirty thousand French soldiers and 1,200 gallfried knights are stated to have been killed.

It is dangerous to accept as reliable the figures of losses which come down to us from very ancient dates, but if we believe all we read about the havoc wrought by the ancient Romans, by the Huns and by the Goths, not to speak of the conquering hordes which at the heels of ancient Asiatic or Egyptian satraps in days long gone by overran north-western Asia and northern Africa, the weeping, widows and children must have been far more numerous than in these present days of warfare under the rules of the Hague conference.

As instances of the awful figures handed down to us, it is told that Sulla, that gentle Roman dictator, who was famous about 80 B.C., and who made his name a terror in history by the punishment meted out to his enemies, killed over 300,000 in the various battles he fought before he comfortably secured himself in power. Alexander the Great of Macedonia in his world-conquring march is said in his decisive battle with the Persians to have killed 230,000 of the enemy. While such figures as quoted may seem incredible it must be remembered that in those days the great generals not only led immense armies in solid phalanx but the battles were hand-to-hand affairs. Gun powder and lead can do more damage the cold steel while really busy, but when men met each other sword and spear, the side which found the worst of it had a good deal less chance of getting away unhurt afterwards.

Are You Nearing the Turn of Life?

Unmistakable signs of the change a Headache, Sleepless Nights, Nervousness, Hysteria and Melancholia—Watch for these Symptoms if past Forty-five.

When the turn or change of life make its appearance you will notice severe pains shooting through the loins. As a rule the change is gradual. In most cases it is marked by irregularity of the menstrual flow. It is most important to maintain as high a degree of vigor as possible. All strength should be conserved, and Ferrozone should be taken three times daily until the crisis is past. Ferrozone not only acts on the blood giving it purity and richness, but acts directly on the womanly organs in such a way as to lessen the strain and severity of this trying time.

Mrs. Martha M. Macadam, of St. George, writes: "About two years ago I was greatly run down and felt as if I was going to die. I was in a nervous excited state, and had the most dreadful pains every month. Irregularities that I never had before commenced, and I didn't know what was wrong. I consulted the doctor and learned I was approaching a very critical time. I started on a course of Ferrozone, and took one tablet along with every meal for about six months. Ferrozone had a direct action, and helped me immensely. My nervousness went away, and so did all the other worrying symptoms. Ferrozone is a remedy that all women should use, because it insures regularity, freedom from pain and headache. It is a remarkable re-builder and tonic, and saw me safely through my trouble."

Ferrozone is exactly the remedy you need. Don't believe an unscrupulous dealer who may try to sell you a base substitute that affords him more profit. Insist on Ferrozone. Price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all druggists or by mail, from The Ferrozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

MOHAMMEDANS AND DOGS.

They Take Particular Pains Not to Come In Contact.

In Egypt dogs are never permitted to enter the dwelling of a Mohammedan, and if one is found in a mosque he is immediately put to death.

In consequence of this excommunication from the society which this animal seems so instinctively disposed to cultivate, Egyptian dogs live, for the most part, in the open air, feeding upon garbage and any other filth that chance throws in their way. Yet they are found to be faithful protectors of the property and even persons of the very men by whom they are thus despitefully treated, although, Sonini remarks, it is extremely curious to see the pains taken by a Mussulman and a dog when they happen to meet to avoid coming in contact with each other. Notwithstanding this state of persecution, dogs are remarkably numerous in the towns of Egypt. The species is a large one, about the size and make of the greyhound. As a proof of the Mohammedan prejudice against this useful animal, it is sufficient to state that they regard the terms Christian and dog as synonymous—both, of course, in the most opprobrious sense.

As a singular contrast for their dislike for dogs, the Egyptians have ever held cats in greatest veneration, and in ancient time even worshiped them. And historians tell us that Bubastis and Atribes, two towns in Egypt, the former a votary of cats and the latter of mice, contracted on that account so strong an antipathy to each other that the inhabitants were never known to intermarry, although only a few miles asunder. In some parts of India, too, we are told, they have a similar reverence for grimalkin, as the only crimes punished capitally there are the murder of a man and a cat.

TRIALS OF DIPLOMATS.

They Were Many in the Early Days of American History.

There exists a popular tendency to overrate the delights and to underrate the hardships of the diplomatic life; but, however much opinions may differ on this point, there can be no doubt that the office of an American diplomatist in the days of the Revolution was no holiday pastime.

If he was not already in Europe, his journey to his post was beset with perils graver than those of the elements. In the eyes of the British law American revolutionists were simply "rebels," the reprobation of whose conduct was likely to be proportionate to their prominence and activity, and the seas were scoured by British cruisers, the dreaded embodiment of England's maritime supremacy. Deane went abroad secretly before independence was declared, but when his presence in France became known the British government asked that he be seized and delivered up into its custody. Franklin sailed for France on a small vessel of war belonging to congress, called the Reprisal. On the way over she took two prizes, and more than once, on descrying a suspicious sail, cleared for action. Had she been captured by the British, Franklin would have had an opportunity to test the truth of his remark to his associates in congress that they must "either hang together or hang separately." John Adams, on his first journey, took passage on an American vessel; on his second he embarked on the French frigate Sensible and landed at Ferrol, in Spain. Jay committed his fate to the American man-of-war Confederacy and, like Adams and Franklin reached his destination.

Some Remarkable Guns.

At the siege of Rhodes the Turks constructed mortars by hollowing out cavities in the solid rock at the proper angle, and in the arsenal at Malta is a trophy of the long and glorious defense of Valetta, in a Turkish gun, about a six pounder, composed of a copper tube coiled over with strong rope and "jacketed" with rawhide. In the same collection are some antique "quick firers," breechloaders, with small bores and immensely long barrels, like punt guns. The Malay pirates put great trust in the long brass swivel guns called "lela," and in Borneo these lelas were used as a kind of currency, large sums being estimated in guns.

The Chinese cast excellent bronze guns (there is a fine specimen of them in Devonport dockyard), but so little did they understand gunnery that in the so called "opium war" the forts of the Bocca Tigris, defending the Canton river, had the guns built immovably into the walls. The Sikh gunners opposed to us in the two Punjab wars, though they loaded with amazing recklessness, shoveling in the powder from open boxes, stuck to their guns to the last. The blood of the first man killed was smeared on the gun, and the whole detachment died beside it sooner than retreat.—Chambers' Journal.

His Pet Superstition.

"Superstition seems to be connected in the minds of most people with women, ladders, rabbits' feet and horseshoes," said the young girl at the piano. "As a matter of fact, however, I know that men are fully as superstitious as the women of my acquaintance, and sometimes more so. One young man of my acquaintance, for instance, who has literary yearnings and who feels sure he could astonish the public with his brilliant stories if he could only get some editor to accept them, spends his summers in the country gathering inspiration, local color and—four leaf clovers. When winter comes he returns to his hallroom in the city, writes stories by the wholesale and dispatches with each consignment to the editors a four leaf clover. Sometimes the articles are accepted, and then the writer ascribes his success to the talisman. More often, however, they are returned, with the mascot in a more or less crumpled condition, and he spends what leisure hours he has in trying to figure out why it is those clovers don't work every time. Never for a moment does he ascribe failure to any faults in his manuscripts. Isn't that the limit in the way of superstition?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company. The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as a safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups; namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 30 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 570 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflict as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented.

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78¾ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented.

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory	75	acres
" " Mill and building sites	55	"
" " Timber properties	90	"
Total	903½	acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

Complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government from which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

Total cost of development to date, present management,	$53,000.00
" " " " " former owners	18,000.00
" " surface improvements, buildings, saw mill plant, horses, wagons, ore cars, track, tools, etc.	17,000.00
" " Machinery paid for and to be installed	6,000.00
	$99,000.00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $26,000.00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet. We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 200 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver. These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built.

In the meantime only the high grade Smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will add materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905, and be continuous thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3.50 to $4.00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our stockholders. These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments. By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18.00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of production is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,
ROBERT HARRISON,

THE DESPERATE FIGHT AT KINCHOW

Vain Heroism of Japanese in in the Earlier Charges.

PORT ARTHUR'S SUPPLIES

The Civilians Must Look Out for Themselves.

St. Petersburg Despatches Say a Number o Submarines are Being Sent to the Far East.

London, June 4.—The Times to-day has the following from Weihaiwei, dated yesterday "I have just returned from a cruise on the Times steamer Haimun of Kin how Bay and have been able to glean some further particulars of the engrossing operations on the Liaotung peninsula. Eyewitnesses say that on midday of the 26th the Kinchow isthmus presented an unprecedented military spectacle with 40,000 Japanese troops massed behind the western spur of Mount Simpson, and under such small cover as was afforded by the Sachiatun twin peaks. While withing 2,000 yards of little room to deploy for attack that battalions of Japanese infantry had the Russian works there was no to stand waiting in the sea the whole time. It was a veritable inferno of all arms, and shells from the Russian batteries ploughed into the serried masses around Kinchow the Japanese guns replying as battery after battery came into action from the Chichiwang and Kanchiayan flats while a sustained fire from they unpersonal observation bours kept the line of the Russians works fringed with bursting projectiles.

RUSSIANS ARE MARCHING SOUTH

Reported Attempt to Relieve Port Arthur

THE ORDER OF THE CZAR.

An Alleged Result of War Council at St. Petersburg.

The Japanese Have Evacuated Saimatse—a the Latest Estimates of their Forces in the Field.

London, June 4.—Telegrams from different points seem to confirm the rumor that General Kuropatkin is attempting a diversion in the direction of Port Arthur. Russian reinforcements according to a despatch from Tientsin, are moving southward from Kaiping towards Wafangtien, under General Stackenburg. They comprise a battery of artillery, four Siberian regiments and a detachment of Cossacks, aggregating 12,000 men. Another brigade is following, the intention being to engage the Japanese now attacking Port Arthur in their rear.

The Standard's correspondent at Tientsin sending the same news says "The Russian force in the engagement at Wafangtien, May 30, is supposed to have been formed of four Siberian regiments, which were reported to have left Tachiachao, May 28, 12th to the first portion of a relieving column for Port Arthur. The railway is fairly intact from the north to Wafangtien, but is completely destroyed from there to Pulantien. The Japanese are unconcerned over this demonstration, being convinced that it will be impracticable for the Russians to move a sufficient force to prove effective.

A DESPERATE MOVE.

These reports are received with a certain measure of scepticism in London. The belief here is that if Gen. Kuropatkin is undertaking such a desperate move he can only be doing so in deference to strongest political pressure and against his own judgment. No further news of any kind has been received about the movements of the Japanese forces. Both Generals Kuroki and Oku are working with the utmost secrecy.

PORT ARTHUR'S STRENGTH.

The Daily Telegraph's well-informed Tokio correspondent estimates the total defending force in Port Arthur at 30,000. "This is a most formidable army, he says, "and it will be a marvellous achievement to carry by assault such a place, with more than a score of great landward forts disposed at a distance of fifteen miles from the harbor. Still, the reduction of the place can be undoubtedly accomplished."

FOR DEFENCE OF LIAOYANG.

According to the Chronicle's Tokio correspondent the Russians have completed eleven fortresses at Liaoyang and are laying mines at a distance of 5,000 feet around them.

KUROPATKIN ACTING ON ORDERS

"Viceroy Alexieff and Gen. Kuropatkin, having asked the Emperor to settle their dispute, his Majesty summoned a council of war, including Minister of War Sukharoff, Marine Minister Avellan and Minister of the Interior Plehve. The council debated for several hours at Tsarskoye Selo. I have reason to believe that the necessity of preserving the naval base at Port Arthur and the loss of prestige that the fall of Port Arthur would entail, were the arguments which prevailed in the council.

"Gen. Kuropatkin has, therefore, been advised to attempt to relieve the fortress, but to act with the greatest prudence. A general whom I interviewed on the decision of the council said: "If Kuropatkin is weak enough to advance, he will commit a serious blunder. The number of his troops and the conditions under which he acts are unfavorable. He might meet an almost irresistible reverse and Port Arthur be further from relief than ever. If we try to relieve Port Arthur we will be doing exactly what the Japanese want."

ANGLO-RUSSIAN ALLIANCE

Settlement of Canadian Sealing Claims Sets St. Petersburg Talking About the Chances of a Commercial Treaty Between Britain and Russia

St. Petersburg, June 3.—The comment here on the settlement of the Russian-Canadian fishery dispute is very significant. The agreement is welcomed by the Russian press as evidence of the increasing probability of an Anglo-Russian alliance, the papers pointing out that public opinion in Great Britain, France and Russia is becoming more favorable, the war, instead of proving an obstacle to an alliance, serving as one of the arguments in its favor.

More significant still is the strong intimation of the Novosti foreshadowing that a commercial treaty between the two countries will pave the way to a purely commercial rapprochement. The Novosti adds: "The realization of this is easier, as both Russia and Great Britain are bound by enormous commercial dealings. It is true that Russia is further from Great Britain than France but she is nearer India, whose railways could be joined with Russia's."

The paper makes the further point that, without such, a commercial treaty, any political agreement would be very frail.

A BIG DAY WITH THE BIG ONE

Wild Beasts, Sensational Features Fine Horses, Great Acts, Clowns and Colossum Excess Galore.

In their will beast, arenic and hippodromic departments the management of the Great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Enormous Shows United, having reached the limit of transportation facilities, now appear to have concentrated their resources, research and enterprise upon the production of especially great and novel features, to such extent that feature hunting has apparently become a gigantic fad with them. The proof of this is found in the unprecedented popularity they have attained at Madison Square Garden, New York City, and wherever their own metropolis of tents has been pitched. Nothing at home worth extraordinary seems to have escaped these eyes, and their announcements indicate how thoroughly they have ransacked all foreign fields in search of genuine thrillers and originalities. Their collection of wild beasts has always been conspicuous for colossal completeness, and among other big things they have added to it an Arctic assemblage of full fourteen living Polar Bears, a greater number of those only North Pole discoverers than even any seeker of the same has ever seen at any one time. They have lured from the gay capital of France its most popular equestrian La Famille Lemasson, whose combined equestrian and park-brake bareback and acrobatic novelties will doubtless amuse all beholders here, as they did there, and which are the only absolutely new equestrian performances seen in any arena for over fifty years. Another arenic European celebrity, who for the first time visits this country, is Mons. Hubert, his original equestrian acts including leaping from the ground to a horse's back whilst holding a sulky on high by its thills, and balancing a park cart on his chin. From abroad also come to us for the first time the Szarvasi Frencz Troupe of Hungarian Magyars, whose dances, acrobatic feats and tribal melodies are described as both intensely thrilling and interesting. The four merry Martinekys, who have set all Europe laughing from ear to ear, have been added to the whole comic circus of all-convulsing clowns, which feature this great show was the first to introduce. At the head of all home features unquestionably stands the world-famous Aurora Zouaves, aptly described by the New York Journal as "a huge red-legged centipede, whose celerity and precision have astounded the military world." It is universally admitted among army experts that, in both manœuvers and manual, they eclipse anything ever known.

The horse show in this exhibition deserves more than passing mention, as having, possibly, the most numerous and magnificent collection of its kind, in which the most noted, noblest and most beautiful breeds are conspicuous. Many of them, too, have been taught to perform the most intricate and dainty feats, including the genuine cakewalk, which the New York press pronounced incomparable. Thousands of columns have been written in praise of the Forepaugh dancing elephants, and the Sells Brothers gigantic soldier-tuskers, and it has been repeatedly illustrated that they well deserve the compliment. In passing over the hundred champion circus acts in the three rings, on the elevated stages and in mid-air, as well as the exciting contests on the hippodrome course, we ought to mention Diavolo, on his dare-devil act of looping the loop on a bicycle; Prodigious Porthos, who performs the seemingly incredible feat of leaping across a chasm fifty feet in width on his flying cycle, and Cyclone, who, starting on an absolutely perpendicular line, actually scales "The Devil's Chimney" awheel, at almost incalculable centrifugal speed. This trio are simply inimitable, and the sole masters of the astounding specialties in which they appear. The free street parade is in keeping with the general magnitude and wealth of the show and presents a decided novelty in the production of a small army, different divisions of which are uniformed and armed so as to represent our country's warlike progress from the Revolution to the Cuban campaign. This mammoth agereagation will visit Peterborough on Saturday, July 2nd.

BIG BATTLE NOW ON

Heavy Cannonading Heard in Vicinity o Port Arthur

Tokio, June 4.—Heavy cannonading was heard last night in the vicinity of Port Arthur, and it would appear that Admiral Togo is again at work bombarding the city. It is more than likely he is assisting the land forces and that a big battle is now on.

—The Rev. G. N. Clagry will address the Gospel meeting at the Y.W.C.A. to-morrow afternoon. A good attendance is requested.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors o the

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to wit:—The Smuggler, Gangoo, Black Jack, Star and Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals — the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 226 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

she should hear the tale, for it must be told, and she must tell it, too. She would not die an impostor, and then there flashed upon her the agonizing thought, before which all else seemed as naught: in the proud heart of Arthur Carrollton was there a place for Hagar Warren's grandchild? "No, no, no!" she moaned; and the next moment she lay at Hagar's feet, white, rigid and insensible.

"She's dead!" cried Hagar, and for one brief instant she hoped that it was so.

But not then and there was Margaret to die, and slowly she came back to life, shrinking from the touch of Hagar's hand when she felt it on her brow.

"There may be some mistake," she whispered, but Hagar answered, "There is none," at the same time relating so minutely the particulars of the deception that Maggie was convinced, and covering her face with her hands, sobbed aloud, while Hagar, sitting by in silence, was nerving herself to tell the rest.

The sun had set, and the twilight shadows were stealing down upon them, when, creeping abjectly upon her knees toward the wretched girl, she said: "There is more, Maggie, more—I have not told you all."

But Maggie had heard enough, and exerting all her strength, she sprang to her feet, while Hagar clutched eagerly at her dress, which was wrested from her grasp, as Maggie fled away—away—she knew not, cared not whither, so that she were beyond the reach of the trembling voice which called after her to return. Alone in the deep woods, with the darkness falling around her, she gave way to the mighty sorrow which had come so suddenly upon her. She could not doubt what she had heard. She knew that it was true, and as proof after proof crowded upon her until the chain of evidence was complete, she laid her head upon the rain-wet grass, and shudderingly stopped her ears, to shut out, if possible, the memory of the dreadful words: "I, the shriveled, skinny hag who tells you this, am your grandmother." For a long time she lay there thus, weeping till the fountain of her tears seemed dry; then weary, faint and sick, she started for her home. Opening cautiously the outer door, she was gliding up the stairs, when Madam Conway, entering the hall with a lamp, discovered her, and uttered an exclamation of surprise at the strangeness of her appearance. Her dress, bedraggled and wet, was torn in several places by the briery bushes she had passed; her hair, loosened from its confinement, hung down her back, while her face was so white and ghastly that Madam Conway in much alarm followed her up the stairs, asking what had happened.

"Something dreadful came to me in the woods," said Maggie, "but I can't tell you to-night. To-morrow I shall be better—or dead—oh, I wish I could be dead—before you hate me so, dear grand— No, I didn't mean that—you ain't, forgive me, do," and sinking to the floor, she kissed the very hem of Madam Conway's dress.

Unable to understand what she meant, Madam Conway divested her of her damp clothing, and placing her in bed, sat down beside her, saying gently, "Can you tell me now what frightened you?"

A faint cry was Maggie's only answer, and taking the lady's hand, she laid it upon her forehead, where the drops of perspiration were standing thickly. All night long Madam Conway sat by her, going once to communicate with Arthur Carrollton, who, anxious and alarmed, came often to the door, asking if she slept. She did sleep at last—a fitful feverish sleep; but ever at the sound of Mr. Carrollton's voice a spasm of pain distorted her features, and a low moan came from her lips. Maggie had been terribly excited, and when next morning she awoke, she was parched with burning fever, while her mind at intervals seemed wandering, and ere two days were passed, she was raving with delirium brought on, the physician said, by some sudden shock, the nature of which no one could even guess.

For three weeks she hovered between life and death, whispering oft of the "horrid shape which had met her in the woods, robbing her of happiness and life." Winding her feeble arms around Madam Conway's neck, she would beg of her most piteously "not to cast her off—not to send her away from the only home she had ever known—for I couldn't help it," she would say. "I didn't know it, and I've loved you all so much—so much! Say, grandma, may I call you grandma all the same? Will you love poor Maggie a little?" and Madam Conway, listening to words whose meaning she could not fathom, would answer by laying the aching head upon her bosom, and trying to soothe the excited girl. Theo, too, was summoned home, but at her Maggie at first refused to look, and covering her eyes with her hand she whispered scornfully, "pinched and blue, and pale, that's the very look. I couldn't see it when I called you sister."

Then her mood would change, and motioning Theo to her side, she would say to her: "Kiss me once, Theo, just as you used to do when I was Maggie Miller."

Toward Arthur Carrollton she from the first manifested fear, shuddering whenever he approached her, and still exhibiting signs of uneasiness if he left her sight. "He hated her," she said, "hated her for what she could not help," and when, as he often did, he came to her bedside, speaking to her words of love, she would answer mournfully, "Don't, Mr. Carrollton, your pride is stronger than your love. You will hate me when you know it all."

Thus two weeks went by, and then with the first May day, reason returned again, bringing life and strength to the invalid, and joy to those who had so anxiously watched over her. Almost her first rational question was for Hagar, and if she had been there.

"She is confined to her bed with inflammatory rheumatism," answered Madam Conway, "but she inquires for you every day, they say, and once when told you could not live, she started to crawl on her hands and knees to see you, but fainted near the gate and was carried back."

"Poor old woman!" murmured Maggie, the tears rolling down her cheeks as she thought how strong must be the love that half-crazed creature bore her, and how little it was returned, for every feeling of her nature revolted from claiming a near relationship with one whom she had hitherto regarded as a servant.

The secret, too, seemed harder to divulge, and day by day she put it off, saying to them when they asked what had so much affected her, that "she could not tell them yet—she must wait till she was stronger."

So Theo went back to Worcester as mystified as ever, and Maggie was left much alone with Arthur Carrollton, who strove in various ways to win her from the melancholy into which she had fallen. All day long she would sit by the open window, seemingly immovable, her large eyes, now intensely black, fixed upon vacancy, and her white face giving no sign of the fierce struggle within, save when Madam Conway, coming to her side, would lay her hand caressingly on her in token of sympathy. Then, indeed, her lips would quiver, and turning her head away, she would say, "Don't touch me—don't."

To Arthur Carrollton she would listen with apparent composure, though often as he talked, her long, tapering nails left their impress in her flesh, so hard she strove to seem indifferent. Once when they were left together alone he drew her to his side, and bending very low, so that his lips almost touched her marble cheek, he told her of his love, and how full of anguish was his heart when he thought that she would die.

"But God kindly gave you back to me," he said; "and now, my precious Margaret, will you be my wife? Will you go with me to my English home, from which I've tarried now too long because I would not leave you? Will Maggie answer me?" and he folded her lovingly in his arms.

Oh, how could she tell him "No," when every fibre of her heart thrilled with the answer "Yes!" She mistook him—mistook the character of Arthur Carrollton, for though pride was strong within him, he loved the beautiful girl who lay trembling in his arms, better than he loved his bride and had she told him then

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons have received the following letter which speaks for itself:

Chatham, Ont., June 1, 1904.

J. J. Turner & Sons, Peterborough, Ont.

Gentlemen,—I take pleasure in enclosing you cheque in settlement of your bill for decorating the streets here for our recent K. O. T. M. Convention. I wish to say in connection therewith that I have had considerable experience in handling affairs of this kind and that I consider that the decoration you gave us on this occasion was the very best that I have had the pleasure of seeing at any time, and your firm certainly deserve a great deal of credit for the magnificent display which you put up for us last week. We have the city decorated this week for the Oddboys Reunion by an American firm, charging the same price as you did, that is no far inferior as to cause considerable adverse comment, by almost every person who had the pleasure of comparing the two displays; and it certainly reflects great credit on you as Canadians and decorators when your work shows up to such a great advantage alongside your competitors.

Yours truly,
G. W. SULMAN.

A RARE CHANCE

FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.
BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non-assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details. The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion, Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

St. Louis Gold Mining Co

Property includes six full claims, with a 38 foot ore body extending across 3200 feet of this property, determined by a tunnel 500 feet and open cuts and shafts every one in one. Why does St. Louis Gold Mining Co. offer the investor a chance for a money.

1. Do you know that its title is free and clear?
2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless y eally are interested, because on waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains ore vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9 000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $38 25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 500 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary, Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

75 Cents Per Share, Par Value $1.00

INVESTORS are afforded every opportunity for the strictest investigation regarding the property and the reputation of the officers and directors. Highest banking references.

THAT MADE A DIFFERENCE

Employer Advised Economy, But in This Case It Was Entirely Unnecessary.

"They tell me that you're thinking of getting married, William," said the old-fashioned employer to his faithful and steady clerk, relates the Chicago Daily News.

"Yes, sir," said the young man, respectfully, "I expect to be married next month."

"So soon as that?" said the old-fashioned employer, in some surprise. "Well, William, you know best, I suppose, or you think you do. But I imagine that you won't mind if I give you a little advice. I have been married for 34 years myself, and I think I might be able to give you a few points To begin with, practice frugality.

"You will probably be tempted to many little extravagances at the outset. If you have not bought your furniture, I would recommend you to avoid extravagance in that direction Bric-a-brac and pictures are not necessities, and I wouldn't spend any money for them if I were you. You will need chairs and tables and household linen, of course. Dishes and culinary utensils, too, you will be obliged to have, but these, for a young couple in your circumstances, should be of the plainest description The money that you will save by denying yourself expensive decorated china and useless gimcracks you can deposit in the bank, where it will increase slowly but surely with your added savings, as a provision against sickness or other misfortune, and will perhaps even amount to an independence for your old age I would, in your place, apportion my income—so much for rent, so much for household expenses, so much for clothing and so much for a modest life insurance, always reserving a certain sum to be laid aside for a rainy day and never going beyond that apportionment. I would not waste money upon theaters or similar places of amusement There are always lectures on improving subjects which may be heard free, and there are museums, also free, which may be visited. Entertainments to friends or acquaintances which involve expense should not be indulged in. As to your table, plain food is the best, as well as the most wholesome. Some of these vegetarian dishes are quite appetizing. Lentils are said to be extremely nourishing and prunes are a valuable article of diet. But, of course, I could not undertake to mention everything that I might think proper for you to eat. I wish that it was in my power to raise your salary a trifle, but—"

"I'm much obliged, sir," said the clerk, "but I don't think we will need it. The lady I am going to marry has an income of $70,000, and I hope to live within that unless she gets some more at her father's death, but—"

"Oh, that's entirely different, my boy," said the old-fashioned employer. "In that case, I'd recommend you to go ahead and enjoy life."

DOUBLE BALLOON AIRSHIP.

Invention of an Englishman That Will Be Something New and Novel.

A new type of dirigible balloon, invented by L. J. Anderson, of London, England, is described in the Scientific American The principal feature is that two balloons, placed side by side, of identical shape and capacity, are employed to lift the vessel. The model having proved successful to the inventor, a full-sized vessel is now being constructed. The balloons are elliptical in shape, and will measure 70 feet in length by 27 feet diameter at the widest part. They will each hold approximately 27,000 feet of hydrogen gas, thus giving them a lifting power of 4,000 pounds.

The framework, or deck, of the vessel will measure 75 feet in length, and is to be constructed of bamboo. Another feature of the craft will be the employment of three propellers. The main propeller will be placed at the stern, together with the rudder. By an ingenious arrangement, however, the pitch of this driving propeller may be varied from the deck of the vessel as desired, the object of which is to use it as an auxiliary though powerful rudder, for maintaining or altering the ship's course according to the exigencies that arise. Two subsidiary propellers are placed at the bow and stern of the deck respectively, and are intended to supplement the driving power of the mechanism. The whole of machinery is place between the two balloons; for the inventor holds that by this design the improvement of the steering possibilities and the maintenance of a straight course are materially increased. The motion of the propellers and their design are entirely new, coinciding as nearly as possible, to a reciprocatory motion, so that the nearest approach to the motion of a bird's wing is obtained. The propellers are to measure 20 feet in diameter.

The motive power is to be supplied from a 50-horsepower electric motor, and the inventor anticipates that a speed varying from 14 to 20 miles an hour in fair weather will be attained. The total weight of the vessel will be 3,000 pounds, which leaves a balance of 1,000 pounds, after deducting this weight from the lifting capacity of the aerostat, for the carriage of passengers, ballast, etc. It is hoped that the balloon will be ready for trials some time this, and its total cost will approximate $10,000.

New Grafting Method.

The grafting of fruit trees has today become such a common operation that there is no need to present the ordinary methods, but what is less well known is that one may take young fruits of certain species and graft them on the branches of other trees. La Nature, Paris, publishes a photograph showing how a pear of one variety was grafted on a branch not its parent.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 225 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 2,484 to 2,094, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1900.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

CATARRH

RUINS HEALTH AND BEAUTY CAUSES THE WEAK TO DIE Y UNG INVARIABLY LEADS TO CONSUMPTION.

Thousands Annualy Cured by Catarrhozone

MR ARCHIBALD BASS, of New Harbor, writes; "Catarrhozone proved itself a remarkable remedy in my case. I suffered terribly from catarrh in the throat and my nose was so stuffed up every morning I could hardly draw my breath. The mucous dropped back into my stomach, upset my digestion and kept me sick all the time. Catarrhozone relieved in a short time and cured perfectly."

MRS. W F. BREACH, of Chapman, writes; "I have used a great many catarrh remedies but none of them ever helped like Catarrhozone. It cleared out my nose and throat and stopped a ringing noise in my ears. Catarrhozone is very pleasant and simple to use and many times better than any other catarrh remedy."

MR. LAWRENCE KENNEDY, of New West Annan, says; "For three years I tried doctors but my catarrh grew worse and worse. I got no relief till I used Catarrhozone. It was not very long in curing me so perfectly that the disease has never returned."

MR. JOSEPH De ROCHE, one of the most prominent and highly respected citizens of Loggieville, N.B., says; "I used Catarrhozone for a sore throat, cold in the head and head ache. I always felt relief immediately. It cured the discharge from my nose and restored my sense of smell lost through the effects of catarrh."

Catarrhozone is simple, convenient and pleasant! It is warranted to instantly relieve and permanently cure.

Complete outfit consists of a beautiful polished hard rubber inhaler and sufficient liquid for recharging to last two months. Costs $1.00 or sample size 25c. Sold by all druggists, or sent by mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford Conn., U.S.A.

Stole a Horse and Rig

—A young boy, about 14 years of age, stole a horse and rig from the sheds of the Commercial hotel on Saturday afternoon. He is still at large with the horse and rig, which is valued at about $200. He was last seen on Saturday night passing through Cavanville.

Death of Anastatia Young

The death of Miss Anastatia Young took place on Friday evening, after an illness extending over a considerable period. She was in the 25th year of her age, and was the third daughter of Mr. C. Young. She was greatly respected, and will be deeply regretted by those who knew her. The funeral took place yesterday at two o'clock.

Proved Fatal

The man Carr, who was brought here from Tweed on Thursday morning, suffering from injuries inflicted by the bunting of a locomotive against some cars which he was crawling under, died on Friday evening. One leg was cut off completely and the other had to be amputated at the hospital. The shock was more than he could stand. He was about 45 years of age and married.

Camera Club Organized

On Thursday evening at the Y.M.C.A. building a Camera Club was organized, and already eighteen members have joined. The following officers were elected: Hon. President, A. J. Harden; President, T. J. Wallace; Secretary-Treasurer, J. H. Humphries; Executive officers, Messrs McNellis, Scrigley and Reid.

The club will occupy Room No. 4 as summer quarters.

The membership fee is only 25 cents, and is open to all members of the Y.M.

Committed for Trial

Cobourg World: On Wednesday afternoon Susan Sharpe, formerly of Belmont Township, County of Peterborough, and wife of Alexander Sharpe, who is now undergoing a sentence of 15 years in the Kingston penitentiary for manslaughter, was brought before Mr. D. Roberts, J.P., on the charge of bigamy. It was alleged that on the 14th of January, 1903, she married William Smith, Cobourg. The manslaughter case arose from Sharpe having shot a man named Hull, who ran away with his wife. The case was tried at Peterborough, and created considerable attention at the time. The defendant pleaded "not guilty" to the charge of bigamy and was committed for trial and admitted to bail.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

A Strike Probable

There is a probability that a strike will be declared in a few days by the telegraphers on the Grand Trunk Railway. It is said that as the company refuses to entertain the demands of the men and, consequently, no other course is open. In the event of the trouble the railway proposes to use telephones for dispatching trains. This may mean that the telephone may stay in the railway stations.

Badly Scalded

On Saturday morning Willie, the little son of Mr W. S. Merrill, met with a painful accident at his home on Homewood avenue. The boy's mother was engaged in lighting a pan of hot water from the stove, when the boy ran in from the outside and came in contact with the dish when considerable of the water fell over his head and shoulders, producing a nasty scald, and consequently very painful. A doctor was called in and did what he could to deaden the pain.

Obituary

The death occurred at Port Hope a few days ago of Rev. T. R. Hull, at the age of 86 years, one of the oldest and best known ministers in Canada. He was formerly connected with the Bible Christian denomination. He entered the Bible Christian ministry in 1855, and continued in active service until about the time of the union of the various Methodist churches in the year 1884. Although retired from active work he was often called upon to fill appointments. He was a native of Norfolk, England, and landed in Cobourg in 1834, at the age of 15 years. He was twice married, his second wife being at Port Hope, and two sons, John Hull, Lakefield, and T. R. Hull, Stoney Lake, survive him.

YORK FARMER'S EXCURSION

Upwards of Five Hundred Spent Saturday in Town

The excursion of the York County Farmers' Institute visited Peterborough on Saturday, and upwards of five hundred are said to have come in on the train of nine coaches which brought them via the C.P.R. Most of them spent the day in taking in the sights of the town. The Western Lacrosse club came along with the excursion and played a friendly game with the local team. A shower about noon made it rather unpleasant for the visitors, but the day was fine afterwards and all seemed to pass the time as well as possible.

Many encomiums were passed upon the town. Its handsome lay out well-kept streets calling forth words of praise from many of them.

THE AGE.

Nature Notices It.

The younger the child that is allowed careless diet like tea, coffee, too much candy, etc., the heavier the penalty Nature exacts. Healthy children, on the other hand, never know what "nerves" are, but sometimes we hear of nervous prostration as young as 15 or 16. There was such a case in Newark who says:

"Although I only used coffee after I was 15 and then only moderately I had nervous prostration before I was 20. They sent me to a sanitarium where the only treatment I got was a change of diet in which I was not allowed coffee or tea and after a week I tried another cup of coffee. The same result followed and of course this convinced me coffee was the cause of my trouble and must be left alone. I had heard so much about Postum and when I tried it found it even better than I had heard. I was happy to think I had found such a delicious hot meal time drink I could use in place of coffee, until it occurred to me that a drink which is so excellent and so much like coffee must have some of the effects of coffee.

"So I went slow on the Postum at first until I proved that it had no bad effects like coffee but found that I could drink all I wanted of it and the more I drank the better I was (just the opposite of coffee in every way). I know now it's because Postum is made of pure cereals that it is so healthful.

"All who taste Postum at my home are delighted with it because I follow the directions and boil it full 15 minutes. But I have known lots of people who try Postum once but abandon it because it was made carelessly.

"My husband is a physician and he and all the rest of our household use Postum regularly and think its flavor equal to the best coffee. Husband says it is entirely healthful." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek Mich.

Just a little too far and the woman who reaches over the cliff for the coveted flower goes crashing down into the abyss below. Just a little too far and the woman, who, day by day, neglects to cure the womanly diseases which weaken her is prostrated upon a bed of sickness.

No woman should trifle with the diseases peculiar to her sex. Neglect to-day means a worse condition to-morrow.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a safe and reliable remedy for the cure of diseases peculiarly womanly. It establishes regularity, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"My wife, Mrs Mary Estes, has been taking your medicine and received great benefit from it," writes Mr Geo Wm Estes, of Springgrove, Va. "Was troubled with female weakness, heavy, bearing-down pains severe pain in back and head and a tired, worn out feeling all the time. Tried all the remedies we could hear of, but they did no good. Finally we wrote to you and my wife commenced taking 'Favorite Prescription.' Took ten bottles, and is in better health than before in a long time. CONDITION OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY DAILY BECOMING MORE DESPERATE.

Cause for the Gravest Anxiety as to the Supply of Food.

Said that Four Weeks More Will See the Army on Short Nations.

London, June 7.—From the very beginning of the war in the far east it was recognized that Russia's dependence on her single line of railway across Asia for the transportation of soldiers and supplies was her greatest weakness. The spokesmen of the Russian general staff in St. Petersburg alone seem to have overlooked this fact, and they are still continually causing hints to reach the public of what their army will accomplish in a few more weeks when its numbers reach 500,000, more or less.

There seems, nevertheless, to be general agreement now among competent students of the progress of the war that the forces east of Lake Baikal number less than 250,000, while the army of General Kuropatkin has at his command for field service south of Mukden does not number 100,000 men. These figures are arrived at both by analysis of the different divisions and corps which are mentioned from time to time in the despatches, and by a consideration of what the railroad has been able to accomplish in adding to the Manchurian army since the war began.

The military correspondent of the London Times has recently gone over the whole subject of the present condition of the Russian army at length in a series of articles, and his conclusion is that "it is certainly a moderate statement to affirm that the situation on the Russian side is one to cause the greatest anxiety." He does not hesitate to include starvation as among the possibilities before this year's campaign is over.

He tells us that the most flattering Russian estimate he has noticed of the food supplies for the army now available in Manchuria is that they are sufficient to last about four weeks more. He quotes from a note issued by Viceroy Alexieff to show that the army has already been sweeping up all the supplies of cattle, food and horses in Manchuria — a resource which is available only once, and which leaves the country under a reign of famine. As for the supply of the army's needs by rail, he makes use of an estimate prepared by a reliable journal, France Militaire, and confirmed by an American technical journal, to the effect that "the daily wants of an army of 300,000 men and 100,000 horses represent a daily weight of 1,600 tons a day in food alone." Now 1,600 tons represent seven trains of twenty-five cars each, and the latest statement by Prince Khilkoff, Russian minister of railways, allows only six military trains a day east of Lake Baikal.

It is evident, therefore, that the longer the war is watched, and the more the facts are studied, the worse Russia's position appears to be.

SEES DEFEAT FOR RUSSIA.

Paris Press Thinks Boom of Empire in the East Busted.

Paris June 8.—The leading military authorities here expect the early fall of Port Arthur and view this as a most serious if not irreparable blow to Russia, the present condition of Port Arthur being compared to that of Metz and Sedan during the Franco Prussian war. It is pointed out that General Kuropatkin is making the same fatal mistake in regard to Port Arthur's ability to resist that the French made in connection with Metz. The military critics, without exception, disapprove of Kuropatkin's policy of non-resistance.

There is a notable change in French sentiment since the war began. The official view for the first time is strongly pessimistic concerning Russia's ability to retrieve the series of reverses culminating with the expected fall of Port Arthur.

A HUGE YARN.

Russians Do Not Believe Treasure Sank with Ship.

St. Petersburg, June 8.—The public received the belated announcement that five millions of roubles were lost with the Russian admiralty ship when Makaroff went down with contemptuous silence. Everybody is satisfied that a new gigantic piece of thievery lurks behind the story, which was only thought of several weeks after the Petropavlovsk was blown up.

It is said that the Czar point blank refuses to believe the yarn. He remarked to the Minister of Finance, "That fish are proverbially mute is no reason why they should be put as guardians over my treasure." He also pointed to the fact that the generally well-informed Japs had made no attempt to get at the fivemillions lying in the Bay of Port Arthur.

GREAT SEA DISASTERS.

Many Naval Vessels Have Gone Down with All on Board.

New York, June 8.—Loss of the Russian flagship Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur, with Admiral Makaroff and an estimated strength of nearly 800 officers and men, while a severe blow to Russian prestige in the far east one of those catastrophes in naval warfare to which an actual combatant is always liable, though happily their occurrence is not common. In 175 when "Hawke did bring Monsieur Conflans," at Quiberon Bay, Sir Edward Hawke ordered his pilot to lay the Royal George, of 100 guns, alongside the Soleil Royal, the French admiral's flagship. Before this could be done another French ship, La Superbe, of 70 guns gallantly interposed, and, receiving her opponent's broadside, went down into the deep with her colors flying and 650 souls on board. Her revenge ,however, came on Aug. 28, 1782 when the Royal George sunk at anchor off Spithead in a squall.

During a great storm in 1703 twelve men-of-war went down off the British coast with 1,800 men Many lives were lost when the British warship Ajax took fire in 1807. The British warship Captain turned over in the Bay of Biscay in 1870, about 500 lives being lost When the Sultan, the sister ship to the Captain, was fitting out at Portsmouth a grim humorist prophesying her possible fate (happily he proved to be wrong), chalked on her side "Will leave on Tuesday with mails for the Captain."

The fate of the Italian warship R d'Italia at the battle of Lissa ,the one great fight that has as yet taken place between armored battle fleets in European waters, should be mentioned. was on July 20, 1866, that the Austrian Admiral Tegethoff fought Persano's fleet and the flagship Ferdinand Max sent her opponent down with 600 men on board, the Italian ironclad Palestro also blowing up, about a score of lives only being saved.

Fearful loss of life was occasioned by the ramming of the British warship Victoria (1893) when over 350 officers and men, including Admiral Tryon, were drowned.

JAPANESE ARE GRATEFUL.

They Joyfully Recognize the Friendship of the U. S.

Tokio, June 8.—Japanese greatest leaders, in celebrating the birthday of the empress, thanked the United States to-day for awakening the island nation and for the public's sympathy in the war against Russia.

At a meeting attended by Marquis Ito, Count Okuma, a leading statesman and educator, and three thousand other citizens, the following resolutions were adopted.

"We gratefully recognize the friendship of the people of the United States for the people of Japan manifested continuously during the last fifty years, notably the services rendered our country in the cause of education by the disinterested labors of American educators for the development of our institutions of learning, also the work done in the cause of humanity, and in particular the sympathy and assistance given the families of our soldiers and sailors.

"In the present struggle, standing for principles which we believe identical with those cherished by all enlightened nations, we look to the people of the United States for that sympathy which we believe our cause deserves."

The members of the house of representatives were present in a body Dr. Harayama, president of Waseda university, a doctor of laws of Yale and a member of the house of commons, presided, Dr. Yomakawa, another Yale graduate, who is president of the imperial university, presented the resolution.

COL. GREENWOOD'S POSITION.

Second in Command of the South African Railway Volunteers.

Ottawa, June 8.—A recent letter received by a local militia officer from one of the officers of the first contingent to South Africa who remained behind to take employment in Johannesburg, gives some interesting details of the growth of the volunteer movement in the Transvaal and the recent combined manoeuvres held near that city. At the camp of exercise at Fredrickstad there was a turnout of 2,200 volunteers, and at the close of four days' field training live shell and ball cartridge were fired in practising at attack on a line of kopjes. This was most valuable exercise in range-finding, and noting the effect of the fire from dust knocked up, figures riddled, etc., and illustrates what an admirable training ground the Imperial authorities have in South Africa, where so much practical work can be done that would be simply out of the question in more thickly settled countries.

Colonel Greenwood, of Peterborough Ont., is now second in command of the Colonial South African Railway's volunteers. "Charlie" Armstrong, of the Fifth Royal Scots, Montreal, was still at Harrismith. "Reggie" Temple had married and was living at Heidelberg. Major Lawless was still with the Boer Repatriation Department at Pietersburg, Northern Transvaal, and "Dollie" Swift was doing well with the South African Constabulary. Arthur Hodgins was still superintending engineer of surveys and construction for the South African Railways, and F. J. Dixon, resident magistrate at Wakkerstroom., With the exception of Col. Greenwood, all the above served in the war with the 2nd (Special Service) Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment.

FOLDING RED KILLS A WOMAN.

Wife of Minneapolis Banker Leaves Life in Queer Manner.

Minneapolis, June 8.—Mrs. A. M Woodward, wife of the president of the South Side State Bank, died to-day from injuries caused by the closing up of a folding bed. Mr. and Mrs. Woodward were held as in a trap for several hours. Finally Mr. Woodward contrived to get one arm out of the bed and jumped on the floor until help came.

Flour Mills on Line of Siberian Railroad—One of the Main Stays of the Russians at Vladivostok

WEATHER NOTES

Fair and cool.

The weather has become cool and showery in the Northwest Territories as but continues fine in Manitoba.

JAPANESE ARE WINNING ALL ALONG THE LINE

The Yellow Men Seem to Win all the Small Skirmishes.

London, June 8.—The St. Petersburg Novoe Vremya makes a rather childish bid for foreign sympathy by seriously discussing a report that the United States is going to cede the Philippines to Japan, and warning England that she will have to look out for India, France for Indo-China, and Holland for Java. Incidentally the paper admits the difficulty Russia is experiencing in holding territory so far from the base, and trys to make the American eagle scream by hinting that the Yankees, profiting by Russia's lesson, would rather sell the Philippines now than lose them in a war with Japan later on.

PORT ARTHUR SORTIE.

The sortie on Saturday from Port Arthur, in which the Russians stated that four Japanese warships had been destroyed, turns out to be a fake—that is so far as the Japanese losses are concerned. From Tokio comes the positive statement that a Russian gunboat of the Gilak class was destroyed either by a Japanese torpedo or by coming in contact with a mine. From St. Petersburg comes the grave announcement that "the government has decided upon the adopting of offensive tactics," and the usual yarns about a force for the relief of Port Arthur. Meanwhile Kuropatkin's army seems to have all it can do to keep itself out of trouble without going south in search of it. Four thousand of General Stakelberg's brigade, intended for the relief of Port Arthur, attacked fifteen hundred Japs on May 31, five miles south of Wafangtien and were repulsed with two hundred killed and four hundred wounded, the Japanese losing over a hundred killed. There were also skirmishes in which the Russians were repulsed north of Poulandien and at a place thirty-five miles north of Feng Wang Chen

THE OPPOSING FORCES.

Che Foo, June 8.—Two miles separated the Japanese and Russian armies on the Liao Tung peninsula, on June 2, according to Chinese, who have arrived here from Dalny.

The Japanese army, are inforced by the men who landed at Dalny, occupied Twing Ching, and also Sanchiampo several miles west of Dalny. They then proceeded along the coast toward Port Arthur. On one side of the army are high mountains and on the other side is the sea, from which the Japanese gunboats are supporting the flank of the army.

On June 2, the Japanese forces were within seven miles of the outer forts of Port Arthur, only two miles from the Russian army, which is ready to contest their advance further. The Chinese believed that there was a big battle at this point. It is reported by the Chinese that the Japanese have moved their base to Dalny from Talienwan. The larger Japanese ships are anchored outside the smaller ones inside the harbor. Troops are being landed from small vessels, apparently coming from Pitsawo or the Elliot Islands.

A Japanese correspondent from Dalny confirms the reported advance of a Japanese army on Port Arthur, The correspondent states, however, that there are fifteen miles between the Japanese and Port Arthur, instead of seven, as reported by the Chinese. Japanese army is advancing along both coasts. It is reported that the peninsular division on the east coast fought a battle within fifteen miles of Port Arthur on June 3.

THE JAPANESE ARMY.

London, June 8.—A despatch from Che Foo says that the Japanese army investing Port Arthur, extends from Shulantarkao on the west to Chishengtsu on the east, from twelve to fourteen miles from the fortress. The Japanese outposts are being gradually advanced to within four miles of land defences. The Japanese fleet has taken possession of two Russian torpedo boats that were abandoned at Dalny, and another vessel that is ashore in Talienwan Bay. There are indications that the Port Arthur fleet will make a desperate effort to sally from the port during the land attack.

A WHITE FLAG INCIDENT.

London, June 8.—A despatch to the Telegraph from Nagasaki gives an account of the abuse by the Russians of the white flag, at the battle of Sanshan Hill, as told by a Japanese officer, whoo was wounded, and who has arrived at Moji. He says. "We advanced and were on the point of passing them (the Russians, who displayed the white flag), when they fired point blank at us, killing many." It was this piece of treachery that accounts for the greatness of the Japanese casualties.

CHANGE IN RUSSIAN UNIFORM

St. Petersburg, June 8. — General Kuropatkin has issued an order with the consent of Viceroy Alexieff that tunics and cap covers of a gray tint shall be worn by the whole army as soon as they can be procured fro. Russia. In order to accelerate the change in uniform an attempt will be made to dye the white tunics gray Officers will be permitted to wear tunics, with epaulettes, but their tunics and cap covers must be of the same color as those to be worn by the ordinary soldiers.

EXPECT A RUSSIAN ATTACK

Seoul, June 8.—The Commissioner of Customs at Gensan, Corea, wires that a Russian attack on the place is deemed imminent. He is making preparations to remove the women and children to a mountain monastery, twenty miles distant. A junk has reported that the Russians have landed field pieces at Sha River, near Hau-Huang (north of Gensan, or Broughton Bay, or the Gulf of Corea), at which place Cossack reinforcements have arrived.

The brigands in the vicinity of New Chwang are becoming bolder.

A St. Petersburg despatch of Saturday, said that General Kuroki had been captured by the Russians. The despatch was without foundation.

Two carrier pigeons arrived at New Chwang on Saturday noon from General Stoessel at Port Arthur. The Russians will not divulge the messages carried by the birds, but declare they contain good information.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Matin of Paris says he learns from a trustworthy source that the advance guard of 14,000 men, under General Stakelberg, sent by General Kuropatkin to the relief of Port Arthur already has reached the entrance to the Liao Ting peninsula and that the bulk of the army is following.

ITALIANS IN MONTREAL.

Situation Continues to Improve Among the Men.

Montreal, June 8.—The Italian situation continues to improve. Mr. Fandori reported yesterday that during the present week he hoped to find situations for about one hundred more men. Thirty left yesterday for the Asbestos Mines, near Sherbrooke, and more are going to-day and to-morrow. It is hoped that by degrees employment will be found for the men and that the serious state of affairs which prevailed last week will have no repitition.

As a result of the publicity given to the condition of the destitute Italians the agent reports that bread, milk and sandwiches, as well as other food, have been sent in for the men. For these favors the Aid Society expresses much gratitude.

TO INVESTIGATE CONDITIONS.

Ottawa, June 8—Mr. W. L. Mackenzie, Deputy Minister of Labor, has been appointed to investigate and report to the Government the story that hundreds of destitute Italians are in Montreal. He will go down on Monday.

IS YET CENTRE OF SERVIAN POLITICS

Assassination of King Alexander Divides the People.

ANNIVERSARY APPROACHES

Window from Which Late King and Queen were Thrown Constantly Open.

Belgrade, June 8.—The anniversary of the "Bloody Night" of June 10 when the King and Queen of Servia were assassinated, is approaching and in political circles there is much talk and conjecture as to the ceremony of coronation which is planned for the king of the Black George line, according to the immemorial custom; but the peasants of the countryside as they drive their lambs heads to market through the steep streets of the old fortress town, for so long the bulwark of Christendom against the Horde, shake their heads and say. 'The last of the Black Georges will never be crowned See, they cannot even keep the window shut."

FATAL WINDOW ALWAYS OPEN

True, day and night, one window is open while all the other windows are shut. The old Konak in which King Alexander and Queen Drage lived has only one eye—all the others are blind and closed—and that is the window through which their mangled and dishonored bodies were thrown by the regicides after their dark deed of midnight murder was accomplished.

Opposite the old Konak is the new palace in which King Peter spends his cheerless days and his unenviable nights. He cannot look out over his garden without seeing the window by which he came to his throne, through which his predecessor passed to his grave. Often, as though the seclusion of his palace was anything but agreeable to him, the king, accompanied only by an adjutant, walks out into the street of Prince Michael and takes a long promenade, sometimes even to the fortress park.

The king is a little mite of a man with a sad, careworn face He can hardly be five feet two inches in height or weigh a hundred pounds. One wonders what has become of the thews and sinews of Black George, who could break men's bones with his hands as though they were flimsy fagots. On such walks he wears the red coat of a Servian general and the astrakan "kalpak" of his guard. His hand is ever twitching at his scanty mustache and he eyes those he meets with an interest and a curiosity which is pathetic. He seems to be asking all whom he meets 'Do you believe that I planned the murders of the "bloody night?"

THE CENTRE OF POLITICS.

For all Servian politics to-day comes back to that question. Does blood guiltiness rest upon the head which is soon to become the Lord's anointed? And every attempt which has been made, and they have been many and ingenious, to change the trend of popular thought and mind has failed. All the fuss and feathers which characterized the court in the days of Alexander have been banished, and King Peter receives them one and all alike, whether they be generals, ministers or swineherds. When Alexander went abroad the streets were cleared and no one ventured to pass. Now any one who will may touch elbows with his King, or look over his head into the bookshop windows.

KING PETER'S POLICY.

If one could leave out the question his relations with the regicides one would say that in every relation, whether internal or social, since his accession, King Peter has conducted himself admirably and as the best precedents of Western Europe indicate a constitutional sovereign should.

It must be admitted, however, that in many ways this exemplary behaviour is far above the heads of his people. For instance, to all applicants for appointment King Peter has a stereotyped reply. He refers them to the minister of the department in which the applicant would serve the country on a salary basis. This does not excite enthusiasm in Belgrade and some Servians at least contrast it very favorably with the tenacity with which poor Alexander would insist upon the appointment of an incompetent letter carrier once he was satisfied that the applicant was a devoted adherent of the house of Obrenovich

But if one leaves out the question which promotion or the punishment of the regicides has created, one ignores the vital feature of Servian politics today in both its national and international aspects. The people are divided There are those who would promote the assassins, but there are more who would punish them with the utmost severity. King Peter, as becomes a constitutional monarch in an almost unprecedented situation, fortunately for the world, has steered a middle course and in this matter at least has pleased no one.

KOUROPATKIN ORDERED TO RELIEVE PORT ARTHUR AT ONCE AT ANY COST

Battle Rumors will not Down--Renewed Reports of a Fight off Port Arthur

Japanese Made a Determined Effort to Advance on Port Arthur by Land --Planned Land and Sea Attack

Tokio, June 7.—Admiral Togo has succeeded in clearing the channel leading into Talienwan. He began locating mines on June 3, and since then he has found and exploded 41. Yesterday a small steamer was absolutely to enter the harbor. The work of locating other mines is now continuing, and it is expected that the waters will be speedily cleared of them. Vice Admiral Togo reports that a southerly gale and a high sea prevailed during the operations, but the men steadfastly continued at their work.

RUMORS OF BATTLE CONTINUE.

Chefoo, June 7.—Preceding a sea attack on Port Arthur last night the Japanese apparently made a determined effort to advance on that stronghold by land. A Chinese junk which left a point three miles south of Port Dalny early Monday morning has arrived here. She reports having heard firing north of Port Arthur from 7 o'clock Monday morning until 2 o'clock that afternoon, by which time she passed out of hearing distance. It would appear that the Japanese planned a land and sea attack on Port Arthur yesterday. The Russians on seeing this sent their fleet out to give battle.

Paris, June 7.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Matin says that a naval officer reports the story already in circulation at Liao Yang, that the Russian squadron at Port Arthur has made a sortie and sunk two Japanese torpedo boats and a battleship of the Shikishima type.

A CORRESPONDENT KILLED.

New Chwang, June 7.—A private telegram just received from Shanhai Kwan says that Lewis Etzel, correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph, and Ernest Brindle, of the London Daily Mail, were fired upon by Chinese soldiers while in a junk between Shwantau Tse and Erdiko. Etzel was killed, but Brindle is believed to be safe. They left here on June 3rd to investigate the movement of some bandits. Etzel was a native of Butler, Penn., and his father resides now either at Denver, Colo., or San Diego Cal.

COSSACKS WERE ROUTED.

Tokio June 7.—A detachment of the Japanese force which landed at Takushan surprised and routed a company of Cossacks on Sunday at Kan Chia Tun, on the Kin Chou road, seven miles northwest of Takushan.

St. Petersburg, June 7 — Viceroy Alexieff has been authorized to inform Gen. Kuropatkin that he (the gener) must make the relief of Port Arthur the first object of his campaign. In consequence Gen Kouropatkin's headquarters staff has moved forty miles south of Liao Yang

St. Petersburg, June 7—A whole fleet of German steamers, converted into cruisers, will sail for the seat of war on June 14, namely Prince Bismarck, Marie Teresa and Belgia They are to be escorted by thirty torpedo boats. Furthermore, eight ships of the line are to be gotten ready by that time, also eleven cruisers of different size

Your correspondent had a talk with a high naval official about the line ships and cruisers. He said. "Only one of the line ships is the equal of the Jap vessels in speed and armament. Of the cruisers there is likewise but one that may be termed first-class."

There is feverish activity in naval circles, but it is doubtful whether the ships will be ready, and particularly that the necessary number of colliers can be procured. Without colliers no fleet, for it will be impossible to buy sufficient coal in Asiatic harbors. The coal question may decide the war on sea to a large extent.

Japan's instinct of expansion is not only opposed to that of Russia. But Japan considers that the Russian expansion is a distinct threat not merely against the expansion of Japan westward, but against the integrity of the Island Empire itself, and even its national existence. Russia has in the past pooh-poohed this view, and declared that Japan had nothing to fear from Russian expansion. Since the war broke out, however, the Russian view has been different. When General Kuropatkin, in the declaration which now seems to have been so plainly and even ridiculously premature, announced his intention of overrunning the Japanese islands and dictating terms of peace at Tokio, he avowed the intention of subjugating Japan, and acknowledged that the Japanese were fighting for national existence. Such a threat against Russia would be even more ridiculous on the part of Japan No JJapanese has been foolish enough to talk about dictating terms of peace at St ,Petersburg. In fact, the Japanese have confined themselves to reporting what they have done, leaving to the Russians to boast what they were going to do. But the Japanese have distinctly proclaimed their objects in the war. These are the control of Corea and equal commercial privileges with Russia in Manchuria. They are already in possession of the first, and they seem to be within plain sight of the second.

CANADA IS LOSING TRADE.

The Commerce of Newfoundland Coming Gradually to United States.

Ottawa, June 8.—"Americans are gradually but surely capturing the trade of Newfoundland, which now shows every sign of commercially drifting away from the empire. Newfoundland's imports from Canada and Great Britain have steadily decreased during ten years, while there is an increase of over $1,250,000 annually in the imports from the United States. Newfoundland has hitherto been the fourth largest consumer of Canadian products. The natural inclination of its trade, and the sympathies of its people now appear to be toward the United States.

"The country benefits by being the slaughter market of both the United States and Canada, and the people know that so long as the island maintains its isolation and keeps aloof from the Canadian confederation it has both American and Canadian houses competing for its trade. Newfoundland fishermen are at present able to purchase the common necessaries of life cheaper than Canadians can buy them in the Dominion."

These are some of the statements recently made by F. M. Jackman, the Minister of Finance and Customs for Newfoundland, and they afford strong reasons why the people of that island so strongly resent the invitation of Canada to come into the confederation.

Newfoundlanders are anxiously striving for reciprocity with the United States. Should this be obtained Newfoundland will practically become a commercial appendage of the United States. Against this situation Canada has resolutely set her face and the strongest influences will undoubtedly be brought to bear upon the imperial authorities to disallow any commercial treaty which would be so prejudicial to the trade interests of the Dominion.

MINERS ARE FOR SOCIALISM

Western Confirms Position Taken at Last Convention.

Denver, Col ,June 8.—The convention of the Western Federation of Miners to-day reaffirmed its political action of the tenth and eleventh annual conventions in favor of socialism. The membership of the executive board was increased from nine to eleven and will include a representative from the seventh district, which was created in the southwest at the last convention, and one representative of the coal miners' unions in the organization.

A SNAKE GOES FOR A STROLL.

Lower New York in Panic on Account of Loose Python.

New York, June 8.—Fifteen feet of snake squirmed complacently out of a third-story window at 248 Grand street yesterday afternoon and its apparent inclination to roam farther threw the neighborhood into a panic. The snake was a huge python, belonging to Louis Rube, an importer of animals and birds, who occupies the entire five-story brick building at that address.

A woman's scream that drew attention to the python. She caught sight of it while passing on the opposite side of the street. The cause of her excitement was quickly communicated to other passers-by, and within a few minutes Grand street, between the Bowery and Chrystie street, was jammed with people. Cars on the Second avenue line, which turn into Grand street off the Bowery, and the Grand street horse cars were blocked by the crowds.

The python, the largest in Rube's collection, is as thick as a man's thigh at the middle of its body. Its destructive power is tremendous and to guard against escape it was in a strong cage behind the third-story window. The upper sash had been lowered to give better ventilation to the animals in the building A stout steel screen is stationed across the window but the bottom of the screen had been warped, leaving a sufficient aperture for the snake to crawl through.

The police reserves were called out before quiet and order were restored

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Man's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

YOU PAY ONLY IF CURED.

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write for It This Very Day.

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and state boards of medical examiners, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has both the method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have strictures that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic troubles, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emissions of parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him, and if he accepts your case for treatment it is not related to a cure, as he does not under any consideration accept incurable cases for treatment; and remember, if he does accept your case you may pay when you are cured. He sends the method, as well as his booklet on the subject, containing the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free, if you simply

JAPANESE AND RUSSIAN EXPANSION.

Japan's instinct of expansion is not only opposed to that of Russia. But Japan considers that the Russian expansion is a distinct threat not merely against the expansion of Japan westward, but against the integrity of the Island Empire itself, and even its national existence. Russia has in the past poo-poohed this view, and declared that Japan had nothing to fear from Russian expansion. Since the war broke out, however, the Russian view has been different. When General Kuropatkin, at the declaration which now seems to have been so plainly and even ridiculously premature, announced his intention of overrunning the Japanese islands and dictating terms of peace at Tokio, he avowed the intention of subjugating Japan, and acknowledged that the Japanese were fighting for national existence. Such a threat against Russia would be even more ridiculous on the part of Japan. No JJapanese has been foolish enough to talk about dictating terms of peace at St. Petersburg. In fact, the Japanese have confined themselves to reporting what they have done, leaving to the Russians to boast what they were going to do. But the Japanese have distinctly proclaimed their objects in the war. These are the control of Corea and equal commercial privileges with Russia in Manchuria. They are already in possession of the first, and they seem to be within plain sight of the second.

RUSSIA'S INTERNAL WEAKNESS.

We do not know how much stock to take in the story of The London Standard that Russia is suffering from serious internal disorders. In spite of the abolition of the censorship it is almost as hard to find out what is going on in Russia as what is going on in Manchuria. The Standard story is that several cities are in a state of tumult and that hundreds of persons have been executed by military law. It is said that the popular discontent is spreading, and that the best troops of the army cannot be sent to Asia because they are needed at home to preserve order.

Some probability is given to this story by the assertion that the troubles are industrial and social rather than political. Evidence is abundant from other sources that the war has paralyzed all business and industry. This is confirmed by Russian papers themselves. Trade with Siberia has been stopped by monopolizing the railway for military purposes. The land and building speculation stimulated by the settlement of Siberia has been checked and serious bankruptcies are resulting in the trades affected. For some reason, perhaps on account of the closing of the eastern markets, the banks and industries of Poland have suffered most by the war, and the embarrassment is reacting upon the whole province. The Black sea and Volga ports which depend much on eastern trade, are greatly depressed. Factories, railroads and dock yards are dismissing employees and working half time. This industrial depression reacts upon the agricultural regions that find a market in these ports so that distress is universal throughout the empire.

Russia is always on the edge of famine. This is one reason why it is always on the edge of revolution. It is entirely credible that the financial and industrial distress resulting from the war has increased political discontent to a point menacing to the order of society and to the stability of government. Russia may be able to repress this discontent by military force, but the effect of the conditions that cause it upon her already weakened finances must be very serious.

Miss Nellie Balsalous Gives Interesting Interview

Tells How she Was Cured of Kidney Disease After Doctors Failed—Ferrozone Alone Responsible For Her Cure—It Cured Permanently.

Miss Nellie M. Barsalous is well known in her native city of Wilmington, where every doctor of reputation tried to cure her. But they didn't succeed. This proves conclusively that Ferrozone must certainly be an absolute cure for kidney trouble.

"Six months ago I noticed lameness and dragging pains across the small of my back," writes Miss Barsalous, "I felt weary and completely worn out. It wasn't work that made me so tired, nothing but defective kidneys. I took the doctors' treatment, and used dozens of articles I read of for the kidneys. But in spite of this I kept getting worse. Then I used Ferrozone. It was three weeks before I was perfectly satisfied it was helping me, but after that I improved steadily and got well. I know of no better remedy than Ferrozone and saved me from Bright's Disease and saved me frm Bright's Disease."

Next to consumption, kidney disease is the most fatal. Many a life has been lost simply because the unfortunate victim of deranged kidneys wasn't aware of his perilous condition in time.

Here is a simple test. Put some urine in a glass and let it stand for twenty-four hours. If it shows germs gloating about, looks milky or cloudy, if it contains any sediment, your kidneys are diseased. Don't risk your life with doubtful remedies, use Ferrozone, which doctors admit is the quickest and most certain cure. Ferrozone contains in scientific combination the most valuable agents known for the kidneys. This explains its marvelous cures and universal success. Ferrozone is guaranteed and sold at 50c per box, or six boxes for $2.50, by all druggists. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co. Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

A FAMOUS SOCIETY.

Where London's Famous Preachers and Teachers Gathered.

The closing decades of the last century comprehended the palmy period of a distinguished little society in London which might have been described as a club for the teachers and preachers of their age, secular or religious. Such indeed was the Metaphysical society. Its organizing spirit had perhaps been James Knowles. If its most famous member were found in W. E. Gladstone, its leading spirits, who took the most active part in its discussions, were Cardinal Manning and Richard Holt Hutton, the editor of the Spectator. James Martineau, Matthew Arnold and William George Ward, the erewhile mathematical tutor of Balliol, as well as the poet Browning, may sometimes have been of the company, but the chief figures were those already mentioned. In his earlier days Mutton, like so many reflective men of his day, was the disciple of F. D. Maurice. Then among his associates were J. M. Ludlow and Thomas Hughes, the author of "Tom Brown's School Days." Afterward R. H. Hutton's mental master would have been recognized by him in his brother member of the Metaphysical society, James Martineau.

The great incidents in its proceedings at this time were the high speculative arguments wherein different aides were taken by teachers of their generation so mutually opposed and so individually distinguished as Manning and Martineau, upon very rare occasions, it may be, by Gladstone, Browning and, I rather think, once or twice by Tennyson himself. The extraordinary magnetism exercised by Martineau over his personal following was perceptible in his manner with casual acquaintances. As such, it was realized very many years ago by the present writer when, as an exceedingly young man fresh from college, he was concerned in preparing some examination questions, in which his venerable seniors, Maurice and Martineau, with one of two more, were to have a voice.—T. H. S. Escott in Chambers'.

He Was Awful Homely.

One day while on a hunting expedition in the Alps Victor Emmanuel met an old woman gathering brambles. She inquired of the stranger whether it was true, as she had heard, that the king was in the neighborhood. If so, was there any chance of seeing him?

"Yes," said his majesty, "he is about. Would you like to see him?"

The old woman declared that few sights would give her more pleasure.

"Well, mother, I am the king."

She stared at him for a moment and broke into a grin.

"Get out with you, jester! Do you think a nice woman like the queen would marry a chap like you, with that hideous mug?"

The king was not offended. Perhaps the compliment to his wife mollified him. He gave the woman a piece of money, with which he was always free, and passed along.

Lightning Roasted Duck.

An extraordinary effect of lightning is reported from Lake Grandlieu, in the Nantes region. A violent tempest burst over the lake, with vivid lightning and thunder. A number of boats were on the lake, and while they were hurrying to bank there was a tremendous peal of thunder. Almost immediately there fell among the boats the dead bodies of a large flock of wild ducks, some of them roasted to a nicety, and some charred to a cinder. Roast duck cooked by lightning reads like a novelty, even in the freaks of meteorology. If it could only be adapted to the "quick lunch" system!

More Important.

"With your daughter as my wife, sir, I can conquer the world."

"But that isn't the question. Can you make enough money to keep yourself in clothes?"—Life.

Industrial Economy.

A locomotive engineer on an eastern railroad said one day to his two firemen, "Suppose you fellows work as if you, and not the company, were paying the coal bills." During six months, merely by careful firing, the men caused a saving in coal, over the average consumption of the engine, equal to almost four times the amount of wages paid the men for that period. The engine was the same; the men worked differently.

He Had a Way With Him.

Jane Seymour was boasting to Anne Boleyn.

"Henry has just asked me for my hand," she remarked.

"That's nothing," retorted the queen, "he has just asked me for my head."

Subsequent events showed both ladies granted the request.

Not Proposing.

Maud—I'm afraid I intruded when I dropped in on you unexpectedly the other evening. Mr. Spoonamore looked as if he were proposing. Mabel—Well, he wasn't. He was only posing.

His Sense of Feeling.

"Are you sure that mule is blind?"

"Yes, sah—in his eyes he is, but you doh orter see him feel for you wid his heels."

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district, The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as a safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups; namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 30 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 570 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflict as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented.

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78¼ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented.

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory..... .....758½ acres
" " Mill and building sites..... 55 "
" " Timber properties..... 90 "

Total 903¼ acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

Complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government from which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

" " Machinery paid for and to be installed - - 6,000 00

$99,000 00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $26,000 00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet. We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 200 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built.

In the meantime only the high grade Smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will aid us materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905, and be continuous thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock, the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3.50 to $4.00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our stockholders These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments. By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18.00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of production is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

why the secret had been revealed, and involuntarily she exclaimed: "Oh, had I told you first this never need have been," and then hurriedly she explained to the repentant Hagar how at the very moment when the dread confession was made, she Maggie Miller, was free from Henry Warner.

From the window Maggie saw in the distance the servant who had charge of Hagar, and dreading the presence of a third person, she arose to go. Offering her hand to Hagar, she said "Good-by. I may never see you again, but if I do not remember that I forgive you freely."

"You are not going away, Maggie. Oh, are you going away!" and the crippled arms were stretched imploringly toward Maggie, who answered "Yes, Hagar, I must go. Honor requires me to tell Madam Conway who I am, and after that, you know I cannot stay. I shall go to my brother."

Three times old Hagar essayed to speak, and at last, between a whisper and a moan, she found strength to say "Will you kiss me once, Maggie, darling? 'Twill be something to remember in the lonesome nights when I am all alone. Just once, Maggie. Will you?"

Maggie could not refuse, and gliding to the bowed woman's side, she put back the soft hair from off the wrinkled brow, and left there to oxen- of her forgiveness.

The last May sun had set, and ere the first June morning rose Maggie Miller would be nowhere found in the home her presence had made so bright. Alone, with no eye upon her save that of the Most High, she had visited the two graves, and while her heart was bleeding at every throb, had wept her last adieu over the sleeping dust so long held sacred as her mother's. Then kneeling at the other grave, she murmured, "Forgive me, Hester Hamilton, if in this parting hour my heart clings most to her whose memory I was first taught to revere, and if in the better world you know and love each other, oh, will both bless and pity me, poor, wretched Maggie Miller!"

Softly the night air moved through the musical pine overshadowing the humble grave, while the moonlight, flashing from the tall marble, which stood a sentinel over the other mound, bathed Maggie's upturned face as with a flood of glory, and her throbbing heart grew still as if, indeed, at that hushed moment the two mothers had come to bless their child. The parting with the dead was over, and Margaret sat again in her room. She did not add to her letter another line telling of her discovery, for she did not think of it; her mind was too intent upon escaping unobserved; and when sure the family had retired, she moved cautiously down the stairs, noiselessly unlocked the door, and without once daring to look back, lest she should waver in her purpose, she went forth, heartbroken and alone, from what for eighteen happy years had been her home. Very rapidly she proceeded, coming at last to an open field through which the railroad ran, the depot being nearly a quarter of a mile away. Not until then had she reflected that her appearance at the station at that hour of the night would excite suspicion, and she was beginning to feel uneasy, when suddenly around a curve the cars appeared in view. Fearing lest she should be too late, she quickened her footsteps, when to her great surprise she saw that the train was stopping! But not for her they waited. In the bright moonlight the engineer had discovered a body lying across the track and had stopped the train in time to save the life of the man, who, stupefied with drunkenness, had fallen asleep. The movement startled the passengers, many of whom alighted and gathered around the inebriate.

In the meantime, Margaret had come near, and knowing she could not now reach the depot in time, she mingled unobserved in the crowd, and entering the car, took her seat near the door. The train at last moved on, and as at the station no on saw the agent was in waiting, it is not strange that the conductor passed unheeded the veiled figure which in the dark corner sat ready to pay her fare.

"He will come to me by and by," thought Maggie, but he did not, and when Worcester was reached she was still debtor to the Boston & Albany Railroad for the sum of seventy cents. Bewildered and uncertain what to do next, she stepped upon the platform, deciding finally to remain at the depot until morning, when a train would leave for Leominster, where she confidently expected to find her brother. Taking a seat in the ladies' room, she abandoned herself to her sorrow, wondering what Theo would say could she see her then. But Theo, though dreaming, it may be, of Maggie, dreamed not that she was near, and so the night wore on, Margaret sleeping toward daylight, and dreaming, too, of Arthur Carrollton, who she thought had followed her—nay, was bending over her now and whispering in her ear, "Wake, Maggie, wake."

Starting up, she glanced anxiously around, uttering a faint cry when she saw that it was not Arthur Carrollton, but a dark, rough-looking stranger, who rather rudely asked "where she wished to go?"

"To Leominster," she answered, turning her face fully toward the man, who became instantly respectful, telling her when the train would leave, and saying that she must go to another depot, at the same time asking if she had not better wait at some hotel.

But Maggie preferred going at once to the Fitchburg depot, which she accordingly did, and drawing her veil over her face, lest some one of her few acquaintances in the city should recognize her, she sat there until the time appointed for the cars to leave. Then, weary and faint, she entered the train, her spirits in a measure rising as she felt that she was drawing near to those who would love her for what she was and not for what she had been. Rose would comfort her, and already her heart bounded with the thought of seeing one who she believed was her brother's wife, for Henry had written that ere this his homeward voyage was made, Rose would be his bride.

Ah, Maggie! there is for you a greater happiness in store—not a brother, but a sister—your father's child is there to greet your coming. And even at this early hour her snow-white fingers are arranging the fair June blossoms into bouquets, with which she adorns her house, saying to him who hovers at her side, "that somebody, she knows not whom, is surely coming there to-day" and then, with a blush stealing over her cheek, she adds: "I wish it might be Margaret," while Henry, with a peculiar twist in his comical mouth, winds his arm around her waist, and playfully responds, "Any one save her."

CHAPTER XXI.

On a cool piazza overlooking a handsome flower garden, the breakfast table was tastefully arranged. It was Rose's idea to have it there, and in her cambric wrapper, her golden curls combed smoothly back, and her blue eyes shining with the light of a new joy, she occupies her accustomed seat beside one who for several happy weeks has called her his, loving her more and more each day, and wondering how thoughts of any other could ever have filled his heart. There was much to be done about his home, so long deserted, and as Rose was determined upon a trip to the seaside, he had made arrangements to be absent from his business for two months or more, and was now enjoying all the happiness of a quiet, domestic life, free from care of any kind. He had heard of Maggie's illness, but she was better now, he supposed, and when Theo hinted vaguely that a marriage between her and Arthur Carrollton was not at all improbable, he hoped it would be so, for the Englishman, he knew, was far better adapted to Margaret than he had ever been. Of Theo's hints he was speaking to Rose, as they sat together at breakfast, and she had answered, "It will be a splendid match," when the door-bell rang, and the servant announced, "A lady in the parlor, who asked for Mr. Warner."

"I told you some one would come," said Rose, "do pray see who

To the members of the Board of Education.

Gentlemen,—Your committee appointed to confer with the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough with respect to the purchase of a part of the property known as the Separate school property, beg leave to report as follows:

Your committee beg leave to report that they entered into negotiations with the Mayor and Council of the Town of Peterborough and attached hereto will be found a copy of their communication, which speaks for itself.

Your committee recommend that they be authorized to act jointly with the committee of the Town Council in closing the purchase of said property and take such steps as are necessary in the interests of the Board for the carrying out of the same.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

MR. AOYAGI IN VICTORIA.

Victoria, B.C., June 7—Mr. T. Aoyagi, a specially instructed commissioner of the department of agriculture of Japan sent to Canada to investigate all conditions under which immigrants from Japan are received in Canada, has arrived here on his way to Ottawa. The objection by Canada to the competition in Japanese labor has led to Mr Aoyagi's trip. "Our government will not have our people go where they are unwelcome," said the emigration commissioner. At present we refuse to issue passports to any save merchants, students, professional men, etc. If Japanese labor is coming into Western Canada, as alleged, or into the Western States, there must be some evasion of our emigration regulations which can not and will not be allowed."

A RARE CHANCE

FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.

BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non-assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details. The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion. Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

Property includes six full claims, with a 38 foot ore body extending across 3300 feet of this property, determined by a tunnel 500 feet and open cuts and shafts every one in one. Why does St. Louis Gold Mining Co. offer the investor a chance for a money.

1. Do you know that its title is free and clear?
2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.

CHANGES IN THE ANATOMY OF MAN

The Human Beings Not Now What They were in Older Times.

REMARKABLE STATEMENT.

London, June 7.—The doctors for the last few years have contended that the vermiform appendix so prolific a cause for the disease known as appendicitis, is an absolutely useless part of the human anatomy. There is every reason to believe that this is not the only useless appendage humanity has possessed, although nearly all the others have worn away.

Has anyone ever complimented you on the beauty of your upper eye or inquired after your gill? For, though you may not know it, you number these among the disused features of your body.

In the centre of your brain, looking vaguely skyward, lie the atrophied remains of a third eye, which, it is supposed, was actually one of man's most useful features at some previous state of development. It is known as the pineal gland, though covered by skin and is found in an almost perfect condition in certain lizards.

SUPERFLUOUS GILLS AND EARS.

You have four gills, or bronchial clefts, which, however, are now closed up and useless. You originally had six, but two of them, by forming into your ear and your mouth respectively, turned themselves to some account. However before your lungs developed and became fitted to carry on your breathing system the work was done by the four gills which have since childhood ceased to develop and become closed up.

Your ears—that is, the outer ones—are quite useless, save as an ornament. All the work of hearing is done by the middle ear or tympanum and the internal ear. The other feature is purely a pleasant sort of finishing touch to your hearing system. The muscles of the outer ear are powerless and are not under your control.

Are you aware that you have a miniature grand piano in your auditory nerve, which is tuned up to every note in music? This is known as Corti's organ, and consists of a series of tiny hairs, which vibrate on the drum of your ear and enable you to distinguish the differences of sound.

SOME ARE USEFUL.

As sometimes when you strike a note on the piano some ornament in the room will be found to sing with it, so each of these hairs inside your ear vibrate in sympathy with some musical sound corresponding with it.

An appendix is generally a useful thing when applied to books, but man's appendix is not only useless but very troublesome. This is the remains of an intestine supposed to have formed part of our ancestors. Though many other parts of the body are practically useless, they are supposed to have been useful at some time, but scientists cannot trace that the vermiform appendix was ever of any service to man.

Toe nails are entirely useless and toes are quite superfluous. A man could get along as well without toes. In fact, a doctor recently said that he had removed eight of a man's toes without any inconvenience being suffered and the lower got along quite as well without them.

THEIR USES DISAPPEARING.

Now that nearly all our food is chopped up for us and we do not have to bite through hard substances teeth are gradually decaying. The fact that the teeth of our ancestors 400 or 500 years ago were infinitely bigger than our own shows that nature is gradually taking away those organs.

Tonsils, too, are almost useless and fulfill no appreciable object in the body. People read and get along quite well without them and a very large proportion of the population have had them removed.

Both the hair and the skin have ended their days of usefulness to the human race. The hair was intended to cover our heads from the heat of the sun. We cover up the hair and by shutting it off from the exposure which nature intended it to have we are gradually but surely losing this ornament, and it is estimated that in time we shall cease to grow it.

DOMINION DAY IN TOWN

Efforts Being Made to Have a Big Celebration

Efforts are being made by several prominent citizens to organize for a big celebration in Peterborough on Friday, July 1st, (Dominion Day.) Mr. J. M. Brooks, who is always active in any laudable effort of this kind, says that there should be no trouble in having a good programme of athletic sports for that day.

Mr. Peter Campbell, who acted as treasurer of a former celebration committee, said that the matter was being considered by Mr. Robert Fair, Mr. A. H. Stratton and other members of last year's Dominion Day celebration committee. We hope the matter will take form at once, as there is little time to lose.

A SAD DEATH

Mrs. Frederic Dunbar Passes Away Yesterday at Her Home in Smith

It is with profound regret we record the demise of Christina Willan, wife of Mr. Frederic Dunbar, of Smith, at the age of 41 years.

Besides a sorrowing husband five children, two boys and three girls, the youngest nine months old, are left to mourn the loss of a kind and tender mother. The late Mrs. Dunbar was a daughter of the late Mr. T.M. Wilan of South Monaghan. Last fall deceased had a severe attack of typhoid fever from which she never regained strength and gradually sank until the end came yesterday. She was a member of the Methodist church, Lakefield, and her death has caused much sorrow in the community in which she resided.

The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Leggott, of Lakefield, and the funeral will leave the family residence, Lot 21, Con. 6, Smith, to-morrow at 1.30 p.m.; and proceed to Little Lake cemetery for interment.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

NEWS BY CABLE TO-DAY; A DEFENCE OF EMPIRE.

Interesting View of Admiral Sir John Colomb--Lord Beaconsfield's Life to be Soon Published.

London, June 6.—Sir John Colomb M.P., writing on Imperial defence says the United Kingdom cannot live without the freedom of the sea, and the British Empire would cease to be a reality the moment control of the sea was in serious jeopardy. Referring to the committee on defence, he says the immense advantage of the committee is that the defensive policy of the Empire will no longer be ruled by a department purely military in its character, and without any knowledge whatever of naval principle and practice. He thinks that conscription is impossible.

General Hutton's Troubles.

London, June 6.—The Westminster Gazette says that General Sir E. T. H. Hutton's conflict with Senator Neild is not the first of the kind he has had. Some time ago Gen Hutton tried to compel the editor of The Melbourne Evening Herald to disclose the name of the writer of some military articles, and General Hutton was sharply rapped on the knuckles by the Minister of Defence, who pointed out that no journalist could become a citizen soldier if he were held accountable for the military opinions expressed in the paper with which he happened to be connected.

The "Woolen Crisis in Canada."

London, June 6.—A Manchester correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, writing as to the woolen crisis in Canada, says that were the manufacturers free to speak their minds, they would discourage the idea of higher tariff. Mills producing all wool goods are prosperous, and turning out an article that the Leeds and Bradford manufacturers concede they cannot touch.

Tibetans Have Chosen War.

London, June 6.—The Times today has the following from the British camp at Chunglo, near Gyangtse, Tibet dated June 2. Colonel Younghusband's letter demanding that the Amban come to Gyangtse, with qualified Tibetan representatives, to settle the outstanding difficulties before June 25 was returned this morning from the jong unopened and without comment. The Tibetans have, therefore, deliberately chosen war, and must accept the responsibility of the policy now forced upon us. The military situation has undergone considerable change in the course of the last ten days. The plain of Gyangtse has been abandoned, and the garrisons of the villages attempting to cut off our communications in the neighborhood of naini have been entirely withdrawn. The Tibetans are now concentrated in the jong, the monastery and the town of Gyangtse. Another concentration is rumored tween Rajung and Krangma, and the reported reoccupation of Karola is confirmed.

Germany Wants Tariff Peace.

London, June 6.—The Berlin correspondent of the London Sunday Times says that German politicians expect the coming meeting of the British and German monarchs at Kiel will be followed by the speedy settlement of the Canadian tariff difficulty.

A Baby Admiral.

London, June 6.—The youngest British admiral is only eight months old. The infant Marquis of Donegall is the hereditary Lord High Admiral of Lough Neagh, but the office carries with it neither emoluments nor duties. It is an obsolete naval command, which dates from the time of Queen Elizabeth, when it was necessary to maintain a naval force on Lough Neagh to overawe the natives of Tyrone, Derry, Armagh, and Antrim, with whom several actions were fought.

The Rush to Canada.

London, June 6.—The London Daily Mail, referring to the wonderful emigration to Canada, says that before many weeks have passed immigrants will be arriving from all parts of the world at the rate of a thousand a day. Never before in the history of the world, perhaps, has any country been peopled with such astonishing swiftness. The Mail advises no man to settle in the Canadian West without £200 of his own.

Provincial Appointments

The following appointments are announced in the Ontario Gazette:—F. W. Jeffery, Police Magistrate for Midland; John Duke of Hartfell, Police Magistrate for a portion of the Parry Sound district; his Honor Judge Douglas, Surrogate Judge for Haldimand; John W. Bilton, of Florence, bailiff of the Third Division Court of Lambton, and Wm. Cusick of Merrickville, bailiff of the Fifth Division Court.

A Change in Firm Names

Lindsay Post: The business of the old established firm of Dundas & Flavelle Bros., Lindsay, has been taken over by the Flavelles Limited. The directors of the new joint are Wm. Flavelle, J. D. Flavelle and Wm. Dundas. The produce and export business conducted by the old firm has also been turned into a joint stock company, under the title "Flavelles Limited." The directors of the latter are Wm. Flavelle, J. D. Flavelle and H. B. Cleaves. Here's hoping that the new companies may multiply the successes of the solid and reputable firms they replace.

Mr. Good Remembered

On Saturday afternoon a number of the members of Court Langton, C. O. F., waited upon Mr. Ezra Good, late of the firm of Willis & Good, but who, severing his connection with that firm, has left for Didbury, N. W.T., where he, with Mr. C. B. Robertson, will engage in ranching, and presented him with a pipe expressive of their regret at his departure from town. Mr Good, who was taken entirely by surprise, expressed his thanks in appropriate words for the kind token of remembrance.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:—The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 288 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1890.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company

of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless y eally are interested, because on waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9 000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $36 25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 50 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary, Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

75 Cents Per Share, Par Value $1.00

INVESTORS are afforded every opportunity for the strictest investigation regarding the property and the reputation of the officers and directors. Highest banking references.

THE WAR LOSING FAVOR IN RUSSIA.

Fever of Patriotism is Queer Way to Despondency.

THE NATION'S TROUBLES.

Socialists and Other Disturbers of the Public Peace Have not been Slow to Take Advantage of the Nation's Troubles.

St. Petersburg, June 7—The high fever of patriotism is fast decreasing and Russians are lapsing into their customary indolence. The excitement at first was tremendous and the grandest ladies in the land led the way in arranging the work of parties for providing warm clothing for the soldiers and various comforts for the sailors of the fleets.

But as the days passed and no news of importance was received a reaction set in. At the present moment the war cannot be said to be a popular one among the Russians, and there is much cynical and skeptical talk as to whether many subscriptions that have been invited and are pouring in will ever reach their destination.

Socialistic and other agitators have not been slow to take advantage of the opportunities offered and proclamations, typewritten or illicitly printed are being scattered broadcast throughout the land, especially in workshops and factories. One hears, too, a good deal about mysterious disappearances and midnight seizures, and if agitators are busy the secret police are more on the alert than ever.

There can be no doubt that a wave of feeling hostile to America is sweeping over the Russian empire. There are signs, however, that this wave of ill-feeling is spending itself.

The Novoe Vremya one of the leading St. Petersburg dailies, published a curious letter from an American correspondent the other day. In this letter the correspondent begged that too much importance should not be attached to the utterances of certain leading American newspapers, saying that certain of these are "suborned by wealthy Jews and that naturally the attitude adopted by these papers will be unfavorable to Russia."

TO REVOLUTIONIZE INDUSTRY.

New Process for the Manufacture of Steel Discovered.

New York, June 7.—Steel and iron men throughout the world will be interested to learn, according to the Herald that James Gayley, vice-president of the U. S. Steel Corporation, after a long series of experiments, has practically perfected a new process for making steel which he believes will greatly reduce the cost of manufacture.

Briefly stated, the Gayley process is a modification of the Bessemer process, which revolutionized the iron and steel industry. The process will be applied in the manufacture of pig iron as well as steel.

THE INTERNAL TROUBLES COME

Russia Is Being Badly Torn by Many Unfriendly Elements.

London, June 7.—Japanese victories are turning English thoughts more and more to Russia's internal situation. The Russian government has adopted its best to shut the door against English newspaper correspondents. The Times correspondents are still forbidden, but alarming information has come through this week upon which the Standard places reliance, that Russia's embarrassments are giving new opportunities to disaffected elements from Poland to Russian Armenia, and from Finland to the Jewish Pale, while socialism and liberal ideas are making steady progress.

While the war lasts, the instinct of national self-preservation will probably keep down revolution, even in states whose general conditions makes for revolution, but a new system will arise when the war is over, and especially in view of its probable result, in expelling Russia finally from Corea and Manchuria, and seriously limiting her Pacific deals, which so greatly helped to divert Russia's thoughts from her home troubles.

More Pay

Soldiers pay has been advanced this morning good conduct and long pay, which, in case of non coms and men of three years standing will mean an addition of fifty cents per diem. Instead of fifty cents per day this will give the private one dollar a day, and the sergeants a dollar and a half per day. The men who have not entered their third year's service will share proportionately in the extra allowance.

ENDOWMENTS AT LIFE RATES

HOW do the rates compare with those of other companies?

The rates are the same as the principal Canadian Companies charge for "Whole Life" and "Twenty Payment Life" policies

WHERE can these policies be secured?

From any agent of the LONDON LIFE.

WHEN do these policies become endowments and are the endowments guaranteed or estimated?

The policies mature as endowments at about expectation of life and are absolutely guaranteed.

WHAT kind of settlement does the LONDON LIFE give at the end of twenty years?

FIVE OPTIONS or methods of settlement are offered at the end of twenty years.

The guaranteed cash surrender is the largest in Canada for the premium paid.

WHAT options are given policy holders in case of lapse or surrender

The policy holder may select one of four options.

1st. PAID UP INSURANCE for reduced amounts payable as endowments at maturity period.

2nd. EXTENDED INSURANCE for a fixed number of years and months for full amount of policy less premiums and interest thereon unpaid.

3rd. CASH LOANS.

CATARRH

RUINS HEALTH AND BEAUTY CAUSES THE WEAK TO DIE AND INVARIABLY LEADS TO CONSUMPTION.

Thousands Annually Cured by Catarrhosone

MR. ARCHIBALD BASS, of New Harbor, writes; "Catarrhosone proved itself a remarkable remedy in my case. I suffered terribly from catarrh in the throat and my nose was so stuffed up every morning I could hardly draw my breath. The mucous dropped back into my stomach, spoilt my digestion and kept me sick all the time. Catarrhosone relieved in a short time and cured perfectly."

MRS. W. F. BREACH, of Chapman, writes; "I have used a great many catarrh remedies but none of them ever helped like Catarrhosone. It cleared out my nose and throat and stopped a ringing noise in my ears. Catarrhosone is very pleasant and simple to use and many times better than any other catarrh remedy."

MR. LAWRENCE KENNEDY, of New West Annan, says; "For three years I tried doctors but my catarrh grew worse and worse. I got no relief till I used Catarrhosone. It was not very long in curing me so perfectly that the disease has never returned."

MR. JOSEPH De ROCHE, one of the most prominent and highly respected citizens of Loggieville, N.B., says; "I used Catarrhosone for a sore throat, cold in the head and head ache. I always felt relief immediately. It cured the discharge from my nose and restored my sense of smell lost through the effects of catarrh."

Catarrhosone is simple, convenient and pleasant. It is warranted to instantly relieve and permanently cure.

Centenarian Dead

Joseph Quigley died at the House of Providence on Monday morning at the great age of 105 years. Both he and his wife came here from Victoria Road about three years ago. Deceased was born in Ireland and had been remarkably smart until shortly before his end came. He is survived by his wife who is still at the institution, and one son.

Druggists Met Yesterday

The druggists of the District met here yesterday to endeavor to further their objects as an association, and to appoint a representative in the Council of the College of Pharmacy. About forty delegates were in attendance. Yesterday afternoon they enjoyed an outing on the river, on the steamer City of Peterborough as guests of the local association.

Obituary

Mrs. Chas Brown died at the residence of Mr. A. D. Towle, yesterday. Deceased was the daughter of Mr. W. S. Holl, of Mannsville, N.Y., and had resided in Peterborough about four years. She was married to Mr. Brown about five years ago, and after she came they continued to make their home with Mr. Towle. Her remains will leave this morning for Mannsville, where the interment takes place

Fatal Accident

George F. Landry, a call boy at the Lindsay station, met with a fatal accident on Friday afternoon last. It appears that a long double-header was making ready to pull out for Belleville. He endeavored to get across before the train started, and swung himself up on the bumpers. Just as he was reaching for the grab bars on the outer edges of the cars to assist his leap outward the train commenced to move, and in his haste the boy missed the bars and fell between the cars. One wheel passed over his right leg in a diagonal direction, from the thigh to a little above the knee, and the second wheel caught the lower part of his left foot. The shouts of horror by those who were standing by caused the engineers to apply the brakes, and the unfortunate lad was picked up. He was taken to the hospital, and despite medical aid died Saturday morning.

The Change in Civic Holiday.

The City Fathers will do a wise action in permanently changing Civic Holiday from the third Thursday in August to the first Monday of the same month. This will allow of a more equal distribution of our summer public "days off," the date of which will then read 24th May, 1st July, first Monday in August and the first Monday in September. At present there is not a sufficient interval between Civic Holiday, third Thursday in August, and Labor Day, the first Monday in September. Originally the Council fixed on the date of our present Civic Holiday before Labor Day was proclaimed a statutory holiday; they had no idea then that a statutory holiday would be declared for a day so closely following the one they had picked upon for Peterborough's own special day of freedom from business cares and worries.

Before a permanent date for Civic Holiday was provided for by by-law, the City Fathers each year found it an extremely difficult task confronting them to arrange a date to meet the wishes of different societies arranging for out-of-town excursions. So many dates were petitioned for that some people were naturally disappointed in the day selected. Hence it is certainly a good thing to have a permanently appointed day for our Civic Holiday, and the change this year in order to bring the Governor-General's Foot Guards here on August 1st surely cannot be complained of. As to making this date permanent we can see no valid reason for objection thereto, and as the contemplated by-law providing for this change will not come up until the next regular meeting of the Council, ample time is afforded for any petition or petitions against the same.

SOVEREIGN INSPECTED

Hull and Boiler Found to be Very Satisfactory

There were three steamers at the Peterborough wharf on Monday.

The officers of the Sovereign will be: Captain Copperthwaite; Mr. C. J. Snyder, mate; Mr. Jas. Logan, engineer. The boat was inspected and the Hull and boiler pronounced satisfactory, by Mr. Thompson

The City of Peterborough was also at the dock. She is being commanded by Capt. Jno. Ire

The Water Lily came in from Idyl Wild with freight.

AN ADDITIONAL TRAIN

The Grand Trunk will Put a New Passenger Train On

On Monday, June 13, the Grand Trunk Railway Company will put another passenger train on the road, between Toronto and Peterborough, which it will continue during the summer months. This will be appreciated by the public in general, but more particularly by residents of towns through which the line passes. The new train will consist of a combination smoker and baggage car, vestibuled first-class coach as well as a parlor car.

It is expected it will leave Peterborough about 7.20 a.m. and reach Toronto at 10.10, via Lindsay and Blackwater Junction. Returning it will leave Toronto at 7.25 p.m. and reach town at 10.25. This is to be in addition to the regular service.

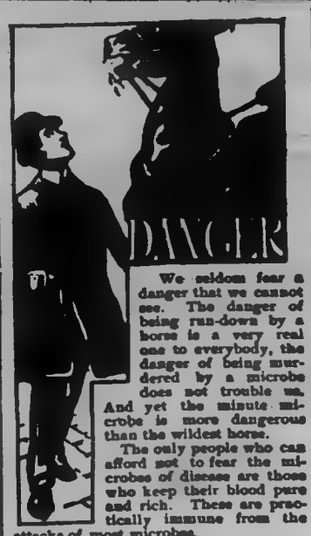
BOY WITH STOLEN HORSE

Captured by Constable Adams Near Fenelon Falls

Speaking of the theft the Port Hope Guide says:

"Mr. Adams, of the Peterborough Police force was in town yesterday in search of a young lad about 9 years of age who had on Saturday last stolen a horse and buggy, the property of a Peterborough gentleman. The offender left Peterborough about 7 o'clock Saturday evening, but Constable Adams was unable to secure any trace of him. Constable Gamble made a thorough search about town, but was unable to locate him. Constable Adams returned yesterday by the western gravel, intending to stop at Millbrook and other places along the way."

Constable Adams succeeded in capturing the boy in the vicinity of Fenelon Falls, and brought him back to town yesterday afternoon. The animal is said to be pretty badly used up.



We seldom fear a danger that we cannot see. The danger of being run-down by a horse is a very real one to everybody, the danger of being murdered by a microbe does not trouble us. And yet the minute microbe is more dangerous than the wildest horse.

The only people who can afford not to fear the microbes of disease are those who keep their blood pure and rich. These are practically immune from the attacks of most microbes.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies and enriches the blood, and gives the body a vigorous vitality. It cures scrofula, eczema, boils, pimples and other eruptive diseases which are caused by impure blood.

"I had been troubled for about four years with eczema, or a skin disease, which at times was almost unbearable as it would itch so," writes Mr. John Larison, of 115 Powhattan St., Dallas, Texas. "I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and after using five bottles found that I was entirely cured. Please accept many thanks."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the blood.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation and its consequences.

SALVATIONIST REMEMBERED

Bandmaster Green Presented with an Address and Money

At the conclusion of the Festival held in the Salvation Army Barracks, on Monday evening, Bandmaster Greene was presented with an address and purse of money. The presentation was read by Mr. Payton. Following is the address:

Peterborough, June 6th, 1904.

To Brother J. Mitchell Greene,

S. A. Bandmaster.

Dear Comrade,—We, the members of the S. A. Band desire to take this opportunity on the eve of your departure to London, England, to attend the great International Demonstration, (S. A. Congress) of presenting you with this purse of money as a small token of esteem in which you are held by the members of the Band. We only wish it was more, as we feel you are deserving of it.

We pray that you will have a pleasant and profitable trip and that God will be with you all the way, and He will abundantly bless you and bring you safe home again, full of faith and the Glory of God, and with a renewed determination to lead us on to greater victories.

Goodbye and God Bless You. Till We Meet Again.

WM. E. PAYTON,
W. NORTHCOTT.

Mr. Greene acknowledged the kindness of his fellow-bandsmen in a few words expressing his deep gratitude for the kindness of his associates.

Mr. W. Northcote, deputy bandmaster, will have charge of the band in Mr. Greene's absence.

Mr. Greene left for England yesterday morning to attend the International Congress.

RUSSIAN BLUNDERS LEAD TO RUIN--HELPS JAPS TO VICTORY

Incompetency of Russian General Helps the Yellow Men to Win

With the Fall of Port Arthur the War will be in the Acute Stage

General Kuroki's headquarters in the Field in Manchuria via Nagasaki, Japan, June 9.—On summing up on the spot the conditions and results of the battle on the Yalu, I am forced to the conclusion that the defeat of the Russians by the Japanese was due to the incompetency of the general commanding the Russian force, General Sassulitch. His incompetency is betrayed, first, by his blunder in assuming that the principal resistance to the advancing Japanese army would have to be before Antung. On this mistaken assumption he constructed there—and there alone—strong entrenchments and other earthwork, leaving the positions to the north of Antung, where the Japanese really made their crossing, deficient in men. The hastily erected intrenchments at the point actually attacked were no protection against the hurricane of Japanese shell and shrapnel.

Second, by his failure to protect his left flank.

Third, by his failure to occupy the hills to the right and left of the road through the defile at Hametan so as to protect the retreat of his forces. The blunder allowed the Japs to occupy those heights and caused a frightful loss of life to the Russians, for their helpless troops were caught by their own baggage trains and artillery congested in a narrow valley, where they were held as in a pocket.

Fourth, by his failure to bring up his reserves to support his retreat by occupying positions on his rear and left wing.

Fifth, by his holding 5,000 men in their positions to make battle against an overwhelming force and retaining his artillery instead of retreating on the night of April 30, when he must have discovered that it would be impossible to hold his position under the scattering fire of the Japanese artillery and against the attack of the Japanese troops which were just across the river in great force.

These blunders of the Russian commander, however, do not detract from the glory of the Japanese victory. There is no discounting the brilliancy of the military manoeuvres of the Japanese, the secrecy and the rapidity with which they make large movements, the expertness with which they bridge rivers or the accuracy and the efficiency of their artillery fire.

Laying off 75,000 Employees.

New York, June 8.—Following the order of the Pennsylvania railroad reducing its force of workmen, which went into effect May 21, similar steps have been taken by nearly all the railroads in this country, aggregating a prospective laying off of 75,000 employees. The cuts affect especially the freight departments and shops. The Erie has bulletined a reduction in its locomotive shops at Susquehana. Most of the notices will have gone into effect by Goderich, Ont., and at the foot by June 10.

JAPANESE BOMBARDED PORT ARTHUR AGAIN

Warships Replied to Forts for Several Hours on Monday--A Reported Land Attack

Che Foo, June 9.—A despatch boat has arrived here from the vicinity of Port Arthur. After the boat left Che Foo Saturday, one of the dense fogs, common in these waters at this season, wrapped the ocean in impenetrable darkness and compelled the boat to anchor among the Miaotao Islands. All throughout Sunday the fog prevailed, and those on board the despatch boat witnessed the narrow escape of four Japanese destroyers that almost ran ashore on the islands.

Sailing close to Port Arthur, Monday, no manifestations of activity was found until evening, when the Russian search lights flashed in all directions. A new searchlight has been established somewhere near the water line at the south side of the entrance to the channel, effectively sweeping the surface of the water.

Heavy firing began at 11.15 p.m. The continual flash of the heavy fort guns was seen and the roll of their thunder heard. The Japanese cruisers, destroyers and gunboats were making a reconnaissance. They replied vigorously to the forts. Toward midnight the firing became intermittent and ceased altogether about 12.15. The moon rose and the Japanese fleet withdrew.

Trieste, June 9.—Having first obtained the consent of the Austrian government, the Semico Triestino ship building yard here has signed a contract with the Russian government for the immediate construction of five protected cruisers of 6,000 tons displacement and eighteen knots guaranteed speed each. The builders of the ships have been ordered to rush the work with all possible speed. It is understood that they expect to be able to put them in commission within a year.

AUSTRIAN EXPERTS BUSY.

A committee of Austrian naval experts is sitting at Pola for the sole purpose of collecting and tabulating data obtained from the Austrian naval attaches now with the Russian and Japanese forces. They are busy gathering all information possible concerning naval engagements and the effect of the various projectiles.

The government has ordered the commission to spare no expense in the way of making experiments with mines and torpedoes. All kinds of war munitions have been ordered for the purpose of carrying on these experiments.

The government also has instructed its experts to ascertain if it is possible to construct a warship that will be able to resist mines, torpedoes and the heavier projectiles.

THE WONDERS OF WONDERS AWHEEL

Prodigious Porthos and His Flying Bike

Among the altogether new and startling feature loudstones announced by the great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers United Shows to signalize their day's visit to Peterborough on Saturday, July 2, Prodigious Porthos, the Parisian Cycling wonder, whose phenomenal feat of leaping on his bicycle across a chasm fifty feet wide has already electrified Europe, is attracting the lion's share of attention and discussion. None of our readers having as yet seen this heroically phenomenal performance, the following summary of it, taken from a detailed description, accompanied by a half-page illustration, published in the New York Evening Journal of March 6th last, will be found of general interest:

The bicycle used is of the ordinary safety pattern, except that two stationary rocket stirrups to hold the rider's feet are substituted in place of pedals, which, as it will be apparent, would be worse than useless. Thus mounted and grasping the handle-bars with a grip of steel, Porthos starts from a platform forty-five feet from the ground. Before him lies, at an incline of forty-five degrees, a board path, less than three feet wide and a hundred feet in length, which at the bottom ends in a sharp upward curve, directly in line with and separated by a break of some fifty feet from another platform ten feet above the ground. A gentle shove from an attendant and Porthos is off on a brief but fearsome journey, the ending of which no man, not even himself, can foretell. Should his wheel swerve a single inch from the required direction, or he, for the fraction of a second lose unflinching coolness, absolute perfection of control, concentration of instantaneous observation and supreme self-possession, deadly disaster rides with him. So rapidly does he gather speed in his furiously fleet descent that he flashes like a misty streak across the sight, and almost in the twinkling of an eye has reached the summit of the curve referred to. And he and his wheel soar upward and headlong high in air. The momentum decreases until they seem to hover in space, then the bicycle dives downward and, directed by an instantaneous delicateness of manipulation, imperceptable to the dazed and dumfoundedb onlookers, lands on the receiving platform, which its two wheels must strike at practically the same time, as otherwise there would be a dreadful finish, right then and there. But seemingly superhuman nerve and skill have triumphed, and Porthos rides gaily down a gentle incline, after what might not inappropriately be termed a race with death.

RUSSIANS LACK COAL SUPPLIES.

Fleet Could not Act if the Harbor were Free.

RESERVES TO THE FRONT.

Actions of Army Authorities Arouse Discontent.

Russian Headquarters at Mukden Believe Japanese Are Retiring from Kinchow --M Pichon's Financial Arrangements.

London, June 7.—The Times to-day has the following despatch. On board The Times' steamer Haimun, June 6, via wireless telegraphy to Weihaiwei.—Trustworthy news from Port Arthur and the Japanese front is limited. At present the Japanese are diligently sweeping Talienwan Bay in order to clear it of mines, but the Amur on its recent visit paid mines indiscriminately, and consequently the operation is slow and hazardous. It is reported from two sources that heavy explosions continue to take place at Port Arthur. These are believed to be caused by the demolition of certain Government buildings. The Japanese blockading squadron saw a column of smoke and flame as a consequence of one of these explosions, therefore the explosions could not all have been connected with attempts to clear the harbor of wreckage.

Russian Fleet Lacks Coal.

It is pretty certain now, from intelligence received by the Japanese secret service, that, even if the channel is practicable for ships of large draught, there is not sufficient coal at Port Arthur for such vessels to take the sea. Admiral Togo now maintains the blockade systematically, and presumably the junk traffic with the Chinese coast will cease. A portion of the Japanese second army corps will hold the land approaches to Port Arthur until Talienwan Bay is practicable for further debarcation. Meantime a screen of mounted troops is being pushed beyond Kaiping for the purpose of allowing the reconstruction of the railway to proceed. An interesting item of intelligence reaches me today.

Reserves to the Front.

The Russian authorities are sending reserves to the seat of war and keeping a great number of the fresh levies of recruits in Europe. A large number of the reserves are employed in industrial enterprises, and are much less free of the suspicion of disaffection than the raw recruits. This system of reinforcing the army in the field has naturally created profound discontent not only among the reservists themselves at being thus unceremoniously packed to the front, but also among the employers of labor.

Misgivings in High Quarters.

In any case, it is clear that in high quarters there are certain misgivings as to what may happen after the war, for those best acquainted with the situation do not expect there will be any serious disturbances before then. The mere fact of such apprehensions, however, remote, is calculated to fortify the hope entertained by some people that, after all, should there be a signal Russian reverse at Port Arthur, counsels of peace may prevail. By continuing the war under favorable conditions which could then exist Russia would be exposed to something more than the loss of prestige. Mediation, of course, is out of the question, both parties having set themselves firmly against it from the outset, but an honorable, even if an onerous, peace would be better than the further exhaustion of Russia's military and naval resources, followed by financial and economic disaster, and perhaps worse.

What Russian Headquarters Believes.

London June 7.—The Times today has the following from Berlin: Col. Gadke, a war correspondent, telegraphing from the Russian headquarters at Mukden, reports that both the Japanese and Russians are showing unmistakable signs of activity, which seem to point to important developments in the near future. The principal Japanese army is said to be entrenching itself in the neighborhood of Fengwangcheng, and Col. Gadke records the belief which is actually prevalent in Russian headquarters, that the Japanese troops have "retired from Kinchow in a northerly direction." Col. Gadke, doubtless at the instigation of the Russian censor, is further made to say: "In any case a complete reversal of the situation has taken place. It seems as if the forward movements of the Russian army, the the position of which is daily improving, have been begun at various points along the scene of operations." This would appear to mean that it is desired to convey the impression that General Kuropatkin proposes to take the offensive and that the Japanese are awaiting him in entrenchments at Fengwangcheng. Col. Gadke adds that it is estimated the Japanese losses at Kinchow amounted to 15,000 men. Estimates like these may possibly be designed to inspire confidence in the "advancing" Russians.

Kuropatkin Not Advancing.

London, June 7.—The correspondent of The Times at Paris says: It is impossible to say exactly what has happened in St. Petersburg in reference to the report persistently telegraphed last week concerning the order alleged to have been given by the Czar to Gen. Kuropatkin to advance to the relief of Port Arthur. It came from so many quarters simultaneously that it must have been circulated with a distinct object, or else the order has been cancelled. In either case the folly of such a step amply justifies the scepticism with which the news was commented upon from the first, but whatever the explanation be, today's news from St. Petersburg is the General Kuropatkin is not going to send an army to the relief of Port Arthur.

PETERBOROUGH CHEESE BOARD

Large Quantity of Cheese Boarded at Wednesday's Meeting

A meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held Wednesday morning in the Council Chamber, with the following buyers present: Messrs. Kerr Fitzgerald, Cook, Whitton, Rollins, Wrighton, Gilleard and Noble.

The President announced that the Vice-President, Mr. E. M. Elliott, had resigned.

Mr. John Coughlin was elected Vice-President to take his place.

The President read a few rules and regulations of this Cheese Board, and much discussion followed on the matter of making buyers give a deposit of $100, in guarantee that they would carry out their contracts.

On motion the matter was left over until the next meeting.

The following factories boarded as follows:

Keene	213
Warminster	205
Shearer	135
Central Smith	210
North Smith	180
Villiers	160
Warsaw	157
Westwood	220
Oakdale	165

Burkhorn	150
South Burleigh	40
Brickley	80
Shamrock	95
Dartford	155
Percy	180
Killarney	131
Fenella	71

The bidding was opened by Mr. Whitton at 7 1-2 cents; Fitzgerald bid 7 3-4; Cook 7 7-8; Whitton, 8.

The following refused 8 cents from Mr. Whitton: Ormonde, Keene, Cavanville, Westwood, Lakefield, Fraserville, Fleetwood, Percy, Myrtle, Indian River, and Melrose Abbey.

Mr. Rollins offered 8 cents for the following: Warminster, North Smith, Warsaw, Oakdale, Pine Grove, Maple Leaf, Young's Point, North Dummer, Stony Lake, South Burleigh, Ballyduff and Oak Leaf. They all refused, except Oak Leaf, which accepted.

Mr. Cook offered 8 cents and called for the following, who all refused: Missing Link, Lang, Mount Pleasant and Fenella.

Mr. Kerr was similarly treated when he called for Ormonde, Lakefield, Keene and Westwood.

It was suggested that the Board adjourn for a week, but after a short discussion bidding was opened again.

Mr. Whitton secured Percy and Ormonde at 8 cents.

Mr. Rollins secured Warminster, Smith, Pine Grove, Maple Leaf, Stony Lake, North Dummer, Young's Point and Oakdale at 8 cents.

Mr. Cook bought the following at 8 cents: Lang, Fenella, Missing Link, Mount Pleasant and Central Smith.

Mr. Whitton, at 8 cents, bought Westwood, Villiers and Melrose Abbey. He offered 7 7-8 for further selections, but was refused by the following: Keene, Shearer, Cavanville, Norwood, Indian River and Dartford.

As no one seemed anxious to sell for less than 8 cents it was decided to adjourn for one week.

GRAND TRUNK EXHIBIT. WORLD'S FAIR.

The Grand Trunk Railway Exhibit occupying a central position in the Forestry, Fish and Game Building, is one of the handsomest pavilions on the grounds. It is of Doric and Corinthian architecture, with Deer and Moose heads as central pieces in the cornice. Large mounds pictures depicting hunting, fishing and summer resort scenes along the line are in panels on the three sides. The interior is decorated with large photographic productions, well mounted fish, consisting of brook trout, landlocked salmon, ouananiche, wall-eyed pike, small mouth black bass and muskinonge. Two oil paintings, 8x13 feet, executed by one of the best artists in Canada and entitled, "The Royal Muskoka Hotel," and "Head of Lake Joseph," scenes in the Muskoka Lake district, handsomely framed, are on the inside front wall. These two pictures will be placed in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, after the fair closes. One of the largest moose heads in the world, is also on the wall. This head has a spread of sixty-six inches, the palms having a width of fourteen inches, and is one of the finest specimens of taxidermy on the grounds.

The ceiling is divided in three panels, each panel having an art glass skylight of unique design, the whole being lighted with over one hundred ground glass incandescent bulbs. The general coloring is maroon and cream and the light green frames of the bromides and the gold of the oil paintings make a very pleasing contrast. Two moving picture machines showing scenes on the road from the St. Clair Tunnel to the Androscoggin River in Maine, are run continuously while the wonderful reflection picture "On Shadow River," continues to revolve every thirty seconds, and a puzzle to many is, which is the reflection.

Handsomely printed matter, descriptive of the different sections, is being distributed, and the representative in charge gladly furnishes information regarding same.

RUSSIAN SQUADRON WILL MAKE A DESPERATE FIGHT

They Seek to Menace the Japanese Provision Trains, but Met With Bad Results

London, June 8.—The correspondent of The Times at Tokio says: Considering the frequent sounds of explosions at Port Arthur and the attempts of the Russians to clear away the mines at the entrance of the channel, it is believed in Japan that the Russian squadron intends to emerge at a crucial moment and fight for its life.

A Series of Skirmishes.

The Japanese correspondents with the first army report that the Russian operations are limited to a series of skirmishes fought by Cossacks and mounted infantry, which accomplish nothing except to keep the Japanese outposts busy. About 600 men, with several light guns, are engaged in these operations in the districts around Aiyang and Saimatse. They seek to menace the Japanese provision trains, but their efforts have been without result.

It is noticed that small reconnoitering parties, consisting of one young officer and two or three soldiers, boldly penetrate the Japanese lines, and if they are discovered they fight with their pistols, recalling the methods of the Formosan insurgents. It may be remarked that the latest Russian accounts of skirmishes near Fengwangcheng and Wafangow conflict flatly with the Japanese official reports, which claim that the Russians were driven back.

Cossacks Checked at Gensan.

The Russians in northeast Corea have been checked in their southern advance on Gensan, and seem to be retreating westward. Their advanced force does not exceed a few hundred men, but since it relies wholly on local supplies it is independent of its communications, and is, therefore, difficult to deal with strategically. The Cossacks burn the Corean dwellings and kill those of the local officials who fail to display active friendship.

KILLED BY A HORSE

Ira Young Kicked by a Horse and Dies from Injuries

On Tuesday evening Ira Oswald Young was kicked by a horse, and died a few minutes afterward. The accident happened near Fowler's Corners on the 4th line of Smith. The boy was only about eight or nine years of age. He got into a buggy with a neighbor to go as far as the postoffice to get the mail. While on the way home the animal became unmanageable and balked. The man who was with the boy crawled over the back and escaped unhurt. The boy was thrown under the horses feet and kicked. Deceased was a son of the late John Young and resided on the 4th line of Smith with Mr. Young. Dr. Scott was called from town, but death came before his arrival on the ground.

SENT TO REFORMATORY

Young Schuyster, Who Went Away with a Farmer's Rig Sent to Mimico

The youthful thief who went off with a farmer's rig from the Commercial House, on Saturday afternoon, and who was arrested near Fenelon Falls on Tuesday, and brought back to town, was sent to the School of Correction for not more than five years.

The lad is evidently a wayward one, and the rest there will likely do him good, as he will find out that he will have to submit to discipline and spend a considerable part of each day at school. He is said to think highly of his exploit, and to have boasted of his horsemanship to the Constable on the way back to town. He is a mere child, however, not yet having completed his tenth year. Considerable sympathy is expressed for his parents, who, it seems, have had little control over him for some time back.

WEDDING BELLS

Nuptials of Miss Margaret Roy and Mr Roland Deane

Yesterday morning, at 10 o'clock, "Sheridan Place," the residence of Mr. R. M. Roy, was the scene of a very pretty, but quiet, wedding, when his second daughter, Margaret Mary, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Roland Deane, one of Peterborough's rising young business men.

The bride was attired in a handsome travelling suit of blue canvas cloth over petunia Dresden silk with touches of petunia velvet and a blue tulle hat to match. Miss Margaret Deane, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and wore a pretty Swiss muslin dress with lace insertion. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white roses, and the bridesmaid a bouquet of crimson roses. Mr. Dickson Hall supported the groom.

The ceremony was performed by Rev J. C. Davidson, of St. John's, and Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, of St. Luke's. The drawing room was prettily decorated for the occasion and in one end a feaston of roses and smilax was placed, under which the young couple stood. Mrs. McAllister played the wedding march and sang the marriage hymn, during the signing of the r

The wedding was a very quiet one on account of the illness of Mrs. Deane, mother of the groom.

The bride received many beautiful and costly presents from her many friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Deane left on the 11.30 C.P.R. train for New York and other places.

Boys Throwing Stones

Several men have been at work lately on the lower line of the Canadian General Electric replacing insulators broken by boys firing stones at them. It will not be well for them if they are found amusing themselves in this way in the future. It is a serious offence to damage property belonging to any one, and it is just as serious an offence to break insulators as it is to smash anything else which costs money and is serving a useful purpose for either a company or a private individual. Boys should be above this low business—for it is low business—when it dare not be done openly. A word to the wise is sufficient, or ought to be. Those who persist in taking chances on being caught cannot complain if they are arrested and severely dealt with.

method and the ability to do as he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have undertaken that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sores, varicocele, nervousness, manhood, blood poison, impotency, lost vitality, parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but therefore all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc. The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him, and if he accepts your case for treatment it is understood to a cure, so he does not tender any one a donation merely incurable cases for treatment; and, remember, if he does accept your case you may pay him when you are cured. He sends this method, as well as his booklet on the subject, containing the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free to men only. Dr. S. RUSSIAN REVERT TO SUPERSTITION.

The condition of Russian belief in matters of supernatural significance is illustrated by a story just printed in the Parisian journals. In July of last year the ashes of the Russian St. Serafin, who died in the desert of Savof nearly three-quarters of a century ago, were removed to a church built near his original burial place especially for the purpose.

The czar and the whole imperial family attended the ceremonies and the ashes of the saint were carried into the church by the czar himself and three grand dukes of the family. It is now asserted that the reason for this imperial participation was that St. Serafin was in reality the Czar Alexander I., who retired into a religious house after his unintended connection with the murder of his father, and later became the hermit of Savof.

It is now said also that at about the time of this ceremony last year certain predictions of Serafin were found, one of which is to the effect that at some time, apparently not specified in the prophecy, his ashes would be removed into a church and that in the next year thereafter Russia would be involved in a great war which would cause great suffering, "but," said the saint, "the czar will go to that war, I will go with him and we will tear to pieces the apron of England."

There is not another civilized nation where such a tale as this would be seriously promulgated and told to influence public feeling, nor another in which it would be expected to have any effect.

It is in line, however, with the often repeated declarations of Russians in high places that this war is really one of Christianity against paganism and that Russia presents the former. It is in line, too, with the Russian expressions of indignant surprise that other nations, Canada especially, should sympathize with her pagan enemy.

The tale illustrates strangely the Russian mental and religious attitude, but it illustrates still more significantly the fact that the Russian rulers are beginning to appreciate the desperate character of the war in which they are involved. How long the story may have been circulated in Russia is not known, but it is a strange coincidence at least that it comes to the western nations almost simultaneously with the story of the extraordinary valor of the Japanese storming of Sanshin Hill.

War has shown that European troops and our own also can endure only a certain amount of punishment as the boxers call it, after which they are incapable for a time of aggressive fighting. Three or four bloody repulses from intrenched lines suffice. But the Japanese continued their assaults on Sanshan all day, assault after assault in quick succession, and swept over the fortifications at last, unaffected by the carnage among their forces. Some students of warfare aver that no other troops in the world would have been capable of the deed.

The story told of the Russian sailor's prediction indicates that the Russian leaders are at last awake to the truth that they will need to resort to extraordinary means, to all the incitements of what we call superstition, if they hope to make head against fighting spirit so impossible of nourishing in blood.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

Kuropatkin says he expected when he assumed command to lose all his battles at the start. It will have to be admitted that he's a champion expecter, anyway.

The New York Sun says that the Americans have been "squatting" in Hudson Bay. If so, they ought to hurry home and dry their clothes.

If all the Russian reports about Japanese losses in the various battles are correct, the Japs must be about all wiped out by this time.

DISTRICT NEWS

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS

INDIAN RIVER.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Collins, and also Miss Clancy, of Ashburnham, were visiting at J. E. Devlin's on Sunday last.

Mr. David O'Leary was the guest of Miss Lenora Green on Sunday last.

Mr. John Burke has retired from the cheese factory, as he claims the weather is rather warm for such close corners.

Daniel claims that Thomas Frances became entangled in the harness and by so doing escaped what might have proved worse.

Mr. John Clancy and sisters were visiting friends in Ennismore on Sunday last.

Mr Dennis Sullivan had the misfortune to dislocate his shoulder by falling from a wagon on Friday eve last. Dr McNulty was called out to repair the injury. Mr. Sullivan is improving splendidly and will soon be able to work.

A very entertaining game of football was played at Indian River, Saturday, 28th instant., between the Bachelors and Burbanks. The game was somewhat exciting at times. Mr Frank Devlin did some neat work on the Bachelors' defence, while Mr. T. Fitzgerald kept him busy with feet. This was the second game of the season for those teams to meet and the next game the Burbanks will be sure to win. The teams lined up as follows.

Bachelors—Goal, M. O'Leary; backs, F Devlin, J Smith; half backs, J. Tobin, D. O'Leary, S Murphy; forwards, W. Torrey, D Devlin, N. O'Leary, J. Condon, M Guerin.

Burbanks—Goal, Frank Sullivan backs, J. Sullivan, P. O'Brien; half backs, D. O'Leary, J Rinks, T. Fitzgerald; forwards, M. Guerin, W. O'Brien, J. O'Leary, L. Sullivan, A. Carvelh.

The score being 2—0 in favor of the Burbanks. Mr G. Quinlan acted referee to the entire satisfaction of both teams.

The Awful Distress of Irritable Nerves

Can be Overcome by Enriching and Nourishing the Blood, Thereby Rebuilding the Nerve Cells.

Any failure of the nervous system to do its work properly inevitably causes other troubles. Weakened nerve force is almost sure to bring on gloom and depression. Life loses its attractiveness, worry and care quickly furrow the brow of the sufferer who keeps up a brave heart as long as possible, and then completely breaks down.

Nervous wrecks are very sad, pitiful, indeed, when a certain cure like Ferrozone is within easy reach. The success of this great nerve restorer has been demonstrated in many cases where other treatment completely failed, so sufferers can with unbounded confidence rely on a lasting recovery if Ferrozone is used.

Hosts of well known people have found health through Ferrozone. Among these might be mentioned Mrs. E. D. Emmerson, of Centreville, who says; "I am glad to think that there is at least one honest remedy for nervous people. No one can imagine what I suffered with my nerves, and I sometimes wonder at the number of useless prescriptions and medicines that I took. But Ferrozone acted differently from all the rest. It built up my system and gradually the irritability left my nerves and I got well. Ferrozone cured me by removing the cause of my trouble and by giving me enough additional strength to overthrow the attack of nervousness. I can recommend Ferrozone strongly."

No expectations are too high to be fulfilled if Ferrozone is used. Many others have been cured of troubles worse than yours. Try Ferrozone. It completely rebuilds the nervous system and establishes a healthy condition throughout the entire body.

Don't let any greedy dealer make you think there is anything so good as Ferrozone. It alone can cure permanently. Insist on having nothing but Ferrozone. Price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all druggists or by mail, from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

COLLECTIVE NAMES.

Old English Terms For Groups of Persons and Animals.

In a book on British sports, written in the eighteenth century, Joseph Strutt gives the old English terms for groups of various beasts as follows: "When beasts went together in companies there was said to be a pride of lions, a lepe of leopards, a herd of harts, of bucks and of all sorts of deer; a bevy of roes, a sloth of boars, a sownder of wild swine, a drift of tame swine, a route of wolves, a harras of horses, a rag of colts, a stud of mares, a pace of asses, a baren of mules, a team of oxen, a drove of kine, a flock of sheep, a tribe of goats, a skulk of foxes, a cete of badgers, a richness of martins, a feaynes of ferrets, a husk or a down of hares, a nest of rabbits, a clowder of cats and a kyndall of young cats, a shrewdness of apes and a labor of moles."

Similar terms were applied to gatherings of human beings. Strutt gives them as follows: "A state of princes, a skulk of thieves, an observance of hermits, a lying of pardoners, a subtilte of sergeants, an untruth of sompners, a multiplying of husbands, a safeguard of porters, a stalk of foresters, a blast of hunters, a draft of butlers, a temperance of cooks, a melody of harpers, a poverty of pipers, a drunkenship of cobblers, a disguising of taylors, a wandering of tinkers, a malpertness of pedlars, a fighting of beggars, a rayful—that is, a netful—of knaves, a blush of boys, a bevy of ladies, a nonpatience of wives, a gagle of women, a gagle of geese."

In the old days the word "leash" was applied to three greyhounds, while two were "a brace." On the other hand, two spaniels or harriers were called "a couple." A number of bounds went under the term of "a mute of bounds," while it was correct to speak of "a kennel of raches, a litter of whelps and a cowardice of curs."

WHY THEY ARE POOR.

Their ideas are larger than their purses.

They are easy dupes of schemers and promoters.

They reverse the maxim, "Duty before pleasure."

They have too many and too expensive amusements.

They do not think it worth while to save nickels and dimes.

They have risked a competence in trying to get rich quickly.

They allow friends to impose upon their good nature and generosity.

They try to do what others expect of them, not what they can afford.

They prefer to incur debt rather than to do work which they consider beneath them.

They think it will be time enough to begin to save for a rainy day when the rainy day comes.

They risk all their eggs in one basket when they are not in a position to watch or control it.

Helping Him Out.

Mrs. Hoyt, wife of Charles Hoyt, the playwright, added much to the enjoyment of a Lambs' club banquet in Chicago by her sharp and witty tongue, always ready for a home thrust. Mr. Hoyt was second on the list of speakers and was badly frightened. He concluded that he would plunge quickly into his speech when called upon, and, with this idea, he arose briskly when announced and started in: "Ladies and gentlemen, I feel honored, I'm sure, by this request of the toastmaster, but it is so unexpected I really had no time to prepare—a—I really had no time to prepare—a"— And he stopped. Every one felt sorry for him, but Mrs. Hoyt seemed in no way disturbed. When she noticed his predicament she turned toward him suddenly and called out, "Why, Charley, you did it perfectly this morning!"

Reading and Thinking.

The things one merely reads about never stick. Those on which one thinks become permanent acquisitions; hence the man who is not afraid of thinking and who does not dread "that cursed hour in the dark" is at a distinct advantage on every ground. He passes the time without being bored, and he strengthens his mind. To say this may no doubt sound slightly priggish, but it is none the less true. The man who can enjoy and make use of his own thoughts has a heritage which can never be alienated. Even blindness for him loses some of its terrors.—London Spectator.

Living In Rome.

Think of securing a cook for $7 a month! That is the price Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott says she pays in Rome. A seamstress works for 50 cents a day, and an up to date doctor receives $1 for a visit. Good hotels charge 12 francs (about $2.40) a day. Meat, chickens, eggs, fish, fruit and groceries are also cheap, but their cost is made up for by the exorbitant price of all imported groceries. Even the very rich cannot procure rapid transit, steam heat or express service, conveniences which the great majority of Americans enjoy.

Strength From Proper Breathing.

The Japanese, although men of very small stature, are among the strongest in the world. Any boy of fourteen or fifteen who will faithfully practice their system of producing strength will find himself at the end of a few months able to cope in feats of power with the average man of twenty-five, and all this without the dangerous practice of lifting very heavy weights.

It should always be remembered that rest must be taken after each exercise. While resting try deep breathing. Stand erect, though not in a strained position, and at each breath draw the abdomen in and throw the chest out. As the breath is exhaled let the chest fall inward again and the abdomen outward. From twenty minutes to half an hour is a long enough time to devote to fixture, and this includes the time spent in breathing during rests, for deep, correct breathing is in itself one of the best exercises possible. In inhaling draw the breath through either the nostrils or the mouth, as preferred. In exhaling always let the breath escape through the mouth.—St. Nicholas.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being treated on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property range from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups; namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 30 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 570 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflicts as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented.

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78½ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented.

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory.....758½ acres
" " Mill and building sites..... 55 "
" " Timber properties..... 90 "
Total 903½ acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

Complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government from which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

Total cost of development to date, present management, $53,000.00
" " " " former owners - 18,000.00
" " surface improvements, buildings, saw mill plant, horses, wagons, ore cars, track, tools, etc. - 17,000.00
" " Machinery paid for and to be installed - 6,000.00
$99,000.00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $26,000.00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 200 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built

In the meantime only the high grade Smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will aid us materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905. and be continuous thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3.50 to $4.00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our stockholders These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18.00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of production is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,
ROBERT HARRISON.

JAPANESE ARE WINNING ALL ALONG THE LINE

The Yellow Men Seem to Win all the Small Skirmishes.

London, June 8.—The St. Petersburg Novoe Vremya makes a rather clubfish bid for foreign sympathy by seriously discussing a report that the United States is going to cede the Philippines to Japan, and warning England that she will have to look out for India, France for Indo-China, and Holland for Java. Incidentally the paper admits the difficulty Russia is experiencing in holding territory so far from the base; and tries to make the American eagle scream by hinting that the Yankees, profiting by Russia's lesson, would rather sell the Philippines now than lose them in a war with Japan later on.

PORT ARTHUR SORTIE.

The sortie on Saturday from Port Arthur, in which the Russians stated that four Japanese warships had been destroyed, turns out to be a fake—that is so far as the Japanese losses are concerned. From Tokio comes the positive statement that a Russian gunboat of the Gilliak class was destroyed either by a Japanese torpedo or by coming in contact with a mine. From St. Petersburg comes the grave announcement that "the government has decided upon the adopting of offensive tactics," and the usual yarns about a force for the relief of Port Arthur. Meanwhile Kuropatkin's army seems to have all it can do to keep itself out of trouble without going south in search of it. Four thousand of General Stakelberg's brigade, intended for the relief of Port Arthur, attacked fifteen hundred Japs on May 31, five miles south of Wafangtien and were repulsed with two hundred killed and four hundred wounded; the Japanese losing over a hundred killed. There were also skirmishes in which the Russians were repulsed north of Podiadien and at a place thirty-five miles north of Feng Wang Cheng.

THE OPPOSING FORCES.

Chefoo, June 8.—Two miles separated the Japanese and Russian armies on the Liao Tung peninsula, on June 2, according to Chinese, who have arrived here from Dalny.

The Japanese army, are inforced by the men who landed at Dalny, occupied Twing Ching, and also Sinchimpo several miles west of Dalny. They then proceded along the coast toward Port Arthur. On one side of the army are high mountains and on the other side is the sea, from which the Japanese gunboats are supporting the flank of the army.

On June 2, the Japanese forces were within seven miles of the outer forts of Port Arthur, only two miles from the Russian army, which is ready to contest their advance further. The Chinese believed that there will a big battle at this point. It is attestated by the Chinese that the Japanese have moved their base to Dalny from Talienwan. The larger Japanese ships are anchored outside the smaller ones inside the harbor. Troops are being landed from small vessels, apparently coming from Pitsewo or the Elliot Islands.

A Japanese correspondent from Dalny confirms the reported advance of a Japanese army on Port Arthur. The correspondent states, however, that there are fifteen miles between the Japanese and Port Arthur, instead of seven, as reported by the Chinese. Japanese army is advancing along both coasts. It is reported that the peninsular division on the east coast fought a battle within fifteen miles of Port Arthur on June 3.

THE JAPANESE ARMY

London, June 8.—A despatch from Chefoo says that the Japanese army investing Port Arthur, extends from Shulantarkao on the west to Chivhengtsu on the east, from twelve to fourteen miles from the fortress. The Japanese outposts are being gradually advanced to within four miles of land defences. The Japanese fleet has taken possession of two Russian torpedo boats that were abandoned at Dalny, and another vessel that is ashore in Talienwan Bay. There are indications that the Port Arthur fleet will make a desperate effort to sally from the port during the land attack.

A WHITE FLAG INCIDENT.

London, June 8.—A despatch to the Telegraph from Nagasaki gives an account of the abuse by the Russians of the white flag, at the battle of Nanshan Hill, as told by a Japanese officer, whoo was wounded, and who has arrived at Moji. He says: "We advanced and were on the point of passing them (the Russians, who displayed the white flag), when they fired point blank at us, killing many." It was this piece of treachery that accounts for the greatness of the Japanese casualties.

CHANGE IN RUSSIAN UNIFORM.

St. Petersburg, June 8. — General Kuropatkin has issued an order with the consent of Viceroy Alexieff that tunics and cap covers of a gray tint shall be worn by the whole army as soon as they can be procured fro, Russia. In order to accelerate the change in uniform an attempt will be made to dye the white tunics gray. Officers will be permitted to wear tunics, with epaulettes, but their tunics and cap covers must be of the same color as those to be worn by the ordinary soldiers.

EXPECT A RUSSIAN ATTACK.

Seoul, June 8.—The Commissioner of Customs at Gensan, Corea, wires that a Russian attack on the place is deemed imminent. He is making preparations to remove the women and children to a mountain monastery, twenty miles distant. A junk has reported that the Russians have landed field pieces at Sha River, near Ham-Huang (north of Gensan, or Broughton Bay, or the Gulf of Corea), at which place Cossack reinforcements have arrived. The brigands in the vicinity of New Chwang are becoming bolder.

A St. Petersburg despatch of Saturday, said that General Kuroki had been captured by the Russians. The despatch was without foundation.

Two carrier pigeons arrived at New Chwang on Saturday noon from General Stoessel at Port Arthur. The Russians will not divulge the messages carried by the birds, but declare they contain good information.

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Matin of Paris says he learns from a trustworthy source that the advance guard of 14,000 men, under General Stakelberg, sent by General Kuropatkin to the relief of Port Arthur already has reached the entrance to the Liao Ting peninsula and that the bulk of the army is following.

IS YET CENTRE OF SERVIAN POLITICS

Assassination of King Alexander Divides the People.

ANNIVERSARY APPROACHES

Window from Which Late King and Queen were Thrown Constantly Open.

Belgrade, June 8.—The anniversary of the "Bloody Night" of June 10 when the King and Queen of Servia were assassinated, is approaching and in political circles there is much talk and conjecture as to the ceremony of coronation which is planned for the king of the immemorial custom, but the peasants of the countryside as they drive their lean herds to market through the steep streets of the old fortress town, for so long the bulwark of Christendom against the Horde, shake their heads and say: 'The last of the Black Georges will never be crowned. See, they cannot even keep the window shut."

FATAL WINDOW ALWAYS OPEN.

True, day and night, one window is open while all the other windows are shut. The old Konak in which King Alexander and Queen Drage lived has only one eye—all the others are blind and closed—and that is the window through which their mangled and dishonoured bodies were thrown by the regicides after their dark deed of midnight murder was accomplished.

Opposite the old Konak is the new palace in which King Peter spends his cheerless days and his unenviable nights. He cannot look out over his garden without seeing the window by which he came to his throne, through which his predecessor passed to his grave. Often, as though this seclusion of his palace was anything but agreeable to him the king, accompanied only by an adjutant, walks out into the street of Prince Michael and takes a long promenade, sometimes even to the fortress park.

The king is a little mite of a man with a sad, careworn face. He can hardly be five feet two inches in height or weigh a hundred pounds. One wonders what has become of the thews and sinews of Black George, who could break men's bones with his hands as though they were flimsy fagots. On such walks he wears the red coat of a Servian general and the astrakan "kalpak" of his guard. His hand is ever twitching at his scanty mustache and he eyes those he meets with an interest and a curiosity which is pathetic. He seems to be asking all whom he meets 'Do you believe that I planned the murders of the "bloody night"?"

THE CENTRE OF POLITICS.

For all Servian politics to-day comes back to that question. Does blood guiltiness rest upon the head which is soon to become the Lord's annointed? And every attempt which has been made, and they have been many and ingenious, to change the trend of popular thought and mind has failed. All the fuss and feathers which characterised the court in the days of Alexander have been banished, and King Peter receives them one and all alike, whether they be generals, ministers or swineherds. When Alexander went abroad the streets were cleared and no one ventured to pass. Now any one who will may touch elbows with his King, or look over his head into the bookshop windows.

KING PETER'S POLICY.

If one could leave out the question his relations with the regicides one would say that in every relation, whether political or social, since his accession, King Peter has conducted himself admirably and as the best precedents of Western Europe indicate a constitutional sovereign should.

It must be admitted, however, that in many ways this exemplary behaviour is far above the heads of his people. For instance, to all applicants for appointment King Peter has a stereotyped reply. He refers them to the minister of the department in which the applicant would serve the country on a salary basis. This does not excite enthusiasm in Belgrade and some Servians at least contrast it very favorably with the tenacity with which poor Alexander would insist upon the appointment of an incompetent letter carrier once he was satisfied that the applicant was a devoted adherent of the house of Obrenovich.

But if one leaves out the question which promotion or the punishment of the regicides has created, one ignores the vital feature of Servian politics today in both its national and international aspects. The people are divided. There are those who would promote the assassins, but there are more who would punish them with the utmost severity. King Peter, as becomes a constitutional monarch in an almost unprecedented situation, fortunately for the world, has steered a middle course and in this matter at least has pleased no one.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the ores have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:—The Smuggler, Gangon, Blast Jack, Bear and Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns, and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 1000 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

it is. How does she look, Janet?"

"Tall, white as a ghost, with big, black eyes," was Janet's answer; and with his curiosity awakened, Henry Warner started for the parlor, Rose following on tiptoe, and listening through the half-closed door to what their visitor might say.

Margaret had experienced no difficulty in finding the house of Mrs Warner, which seemed to her a second Paradise, so beautiful and cool it looked, nestled amid the tall, green forest trees. Everything around it betokened the fine taste of its occupants, and Maggie, as she reflected that she, too, was nearly connected with this family, felt her wounded pride in a measure soothed, for it was surely no disgrace to claim such people as her friends. With a beating heart, she rang the bell, asking for Mr. Warner, and now, trembling in every limb, she awaited his coming. He was not prepared to meet her, and at first he did not know her she was so changed; but when, throwing aside her bonnet, she turned her face so the light from the window opposite shone fully upon her, he recognized her in a moment, and exclaimed, "Margaret, Margaret Miller! why are you here?"

The words reached Rose's ear, and, darting forward, she stood within the door, just as Margaret, staggering a step or two toward Henry, answered passionately, "I have come to tell you what I myself but recently have learned:" and wringing her hands despairingly, she continued: "I am not Maggie Miller, I am not anybody, I am Hagar Warren's grandchild, the offspring of her daughter and your own father! Oh, Henry, don't you see it? I am your sister. Take me as such, will you? Love me as such, or I shall surely die. I have nobody now in the wide world but you. They are all gone, all—Madam Conway, Theo, too, and—and——" She could not speak that name. It died upon her lips, and tottering to a chair she would have fallen had not Henry caught her in his arms.

Leading her to the sofa, while Rose, perfectly confounded, still stood within the door, he said to the half-crazed girl, "Margaret, I do not understand you. I never had a sister, and my father died when I was six months old. There must be some mistake. Will you tell me what you mean?"

Bewildered and perplexed, Margaret began a hasty repetition of Hagar's story, but ere it was three-fourths told, there came from the open door a wild cry of delight, and quick as lightning, a fairy form flew across the floor, white arms were twined round Maggie's neck, kiss after kiss was pressed upon her lips, and Rose's voice was in her ear, never before half so sweet as now, when it murmured soft and low to the weary girl, "My sister Maggie—mine you are—the child of my own father, for I was Rose Hamilton, called Warner, first to please my aunt, and next to please my Henry. Oh, Maggie darling, I am so happy now"; and the little snowy hands smoothed caressingly the bands of hair, so unlike her own fair waving tresses.

It was, indeed, a time of almost perfect bliss to them all, and for a moment Margaret forgot her pain, which had Hagar known the truth, need not have come to her. But she scarcely regretted it now, when she felt Rose Warner's heart throbbing against her own, and knew their father was the same.

"You are tired, Rose said, at length, when much had been said by both. "You must have rest, and then I will bring you to my aunt, our aunt, Maggie—our father's sister. She has been a mother to me. She will be one to you. But stay," she continued, "you have had no breakfast. I will bring you some," and she tripped lightly from the room.

Maggie followed her with swimming eyes, then turning to Henry, she said: "You are very happy, I am sure."

"Yes, very," he answered, coming to her side. Happy in my wife, happy in my newly-found sister," and he laid his hand on hers, with something of his former familiarity.

But the olden feeling was gone, and Maggie could now meet his glance without a blush, while he could talk with her as calmly as if she had never been aught to him save the sister of his wife. Thus often changeth the human heart's first love.

After a time, Rose returned, bearing a silver tray heaped with the most tempting viands; but Maggie's heart was too full to eat, and after drinking a cup of the fragrant black tea, which Rose herself had made, she laid her head upon the pillow, which Henry brought, and with Rose sitting by, holding lovingly her hand, she fell into a quiet slumber. For several hours she slept, and when she awoke at last, the sun was shining in at a western window, casting upon the floor a glimmering light, and reminding her so forcibly of the dancing shadows on the grass which grew around the old stone house, that her eyes filled with tears, and thinking herself alone, she murmured, "Will it never be my home again?"

A sudden movement, the rustling of a dress, startled her, and lifting up her head she saw standing near a pleasant-looking, middle-aged woman, who, she rightly guessed, was Mrs. Warner, her own aunt.

"Maggie," the lady said, laying her hand on the fevered brow, "I have heard a strange tale to-day. Heretofore I had supposed Rose to be my only child, but though you take me by surprise, you are not the less welcome. There is room in my heart for you, Maggie Miller, room for the youngest born of my only brother. You are somewhat like him, too," she continued, "though more like your mother;" and with the mention of that name, a flush stole over the lady's face, for she, too, was very proud, and her brother's marriage with a servant girl had never been quite forgiven.

Mrs Warner had seen much of the world, and Maggie knew her to be a woman of refinement, a woman of whom even Madam Conway would not be ashamed: and winding her arms around her neck, she said, impulsively: I am glad you are my aunt, and you will love me, I am sure, even if I am poor Hagar's grandchild."

Mrs. Warner knew nothing of Hagar, save from Henry's amusing description, the entire truth of which she somewhat doubted; but she knew that whatever Hager Warren might be, the beautiful girl before her was not answerable for it, and very kindly she tried to soothe her, telling her how happy they would be together. "Rose will leave me in the autumn," she said, "and without you I should be all alone." Of Hagar, too, she spoke kindly, considerately, and Maggie, listening to her, felt somewhat reconciled to the fate which had made her what she was. Still there was much of pride to overcome ere she could calmly think of herself as other than Madam Conway's grandchild; and when that afternoon, as Henry and Rose were sitting with her, the latter spoke of her mother, saying she had a faint remembrance of a tall, handsome girl, who sang her to sleep on the night when her own mother died, there came a visible shadow over Maggie's face, and instantly changing the conversation, she asked why Henry had never told her anything definite concerning himself and family.

For a moment Henry seemed embarrassed. Both the Hamiltons and the Warners were very aristocratic in their feelings, and by mutual consent, the name of Hester Warren was by them seldom spoken. Consequently, if there existed a reason for Henry's silence with regard to his own and Rose's history, it was that he disliked bringing up a subject he had been taught to avoid, both by his aunt and the mother of Mr. Hamilton, who for several years after her son's death had lived with her daughter in Leominster, where she finally died. This, however, he could not say to Margaret, and after a little hesitancy he answered, laughingly, "You never asked me for any particulars; and then, you know, I was more agreeably occupied than I should have been had I spent my time in enlightening you with regard to our genealogy;" and the saucy mouth smiled archly, first on Rose and then on Margaret, both of whom blushed slightly, the one suspecting he had not told her the whole, truth, and the other knowing

JAPANESE ARE GRATEFUL.

They Joyfully Reciprocate the Friendship of the U. S.

Tokio, June 8.—Japanese greatest leaders, in celebrating the birthday of the empress, thanked the United States to-day for awakening the island nation and for the public's sympathy in the war against Russia.

At a meeting attended by Marquis Ito, Count Okuma, a leading statesman and educator, and three thousand other citizens, the following resolutions were adopted:

"We gratefully recognize the friendship of the people of the United States for the people of Japan manifested continuously during the last fifty years, notably the services rendered our country in the cause of education by the disinterested labors of American educators for the development of our institutions of learning, also the work done in the cause of humanity, and in particular the sympathy and assistance given the families of our soldiers and sailors.

"In the present struggle, standing for principles which we believe identical with those cherished by all enlightened nations, we look to the people of the United States for that sympathy which we believe our cause deserves."

The members of the house of representatives were present in a body. Dr. Hatoyama, president of Waseda university, a doctor of laws of Yale and a member of the house of commons, presided. Dr. Yomakawa, another Yale graduate, who is president of the imperial university, presented the resolutions.

COL. GREENWOOD'S POSITION.

Second in Command of the South African Railways Volunteers.

Ottawa, June 8.—A recent letter received by a local militia officer from one of the officers of the first contingent to South Africa who remained behind to take employment in Johannesburg, gives some interesting details of the growth of the volunteer movement in the Transvaal and the recent combined manoeuvres held near that city. At the camp of exercise at Fredrickstad there was a turnout of 2,200 volunteers, and at the close of four days' field training live shell and ball cartridge were fired in practising at attack on a line of kopjes. This was most valuable exercise in range-finding, and noting the effect of the fire from dust knocked up, figures tiddled, etc., and illustrates what an admirable training ground the Imperial authorities have in South Africa, where so much practical work can be done that would be simply out of the question in more thickly settled countries.

Colonel Greenwood, of Peterborough Ont., is now second in command of the Colonial South African Railway's volunteers. "Charlie" Armstrong, of the Fifth Royal Scots, Montreal, was still at Harrismith. "Reggie" Temple had married and was living at Heidelberg. Major Lawless was still with the Boer Repatriation Department at Pietersberg, Northern Transvaal, and "Dollie" Swift was doing well with the South African Constabulary. Arthur Hodgins was still superintending engineer of surveys and construction for the South African Railways, and F. J. Dixon, resident magistrate at Wakkerstroom. With the exception of Col. Greenwood, all the above served in the war with the 2nd (Special Service) Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment.

ITALIANS IN MONTREAL.

Situation Continues to Improve Among the Men.

Montreal, June 8.—The Italian situation continues to improve. Mr. Candori reported yesterday that during the present week he hoped to find situations for about one hundred more men. Thirty left yesterday for the Asbestos Mines, near Sherbrooke, and more are going to-day and to-morrow. It is hoped that by degrees employment will be found for the men, and that the serious state of affairs which prevailed last week will have no repitition.

As a result of the publicity given to the condition of the destitute Italians the agent reports that bread, milk and sandwiches, as well as other food, have been sent in for the men. For these favors the Aid Society expresses much gratitude.

TO INVESTIGATE CONDITIONS.

Ottawa, June 8—Mr. W. L. Mackenzie, Deputy Minister of Labor, has been appointed to investigate and report to the Government the story that hundreds of destitute Italians are in Montreal. He will go down on Monday.

SEES DEFEAT FOR RUSSIA.

Paris Press Thinks Doom of Empire in the East Sealed.

Paris June 8.—The leading military authorities here expect the early fall of Port Arthur and view this as a most serious if not irreparable blow to Russia, the present condition of Port Arthur being compared to that of Metz and Sedan during the Franco Prussian war. It is pointed out that General Kuropatkin is making the same fatal mistake in regard to Port Arthur's ability to resist that the French made in connection with Metz. The military critics, without exception, disapprove of Kuropatkin's policy of non-resistance.

There is a notable change in French sentiment since the war began. The official view for the first time is strongly pessimistic concerning Russia's ability to retrieve the series of reverses culminating with the expected fall of Port Arthur.

A HUGE YARN.

Russians Do Not Believe Treasure Sank with Ship.

St. Petersburg, June 8.—The public received the belated announcement that five millions of roubles were lost with the Russian admiralty ship when Makaroff went down with contemptuous silence. Everybody is satisfied that a new gigantic piece of thievery lurks behind the story, which was only thought of several weeks after the Petropavlovsk was blown up.

It is said that the Czar point blank refuses to believe the yarn. He remarked to the Minister of Finance, "That fish are proverbially mute is no reason why they should be put as guardians over my treasure." He also pointed to the fact that the generally well-informed Japs had made no attempt to get at the five millions lying in the Bay of Port Arthur.

MINERS ARE FOR SOCIALISM

Western Federation Position Taken at Last Convention.

Denver, Col. June 8.—The convention of the Western Federation of Miners to-day reaffirmed its political action of the tenth and eleventh annual conventions in favor of socialism. The membership of the executive board was increased from nine to eleven and will include a representative from the seventh district, which was created in the southwest at the last convention, and one representative of the coal miners' unions in the organization.

A RARE CHANCE
FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.
BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

CRIPPLE CREEK ENTERPRISE GOLD MINING COMPANY

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non-assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details. The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion. Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

1. Do you know that its title is free and clear?
2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full parties are in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless y easily are interested, because on waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Con pany owns 9 000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $68 25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 501 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary, Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

GREAT SEA DISASTERS.

Many Naval Brave s Have Gone Down with All on Board.

New York, June 8.—Loss of the Russian flagship Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur, with Admiral Makaroff and an estimated strength of nearly 800 officers and men, while a severe blow to Russian prestige in the Far East, is one of those catastrophes in naval warfare to which an actual combatant is always liable, though happily the occurrence is not common. In 1759, when "Hawke did bag Monsieur Conflans," at Quiberon Bay, Sir Edward Hawke ordered his pilot to lay the Royal George, of 100 guns, alongside the Soleil Royal, the French admiral's flagship. Before this could be done another French ship, La Superbe, of 74 guns gallantly interposed, and receiving her opponent's broadside, went down into the deep with her colors flying and 650 souls on board. Her revenge, however, came on Aug. 28, 1782, when the Royal George sunk at anchor off Spithead in a squall.

During a great storm in 1703 twelve men-of-war went down off the British coast with 1800 men. Many lives were lost when the British warship Association took fire in 1807. The British warship Captain turned over in the Bay of Biscay in 1870, about 500 lives being lost. When the Sultan, the sister ship of the Captain, was fitting out at Portsmouth a grim humorist prophesying her possible fate (happily he proved to be wrong), chalked on her side: "Will leave on Tuesday with mails for the Captain."

The fate of the Italian warship Re d'Italia at the battle of Lissa, the only great fight that has as yet taken place between armored battle fleets in European waters, should be mentioned. It was on July 20 1866, that the Austrian Admiral Tegetthoff fought Persano's fleet and the flag-ship Ferdinand Massent her opponent down with 600 men on board, the Italian ironclad Palestro also blowing up, about a score of lives only being saved.

Fearful loss of life was occasioned by the ramming of the British warship Victoria (1893) when over 350 officers and men, including Admiral Tryon, were drowned.

AN ADDITIONAL TRAIN

The Grand Trunk will Put a New Passenger Train On

On Monday, June 13, the Grand Trunk Railway Company will put on another passenger train on the road, between Toronto and Peterborough, which it will continue during the summer months. This will be appreciated by the public in general, but more particularly by residents of towns through which the line passes. The new train will consist of a combination smoker and baggage car, vestibuled first-class coach as well as a parlor car.

It is expected it will leave Peterborough about 7.20 a.m. and reach Toronto at 10.10, via Lindsay and Blackwater Junction. Returning it will leave Toronto at 7.25 p.m. and reach town at 10.25. This is to be in addition to the regular service.

AGED BATTLESHIPS.

THEIR FATE WHEN TOO FAR GONE TO BE OF SERVICE.

Small Sums Realised Upon Great Vessels That Have Cost Fortunes to Build—Their Lifetime.

What is done with those warships which, becoming obsolete, have to be "disposed of at alarming sacrifices," is one of those questions few ordinary persons could answer, says London Tit-Bits. Of course, the most profitable way would be to sell them to foreign countries, such as the South American republics, and Turkey. Spain and China might even be occasional customers.

But for obvious political reasons such a thing is never done; indeed, so stern is the governmentt's determination not to run the risk of our navy's "ineffective" ships falling into foreign hands that in every case it is stipulated that they shall be broken up in British waters. Thus it occurs that obsolete war vessels, which, perhaps, cost the nation £500,000, or even £750,000, have, from time to time, to be sold for £15,000 or £20,000, when as war vessels they would probably realize twice or thrice as much if sold to a foreign country which did not mind having a navy somewhat out of date.

But sold—as in nearly every case they are—for breaking up, they simply fetch the price of old metal, from which is to be deducted the cost of shipwreckers' labor, this being an important factor, since it stands to reason a man of war cannot be disintegrated with a can opener.

Taken out of commission, the condemned warship lies moored until the admiralty sells her either by auction or private treaty. She is stripped of guns and stores, and generally of certain portions of her fittings, which are often up to date and serviceable. Then she passes into the hands of her purchasers, generally a British firm who have a special plant for dealing with ironclads. She is towed to the most convenient place and her destruction begins. She is ripped to pieces, from quarter-deck to keel. Her engines, decks, steering gear, woodwork—everything is taken from her—until the mere steel shell remains, and the final blows are generally dealt with dynamite to break up her plates. As often as ten or 12 months are occupied in breaking up a battleship.

Then what becomes of her? You may be sitting in a chair the wood of which was once part of a battleship; before a grate made out of a cruiser's plate, for her plates are sold for remelting, and they turn up unsuspected in a thousand homes, are made into stoves, railway lines, park railings, fire irons, traction engines, etc. If only steel could speak, there's many a humble-looking fire grate which could tell of stirring deeds.

There is not much wood about the warships which fall into the ship breakers' hands nowadays, but what there is commands a ready market for a variety of purposes, as it is understood to be the best, toughest and most seasoned of its kind ordinarily obtainable. At the same time large portions of a ship's timber are good only as fuel and as such it is sold; but it is aways reckoned to be the finest fuel wood money can buy. The better stuff is bought for barge building, flooring, etc., to be worked up by carpenters and cabinet makers. Ships' timber is considered particularly good for employment in damp places.

Every ounce of the wrecked vessel is disposed of to some purpose, yet even then, owing to the expensive trouble of breaking her up, her purchasers sometimes find she has only just repaid the cost to which they have been put, and that albeit she cost them only a fiftieth or sixtieth part of what she cost the nation no more perhaps than 20 years before.

Twenty years is about the time which changes a new war vessel into an obsolete ship such as it would be foolish to send into action. But occasionally ships become obsolete and meet their inglorious doom very much sooner. In one case, indeed, a battleship became obsolete while she lay in the building stocks, and she was actually broken up without being shifted from the place where her keel was laid. Another vessel, the Hood, was broken up without ever "riding salt water," having been built in the Medway and only being launched to go farther above for the purpose of being disintegrated. A third war vessel, of a smaller type, became obsolete while waiting for her boilers to be put in, and she never lived to breathe steam.

Not every obsolete war vessel meets the melancholy fate of being broken up, however. On rare occasions condemned ships on being taken out of the effective list are used for the storage of powder, etc., or as training ships, though ironclads are not very well adapted to such uses. Vessels of small types are sometimes, too, rigged up for special purposes wherever a government office would otherwise have to purchase a new ship at a much greater outlay. But the ultimate end of every ship of war not sunk at sea is to be bartered for almost a fiftieth part of her cost, broken up, and scattered over the land to be converted to a thousand different uses.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 225 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

ENDOWMENTS AT LIFE RATES

HOW do the rates compare with those of other companies?

The rates are the same as the principal Canadian Companies charge for "Whole Life" and "Twenty Payment Life" policies

WHERE can these policies be secured?

From any agent of the LONDON LIFE.

WHEN do these policies become endowments and are the endowments guaranteed or estimated?

The policies mature as endowments at about expectation of life and are absolutely guaranteed.

WHAT kind of settlement does the LONDON LIFE give at the end of twenty years?

FIVE OPTIONS or methods of settlement are offered at the end of twenty years.

The guaranteed cash surrender is the largest in Canada for the premium paid.

WHAT options are given policy holders in case of lapse or surrender

The policy holder may select one of four options.

1st. PAID UP INSURANCE for reduced amounts payable as endowments at maturity period.

2nd. EXTENDED INSURANCE for a fixed number of years and months for full amount of policy less premiums and interest thereon unpaid.

3rd. CASH LOANS.

4th. CASH SURRENDER VALUES.

WHAT THEN?

Send for booklet entitled "Endowment at Life Rate." Mailed to any address, apply to

CATARRH

RUINS HEALTH AND BEAUTY CAUSES THE WEAK TO DIGY UNO INVARIAGLY LEADS TO CONSUMPTION.

Thousands Annualy Cured by Catarrhozone

MR. ARCHIBALD BASS, of New Harbur, writes; "Catarrhozone proved itself a remarkable remedy in my case. I suffered terribly from catarrh in the throat and my nose was so stuffed up every morning I could hardly draw my breath. The mucous dropped back into my stomach gost my digestion and kept me sick all the time. Catarrhozone relieved in a short time and cured perfectly."

MRS. W. F. BREACH, of Chapman, writes; "I have used a great many catarrh remedies but none of them ever helped like Catarrhozone. It cleared out my nose and throat and stopped a ringing noise in my ears. Catarrhozone is very pleasant and simple to use and many times better than any other catarrh remedy."

MR. LAWRENCE KENNEDY, of New West Annan, says; "For three years I tried doctors but my catarrh grew worse and worse. I got no relief till I used Catarrhozone. It was not very long in curing me so perfectly that the disease has never returned."

MR. JOSEPH De ROCHE, one of the most prominent and highly respected citizens of Loggieville, N.B, says; "I used Catarrhozone for a sore throat, cold in the head and head achs. I always felt relief immediately. It cured the discharge from my nose and restored my sense of smell lost through the effects of catarrh."

Catarrhozone is simple, convenient and pleasant. It is warranted to instantly relieve and permanently cure.

Lieut.-Col Hemming, D.S.A., inspected the Cadet corps yesterday in the drill shed. The boys made a creditable showing. The three remaining companies of the 57th Regiment were inspected last night by Col Buchan, D.O.C., Kingston. The Regiment will be inspected this evening.

The Orange Celebration

Last night the committee having charge of the advertising in connection with the 12th of July demonstration met and completed arrangements for advertising the event. Excursions will be run to Peterborough from points as far west as Toronto and as far east as Tweed, on the C.P.R., and on the Grand Trunk between Port Hope and Orillia. It is expected that fully 20,000 visitors will be with us on that day.

Judicious Orators

The Toronto News says: In Orange circles it is stated that the orators for the 12th of July are to be "carefully" selected, so that the Sturgeon Falls School case will be treated in a judicious way. There is some anxiety expressed lest the occasion should be turned to account by those who think the question should be ventilated.

Painful Accident

Yesterday while Mr. John Williams, an employee of the Canadian General Electric Company, who lives at 423 Sherbrooke street, was engaged in loosening a bolt, the wrench which he was using slipped and struck him in the eye, causing a painful wound. Dr. Young was summoned, and dressed the injured optic. While the wound is quite severe, there is every hope that the eye will not be permanently injured.

25th Anniversary

On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Brooks were agreeably surprised by a visit from many of their friends in town, who went prepared and intent on helping to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks. The evening was spent in mirth, music and song, and many favors were received by the honored couple. The visitors were royally entertained, and all present agreed to have enjoyed themselves immensely.

Found Guilty

At the County Judge's Criminal Court, held before Judge Weller, Wm. Armstrong was found guilty of obtaining money under false pretences. This is the man who some months since advertised in the Toronto Mail and Empire and Ottawa Citizen for 100 young men and women to remain in charge of the exhibits at the St. Louis Exposition. The Judge reserved sentence until Monday afternoon. R. E. Wood appeared for the Crown and D. O'Connell for the defence.

New Railway Making Progress

Lindsay Post: When the track-laying gang employed on the Burketon Lindsay section of the L. B. & P. Ry. stopped work last Saturday evening, the steel had been laid as far as McGill's Landing, Manvers, and in all probability the rails will reach the edge of Lindsay corporation by next Saturday evening, as more men will be sent south by Contractor Fauquier to-day or Wednesday. About Friday we may expect to hear the whistle of the engine of the ballasting train that follows the track-layers closely. In town the work around the new station and freight sheds is nearing completion, and as the Lindsay-Bobcaygeon link is only 16 miles in length it is almost a certainty that the road will be opened early in August.

With a Stitch in Time.

To know and use a food that will feed and restore brain and nerves before alight nervous troubles end in complete nervous prostration or brain fag is wise, for unless proper food is supplied daily it is unreasonable to expect the nervous system to answer the demands made upon it.

There is a food, Grape-Nuts, for this particular purpose that never fails to restore well-tuned nerves or fagged brain to health and strength.

A well known business man of Baltimore who made the trial says:

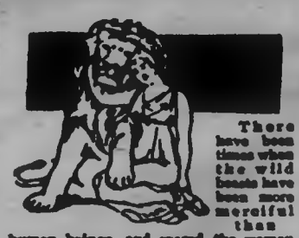
"Two years ago my health had become so seriously impaired it was impossible for me to attend to business. At the least exertion my nerves would give away and the condition of my system allowed me little or no rest or sleep at night. Stomach trouble soon followed and I could take no solid food. I tried the best tonics and medicine but they all failed.

"Finally Grape-Nuts food was recommended and after using it for 10 days I began to feel its good results and at the end of three months I was again a well man—nerves restored to their normal condition, strength renewed, and I was able to do any amount of both mental and physical work without even feeling fatigued.

"I know Grape-Nuts built up my brain and nerves and still keep them strong and vigorous just exactly as food builds up muscles or fat, for instance, and I am glad to have learned this valuable lesson." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Trial 10 days proves things when Grape-Nuts is used. There's a Reason.

Look in each pkg. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."



There have been times when the wild beasts have been more merciful than human beings, and spared the women cast to them in the arena. It is astonishing how little sympathy women have for women. In the home the mistress sees the maid with the signs of suffering she recognizes so well, but she does not lighten the sick girl's load by a touch of her finger. In the store the forewoman sees the pallor and exhaustion which mark womanly weakness, but allows nothing for them. It is work or quit.

$500 REWARD FOR WOMEN

WHO CANNOT BE CURED.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money of the United States, for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

They have the most remarkable record of cures made by this world-famed remedy ever placed to the credit of any preparation especially designed for the cure of women's peculiar ailments.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

RUSSIA'S BALTIC FLEET TO LEAVE FOR THE SEAT OF WAR IN JULY

ADMIRAL ALEXIEFF

Great Battle Now Raging All Along the Lines with Many Reports of Japanese Successes.

Report That Japanese Had Practically Secured Command of the City by Capture of Second Line of Fortifications.

General Kourapatkins Position Will Become Very Critical After the Fall of Port Arthur.

London, June 11.—The Post's special correspondent wires fom Tokio. Latest information states that the Japanese forces have secured possession of the second line of fortifications outside Port Arthur which command the city. This however, has not been confirmed, but there is reason to believe that it is true, nevertheless.

Chefoo, June 11.—The Chinese are leaving Port Arthur, with the permission of the Russians. They report that a battle is raging outside the city. Every soldier in Port Arthur has gone to the front. Only three of a large number of vessels were left in the harbor.

Mines laid recently at the mouth of the harbor exploded during a thunderstorm.

The outer forts have been badly damaged by the Japanese fire but the inner forts have suffered little.

The Chinese are not able to give an intelligent report of the condition of the Russian fleet. Probably they were not allowed to approach the naval basin. Their statement that only three vessels remain in the harbor means that only three remain in the outer harbor. The others are believed to be behind the Tiger's Tail or in the naval basin.

Very few Chinese remain in Port Arthur. Every junk has been chartered to remove Chinese.

Refugees from Port Arthur state that the entrance of the harbor is still blockaded. Large ships are not able to pass at any time, and gunboats and torpedo boats at high tide only.

The Russians have fortified several new positions, seven miles out, and the territory immediately under the Port Arthur forts.

The Japanese are bombarding Port Arthur daily from a distance. The Chinese have great difficulty in obtaining provisions. Several junks had to leave without any food aboard. The Japanese cruisers which stopped them supplied them.

ASSUMED OFFENSIVE.

London, June 11.—A despatch to The Daily Mail from Fusan says that the Russians have apparently taken the offensive. They have reached Suitholing and are advancing to Saimatse along the railway. They are being heavily reinforced. The Russians are now in a half circle around Fengwangcheng from Saimatse to Liao Yang. A screen of Cossacks is covering their front. The northeastern roads and passes are strongly held. The Japanese savilly are scouting admirably. They repulsed the Cossacks in several recent engagements.

CONFIRMED BY ST. PETERSBURG.

St. Petersburg, June 11. — Among the rumors that fill the city tonight is one on better authority than the average that Gen Kuropatkin is himself moving southward from Liao Yang.

WARSHIPS NOT FOR CZAR.

King of Italy Prevents Transfer of Four Vessels to Russia.

Rome, June 10.—King Victor Emmanuel has just prevented the acquisition by Russia of four battleships belonging to a South American republic. These battle-ships had been constructed in Genoa a few years ago and the constructing firm offered to the South American state to exchange them, without expense, for four more modern battle-ships to be constructed immediately with all the modern improvements.

The state of Montenegro, which is not bound by the laws of neutrality, was to acquire temporary ownership of the four vessels in order to sell them to Russia, but the king interfered, notwithstanding the advantages prominently depicted by the promoters of the operation as accruing to Italy by the employment of thousands of workmen on the new vessels.

The fact that Montenegro is the native country of the Italian queen and is ruled by her father, hastened the king's decision to interfere in the matter.

Much commented upon has been the recent phrase used by the king on the occasion when he visited early in the morning the Arsenal of Naples, and not finding a single employe, remarked to his attendants:

"It dawns that I am the only state employe who earns his salary."

TURNED SEA RED BY FIERCE FIGHT

Remarkable Incident in Russo-Japanese War.

FOUGHT WAIST DEEP.

Providential Rains Enabled the Japanese to Locate Mines at Nan-Shan.

Tokio, June 9.—Wounded officers who have returned to Japan from the Liaotung peninsula, bive interesting details of the battle of Nan Shan Hill.

After the first ineffectual attack on the hill the Japanese scouts discovered that there were some mines at some spots at the foot of the hill. It was determined that they could only be definitely be located by the sacrifice of some men. Hundreds volunteered to go to what appeared to be certain death. They advanced and found that the heavy rains had washed away the coverings of earth and exposed the mines. Engineers cut the connecting wires, rendering the mines useless and sustained no loss. The volunteers were nearly all killed in the subsequent ineffectual attack on the hill.

The Osaka men, from the right wing, while advancing through water along the shore, encountered a body of Russians also in the water. A fierce fight ensued, both sides being waist deep in the sea. When the Russians finally retreated the water was literally crimson. Both sides lost heavily.

During the day the Russians used several war balloons well out of range.

In the trenches after they had been captured were found many articles of clothing belonging to women and children, making it evident that the Russians intended their defences to be permanent.

RUMORED FALL.

London, June 6.—The Exchange Telegraph Company reports rumors of the fall of Port Arthur. The Exchange's report says that the Japanese lost 11,000 men. The St. James' Gazette says a rumor is current on the stock exchange that Port Arthur has fallen.

RUSSIANS IGNORANT.

St. Petersburl, June 8.—Nothing is known here of the various rumors to the effect that Port Arthur has fallen, but it is not considered possible at this time.

JAP BOAT LOST.

St. Petersburg, June 8.—The admiralty is convinced that the battleship Yashima, or the battleship Shikishima, has been lost off Talienwan.

JAP GUNBOAT HIT.

Tokio, June 8.—Four Japanese gunboats, which made a close reconnaissance of Port Arthur harbor at midnight on June 6, for the purpose of examining the entrance, were exposed to a severe cannonade. Gunboat No. 4 was hit eight times and sustained some damage. One of her sailors was killed and two others were wounded.

JAP SQUADRON BUSY.

London, June 8.—A despatch to Petersburg announced that a telegram has been received from Mukden, dated today, saying:

"According to information here, a Japanese squadron of nine vessels has been bombarding the coast between Siuyengyucheng (Hiungyotchang?) and Kaichou (Kaiping, on the west coast of the Liaotung peninsula, just below Newchwang) since June 7."

St. Petersburg, June 9.—Every ounce of strictly military opinion in the Czar's councils is thrown into the balance against the proposed march to relieve Port Arthur. The court party continues to urge the movement. The Czar is represented as confused and hesitating, although exhibiting a tendency to be persuaded by the arguments of the strategists and military men, who declare that if Kuropatkin be finally commanded to lead his army into a death trap it will be his duty to refuse, whatever the consequences to himself. Those persons who are working in favor of this scheme which soldiers regard as a gigantic folly, are actuated neither by strategic nor political ideas, but by theological notions. The Czar, whose mind is sometimes blurred by mysticism, has been assured by the party of ikons sacred relics and ritualistic manoeuvres that Russian disasters are due to its readiness to retreat.

"God, like man," declared this party, "loves a hero and hates a coward."

THE RUSSIANS RETREAT LOSING 100 KILLED AND WOUNDED IN LAND BATTLE--RUSSIAN VERSION

A Bird's-eye View of the Seat of War in the Far East.

Russians Retired Slowly Because of the Great Superiority of the Forces Opposed to Them.

For Two Days Japs Have Been Driving Russians From One Town to Another After Sharp Fighting

Artillerymen Who Took Part in the Fighting at Samsonoff Say that Japs Artillery was Decidely Poor.

Fusan, Korea, June 10.—The first Japanese army has recently been engaged in most important operations. For two days past four columns have been reconnoitering the roads towards Liao Yang, Hai Chong, Saimateza, and Siu Yen, and have occupied towns on these roads, dislodging the Russians, numbering several hundred, from each, after sharp fighting. The Japanese casualties were 65 men killed and wounded.

THE RUSSIAN VERSION.

St. Petersburg, June 10. — Gen Kuropatkin telegraphs to the Emperor, under date of June 8:

"A Japanese brigade attacked a Russian detachment occupying Saimatsza on June 7. The Russian retired slowly because of the enemy's great superiority towards Fenchulin Pass.

"Our losses were two officers wounded and 100 soldiers killed or wounded."

Liao Yang, June 10.—The Russian force at Saimatsze was commanded by General Ethoff, who engaged the Japanese advance at 9 a.m., on June 7. The Russian infantry advanced steadily, pushing the Japanese from their position, but their attack gradually developed strength and the Russians, finding themselves in the presence of overwhelming force, retired in good order. Their losses were three officers and about 100 men killed or wounded. Russian observers think the Japanese lost more. The fighting continued until 3 p.m.

Japanese are reported as attempting a debarkation north of Sen Yuchen from ten transports, protected by two warships.

Artillerymen who took part in the fighting at Samsonoff, June 3, say that Japanese artillery was decidedly poor, many shells did not burst, and the shrapnel was badly timed. Russian soldiers, therefore, think that the Japanese artillery is evidently not so terrible as it has been reputed. The Japanese had marked measured ranges in front of their entrenchments.

Torpedo Flotilla Disturbs the Enemy

Admiral Togo Sent Eight Small Torpedo Boats From the Battleships of His Squadron to Make a Reconnaissance off Port Arthur

Tokio, June 10.—Admiral Togo reports that on the night of June 7, he sent eight small torpedo boats from the battleships of his squadron to make a reconnaissance off Port Arthur harbor. The boats went far inside the heads and were exposed to the Russian fire. One sailor and one petty officer were killed in the operation, but the boats escaped undamaged.

Admiral Katioka reports that on June 6 he landed men on Sonshan and Taku Island in Talienwan Bay for the purpose of making a reconnaissance. They found many of the buildings thereon were only partially destroyed. In the hospitals some supplies were also found.

MORE TROOPS FOR ORIENT.

The Czar Plan to Rush Three More Corps Eastward Soon.

St. Petersburg, June 10.—The Emperor has issued an edict mobilizing the First Army Corps, a portion of which is stationed in St. Petersburg and vicinity. General Meindorff will command. The edict will be followed by the mobilization of the Fifth and Sixth Army Corps of the Volga region.

Probably nearly a month will elapse before these corps are ready to start. In the meantime the Siberian railroad will be taxed to its utmost capacity in taking out the Tenth and Seventeenth Corps, now advancing.

It is regarded as a significant fact that China has made representations to Russia on the subject of the interference of the Russian military authorities with the natives in Manchuria.

The Russian government claims the natives have not been molested except where they have harbored Chinese bandits.

TRIES TO DRAG IN CHINA.

The Japan Wants that Country to Occupy Conquered Territory

Tien Tsin, June 11.—M Uchida, the Japanese minister to China, came to Tien Tsin yesterday from Pekin to confer with the viceroy and returned to the capital to-day.

Japan it appears to be confirmed, in trying to induce China to occupy the territory taken from Russia, thus inveighing China into a breach of neutrality and giving Russia the opportunity she will maintain her neutrality unless of attacking China, who claims til the termination of the war.

Berlin, June 11.—A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Harbin, dated to-day, says the attitude of the Chinese continues to awaken apprehension. Women and children are leaving Harbin.

The spirit of the Russian troops, the dispatch adds, is unbroken. Numerous wounded men from the Yalu battle have already recovered and gone to the front.

TO VISIT ST. LOUIS.

An Estimate of the Cost of a Seven Day to World's Fair

As many of our citizens are endeavoring to secure some reliable figures concerning the cost of the St. Louis trip, the following excerpt from an article written by Editor O'Beirne of the Stratford Beacon, who made the trip with the Press Association recently, may be taken as authoritative:

All this leads up to the question as to the best time to go and the cost. June is a pleasant month in St. Louis, and the latter end of the month should see the grounds in good shape and all exhibits in position. But those who will be able to take a holiday in the autumn will find that the pleasanter season. Everything will by that time be in smooth working order, and the weather will be cooler. Then as to the cost. Assuming a week's absence from home, giving five days in St. Louis will satisfy you and be all that many can spare, the following is a reasonable estimate of the average cost from Canada, based on railroad fare—$16.60 from Stratford to St. Louis and return

Railway fare to St. Louis and return	$16 60
Meals—21 averaging 50c. each	10 50
Lodging, four nights in St. Louis	4 00
Five admissions to the World's Fair	2 50
"The Pike" attractions — 10, averaging 25c each	2 50
Incidentals, seven days	7 00
Total for week	$43 10

If you prefer first class sleeping car, it will add to cost $3 to $6 one way or $6 to $12 both ways, for double berth accommodating two persons. Two persons travelling together can do it for less per person.

Add the difference in the fare from Peterborough—say $5—to the above and the result is $47.85. The trip can be done for $50 by persons economically inclined.

AFTER HOURS IN COFFIN.

Child is Revived when Relatives Gather for Funeral.

Custer, S.D., June 10.—After lying thirty-six hours in her burial casket the 5-year-old daughter of C. M. Keating was revived. She apparently had died of typhoid fever. Dr. E. S. Norton, a relative, at the house to attend the funeral, decided the child's rosy cheeks were not those of a dead person and he called other physicians to help revive the child. Half an hour later the stethoscope indicated a return of strong heart action. The child will recover.

SUGAR BEETS

Interesting Letter From a Well Known Agriculturist on Beets.

The following letter will be of interest to many of our readers. Mr. Rennie is well known in Ontario to be one of the most successful root growers in the province.

SUGAR BEETS.

To the Editor of the Weekly Sun:

I notice in last week's issue that Mr. Andrew Elliott of Galt states that sugar beets are being grown to quite an extent by farmers within reach of the factory, but farmers outside the teaming limit have gone back on them.

Knowing the facts as I do, I can't understand why he should make such a statement, for out of some 1,775 growers this year, over 1,000 are outside of Waterloo County, and even many of these in the county are outside of teaming distance. There are some 1,200 acres more grown for the Berlin factory this year. Surely this does not look as though the farmers are going back on beet-growing. I understand, for some reason, this is not the first time that Mr. Elliott has tried to decry the sugar beet industry of this country. Yes, an industry which has proved itself very profitable to the farmers, many realizing from $80 to $100 per acre, and a few even more. When I scan some of Mr. Elliott's remarks about the sugar beet crop, I have to wonder if he ever grew an acre of beets for a factory in his life. However, if he is a little observant on his way home from the General Assembly meetings at St. John he can look out and see beets growing on both sides of the track as far east as Newcastle, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Whitby, Dunbarton, Port Union, Scarboro Junction, Brampton, and many other places too numerous to mention, and all for the Ontario Sugar Company at Berlin.

SIMPSON RENNIE.

—Farmers state that the outlook is good for the hay crop. The recent rains have had a telling effect for good, and, provided there are no June frosts, the crops will be above the average.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

THE ANIMAL FROZE TO DEATH

A Story which Some will Have Audacity to Doubt

It was in the back parlor of the Snowden House, and the knights of the grip had th floor.

"Did you ever hear of the fish that lived on frost?" said Ald. Harry Best, as To, Rutherford reached for the corn pipe which the proprietor had laid down.

"No," said Tom Rigby.

"Well, this fish," said the doughty alderman, "haunts the Maine coast. It comes ashore every morning before the sun has melted the frost, and from the rocks and tree trunks and grass blades it scrapes with its blunt teeth enough of this cold food to last it for the day. It can never be caught in the water for the reason that it will not rise to bait. Sometimes, though, men catch it ashore with their hands. Its flesh is considered a delicacy and brings $2.25 a pound."

Mr. Snowden grew.

"Now I will tell you," he said, "about my uncle's mule, away back in the forties. My uncle kept this mule in a wooden stable and he fed it on popcorn. One day the stable took fire, and the popcorn in the mule's stall, shooting up in the air, descended all about the unfortunate animal in soft white flakes. These flakes the mule mistook for snow. He imagined that he was in a snowstorm and froze to death. If you doubt this story all you have to do is to ask Sam Belcher."

OUR NATIONAL DAY

A Good Programme Arranged for Dominion Day

At a meeting of the Citizens' committee a program of sports was drawn up for Dominion Day, as follows:

2.23 trot or pace.
2.40 or 2.50 trot or pace.
Pony race, for ponies under 14 hands, best 2 in 3 heats.
1 mile foot race for medal or cup.
1-2 mile foot race.
1-4 mile foot race.

The Schneider Cup for the best 100 yds. runner will also be competed for in all probability, and a number of other sporting events will form an attractive day's sport.

The committee, which is composed of Messrs. R. E. Wood, chairman; R. E. Layfield, secretary; P. Campbell, treasurer, and A. H. Stratton and Robt. Fair, has received assurances from a number of local horsemen of their intention to enter their animals for the different events, and a good day is promised.

MRS. ARCHER DEAD

A Popular Campbellford Lady Dies of Typhoid Fever

On Friday morning Mrs. Joshua Archer, of Campbellford, passed peacefully away at Nicholls Hospital, in this town, after a couple of weeks' sickness with typhoid fever. She improved, it was thought, after being brought to the hospital, and only the evening before was thought to be on the high road to recovery, but her heart becoming suddenly affected, death came quickly. Deceased was in the 40th year of her age, and her death will be a sad blow to the family and friends from whom she was thus suddenly called to part. She was held in high esteem in the neighboring town, and had many friends and well-wishers in Peterborough, as well. Her sister, Miss Libby George, of Campbellford, was here during her illness, the guest of Mrs. Waller, on Charlotte street. Deceased leaves seven children, four boys and three girls, besides a husband, to mourn her loss, and to whom the sympathy of the community will go out unstintedly. Mr. Bell, of 98 Harvey street, is an uncle of deceased, and Mrs. Archer, of Harvey street, an aunt.

The body was taken to Campbellford for interment.

A SHOCKING FATALITY

Mrs. John Delaney Killed by a Railway Train

Death of a Lady who Was Widely Known and Highly Esteemed—An Inquest to Be Held

It was a terribly sudden and saddening accident which occurred at, or about, noon yesterday, when Mrs. John Delaney was struck by a Grand Trunk train at Park street crossing, and hurled into eternity. Mrs. Delaney was a woman of some seventy-four years of age, and was returning home from paying a visit to Mrs. George Ball when the accident happened. It is very evident that she could not have heard the train approaching round the bend of the road, some distance west of the crossing. If the whistle blew, or the bell rung, she could not have heard them; and consequently she kept right on until she was struck by the engine and hurled a considerable distance. There were a number of people on the street at the time, we believe, but were unable to reach her in time to be of any assistance. She was hit on the right side and also sustained a fracture of one of her limbs above the ankle. Dr. Gray, the coroner, on learning the facts, decided to hold an inquest, which opened last evening. Death came before she reached home, and the news of her demise came as a shock to her many friends. She was a long-time resident of Peterborough, and was very generally respected by all who knew her. She was born in Ireland, but came here shortly after her marriage. She leaves four daughters and three sons to mourn her loss. The sons are Dr Thos., of Naugatuck, Conn., and John and Wm., of Denver, Col. The daughters are Mrs. (Dr.) Ward, of town, and Miss Alice, at home. The funeral arrangements are not yet announced. It was a special train which caused the accident. It was stopped immediately, but too late to be of any use to the unfortunate lady.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

YOU PAY ONLY IF CURED.

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write for It This Very Day.

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and state boards of medical examiners, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has both the method and the ability to do as he says. Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have sufferers that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, emaciation of parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the associated parts on rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc.

The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make these and another thing to cure them, so he has made it a rule not to ask for money unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him, and if he accepts your case for treatment it is understood as a matter of course that you are to pay him when cured. He has no fake testimonials or questionable methods to resort to, but solicits the most thorough examination and investigation of his credentials and methods. He has published a book on this subject, explaining the 14 diplomas and certificates, entirely free, which you can obtain by addressing DR. S. GOLDBERG, 18 Woodward Ave., Room 18 Detroit, Mich., and it will be forwarded to you by return mail.

AFTER PEACE, WHAT?

Militarists, anticipating the fall of Port Arthur and the hemming in of Kuropatkin around Harbin and Mukden, say that peace will immediately follow. Then what? Will Japan be allowed to humiliate her enemy to the full extent of her desire, or will there be amicable interference upon the part of the powers to preserve a remnant of Russia's faded glory?

It seems most likely that when the time comes for these things to be decided the great powers of the world, including the United States, will interpose as mediators to nominate the price Russia shall pay for her defeat It is not to be presumed for a moment that, should Japan show a disposition to be vindictive, they will allow her free rein to impose terms of settlement. It would be only right and just to expect her to consider the situation in a calm and unimpassioned mood; to grant that in the defeat of Russia she has accomplished what will make her name resplendent with glory for all time to come and give her hitherto undreamed of prestige with the nations of the earth, Japan will doubtless be made to feel that for a position among the powers bought at the price of Russia's shame she shall not exact too great payment. It will probably be shown her that it were best for her to ask little more than was accorded her at the close of the Chinese war and for which alone she now claims to be warring, namely, a protectorate over Korea and the maintenance of neutrality in Manchuria, with permission to occupy Port Arthur as a strong hold

Should Japan, by any mis guided chance, be inclined to resent such terms as these, the powers will make plain to her the fact that they are in earnest and will intimate the refusal to concede to righteous demands will be followed by demonstrations which will force her to come to reason.

The largest convention on record promises to take place next autumn in Louisville, Ky. John Cable Smith, a wealthy Kentuckian, has issued a general invitation to all the Smiths throughout the country to assemble for a three days' reunion. He promises a delightful time and has agreed to defray all the expenses of entertainment. A composite photograph of the Smiths might be made at the time showing the essential characteristics of the large and, on the whole, very respectable family.

Japan positively refuses to state when she will evacuate Manchuria.

They lynched a negro by mistake in Mississippi the other, day, but explain that it doesn't matter much, because they would undoubtedly have felt it their duty to lynch him later on if the premature murdering had not taken place, Mississippi doesn't propose to let little errors like that bother her.

Does Tobacco Affect the Health?

In a Thousand Ways its Excessive Use is Injurious to the System. Causes Heart and Nerve Troubles.

That tobacco exerts a very decided influence upon the body is unquestionable. Thoughtful physicians prohibit smoking as an evil essence just as they do in the formative years of youth, when the system is so susceptible to the action of narcotics.

In functional heart trouble the tobacco habit is often looked for as a cause, and many a smoker wakes up at night feeling all the terrors caused by a fluttering, palpitating heart.

If there is something wrong with your heart that makes you wake up with a start, you ought to take Ferrosone regularly, because it is the best heart medicine made. All the muscles and nerves about the heart are strengthened and given new force by Ferrosone, which is noted for its prompt cures of heart disease.

As a rule weak heart and weak nerves go together, so it is important that Ferrosone should be used until the nervous system is completely restored. From every part of America comes convincing evidence that Ferrosone possesses merit far beyond the ordinary. Its cures are lasting, like that of a well known merchant in St. Johns, Mr. Philip T. Drayton, who writes; "I can give good advice to everyone suffering from heart weakness. I was in a very low condition a few months ago, and was unable to work. Without any apparent cause I would jump and start. I could not sleep more than an hour without being awakened by pain and palpitation of the heart. I used different preparations, but found Ferrosone the best. It improved my general health, strengthened my heart and nerves, and enabled me to go to work again. Nothing else has ever helped my heart like Ferrosone, which has cured me perfectly. I would advise others troubled with either nerve or heart trouble to use Ferrosone also."

No one ever used Ferrosone without lasting benefits. It builds up weak people, nourishes the starved nerves, and tones up the muscles of the heart. Ferrosone is prepared in tablet form, and is simple and convenient to take; it is sure to help you.

Do not allow an unscrupulous dealer to recommend anything in place of Ferrosone, which will be mailed to any address, price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50, by N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

CANADIANS IN LONDON HOLD A BANQUET.

Men Prominent in the Life of Great Britain Refer to Land of Nativity.

London, June 9.—The Canada Club held a rousing banquet last night, Sir Gilbert Parker presiding. Dan Miller, in proposing "The Imperial Forces," regretted the departure from Canada of the British regiments who received the English characteristics of the country. There were 145 well known Canadians in the imperial army.

Capt. Blake, R.N., said that Canada would be a very great maritime nation. He hoped that great statesmen directing her destinies would formulate a plan by which more of her intrepid seamen would come forward and fight for the benefit of the empire.

General Benson after paying a tribute to his old school, Upper Canada College, declared that Canadians were able to forge to the front of the empire without the interest of wealth. From his position behind the scenes with regard to the reform in the war office, he was able to say the country was on the eve of the announcement of startling changes.

Sir Gilbert Parker, speaking of the Dominion's leadership in the unity of the empire, said that Canada would accomplish more if she grasped the importance of compromise As long as the empire possessed men like Earl Minto, who were wise and prudent, never disturbing the existing machinery for the benefit of Downing street, there was no need of fear for the empire.

The Bishop of Calgary, speaking for the guests, was astonished to find Canadians occupying such important positions in the political, social and religious life of Great Britain. He hoped that Canada would provide more men like Lord Strathcona and Hamar Greenwood.

The Hon. W. H. Irvine, ex-premier of Victoria, said that Australia was pushing through the federation sickness, through which Canada had successfully passed. He hoped soon to visit Canada and study imperial problems. Imperial federationists should ascertain the imperial views towards the colonies. He complained that no member of the colonial office ever visited Canada.

MILTIA AND UNION MINERS FOUGHT.

But the Soldiers Rounded up the Miners and Took 14 Captives.

Victor, Col., June 8.—A pitched battle between the militia and union miners was fought at Dunnville, the new mining camp thirteen miles out of Victor, shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon. John Carley, a union miner, was killed. The troops returned to Victor at 8 o'clock tonight bringing with them fourteen captives.

Before the special train left Victor bearing the force under Gen. Bell, it was reported that the miners in the hills about Dunnville numbered about 250, and that it was their intention to march into Victor tonight in a body and attempt to liberate by force the inmates of the temporary "bull pen" in Victor. That the force actually consisted of but twenty-one men is the statement of one of the fourteen men who were captured by the militia.

The train proceeded to the immediate incident. When about a quarter of a mile distant from the Dunnville temporary station the officers could see the camp of the miners. It included one cabin and six or seven tents. The officers left the train at the command of Gen. Bell, and prepared to advance upon the camp of unionist in regular skirmish order.

As they emerged from the cut in which the train had come to a stop they were greeted with a volley fired from points of vantage surrounding the hills. The deputies returned the fire and promiscuous shooting was engaged in for ten minutes. From the character of the shooting from the hills, Gen. Bell immediately recognized the fact that the strength of the miners had been greatly over-estimated, and that he had sufficient force under his command to make an immediate roundup and capture the entire opposing force.

According he divided the equities and soldiers into seven detachments, and these set out to make a complete clean-up of all the surrounding hills.

THE RUSSIAN PRINCE PASSES THROUGH TOWN.

Leading Newspaper Man on in Canada.

Prince Hesper Dukhtomski, editor-in-chief of the St. Petersburg Viedomosti who has paid a protracted visit to the Doukhobor settlement throughout the west, passed through Peterborough on his way to Montreal, from whence he will sail for home.

The Prince entertains the opinion that the Doukhobors were a great loss to Russia, notwithstanding the fact that they would do no military service. It was to see how they progressed under the less stringent laws of Canada that the Prince made his present trip.

One of the leading journalists of Russia—a man whom, it is said, is a warm personal friend of the Emperor—he has been in attendance upon the world's newspaper parliament in connection with the St. Louis Exposition, at which gathering he was the only representative of his country.

This is not the Prince's first visit to Canada. Four years ago he travelled from Montreal to Vancouver over the C.P.R.

The newspaper directed by the Prince at the capital of the Russian Empire consists of eight or ten pages, very little of which is given up to advertisements, almost none to city news. It was founded by no less a personage than Peter the Great. With a break of just a few years it has been continued up to the present time and is now in its one hundred and seventy-ninth volume.

The paper has always been a very important one It has almost if not quite since its founding been owned by the government. Prince Dukhtomsky has a twelve year lease of it from the government "department of public instruction," and has already had control for eight years.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a numbea of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being located on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property ranging from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district, The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern mach nery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups; namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 30 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 570 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflicts as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented.

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78½ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented.

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory.....752½ acres
" " Mill and building sites..... 55 "
" " Timber properties..... 90 "

Total 903½ acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

Complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government from which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

Total cost of development to date, present management, $53,000.00
" " " " former owners - 18,000.00
" " surface improvements, buildings, saw mill plant, horses, wagons, ore cars, track, tools, etc. - 17,000 00
" " Machinery paid for and to be installed - 6,000 00

$99,000 00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $26,000 00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 200 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built.

In the meantime only the high grade Smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will aid us materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905. and be continuous thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3 50 to $4 00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our stockholders These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments. By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18.00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of production is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,
ROBERT HARRISON.

BRITISH OPINION ON THE BUDGET.

Interviews with Representatives of Many Lines of Trade.

THE DUMPING PROPOSALS.

Ar Said by High Authorities in Great Britain to be Impracticable.

London, June 10.—The Canadian budget proposals excite much interest in the business world. A large woollen manufacturer, whom I found in a London hotel, said, 'A nice free trade ministry this of yours in Canada. Why don't they stop this preference altogether?'

THE WOOLLEN TRADE.

Another manufacturer from Bradford regretted the increase in the Canadian woollen duties, because it would hit the British manufacturers, but quite understood the necessity of further Canadian protection at home. The Bradford trade he said, hab benefited considerably from the Canadian preference. Some firms did three times the Canadian trade of five years ago. He hoped that England would soon reciprocate in favor of Canadian farm produce. The new duties would especially hit the lower grades of British goods. The British manufacturers could probably hold their own in the better class of goods.

A Scottish woollen manufacturer confirmed the Bradford man's view. He cordially welcomed the prospect of reciprocity with Canada.

ROPE AND TWINE MAKERS.

A party of Belfast rope and twine manufacturers, who happened to be in London, said that the Canadian trade was progressing satisfactorily and welcomed the increased preference, though inasmuch as the British manufacturer sells f.o.b. the benefit will go to the Canadian customers.

THE IRON TRADE.

An iron manufacturer wanted to know if Canada meant now to stop her own dumping of iron into Great Britain.

A Leicester hosiery manufacturer said the preference had helped the trade build up a large progressive Canadian business. No details of the new Canadian hosiery tariff had been received, but he believed the British trade would not seriously suffer.

A SILK MANUFACTURER.

A Congleton silk manufacturer said that the growth of the Canadian trade under the preference was one of the few bright aspects of the British silk trade, which had been severely hit by unfair European competition.

A CHAMBERLAINITE VIEW.

Chamberlainites say that the proposed Canadian three tariffs, namely, maximum, minimum and preference, probably suggest the lines of the Chamberlain tariff here, though protection as high even as in Canada would be impossible in England where the average duty will not likely exceed ten per cent.

THE DUMPING PROPOSALS.

Mr. Fielding's dumping proposals strike high authorities here as impracticable. They cannot see how it is possible to identify dumped goods. The purchaser, who alone knows, is interested in keeping the information to himself. Dumping is recognized as part of the American industrial organization and can only be dealt with as a part of the general tariff problem.

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER.

St. Petersburg, June 9.—Strange stories are told of a certain Zenobia Golachky's influence over the temperament of the czar, stories that seem to be largely true. Zenobia is a sort of young and handsome revival of Mme. Krudener, the friend of Czar Alexander I., with all of Krudener's mysticism, but more than Krudener's roguery.

Zenobia is a little Russian from near Poltava the daughter of a small shopkeeper, who emigrated from Galicia. She is a handsome little black-eyed, dark-haired, buxom woman, as unlike the conventional witch or seer as it is possible to believe. Yet sometimes she has in her eyes a dreamy, half-sensuous look.

Zenobia is highly educated, speaks French and German as well as Russian and is a fine piano player, an admirable interpreter of the voluptuous strains of Chopin.

SHOWS CZAR THE FUTURE.

Just how the czar came to hear about her is a mystery. It is said he was told about her by the new favorite, Bezobrazteff. Be this as it may, Zenobia came to St. Petersburg and at once saw the czar, to whom she began revealing the future.

A lot of nom-sense is talked about her using a new metal in her researches into the unknown. The new metal is said to possess radio-active properties. Zenobia is credited with conjuring with this metal, throwing upon a large white screen pictures such as magic lantern slides throw. The screen is 7 feet long and 4 feet 8 inches broad. During the entire performance it is perpetually trembling, as if a soft wind were sweeping over it.

The pictures which Zenobia's art or science casts on the screen are very confused and require much elucidation. They generally are broad or narrow dark lines faintly outlining certain objects.

The czar has had several seances with Zenobia. In one of the first the thoughts he could trace rough outlines of Port Arthur and the longer he gazed on the screen the clearer the outlines grew until he could plainly see Port Arthur in ruins. After this picture a number of others were shown all of which the czar discovered were meant to convey the idea of disaster to the Russian arms.

The other persons present at the seance were not quite sure whether they could read this interpretation into the picture, but thought that could.

The last picture gave hope. It showed the Japanese, represented by a number of black dots, all coming over the screen, evacuating Corea. Following them were innumerable larger dots—the Russians in hot chase.

Fraulein Golachky declines to take any remuneration for her revelations. During one of her conversations with the czar she said she could tell him what his ministers were saying and thinking. This was divulged with the result that St. Petersburg was made too hot for Zenobia.

Where she went is not known, but the immediate entourage of the czar takes good care that she shall not again disturb their imperial master, already nervous enough with the cares and anxieties of the war. The probability is that Zenobia is now somewhere in Galicia.

St. Petersburg, June 10 — W. S. Smith, a brother of Samuel Smith, United States consul at Moscow and a business man at Port Arthur, has arrived here. Mr. Smith expresses confidence that Port Arthur will never be taken unless the Japanese sacrifice thousands of men. To the Associated Press he said:

"The Russians had 38,000 men at Port Arthur at the time I left there and every man is hale and hearty and is prepared to fight till the last drop to prevent the capture of the fortress. All the surrounding heights are strongly fortified by entrenchments, embankments and gun emplacements, scientifically disposed. I counted in one day between three and four hundred guns.

IMMENSE FORCE NEEDED.

"The Japanese can take the place only if they are in overwhelming force or if the Russians are asleep, and I do not believe that the latter contingency will occur in view of the vigilance everywhere manifested.

"Before I left the Russians came to me and asked me if I intended to stay, desiring me to take arms and join the fire patrol, and requesting my wife and myself to become members of the Red Cross. Had it not been for my American citizenship I undoubtedly would have been compelled to serve. All the other men remaining now are one duty.

"I was allowed to take out only a small quantity of luggage owing to the rigid restrictions under which the railway is being operated.

"Rarely a night passed at Port Arthur without cannonading by the Japanese. The fire always opened about 2 o'clock and stopped at 6. Now I waken regularly at 2 o'clock and cannot sleep again for four hours.

HAVE AMPLE STORES.

"For a time after the war began the battleships Retvizan and Czarevitch were used as floating fortresses to guard the mouth of the harbor. The Russians have ample stores of provisions for four and a half years.

"The railroad had a heavy strain put upon it but it stood the work finely. After leaving Port Arthur our train was sidetracked frequently in order to permit military trains to pass us. Before going to Port Arthur I lived at Vladivostock, which is, of course, smaller, but is well protected.

"Coming to St. Petersburg it was impossible for me to get first or second class accommodations, and I was compelled to travel third class in a car crowded with filthy Chinese. The stench was so bad that I was made ill and had to stop off at Irkutsk. From the latter place I came third class also."

CLOSING DOWN STEEL WORKS.

An Official Action was Taken at Sydney Yesterday.

THE EFFECT WIDESPREAD.

Number of Men Out of Employment will Soon Reach Four Thousand

Sydney, N.S., June 10.—The plant of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company is to be closed down indefinitely, or, at least, until the present trouble is settled. Such was the statement made by Manager Fraser to the 150 employes, including the clerical staff, now on the works. Work, however, he said, would be given to any who wished to remain, but the nature of the work might be different to that they are at now. There will be no more men employed, but an effort will be made to unload the steamers now in the dock and ship whatever stock there is now on hand. The effect of this ultimatum respecting the works will more than likely prove serious to many of the citizens and business people of Sydney. Already merchants are cancelling their orders as fast as they can reach them, and Halifax and Montreal wholesale houses who had permanent representatives here, are recalling them and closing their agencies.

GENERAL DEPRESSION.

Rent and real estate are already going down, and several business men are thinking of closing out. Just what the company propose to do after closing the works is not known, nor is it likely that anything definite will be decided upon until the meeting of the directors at Montreal, to be called immediately upon Mr. Plum-

WEDDING BELLS

Nuptials of Miss Lucy Corbett and Mr. Wm. J. Young

On Wednesday an interesting wedding took place in St. Peter's church, Toronto, when Miss Lucy Corbett, daughter of the late Timothy Corbett, of Vaughan, was united in marriage to Mr. William J. Young, of town.

The bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. Michael Watters, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Steehl.

The bride wore a becoming costume of white colinne over white taffeta silk and a white chiffon hat with plume. Miss Annie O'Connor, of Toronto, who was bridesmaid, was attired in white organdie over white taffeta. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Matthew Young, of Young's Point.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast and reception were held at the residence of Mr. Walters, 152 McCaul street.

The groom is quite popular and well known in Peterborough, where he has been connected for some time with the bicycle emporium of F. R. J. McPherson, on George street.

Mr. and Mrs. Young will reside on Rolling street.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:—The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patient Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 288 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $30,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

to tell which was the more pleased at his return, Margaret or Rose.

"Did you see Theo?" asked the former, and Henry replied, "George told me she had gone to Hilldale. Madam Conway is very sick."

"For me! for me! She's sick with mourning for me," cried Maggie. "Darling grandma! she does love me still, and I will go home to her at once."

Then the painful thought rushed over her, "If she wished for me, she would send. It's the humiliation, not the love, that makes her sick. They have cast me off—grandma, Theo, all, all," and sinking upon the lounge, she wept aloud.

"Margaret," said Henry, coming to her side, "but for my promise I should have talked to George of you, for there was a troubled expression on his face when he asked me if I had heard from Hillsdale."

"What did you say?" asked Maggie, holding her breath to catch the answer, which was "I told him you had not written to me since my return from Cuba, and then he looked as if he would say more, but a customer called him away, and our conversation was not resumed."

For a moment Maggie was silent. Then she said, "I am glad you did not intrude me upon him. If Theo has gone to Hilldale she knows that I am here, and does not care to follow me. It is the disgrace which troubles them, not the losing me!" and again burying her head in the cushions of the lounge, she wept bitterly. It was useless for Henry and Rose to try to comfort her, telling her it was possible that Hagar had told nothing. "And if so," said Henry, "you well know that I am the last one to whom you would be expected to flee for protection." Margaret would not listen. She was resolved upon being unhappy, and during the long hours of that night she tossed wakefully upon her pillow, and when the morning came she was too weak to rise; so she kept her room, listening to the music of the Sabbath bells, which to her seemed sadly saying, "Home, home." Alas, I have no home," she said, turning away to weep, for in the tolling of those bells there came to her no voice, whispering of the darkness, the desolation, and the sorrow there was in the home for which she so much mourned.

Thus the day were on, and are another week was gone Rose insisted upon a speedy removal to the seashore, notwithstanding it was so early in the season, for by this means she hoped that Maggie's health would be improved. Accordingly, Henry went once more to Worcester, ostensibly for money, but really to see if George Douglas now would speak to him of Margaret. But George was in New York, they said; and somewhat disappointed, Henry went back to Leominster, where every thing was in readiness for their journey. Monday was fixed upon for their departure, and at an early hour Margaret looked back on what had been to her a second home, smiling faintly as Rose whispered to her cheerily, "I have a strong presentiment that somewhere in our travels we shall meet with Arthur Carrollton."

CHAPTER XXII.

Come now over the hills to the westward. Come to the Hilldale woods, to the stone house by the mill, where all the day long there is heard but one name, the servants breathing it softly and low, as if she who had borne it were dead, the sister, dim-eyed now, and paler faced, whispering it oft to herself, while the lady, so gaughty and proud, repeats it again and again, shuddering as naught but the echoing walls reply to the heart-broken cry of "Margaret, where are you now?"

Yes, there was mourning in that household—mourning for the lost one, the darling, the pet of them all.

Brightly had the sun arisen on that June morning which brought to them their sorrow, while the birds in the tall forest trees caroled as gayly as if no storm cloud were hovering near. At an early hour Mr Carrollton had arisen, thinking, as he looked forth from his window, "She will tell me all to-day," and smiling as he thought how easy and pleasant would be the task of winning her back to her olden gayety. Madam Conway, too, was unusually excited and very anxiously she listened for the first sound of Maggie's footsteps on the stairs.

"She sleeps late," she thought, when breakfast was announced, and taking her accustomed seat, she bade a servant "see if Margaret were ill."

"She is not there," was the report the girl brought back.

"Not there!" cried Mr. Carrollton.

"Not there!" repeated Madam Conway, a shadowy foreboding of evil stealing over her. "She seldom walks at this early hour," she continued, and rising, she went herself to Margaret's room.

Everything was in perfect order, the bed was undisturbed, the chamber empty. Margaret was gone, and on the dressing-table lay the fatal letter, telling why she went. At first Madam Conway did not see it; but it soon caught her eye, and tremblingly she opened it, reading but the first line; "I am going away forever."

Then a loud shriek rang through the silent room, penetrating to Arthur Carrollton's listening ear, and bringing him at once to her side. With the letter still in her hand, and her face of a deathly hue, and her eyes flashing with fear, Madam Conway turned to him as he entered, saying, "Margaret has gone, left us forever, killed herself it may be—read," and she handed him the letter, herself bending eagerly forward, to hear what he might say.

But she listened in vain. With lightning rapidity Arthur Carrollton read what Mag had written — read that she, his idol, the chosen bride of his bosom, was the daughter of a servant, the grandchild of old Hagar! And for this she had fled from his presence did beauty she knew of the mighty pride which now, in the first bitter moment of his agony, did indeed rise up a barrier between himself and the beautiful girl he loved so well. Had she lain dead before him, dead in all her youthful beauty, he could have folded her in his arms, and then buried her from his sight, with a feeling of perfect happiness compared to that which he now felt.

"Oh, Maggie, my lost one, can it be?" he whispered to himself, and pressing his hand upon his chest, which heaved with strong emotion, he staggered to a seat, while the perspiration stood in beaded drops upon his forehead, and around his lips.

"What is it, Mr Carrollton? 'Tis something dreadful, sure," said Mrs Jeffrey, appearing in the door, but Madam Conway motioned her away, and tottering to his side, said, "Read it aloud to me—read."

The sound of her voice recalled his wandering mind, and covering his face with his hands, he moaned in anguish then, growing suddenly calm, he snatched up the letter, which had fallen to the floor, and read it aloud, while Madam Conway, stupefied with horror, sank at his feet, and clasping her hands above her head, rocked to and fro, but made no word of comment. Far down the long ago her thoughts were straying, and gathering up many by-gone scenes, which told her that what she heard was true.

"Yes, 'tis true," she groaned, and then, powerless to speak another word, she laid her head upon a chair, while Mr. Carrollton, preferring to be alone, sought the solitude of his own room, where, unobserved, he could wrestle with his sorrow, and conquer his inborn pride, which whispered to him that a Carrollton must not wed a bride so far beneath him.

Only a moment, though, and then the love he bore for Maggie Miller rolled back upon him with an overwhelming power, while his better judgment, with that love, came hand in hand, pleading for the fair young girl, who, now that he had lost her, seemed a thousand fold dearer than before. But he had not lost her, he would find her. She was Maggie Miller still to him, and though old Hagar's blood were in her veins, he would not give her up. This resolution once made, it could not be shaken, and when half an hour or more was passed, he walked with firm, unfaltering footsteps, back to the apartment where Madame Conway still sat upon the floor, her head resting upon the chair, and her frame convulsed with grief.

Her struggle had been a terrible one, and it was not over yet, for

POPE IS FOR BEARDS

Priests are Given Leave to Eschew Use of Razor If They Like.

Rome, June 10,—That Pius X is willing to grant permission to priests to wear beards became known the pilgrims on their return from the Holy Land, where some of the priests had let their beards grow. On entering the audience room the pope was startled by their appearance, and remarked that he had never seen such a gathering of bearded priests.

"I have known a curate," he said, "who had a horror of the razor and who was heard to say on several occasions: 'If I ever become pope I will grant permission to all priests to wear beards.' I was that curate, and I will keep my word if anyone asks me for such a permit."

AFTER HOURS IN COFFIN.

Newport, R.I., June 10.—The final tests in the submarine boat trials which have been conducted for a week past by the trial board of the navy department, have been completed. The Holland type submarine boat Fulton was taken to a point between Point Judith and Narragansett pier and at 8.30 o'clock sunk to the bottom of the bay, where it remained for twelve hours. When the submarine rose to the surface in the morning she had a full speed run, which concluded her trial.

On board the Fulton are Naval Constructor J. J. Woodward, Lieutenant Charles P. Nelson of the submarine torpedo boat Porpoise, representing the United States navy; Captain F. Y. Cable, Lawrence J. Speir and a crew of eight men. A supply of food was taken aboard and it will be cooked on electric stoves.

ANNUAL INSPECTION

Of the 57th Regiment Took Place Last Night

Pursuant to announcement, the annual inspection of the 57th Regiment took place on Armour's Hill, last evening. Lieut.-Col. Buchan, D.O.C. of Kingston, was the inspecting officer, assisted by Col. Hemming, District Adjutant. Although the evening was not as pleasant as could have been desired, the marching of the men could hardly have been beaten for steadiness and step, the whole Regiment seeming to move as one man, and the Bands—both Regimental and Bugle—accredited themselves to the satisfaction of all concerned. Arriving at the rendezvous the men were put through a number of attack and defence movements, all of which seemed to be fairly well executed, after which they were marched back to the armory ground, and further exercised previous to being dismissed, before which the men were served with light refreshments. The total turn out numbered 272, 25 of whom were officers, 52 musicians, 8 staff-sergeants, 30 sergeants and 12 stretcher bearers. It is the generally expressed opinion that the Regiment made a creditable appearance, and the officers, we believe, are pleased over the outcome of the inspection as a whole. It is the intention of the Regiment to take a trip out of town on July 1st, but just where it will go has not yet been definitely decided on.

A RARE CHANCE
FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.
BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

CRIPPLE CREEK ENTERPRISE GOLD MINING COMPANY

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non-assessable (No individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details. The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion. Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

1. Do you know that it's title is free and clear?
2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company of BOULDER, COLORADO

Holds the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless you really are interested, because we waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group consists of one vein 80 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9 000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $36.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 800 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50-ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

75 Cents Per Share, Par Value $1.00

INVESTORS are afforded every opportunity for the strictest investigation regarding the property and the reputations of the officers and directors. Highest banking references.

THE COSTILLA GOLD MINING COMPANY

Has 10 Gold-bearing Veins Exposed

90 Acres in a Solid Block and All Patented

Crosscut Driven 117 feet to the First Big Vein

A drift run on the vein 178 FEET IN ORE, the Gold value or contents running from 2 to ounces, per ton, or from $40 to $160. This ore has not been stoped and will not be until the main shoot is reached.

The breast of the drift is, only 52 feet, according to engineer's survey, from the first BIG vertical ore shoot, which, at the surface, 550 feet above, shows values of 2 to 7 ounces gold, per ton.

Slabs and feeders of gold ore are coming in freely in the drift.

This is a business proposition. It is the KIND AND QUALITY which makes for great and permanent success. It is worth an investment of 10c. on the dollar, per share, now. It will be worth par with development.

KUROPATKIN AND VICEROY.

PARTISANS AT ST. PETERSBURG DIPLOMATIC CONFLICT.

The Russian Soldiers in Corea Church and German Diet are Difficult Problems.

A Financial Supposition.

Replying to the observations that Gen Kuropatkin had an army of 200,000 men available, the officer replied: "Who told you that? If you were to suppose a portion of the troops had been despatched towards Vladivostok in order to march down along the coast, occupying Corea and establish themselves in the rear of General Kuroki's army, if you added that this army of which Gen. Rennekampf's division is the vanguard, is commanded by General Linevitch, if you should, you would not be astonished shortly to hear that the Japanese first army, under General Kuroki, had been annihilated, and I think you would not be far from the truth In my case I am certain that General Kuropatkin will not move on a mere order from St. Petersburg I do not say he will move at all. I do not even say he is not at present on the march, but you may state he is acting on his own initiative unhampered by the central authorities. He has not yet defeated the Japanese, but has beaten Admiral Alexieff."

To Crush Kuroki

Another despatch from St. Petersburg says that General Kuropatkin has not one, but two, armies. The first is at Liaoyang, and the second between Gen Kuroki's troops and the Pacific This would explain General Kuropatkin's immobility, for the Russian Commander-in-Chief is waiting for his second army to complete its long and difficult march from Vladivostok towards the Yalu. Thus cutting General Kuroki's communications before himself making a general offensive advance in order to place the Japanese between two fires.

Heavy Firing at Port Arthur.

London, June 8.—The Times today has the following from Chefoo dated June 7: There was very heavy firing at Port Arthur from 3 to 5 o'clock this morning.

Kuropatkin Has Free Hand

London, June 8.—The correspondent of The Times at Paris says: A St. Petersburg despatch quotes a general officer of the Russian army as follows: "Two days ago I was in the entourage of the Emperor. Between the partisans of Viceroy Alexieff and the partisans of General Kuropatkin there was a fierce battle. Incredible efforts were made to induce his Majesty to send orders to General Kuropatkin to advance and relieve Port Arthur at all costs. That would have been a check for the Commander-in-Chief, upset the decisions he had taken, and would have obliged him to thoroughly modify his strategic dispositions, which he is perhaps, no longer able able to change. The good sense of the Emperor triumphed over the intriguers, and he confined himself to inquiring of General Kuropatkin if the situation admitted of his advancing towards Port Arthur, adding that he was merely expressing a wish, and left to the Commander-in-Chief the task of examining the possibility of complying with it. General Kuropatkin replied that it was impossible. Knowing him as I do, I may add that the Commander-in-Chief would sooner have resigned than executed the order if it had appeared disastrous for further operations."

Mines in the Open Sea.

London, June 8.—A correspondent of the Times in Russia says: The Novoe Vremya publishes an editorial article, in which, on the strength of a telegram from Viceroy Alexieff, it charges the Japanese with sowing mines in the open seas, and remarks it is not improbable that the battleship Hatsuse was destroyed by a mine set afloat by the Japanese themselves. The paper then goes on to complain of the prejudice against Russians manifested in the comment of English newspapers on the use of mines. It says that Russia is blamed and upbraided, but there is not a single word of reproach for the Japanese. The same spirit has been manifested, it is alleged, ever since the war began all through Europe all the powers of which hate Russia, and regard her with common dread.

Wireless Telegraphy Service.

The paper points its moral with a reference to The Times' wireless telegraphy service. It says: "We declared we would deal with the wireless telegraphy correspondents as if they were spies, and we have a perfect right to do so. The latest letters from The London Times' steamer Haimun bear witness to the fact that the correspondent on board that vessel regularly transmitted to Chefoo intelligence of all the outgoings and ingoings of Russia's fleet at Port Arthur. The information thus conveyed might obviously have been of the highest value to the Japanese. When we boarded the Haimun we did not make a prisoner of the correspondent, but contented ourselves with exacting from him a written promise that he would not cruise around and about our Gibraltar. But none the less the English press raised a senseless agitation. A week later the Japanese requested the same Haimun not to cruise northward of a line drawn from Chefoo to Chemulpo. The correspondent obeyed without a murmur, and even expressed his thanks to the Japanese for their courtesy. In this case there are two criteria: two standards of right and wrong."

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 225 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work,

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

ENDOWMENTS AT LIFE RATES

HOW do the rates compare with those of other companies?

The rates are the same as the principal Canadian Companies charge for "Whole Life" and "Twenty Payment Life" policies

WHERE can these policies be secured?

From any agent of the LONDON LIFE.

WHEN do these policies become endowments and are the endowments guaranteed or estimated?

The policies mature as endowments at about expectation of life and are absolutely guaranteed.

WHAT kind of settlement does the LONDON LIFE give at the end of twenty years?

FIVE OPTIONS or methods of settlement are offered at the end of twenty years.

The guaranteed cash surrender is the largest in Canada for the premium paid.

WHAT options are given policy holders in case of lapse or surrender

The policy holder may select one of four options.

1st. PAID UP INSURANCE for reduced amounts payable as endowments at maturity period.

2nd. EXTENDED INSURANCE for a fixed number of years and months for full amount of policy less premiums and interest thereon unpaid.

3rd. CASH LOANS.

4th. CASH SURRENDER VALUES.

WHAT THEN?

Send for booklet entitled "Endowment at Life Rate." Mailed to any address, apply to

...ND IF ...CALLY

...suffer from ...catarrh, ...ack of medicine, ...ald cure, very few cases ... could be found.

You probably ...ve it yourself. How much benefit ...ve you obtained so far from medicine-taking? A little relief is all that you have derived. You have spent lots of money and yet the catarrh is growing worse all the time.

Has it ever occurred to you how desirable and how successful a treatment would be that you could breathe to where the disease existed. Perhaps you have thought about this form of cure but you have been unable to find a remedy that could be pleasantly and safely used.

Try Catarrhosone, it can be broken up by the air and carried in a mass drops to every part of the breathing organism. It touches the catarrh with healing, that is why it cures.

This healing, balsamic, vegetable substance is so volatile that the air greedily takes up from the inhaler, so antiseptic that it instantly destroys the microbes which produce disease of the breathing organs, and so soothing that it relieves congestion subdues inflammation, and stops mucous discharge.

Plainly Catarrhosone is an ideal remedy for diseases of the throat, lungs and nasal passages. If you have catarrh, bronchitis or asthma, all are equally curable by Catarrhosone. You have been told why this is so. These diseases are all modifications of an inflammatory condition of the lining membranes of the throat and nasal passages.

Now, bear in mind, you breathe Catarrhosone. Do you not think this is a rational treatment—a certain way of reaching the diseased surfaces which lie so far in the cavity of the body or in the head that they can be reached in no other way.

You cannot possibly fail to obtain quick cure from any of these maladies if you use Catarrhosone.

All dealers in medicine sell Catarrhosone. Trial, 25c., complete outfit, $1.00, which will last two months and is guaranteed to cure permanently. Sent postpaid to any address by N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont, and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

Excursion to Peterborough on June 25th

On June 25th there will be an excursion to Peterborough by steamer Sovereign from Hastings, under the auspices of the lacrosse club of that town.

By Day Labor

Mr. Harry Evans, Street Commissioner, is superintending the laying of a granolithic walk from Smith to Argyle street, on George street, which is being done by day labor, as decided at the last meeting of the Council. Other walks will also be taken up in the same way as soon as this is well advanced.

Miss Roger's Recital

The pupils of Miss Alice Roger gave a delightful musicale in form of a piano recital last night in her studio, Bank of Commerce building. The affair was attended by the parents and friends of the pupils, who showed the result of their splendid training in the producing of a fine program of high class music.

Big Indian Pow-Wow

The Indians of the Mississaga tribe, comprising the Chemong, Hiawatha and Scugog bands, are holding a Council at Chemong, for the purpose of adjusting the claims of the Indians, and for considering the matter of the Islands not yet paid by the Government. Other matters in connection with the different bands will also be discussed.

Sunday School Rally

It is contemplated to hold a grand rally in connection with the series of Sabbath school conventions arranged for Peterborough and the vicinity, in the Y.M.C.A. Hall on Monday evening, the 13th instant, at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be open to the public, and addresses of a helpful nature will be delivered by the Rev. G. A. McLennan, of Norwood, and Mr. Thos. Yellowlees, of Toronto. A collection will be taken up to defray expenses. All are cordially invited.

New Passenger Service

On Monday morning the new passenger service on the Grand Trunk between Peterborough, Lindsay and Toronto comes into effect. The train leaves Peterborough depot at 7.20 a.m., Lindsay at 8.45 a.m., and reaches Toronto at 10.10 a.m. Trains also leave Peterborough at 8.25 a.m., 11.45 a.m., and 5.30 p.m. By the new service the public can leave Toronto at 7.30 p.m. and reach here at 10.25 p.m. This should meet with the approbation of citizens who wish to do business in the Queen City, or any other place along the line, and get back the same day.

The Band Concert

There was a very large turnout of citizens at Victoria Park last night to hear the Band. The following was the program:

March—Selected.
Overture—"Poet and Peasant."
Euphonium solo—"Old Folks at Home," by Mr Cronk.
Characteristic—"Dance of the Skeletons."
Descriptive—"Down South."
Selection—"Ernani."
Novelette—"Duel of the Pen."
Selection—"Reminiscences of all Nations."
March—Selected.
God Save the King.

Inquest on Monday Night

The inquest, touching the death of the late Mrs. Delaney, before Coroner Gray, was commenced at the late residence of deceased last night, when a jury was empannelled and the remains viewed, after which the further hearing of the case was adjourned until Monday evening, when it will be resumed in the City Hall. The proceedings will commence at 7.30 o'clock when the jury was empanelled.

Delightful Trip

There are no better or more delightful trips offered to the citizens of Peterborough than are the daily ones down the river during the summer season. The voyage to Idyl Wyld is always a pleasant one, as the river is usually calm and the scenery especially inviting and the air invigorating. As will be seen the City of Peterborough begins her regular trips on the 15th. The hotels at Jubilee Point and Idyl Wyld have been refitted and renovated and are now especially comfortable, the Idyl Wyld house having now good accommodation for quite a number of guests, 18 rooms having been fitted in an up-to-date style. The special feature of this hotel will be its "Fish dinners," than which none can serve better, and the price is still kept at the low sum of 25 cents. Those wishing to do so can leave Peterborough any Saturday afternoon at 3.45 o'clock, spending the Sabbath at this popular and romantic spot, and return to town by 9 p.m. Monday, by communicating in advance with 'Phone 98.

See advertisement in another column for further particulars.

POLICE COURT NEWS

Two Girls Sent To Mercer Reformatory—A Liquor Case

Thursday afternoon two girls named Sarah Bird and Alice Allen were brought before the Police Magistrate on the charge of being inmates of a house of ill-fame, and each received a sentence of two years, less one day, in the Mercer Reformatory at Toronto.

A local hotelkeeper was yesterday tried for selling liquor during prohibited hours. The charge was not, however, proven, and the Magistrate dismissed the case. J. H. Haverson, K.C., appeared for defendant, and R. E. Wood for the prosecution.

CIVIC HOLIDAY

Not Definitely Fixed for the Present Year

At a special meeting of the Council, held last evening, it was resolved to hold the Civic Holiday on the 1st Monday of August in each and every year after 1905. The date has not yet been definitely fixed for the present year. The matter will be discussed by that body at a meeting on Tuesday evening next, and it is more than likely that it will be announced for the third Thursday in August, or on the same date on which it was held last year. It seems to be taken for granted by the City Fathers that action on the matter was deferred until too late a date this year. It is not, we believe, the intention of the Council to put any of the organizations or societies interested to any trouble or expense which can be avoided, but hereafter the date will be fixed by bylaw, and the citizens can then govern themselves accordingly.

—Lindsay Post: A former resident of Lindsay writes back from Oklahoma Territory to know if a party numbering 75 and 100 persons can secure accomodation anywhere along the Kawartha Lakes for a three weeks' outing; if not, they will go to Muskoka. Of course we cannot provide for them. This is one example out of many to show us what we are losing through the lack of a first-class hotel in Lindsay or at Sturgeon Point.

—Mr. J. H. Hirst, of Toronto, arrived in town yesterday to put the finishing touches on the engine of the steamer Sovereign, for the Bertram Engine Company, who built both engine and boiler.

TURN OVER TIME.

When Nature Hints About the Food

When there's no relish to any food and all that one eats doesn't seem to do any good then is the time to make a turn over in the diet, for that's Nature's way of dropping a hint that the food isn't the kind required.

"For a number of years I followed railroad work, much of it being office work of a trying nature. Meal times were our busiest and eating too much and too quickly of food as is commonly served in hotels and restaurants, these together with the sedentary habits were not long in giving me dyspepsia and stomach trouble which reduced my weight from 205 to 160 pounds.

"There was little relish in any food and none of it seems to do me any good. It seemed the more I ate the poorer I got and was always hungry before another meal, no matter how much I had eaten.

"Then I commenced a fair trial of Grape-Nuts and was surprised how a small saucer of it would carry me along, strong and well satisfied appetite, until the next meal, with no sensations of hunger, weakness or distress as before.

"I have been following this diet now for several months and my improvement has been so great all the others in my family have taken up the use of Grape-Nuts with complete satisfaction and much improvement in health and brain power.

"American people undoubtedly eat hurriedly, have lots of worry, this hindering digestion and therefore need a food that is predigested and concentrated in nourishment." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

VOL. XXXII NO. 138 PETERBOROUGH ONTARIO, MONDAY JUNE 13 1904 PRICE TWO C NTS

FEAR VICTORIOUS JAPANESE FLEET MAY SOON ATTACK ST. PETERSBURG

British Critics Believe That After Fall of Port Arthur a Sensational Move will be Made.

A Powerful Japanese Squadron will Proceed to the Black Sea and Attack St. Petersburg.

The Defenses of the City Being Greatly Strengthened, Which Can Only Mean That Russia Believes to Report.

London, June 13.—The Daily Mail's Tokio correspondent sends sensational dispatches to the effect that Japan will force the war to a quick conclusion as soon as Port Arthur and Vladivostock is in her hands, and the remnant of Russia's navy in the far east is destroyed or captured. It is proposed to send a powerful squadron to the Black Sea, and attack St. Petersburg and other Russian ports. British circles believe the story, as such a move is not only feasible, but thoroughly practicable. Russia can offer no serious opposition to the victorious Japanese, who would thus speedily bring the proud and naughty Muscovite to his knees.

It is evident that Russia fears this move as the government is engaged in strengthening the fortifications. It is suggested that Russia fears that some other power might take advantage of the absence of the Baltic fleet in the far east. It is said that the Japanese navy in the Baltic would labor under worse disadvantages than the Russian fleets in the far east, for it would have neither a Port Arthur, nor a coaling station within thousands of miles. Perhaps the fortifications are being strengthened to give the Russian people something new to think about.

Tokio, June 13.—Saimatze has been occupied by the Japanese troops, after a series of skirmishes, inn the course of which the Russians were cleverly rounded up and defeated. On Monday and Tuesday there was also much fighting south of Liushankwan, the Japanese clearing the Russians out of that district. The first army in cooperation with the forces landed at Takushan, occupied Sinyen on Wednesday, the Russians retreating in confusion in the direction of Chaimucheng and Kaiping.

Russian Headquarters, Liao Yang, June 13.—General Kuropatkin is expecting reinforcements which, as soon as they arrive, will advance from Liao Yang, and important developments are expected. Persistent reports are in circulation of a battle at Port Arthur, that place being attacked both by land and sea. Nothing definite is known, however, except that an attack made by the Japanese did not succeed.

Che Foo, June 13.—Chinese who have arrived here from Takushan say that the Japanese army of twenty thousand men, who landed at Takushan last month and proceeded toward Feng Wang Cheng, presumably to reinforce General Kuroki, returned to Takushan May 28. The Chinese believed that the Japanese had been defeated by the Russians, but it is regarded here as more likely that the advance toward Feng Wang Cheng and return to Takushan was simply a Japanese feint. The Chinese further report that a small body of bandits attacked the Japanese at Kin Chou and that forty bandits were killed. It is also stated by the Chinese that a number of Russian officers have been courtmartialed for diverting funds given them to pay Chinese for transport wagons.

Tokio, June 13.—Port Arthur is expected to fall in less than a week. The attack on the fortress is being pushed by the land forces supported by the high angle fire of Admiral Togo's warships. The Japanese vessels in front of the fortress are merely maintaining a close blockade except for occasional reconnaissances. Detachments of fleet that are doing effective work in connection with the storming operations are stationed off both flanks of the besieging army. They are quite secure against Russian fire. Their shells, which cover a range of many miles, are said to exercise a terribly demoralizing effect on the Russians.

THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE SITE

Reasons Why the Board Selected the Separate School Grounds

Our remarks in our issue of Friday last in regard to the Collegiate Institute site occasioned a good deal of comment on the street. It is felt by many that $30,000 is more than the property is worth, representing as it does about $60 per foot for the frontage on Murray and Mcdonnell streets. But when it is remembered that the Separate School buildings, which, of course, will have to be replaced, will cost about $10,000, it is contended that the price is a reasonable one.

The facts in connection with the deal are as follows: A member of the Board of Education, of his own motion, it appears, approached Rev. Dr. O'Brien, and asked for a short option. Dr O'Brien pointed out the difficulties in the way of selling the property, the chief of which was the face that the Separate School Board would be obliged to secure a new site for their school and remove the present building. The building would cost in the neighborhood of $10,000. However, after a time, Mr. Wm. Langford, we understand, was requested to value the land, and figured it to be worth $20,000. Other valuations were made, resulting in a slight advance on this price. The cost of a new school was added to this, making the price $30,000. It has been pointed out to The Times that the Board and Council were favorable to the purchase of this site, first, because the government through the energetic efforts of Mr. R. R. Hall, agreed to give $10,000 of the sum, and, secondly, because an armoury costing between $100,000 and $150,000 would occupy a part of the lot. It is intended to place the armoury at the back of the lot, on Murray street, and the school alongside, on McDonnell street, leaving a beautiful park in front out to George street.

These are the facts, so far as we can gather. It is only proper to add, however, that there is nothing to warrant the assumption that an expensive armoury will be erected. This may only be a pipe dream.

THE EASTERN WAR WILL INVOLVE BIG POWERS

Prince Oukhtomsky on the Russo-Japanese Conflict -- Thinks There will be a Repition of the Doukhobor Trouble

Montreal, June 13.—"I am inclined to to look upon the present Russo-Japanese war as merely the preliminary stage in a struggle that will involve all the great powers of Europe. When the end comes, most of the boundaries existing in Asia now will be found to have been materially changed."

That is the prediction of Prince Oukhtomsky, the prominent journalist of St. Petersburg, who, after attending the Press Parliament at St. Louis and visiting the Doukhobor settlements near Yorktown, Man., came to Montreal on a brief visit to Mr. N. de Struve, the Russian consul here. The Prince has left for New York.

When pressed to give his reasons for this opinion, the Prince continued.

"You will find that the Chinese cannot remain neutral for long in a contest that is calculated to be protracted for years. The Chinese will, doubtless, assume an attitude of hostility to all Europeans.

"As for Russia, when a people that have been peaceful for over twenty-five years breaks loose, it is very difficult for even the most powerful government to restrain them. The Russians will not rest content with balking the designs of the Japanese. Public opinion is inclined to think that the Japanese were encouraged in their warlike intent by the British."

The reporter then informed the Prince that the western press were inclined to think he was after information that could be used should Great Britain take a hand in the Eastern war. But the Prince merely shrugged his shoulders and said nothing.

While the Doukhobors are gaining a good living in the west, Prince Oukhtomski, as of the opinion that they would have done better to go to a land in which the climate is less rigorous. Living on vegetables, as they do, their crops have not been such as could have been desired. The religious movements that have already taken place were the result of these failures, and the Prince thinks that they cannot fail to be repeated next fall.

"The immigration officials," said the Prince, "have been kind to these people and have done everything to help them people, but the land, some of them say is cold and wet, and they want to get to some warmer climate. Canada is the freest land they could find and there are no places where they would be tolerated so far in the peculiar tenets of their strange faith which permits the fanatical of their sect to acknowledge no law, no government, nor the citizenship of any country."

The rate war is in full swing. The latest report is that the White Star Line has still further reduced its steerage passage by ten shillings.

The action of the lines not allied with the American combine is one of self-defence. The representative of one of the lines stated that in his opinion the reduced rates could not be of long existence, probably a month would see its termination.

The following extract from the Glasgow Mail states the position of the American combine:—

"It is stated that the emigrant traffic from continental ports over which the trouble has arisen, is a matter of life and death to the German lines, and that they will be prepared to make any sacrifice in order to maintain their position as it was when the traffic was devided up, and the continental companies retained the continental traffic, while the British and Scandanavian traffic was confined to the British companies. The Morgan combine is in a peculiarly awkward position. Apart from the lines which it has actually taken over, it is under the obligation to ay dividends up to £120,000 er annum on the shares of the two German companies, in the event of their profits being insufficient for dividend purpos."

The above furnishes the reason for the action of these companies and of us on this situation and the resulting action of these companies that the late act of the White Star, Dominion and Allan lines hinges.

Mr. MacFarlane, assenger agent of the Dominion Line, stated this morning that the rates to go into effect on Monday next will be $15 from Liverpool to Montreal; from Scandinavian ports $18, and from Finnish $21.

C.P.R. JOINS IN.

The C.P.R. will join with the Allan and Dominion steamahi lines in the cut in steerage rates. Commencing next Monday, in common with the other two companies, the C.P.R. will sell steerage assages at $15 from Liverpool, $18 from Scandanavian ports, and $21 from Finland.

In making the announcement this morning, Mr. Robert Kerr, the assenger traffic manager of the C.P.R. said that no one could tell just how long these rates would obtain. "All I can say is," he remarked "that the greater the cut the sooner the lines are likely to come to terms." By way of illustration, Mr. Kerr remarked a war of rates between the railroad lines between St. Paul and Chicago. The usual single fare between these points is $11.50. One company announced a return ticket at $10. A second company offered the return trip at $35. "That put a stop to the rate war," said Mr Kerr. "The three dollar rate lasted just long enough for them both go all outt."

When asked whether in that event it would not be well for the C.P.R. to dro to $5 Mr. Kerr said, "We are not in the battle. We will leave that for the American lines. All that we can do is to follow them wherever they may lead. As for us we are quite content if a good class of emmigrants are brought to this country to fill up the West altogether irrespective of whether the Atlantic steamships belonging to our company, pay or not."

WEDDED IN TORONTO

Nuptials of Mr. Torrance Laing to Miss Jean C. McIntosh

A wedding of interest to many in Peterborough took place on Wednesday last in Erskine Presbyterian church, Toronto, when Miss Jean Christie McIntosh, of Brantford, was united in marriage to Mr Torrance Tutherfort Laing, manager of the Canadian Oil Co., Montreal. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Mary McIntosh, while Mr. Chester Laing, of Pittsburg, supported the groom. The happy couple left on the boat for Buffalo and Rochester, and upon their return will take up their residence in Montreal. Mr. Laing's many Peterborough friends will join in wishing him a happy married life.

S. S. A. RALLY

The Sunday School Association Rally at Y. M. C. A.

At the Sunday school rally in the Y.M.C.A., at eight o'clock this evening, the proceedings promise to be especially helpful to all who take an interest in such work. Rev J. A. Wilson, of St. Paul's, and President of the Town Association, will preside. Rev. G. A. McLennan, of Norwood, the newly appointed Field Secretary of the County Sunday School Association, will give his popular address on "The Land of the Gospel," and Mr. Thos. Yellowlees, of Toronto, Assistant Secretary of the Provincial Association, will also give an address. The meeting is open to all, and a good attendance is expected. A collection to defray expenses will be taken up.

COUNCIL WILL RE-CONSIDER

Civic Holiday Matter Will Come Up at Tomorrow Evening's Council Meeting.

Owing to the protests entered against the changing of the date of the Civic Holiday this year the Council will discuss the subject again tomorrow night, and judging from all that has been said lately the date will in all probability be left for this years the same as it was last.

In making the change the Council did not think any action had been yet taken towards getting up excursions, and felt that the latter day come too near the Labor Day holiday, but since several organizations had already perfected arrangements for their outings on Thursday, as formerly, it felt would be a hardship and a grievance to such bodies to compel them to abandon the day, or suffer loss by not doing so.

Emsmoore to Have New Hall

The parish and township of Emsmoore is soon to have a new public meeting hall, and doubt, but it will be a handsome one, as it is to cost $2,000. It will be a frame structure 37 x 70 feet, which should be commodious enough to supply the wants of the people there for some time to come. The building fund is being subscribed to liberally by residents in both town and country. The new building will be situated near Emsmoore church.

Trewern Cheese Factory

At a special meeting of the patrons of the Trewern cheese factory held on Monday evening, June 6th, for the purpose of selecting a salesman and secretary-treasurer for the season 1904, Mr. Thompson Braden was appointed. The patrons were unanimous in their praise of Mr. Ed. M. Elliott, who has so faithfully filled the position of salesman for the past five years, and who has retired owing to his recent appointment to the position of Clerk and Treasurer of the County, and they also wish him every success in his new undertaking.

Decoration Day

On Thursday, the 16th, Decoration Day ceremonies will be held in this town. As usual, the members of Peterborough and Otonabee Lodges, I.O.O.F., will meet at 1.45 p.m. at Central Park, and headed by the 57th Bugle Band, will proceed to the cemetery where the graves of departed members will be decorated.

The Woodmen of the World will also unveil a monument erected by them, at the grave of the late Mr. F. Walton, who was a member of the order.

All the clergymen of the town have been invited to attend, and it is just possible that a half holiday may be observed, as on other years.

In Case of Upset.

The number of deaths by drowning from capsized canoes, and the readiness with which they capsize, have led a correspondent of the New York Herald to give the following instructions as to what to do by a person who has been capsized: "As soon as the canoe capsizes the thing to do, without getting excited is to right her. Of course she will be full of water. Do not attempt to get any of the water out, because that is generally impossible, but climb over either the side or the end, and when you do this the chances are she will sink under the water, but as she feels the weight of your body lightening she will rise to the surface, and it is then for you to lie down in the boat, resting your head on the thwart or the crosspiece toward the end, where you can remain until picked up. The fact that your arm or arms may be out of the water, so that you can wave to persons on the shore or on passing boats, will not materially affect the flotation of your boat.

THE JANANESE OCCUPATION OF SIU YEN A PIECE OF GOOD STRATEGY

The Jap Gain Important Point by the Occupation of Siu Yen—The Russians Badly Puzzed.

The Mo-Tien Ling Pass, a a Strongly Fortified and Almost Impregnable Russian Stronghold Can be Avoided.

And the Advance to the North Made so Much Eashier for the Invaders —Gen San out of Danger?

St. Petersburg, June 13.—The Japanese have taken Siu Yen, driving out the Russians. The enemy appears to be advancing on Hai Cheng.

Tokio, June 13.—The town of Siu Yen, now occupied by the Japanese army, is of great strategical importance, being situated about forty miles north-east of Kaiping, and forty-five miles south-east of Hai Cheng. It commands perfectly the roads to both places. Saimatsza is also an important point, as it controls the roads to Liao Yang and Mukden. By following the route the Mo-Tien Ling pass, a strongly fortified and almost impregnable Russian stronghold will be avoided on the advance of the Japanese army northward.

RUSSIANS BADLY PUZZLED.

St. Petersburg, June 13.—The view of the general staff is that as the Japanese column which reached Siu Yen was not followed by either of the main armies in Southern Manchuria, the Japanese have no present intention of advancing on Hai Cheng, but have sent forward a force as a feint, to menace and discourage as much as possible the despatch of a heavy Russian force down the Liao Tung peninsula. Neither does the general staff believe that the enemy's column at Saimatsza, even should it go so far north as Djiandjian, is of a serious character, the opinion being that Gen. Kuroki continues to dangle before Gen. Kuropatkin's eye a double objective, but that he is not yet strong enough to risk a real advance. This belief is based on calculations that the enemy has not more than 130,000 men all told in Southern Manchuria, and that only in the event of the Japanese attaining strength greatly in excess of these figures will they be capable of a genuine forward movement.

No fresh news has been received in regard to the situation around Port Arthur.

Private advices from Liao Yang indicate that the Russian force at Vafandian is prepared to retire northward if seriously threatened.

SPECULATING AS TO PT. ARTHUR.

St. Petersburg, June 11.—The Rusky Invalid (the army organ), in concluding an article on the military situation in the Far East, inclines to the belief that fighting has already occurred in front of Port Arthur, and that the Japanese sustained a reverse.

Cossacks Praying at the Grave of a Comrade

Our New-Governor General

Earl Grey, Lady Minto's Brother, is Appointed to Succeed Her Husband

London, June 13.—It is announced that Earl Grey, Lord Lieutenant of Northumberland, has been appointed to succeed the Earl of Minto as Governor-General of Canada.

HE IS LADY MINTO'S BROTHER

Albert Henry George Grey, the fourth Earl Gery, is a grandson of the celebrated Earl Grey, who was so prominent in British political life in the early years of the nineteenth century, and a son of General and Hon. Charles Grey. He is a brother of Lady Minto, and is 53 years old.

FAMILY IS DISTINGUISHED ONE.

The family is an old and distinguished one. There was a baronetcy in the family from 1746 until 1801, when Gen. Sir Charles Grey, K.C.B., was created a baron, in token of his services in the first war with the United States. Five years later, in 1806, he was created Earl Grey and Viscount Howick. The second Earl was a Knight of the Garter, was 21 years in the House of Commons, holding office as First Lord of the Admiralty under Mr. Fox, and after the latter's death, becoming Secretary for Foreign Affairs. In the year following his accession to the peerage, his party went into opposition, and he thus remained until Nov. 23, 1830, he was constituted Prime Minister, which place he held until July 18, 1834.

The third Earl was Secretary of State for the Colonies from 1846 to 1852, and in later years was noted for his independent criticism of affairs of State.

Scarcity of Houses

The general scarcity of houses all through the town is one of the unfavorable conditions which the people of Peterborough have to meet at the present time. There has been a considerable influx into the town recently, and as the population has increased the number of vacant houses has rapidly diminished. Thus far this season, a considerable number of new houses are being erected. Contractors say the high price of building material of all kinds has had a tendency to discourage prospective builders. However, the fact remains that Peterborough is in the grip of a great house famine and radical measures will have to be taken to provide more accomodation for families now quartered at over-crowded boarding houses.

The Delineator for July.

The July DELINEATOR is a magazine of beauty, interest and utility. The display of summer fashions is exquisite and complete, the fiction bright and entertaining, the special articles bright and entertauning, the social articles clever and informative, and the number is rounded out by a series of practical paperson domestic topics. In fiction interest centres in Mrs. High Fraser"s quaint love story of Japan, The Giver of Honour, although The Rebellion of William Henry, by Herminie Templeton, is thoroughly enjoyable for its pleasant humor and its genuine sympathy with boy nature. The story of Charlotte Robertson, as told by Landon Knight in the "Pioneer women" series is a recital of the greatest interest, and presents a vivid picture of the hardships and difficulties that beset the conquerors of the West. Egypt, Arabia and the Holy Land are seen through the camera in the course of the unique trip "Around the World in Eighty Pictures "and in the fountain of Youth;" Dr. Grace Peckham Murray supplies instructions for the treatment of the hair that will be appreciated by any that cares for beauty. A sympathetic paper on generosity, by Lillie Hamilton French, and one on Childhood by Mrs. Theodore W. Birney contain food for thought, and there are invaluable suggestions to home builders in a Modern Southern Home, all illustrated and described. For young people, there are entertaining stories and pastimes and for needleworkers and housekeepers many pages of useful information.

WEATHER NOTES

Fine and a little warmer.

THE ORANGE CELEBRATION

An Immense Crowd Expected on July the 12th

There is every reason to believe that the approaching anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne will see Peterborough filled to overflowing with Orangemen and their friends from all parts of the district. On Saturday Mr. J. R. McWilliams received a letter from Mr. John Hughes, District Master West Durham, stating that the Orangemen of that district were anxious to come, and asking for railway rates from Bowmanville and points west.

The committee has arranged to accomodate all who will come, and this will probably mean an influx of 20,000 strangers on that day. Under these circumstances The Times would suggest that all citizens unite with the Orange men in helping to make the town look beautiful.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Isabella Lewis Found Unconscious Friday Evening and Died Saturday Morning

It was a very sudden death which overtook Isabella Gillespie, relict of the late David Lewis, on Saturday morning. The deceased, who had been residing at 92 McDonnell street, was apparently in good health up to seven or eight o'clock on Friday night. About ten o'clock she was found lying unconscious upon a lounge. Medical aid was summoned at once, but to no purpose, and she passed away about 6.30 a.m. Saturday.

Deceased was 54 years old, and was born in the township of Asphodel. She has lived in Peterborough for several years past. Her husband predeceased her about two years ago. The funeral takes place this afternoon at two o'clock from the residence of her brother-in-law Mr. A. H. Miller, Carlysle avenue, to Little Lake cemetery.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

ATHLETIC WORLD

BY OUR SPORTING EDITOR

The initial game of the Midland Baseball league was played here on Saturday afternoon between the Bowmanville nine and the Peterboroughs, Manager Whitecroft's nine coming out on top with the long end of the score, 14—8, and one innings to spare. Quite a large crowd was present, as it was rumored that some new material would turn out with the locals, and the spectators were eager to see what kind of a showing they were going to make against the visitors. The only new man on the team was Taylor, who was in the box Flaherty having left town. His absence will weaken the team considerably as far as pitching is concerned, as it will be a difficult task for the locals to secure as good a man, and had he been doing the twirling Saturday and received the support in the field that Taylor did, Bowmanville would most likely have returned home with something near a blank. The locals showed great improvement in the field and their batting was stronger.

In the first innings Bowmanville failed to tally, but in the 2nd brought in 4 runs, and added 1 more in each of the 3rd, 5th, 7th and 9th innings. Peterborough went right in at the 1st and tallied 3, and 2 in the 2nd, but were retired in the 3rd, 4th and 6th without anything doing, adding 2 in each of the 8th and 7th, and 5 in the 8th, the game winding up 14 to 8, with one innings to the good.

Simpson made a nice 3 bagger in the 1st and brought in a run. Taylor was hit freely in the 2nd. Hooper Elick and Gates each slamed out 2 base hits. In the 7th Whitecroft made a nice 3 base hit, and Simpson netted one for two.

A feature of the game was when Manager Whitecroft was unexpectedly met by a hot fly. Needless to say, made good.

MAKES MEN SOUND AND STRONG

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Man's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

YOU PAY ONLY IF CURED.

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write for It This Very Day.

A Detroit specialist who has 16 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and state boards of medical examiners, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes; so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he can both cure

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 16 Diplomas and Certificates, Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

and the ability to do so he says, Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to hear from men who have stricture that they have been unable to get cured, prostatic trouble, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, kidney trouble, rheumatism, pains, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the condition itself, but likewise all the allied troubles, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc. The doctor realizes that it is one thing to make claims and another thing to back them up, so he has made it a rule not to ask for one penny unless he cures you, and when you are cured he feels sure that you will willingly pay him a small fee. It would seem, therefore, that it is to the best interests of every man who suffers in this way to write the doctor confidentially and lay your case before him, and if he accepts your case he will guarantee it in writing to a man, as he does not want any one else's money, except himself, for treatment, and remember, if he does accept your case you may pay when you are cured, and not before. He is perfectly honest and reliable, as any one can find out by writing him to-day. Dr. S. Goldberg, 69 Woodward Ave., Room 18 Detroit, Mich., and if all the following he sends you free.

MISSISSAGA TRADITIONS BY CHIEF PAUDASH.

Read by Lieut.-Col. Rogers Before the Ontario Historical Society.

An Interesting Addition to the Archives of the Peterborough Society.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Historical Society, recently held at Windsor, was one of the most successful and notable of the series. This arose from the fact that the neighborhood is exceedingly rich in historic reminders, ruins and topography having been the scene of many a stirring conflict in the early days of Canada's history.

There was a large attendance, including Mr. C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, president, and the indefatigable secretary, Mr. David Boyle.

Among the officers elected were:—Geo. H. Patullo, Woodstock, president; Lieut.-Col H. C. Rogers, Peterborough, first vice-president; and Lieut.-Col. E. B. Edwards, Peterborough, a member of the council.

REPORT OF LOCAL SOCIETY.

Lieut.-Colonel H. C. Rogers, President of the Peterborough Historical Society, during the course of the meeting, addressed the gathering as follows:

Gentlemen.—I herewith hand you the annual report of the Peterborough Historical Society. During the past year there has been no marked change in our numbers or income. It has been, in fact, an uneventful year. From the fact of having in our midst a literary society, known as the Fortnightly Club, which has a course of lectures throughout the winter, on historic, as well as other subjects, to which most of our members belong, we found it advisable not to attempt anything in that line, but to confine our efforts to the collection of relics and curios for our Museum, and the recording of stories from the old settlers, so fast passing away, in which lines we have been fairly successful, gradually adding to our store of material for the historian of the future, who may come to write the history of our country.

Allow me, sir, to congratulate the Ontario Historical Society on its successful meetings in the past, and his selection to place for the present year, feeling that here on this frontier, we are, indeed, on historic ground, where so many stirring events in the infancy of our beloved Canada were enacted, and I anticipate that this meeting will impress on our members the noble struggle that was waged on this peninsula by a few British soldiers, a small band of pioneers from the then sparse settlements of white people and our allies among the aborigines, in defence of the country we are now so proud of.

The county which I have the honor to represent at this meeting was not represented by settlers in those frontier fights, from the fact that there were no settlers in those parts at the time, but I am informed that bands of your dusky brothers, who then occupied the region, aided the British, and we know that the Mississagas were always loyal to the King, and still pride themselves on not only being his subjects, but allies, and in that connection I have with me a story, given verbatim by the present hereditary chief, who claims that these traditions if his tribe have not before been written, and which, with your permission, I will now read.—

THE LOCAL RELATIONS

Lt.-Col. H. C. Rogers, president of the Peterborough Town and County Historical Society, has returned from the meeting and pronounces it the best meeting of the Provincial Society yet held. He was particularly delighted and edified by his visit, with other members of Amherstburg, which is the most southern town in Canada, and one of the oldest having been founded by the French explorers in 1752, and, when Detroit was given to the United States, became a British military post.

Lieut.-Colonel Rogers is enthusiastic in Historical research and interests, and has latterly "found" for the local society as an account of the coming of the Mississaga Indians. They occupied this section when the white settler intruded his person upon the native soil of the aborigines. The account mentioned is supplied by Chief Paudash, of Hiawatha, was read at the Provincial meeting at Windsor, and being of greater local interest, it is printed below:

STORY OF PAUDASH.

Paper read by Lt.-Col. H. C. Rogers, President of the Peterborough Historical Society, before the Ontario Historical Society, at Windsor, June, 1904.

I, Paudash, son of paudush, son of Paudash, son of Chenceneesh, son of Gemoaghpenasse, to the Ontario Historical Society, greeting:

I Robert Paudash, with my son, Johnston Paudash, am desirous of putting on record for the first time the solemn tradition of the Mississagas respecting their present place of settlement in Ontario and the migration which led them thither. No word of what I am about to say has come from reading or in any other way than from the mouth of Paudash, my father, who died aged 76, in the year 1893, the last hereditary chief of the tribe of Mississagas situate at Rice Lake and from the mouth of Chenceneesh, my grandfather, who died in 1849, at the age of 104, the last Sachem or Head Chief of all the Mississagas, who in turn had learned, according to the Indian custom, what Gemoaghpenasse, his father, had heard from his father and son on.

I am glad for the sake of the Mississagas, who were always loyal to the great King, to hear of this revival of interest in the Mississagas, who do not appear in history or in the records of this country as much as they deserve from the importance of their deeds in war and of their efforts to preserve peace and goodwill towards the great King. In the first place, as you would know, the Algonquins, who include the Mississagas, inhabited the great northern portion of this continent, excepting a small part which the Iroquois, deadly enemies, inhabited on the southern shore of the Lake Ontario; while far to the south dwelt the Muskokeesi. The Mississagas were so named because they settled on a river on the north shore of Lake Huron, about seventy miles from Sault Ste. Marie, the word Mississaga meaning river, but they were Shawnees, part of the great Ojibway tribe, of which the word Chippeway is a corruption. In what is now the Ohio Valley, the Shawnees dwelt in peace and power till such time as their Sachems became disturbed and divided by partly strife. One party thereupon went north through the country of the Michigans and crossed into Canada, at Bowesting, now known as Sault Ste. Marie, settling down on the north shore of Lake Huron.

COMING OF THE MOHAWKS.

Not many years after the arrival of the Mississagas, the Iroquois, represented by their chief tribe, the Mohawks, came north across the Lake Ontario and exterminated the Hurons, possessing themselves of their hunting grounds. Coming into contact with the Mississagas, the Mohawks massacred small parties of them, and endeavored to drive them off. It being a matter of life and death to the Mississagas, they held a great council of war and decided to attack the Mohawks and if possible to drive them away. A party of Mohawks were entrenched at an island in lower Georgian Bay, afterwards known as Pequashgonciaminis, or the island of Skulls. The Mississagas surrounded and made great slaughter of them, the island taking its name from this circumstance. The Mohawks were compelled to retreat eventually, but being a fierce and warlike tribe they resisted stubbornly. The Mississagas then advanced up what is now the Severn River to Shunyung, or Lake Simcoe, stopping at Machtekinin; which means Fish Fence, at the narrows between Lake Simcoe and Lake Couchiching in order to get a supply of food. Parts of this fence remain to this day. There they received reinforcements, dividing into two parties and made preparations for a campaign. The main body proceeded along the portage, now called Portage Road to Balsam Lake, the other party went south to Toronto.

PETERBOROUGH'S ORIGINAL NAME.

After various skirmishes the Mohawks continued their retreat down the valley of the Otonabee or Trent to where they were settled in numerous villages along the river Otonabee and Rice Lake. They made their first real stand at Nogojiwanong, which was the original name of the Town of Peterborough, meaning the place at the end of the rapids. Katchewanook, above the present village of Lakefield, meaning the beginning of the rapids. A sharp skirmish took place here upon what is now known as Cemetery Point, the Mohawks being worsted and retreating down the river, making, however, a determined stand at the mouth of the river while the Mississagas encamped at Otagon, now known as Campbelltown, the word Otagon meaning in Mississaga "the pulling up snakes," because the Mississagas coming too closely on the encurrenched Mohawks, they pulled up their snakes and retreated further up the river. After great preparation an attack was made by the Mississagas, both by land and water, and the Mohawks were driven, after a battle in which no less than one thousand warriors were slain, down Rice Lake to what is now known as Roche's Point. Great quantities of bones and flint arrowheads are found at the site of this battle, even to this day. At Roche's Point there was a Mohawk village, in front of the former site of which is a mound in the shape of a serpent, and having four smaller mounds about its head and body in the form of turtles. These mounds are a pictorial representation of Mohawk totems, placed there by the Mississagas in memory of the occurrence and of the Mohawks. It has been supposed by some to mean more than this, but my father has so stated it.

OUR NATIONAL DAY

A Good Programme Arranged for Dominion Day

At a meeting of the Citizens' committee a program of sports was drawn up for Dominion Day, as follows:

2.23 trot or pace.
2.40 or 2.50 trot or pace.
Pony race, for ponies under 14 hands, best 2 in 3 heats.
1 mile foot race for medal or cup.
1-2 mile foot race.
1-4 mile foot race.

The Schneider Cup for the best 100 yds. runner will also be competed for in all probability, and a number of other sporting events will form an attractive day's sport.

The committee, which is composed of Messrs. R. E. Wood, chairman; R. E. Layfield, secretary; P. Campbell, treasurer, and A. H. Stratton and Robt. Fair, has received assurances from a number of local horsemen of their intention to enter their animals for the different events, and a good day is promised.

MRS. ARCHER DEAD

A Popular Campbellford Lady Dies of Typhoid Fever

On Friday morning Mrs. Joshua Archer, of Campbellford, passed peacefully away at Nicholls Hospital, in this town, after a couple of weeks' sickness with typhoid fever. She improved, it was thought, after being brought to the hospital, and only the evening before was thought to be on the high road to recovery, but her heart becoming suddenly affected, death came quickly. Deceased was in the 40th year of her age, and her death will be a sad blow to the family and friends from whom she was thus suddenly called to part. She was held in high esteem in the neighboring town, and had many friends and well-wishers in Peterborough, as well. Her sister, Miss Libby George, of Campbellford, was here during her illness, the guest of Mrs. Walker, on Charlotte street. Deceased leaves seven children, four boys and three girls, besides a husband; to mourn her loss, and to whom the sympathy of the community will go out unstintedly. Mr. Bell, of 98 Harvey street, is an uncle of deceased, and Mrs. Archer, of Harvey street, an aunt.

The body was taken to Campbellford for interment.

TO VISIT ST. LOUIS.

An Estimate of the Cost of a Seven Day to World's Fair

As many of our citizens are endeavoring to secure some reliable figures concerning the cost of the St. Louis trip, the following excerpt from an article written by Editor O'Beirne of the Stratford Beacon, who made the trip with the Press Association recently, may be taken as authoritative:

All this leads up to the question as to the best time to go and the cost. June is a pleasant month in St. Louis, and the latter end of the month should see the grounds in good shape and all exhibits in position. But those who will be able to take a holiday in the autumn will find that the pleasanter season. Everything will by that time be in smooth working order, and the weather will be cooler. Then as to the cost. Assuming a week's absence from home, giving five days in St. Louis will satisfy you and be all that many can spare, the following is a reasonable estimate of the average cost from Canada, based on railroad fare of $16.60 from Stratford to St Louis and return

Railway fare to St. Louis and return.....	$16 60
Meals—21 averaging 50c. each	10 50
Lodging, four nights in St. Louis.....	4 00

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Does Tobacco Affect the Health?

In a Thousand Ways its Excessive Use is Injurious to the System. Causes Heart and Nerve Troubles.

That tobacco exerts a very decided influence upon the body is unquestionable. Thoughtful physicians prohibit smoking a cigar whenever just as they do in the formative years of youth, when the system is so susceptible to the action of narcotics.

In functional heart trouble the tobacco habit is often looked for as a cause, and many a smoker wakes up at night feeling all the terrors caused by a fluttering, palpitating heart.

If there is something wrong with your heart that makes you wake up with a start, you ought to take Ferrosone regularly, because it is the best heart medicine made. All the muscles and nerves about the heart are strengthened and given new force by Ferrosone, which is noted for its prompt cures of heart disease.

As a rule weak heart and weak nerves go together, so if is important that Ferrosone should be used until the nervous system is completely restored. From every part of America comes convincing evidence that Ferrosone possesses merit far beyond the ordinary. Its cures are lasting, like that of a well known merchant in St. Johns, Mr. Philip T. Drayton, who writes; "I can give good advice to everyone suffering from heart weakness. I was in a very low condition a few months ago, and was unable to work. Without any apparent cause I would jump and start. I could not sleep more than an hour without being awakened by pain and palpitation of the heart. I used different preparations, but found Ferrosone the best. It improved my general health, strengthened my heart and nerves, and enabled me to go to work again. Nothing else has ever helped my heart like Ferrosone, which has cured me perfectly. I would advise others troubled with either nerve or heart trouble to use Ferrosone also."

No one ever used Ferrosone without lasting benefits. It builds up weak people, nourishes the starved nerves, and tones up the muscles of the heart. Ferrosone is prepared in tablet form, and is simple and convenient to take; it is sure to help you.

Do not allow an unscrupulous dealer to recommend anything in place of Ferrosone, which will be mailed to to any address, price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50, by N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company. The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being located on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property ranging from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups; namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 30 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 570 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflict as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented.

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78⅝ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented.

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory	758⅛	acres
" " Mill and building sites	55	"
" " Timber properties	90	"
Total	903⅛	acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

Complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government from which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

Total cost of development to date, present management,	$53,000.00
" " " " " former owners	18,000.00
" " surface improvements, buildings, saw mill plant, horses, wagons, ore cars, track, tools, etc.	17,000.00
" " Machinery paid for and to be installed	6,000.00
	$99,000.00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $26,000.00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet. We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 200 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver. These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built.

In the meantime only the high grade Smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will aid us materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905, and be continuous thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3.50 to $4.00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our stockholders. These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments. By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18.00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of production is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,
ROBERT HARRISON.

TURNED SEA RED BY FIERCE FIGHT

Remarkable Incident in Russo-Japanese War.

FOUGHT WAIST DEEP.

Providential Rains Enabled the Japanese to Locate Mines at Nan-Shan.

Tokio, June 9—Wounded officers who have returned to Japan from the Liaotung peninsula, have interesting details of the battle of Nan Shan Hill.

After the first ineffectual attack on the hill the Japanese scouts discovered that there were some mines at some spots at the foot of the hill. It was determined that they could only be definitely be located by the sacrifice of some men. Hundreds volunteered to go to what appeared to be certain death. They advanced and found that the heavy rains had washed away the coverings of earth and exposed the mines. Engineers cut the connecting wires, rendering the mines useless and sustained no loss. The volunteers were nearly all killed in the subsequent ineffectual attack on the hill.

The Osaka men, from the right wing, while advancing through water along the shore, encountered a body of Russians also in the water. A fierce fight ensued, both sides being waist deep in the sea. When the Russians finally retreated the water was literally crimson. Both sides lost heavily.

During the day the Russians used several war balloons well out of range.

In the trenches after they had been captured were found many articles of clothing belonging to women and children, making it evident that the Russians intended their defences to be permanent.

RUMORED FALL.

London, June 8.—The Exchange Telegraph Company reports rumors of the fall of Port Arthur. The Exchange's report says that the Japanese lost 11,000 men. The St. James' Gazette says a rumor is current on the stock exchange that Port Arthur has fallen.

RUSSIANS IGNORANT.

St. Petersburg, June 8.—Nothing is known here of the various rumors to the effect that Port Arthur has fallen, but it is not considered possible at this time.

JAP BOAT LOST.

St. Petersburg, June 8.—The admiralty is convinced that the battleship Yashima, or the battleship Shikishima, has been lost off Talienwan.

JAP GUNBOAT HIT.

Tokio, June 8.—Four Japanese gunboats, which made a close reconnaissance of Port Arthur harbor at midnight on June 6, for the purpose of examining the entrance, were exposed to a severe cannonade. Gunboat No. 4 was hit eight times and sustained some damage. One of her sailors was killed and two others were wounded.

JAP SQUADRON BUSY.

London, June 8.—A despatch to Petersburg announced that a telegram has been received from Mukden, dated today, saying:

"According to information here, a Japanese squadron of nine vessels has been bombarding the coast between Siurengyucheng (Hiungyotchang?) and Kaichou (Kaiping, on the west coast of the Liaotung peninsula, just below Newchwang) since June 7."

St. Petersburg, June 9.—Every ounce of strictly military opinion in the Czar's councils is thrown into the balance against the proposed march to relieve Port Arthur. The court party continues to urge the movement. The Czar is represented as confused and hesitating, although exhibiting a tendency to be persuaded by the arguments of the strategists and military men who declare that if Kuropatkin be finally commanded to lead his army into a death trap it will be his duty to refuse, whatever the consequences to himself. Those persons who are working in favor of this scheme which soldiers regard as a gigantic folly, are actuated neither by strategic nor political ideas, but by theological notions. The Czar, whose mind is sometimes blurred by mysticism, has been assured by the party of ikons, sacred relics and ritualistic mumbo-jumbo that Russian disasters are due to its readiness to retreat.

"God, like man," declared this party, "loves a hero and hates a coward."

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER.

London, June 11.—The Post's special correspondent wires from Tokio. Latest information states that the Japanese forces have secured possession of the second line of fortifications outside Port Arthur which command the city. This, however, has not been confirmed, but there is reason to believe that it is true, nevertheless.

Chefoo, June 11.—The Chinese are leaving Port Arthur with the permission of the Russians. They report that a battle is raging outside the city. Every soldier in Port Arthur has gone to the front. Only three of a large number of vessels were left in the harbor.

Mines laid recently at the mouth of the harbor exploded during a thunderstorm.

The outer forts have been badly damaged by the Japanese fire but the inner forts have suffered little.

The Chinese are not able to give an intelligent report of the condition of the Russian fleet. Probably they were not allowed to approach the naval basin. Their statement that only three vessels remain in the harbor means that only three remain in the outer harbor. The others are believed to be behind the Tiger's Tail or in the naval basin.

Very few Chinese remain in Port Arthur. Every junk has been chartered to remove Chinese.

Refugees from Port Arthur state that the entrance of the harbor is still blockaded. Large ships are not able to pass at any time, and gunboats and torpedo boats at high tide only.

The Russians have fortified several new positions, seven miles out, and the territory immediately under the Port Arthur forts.

The Japanese are bombarding Port Arthur daily from a distance. The Chinese have great difficulty in obtaining provisions. Several junks had to leave without any food aboard. The Japanese cruisers which stopped them supplied them.

ASSUMED OFFENSIVE.

London, June 11.—A despatch to The Daily Mail from Fusan says that the Russians have apparently taken the offensive. They have reached Suithailing and are advancing to Saimatse along the railway. They are being heavily reinforced. The Russians are now in a half circle around Fengwangcheng from Saimatse to Liao Yang. A screen of Cossacks is covering their front. The northeastern roads and passes are strongly held. The Japanese cavalry are scouting admirably. They repulsed the Cossacks in several recent engagements.

CONFIRMED BY ST. PETERSBURG.

St. Petersburg, June 11.—Among the rumors that fill the city tonight is one on better authority than the average that Gen. Kuropatkin is himself moving southward from Liao Yang.

Fusan, Korea, June 10.—The first Japanese army has recently been engaged in most important operations. For two days past four columns have been reconnoitering the roads towards Liao Yang, Hai Cheng, Saimatsen, and Siu Yen, and have occupied towns on these roads, dislodging the Russians, numbering several hundred, from each, after sharp fighting. The Japanese casualties were 65 men killed and wounded.

THE RUSSIAN VERSION.

St. Petersburg, June 10.—Gen. Kuropatkin telegraphs to the Emperor, under date of June 8:

"A Japanese brigade attacked a Russian detachment occupying Saimatsen on June 7. The Russian retired slowly because of the enemy's great superiority towards Fenchulin Pass.

"Our losses were two officers wounded and 100 soldiers killed or wounded."

Liao Yang, June 10.—The Russian force at Saimatse was commanded by General Erhoff, who engaged the Japanese advance at 9 a.m., on June 7. The Russian infantry advanced steadily, pushing the Japanese from their position, but their attack gradually developed strength and the Russians, finding themselves in the presence of overwhelming force, retired in good order. Their losses were three officers and about 100 men killed or wounded. Russian observers think the Japanese lost more. The fighting continued until 3 p.m.

Japanese are reported as attempting a debarkation north of Sen Yuben from ten transports, protected by two warships.

Artillerymen who took part in the fighting at Samsonoff, June 3, say that Japanese artillery was decidedly poor, many shells did not burst, and the shrapnel was badly timed. Russian soldiers, therefore, think that the Japanese artillery is evidently not so terrible as it has been reputed. The Japanese had marked measured ranges in front of their entrenchments.

WARSHIPS NOT FOR CZAR.

King of Italy Prevents Transfer of Four Vessels to Russia.

Rome, June 10.—King Victor Emanuel has just prevented the acquisition by Russia of four battleships belonging to a South American republic. These battleships had been constructed in Genoa a few years ago and the constructing firm offered to the South American state to exchange them, without expense, for four more modern battleships to be constructed immediately with all the modern improvements.

The state of Montenegro, which is not bound by the laws of neutrality, was to acquire temporary ownership of the four vessels in order to sell them to Russia, but the king interfered, notwithstanding the advantages prominently depicted by the promoters of the operation as accruing to Italy by the employment of thousands of workmen on the new vessels.

The fact that Montenegro is the native country of the Italian queen and is ruled by her father, hastened the king's decision to interfere in the matter.

Much commented upon has been the recent phrase used by the king on the occasion when he visited early in the morning the Arsenal of Naples, and not finding a single employe, remarked to his attendants:

"It seems that I am the only state employe who earns his salary."

MORE TROOPS FOR ORIENT.

The Czar Plans to Rush Three More Corps Eastward Soon.

St. Petersburg, June 10.—The Emperor has issued an edict mobilizing the First Army Corps, a portion of which is stationed in St. Petersburg and vicinity. General Meindorff will command. The edict will be followed by the mobilization of the Fifth and Sixth Army Corps of the Volga region.

Probably nearly a month will elapse before these corps are ready to start. In the meantime the Siberian railroad will be taxed to its utmost capacity in taking out the Tenth and Seventeenth Corps, now advancing.

It is regarded as a significant fact that China has made representations to Russia on the subject of the interference of the Russian military authorities with the natives in Manchuria.

The Russian government claims the natives have not been molested except where they have harbored Chinese bandits.

AFTER HOURS IN COFFIN.

Child is Revived when Relatives Gather for Funeral.

Custer, S.D., June 10.—After lying thirty-six hours in her burial casket the 5-year-old daughter of C. M. Fearing was revived. She apparently had died of typhoid fever. Dr. E. S. Norton, a relative, at the house to attend the funeral, decided the child's rosy cheeks were not those of a dead person and he called other physicians to help revive the child. Half an hour later the stethoscope indicated a return of strong heart action. The child will recover.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:—The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns, and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 325 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

with her it was more than a matter of pride and love. Her daughter's rights had been set at naught, a wrong had been done to the dead, the child who slept beneath the pine had been neglected, nay, in life, had been, perhaps, despised for an intruder, for one who had no right to call her grandmother, and shudderingly she cried, "Why was it suffered thus to be?" Then, as she thought of white-haired Hagar Warren, she raised her hand to curse her, but the words died on her lips, for Hagar's deed had brought to her much joy, and now, as she remembered the bounding step, the merry laugh, the sunny face, and loving words, which has made her later years so happy, she involuntarily stretched out her arms in empty air, moaning sadly, "I want her here. I want her now, just as she used to be." Then, over the grave of her buried daughter, over the grave of the sickly child, whose thin, blue face came up before her, just as it lay in its humble coffin, over the deception of eighteen years, her heart bounded with one wild, yearning throb, for every bleeding fibre clung with death-like grasp to her, who had been so suddenly taken from her.

"I love her still," she cried, "but can I take her back?" And then commenced the fiercest struggle of all, the battle of love and pride, the one rebelling against a child of Hagar Warren, and the other clamoring loudly, that without that child the world to her was nothing. It was the hour of Madam Conway's humiliation, and in bitterness of spirit, she groaned, "That I should come to this! Thee first, and Margaret, my bright, beautiful Margaret next. Oh, how can I give her up when I loved her best of all—best of all?"

This was true, for all the deeper, stronger love of Madam Conway's nature had gone forth to the merry, gleeful girl whose graceful, independent bearing she had so often likened to herself, and the haughty face with which she claimed relationship. How was this illusion dispelled? Margaret was not a Conway, nor yet a Davenport. A servant girl had been her mother, and of her father there was nothing known. Madam Conway was one who seldom wept for grief. She had stood calmly at the bedside of her dying husband, had buried her only daughter from her sight, had met with many reverses, and shed for all no tears, but now they fell like rain upon her face, burning, blistering as they fell, but bringing no relief.

"I shall miss her in the morning," she cried, "miss her at noon, miss her in the lonesome nights, miss her everywhere—oh, Margaret, Margaret, 'tis more than I can bear! Come back to me now, just as you are. I want you here—here where the pain is hardest," and she clasped her arms tightly over her heaving bosom. Then her pride returned again, and with it came thoughts of Arthur Carrollton. He would scoff at her as weak and sentimental; he would never take beyond the sea a bride of Magarish birth; and duty demanded that she, too, should be firm, and sanction his decision. "But when he's gone," she whispered, "when he has left America behind, I'll find her, if my life is spared I'll find poor Margaret, and see that she does not want, though I must not take her back."

This resolution, however, did not bring her comfort, and the hands pressed so convulsively upon her side could not ease her pain. Sure, never before was so dark an hour enfolded that haughty woman, and a prayer that she might die was trembling on her lips, when a footfall echoed along the hall, and Arthur Carrollton stood before her. His face was very pale, bearing marks of the storm he had passed through, but he was calm, and his voice was natural as he said: "Possibly what we have heard is false. It may be a vagary of Hagar's half-crazed brain."

For an instant Madam Conway had hoped so, too, but when she reflected, she knew that it was true. Old Hagar had been very minute in her explanations to Margaret, who, in turn, had written exactly what she had heard, and Madam Conway, when she recalled the past, could have no doubt that it was true. She remembered everything, but more distinctly the change of dress, at the time of the baptism. There could be no mistake. Margaret was not here, and so she said to Arthur Carrollton, turning her head away as if she, too, were in some way answerable for the disgrace.

"It matters not," he replied, "whose she has been. She is mine now, and if you feel able, we will consult together as to the surest method of finding her."

A sudden faintness came over Madam Conway, and while the expression of her face changed to one of joyful surprise, she stammered out, "Can it be I hear aright? Do I understand you? Are you willing to take poor Maggie back?"

"I certainly have no other intention," he answered. "There was a moment the memory of which makes me ashamed, when my pride rebelled; but it is over now, and though Maggie cannot in reality be again your child, she can be my wife, and I must find her."

"You make me so happy, oh, so happy!" said Madam Conway. "I feared you would cast her off, and in that case it would have been my duty to do so too, though I never loved a human being as at this moment I love her."

Mr. Carrollton looked as if he did not fully comprehend the woman, who, loving Margaret as she did, could yet be so dependent upon his decision; but he made no comment, and when next he spoke he announced his intention of calling upon Hagar, who possibly could tell him where Margaret had gone. "At all events," said he, "I may ascertain why the secret, so long kept, was at this late day divulged. It may be well," he continued, "to say nothing to the servants as yet, save that Maggie has gone. Mrs. Jeffrey, however, had better be let into the secret at once. We can trust her, I think."

Madam Conway bowed, and Mr. Carrollton left the room, starting immediately for the cottage by the mine. As he approached the house, he saw the servant who for several weeks had been staying there, and who now came out to meet him, telling him that since the night before Hagar had been raving crazy, talking continually of Maggie, who, she said, "had gone where none would ever find her."

In some anxiety, Mr. Carrollton pressed on, until the cottage door was reached, where for a moment he stood gazing silently upon the poor woman before him. Upon the bed, her white hair falling over her round, bent shoulders, her large eyes shining with delirious light, old Hagar sat, weaving back and forth, and talking of Margaret, of Hester, and "the little foolish child," who, with a sneer upon her lip, she said, "was a fair specimen of the Conway race."

"Hagar," said Mr. Carrollton, and at the sound of that voice Hagar turned toward him her flashing eyes, then with a scream, buried her head in the bed-clothes, saying "Go away, Arthur Carrollton! Why are you here? Don't you know who I am? Don't you know what Margaret is, and don't you know how proud you are?"

"Hagar," he said again, subduing, by a strong effort, the repugnance he felt at questioning her, "I know all, except where Margaret has gone, and if on this point you can give me any information, I shall receive it most thankfully."

"Gone!" shrieked Hagar, starting up in bed; "then she has gone. The play is played out, the performance is ended and I sinned for nothing!"

"Hagar, will you tell me where Maggie is? I wish to follow her," said Mr. Carrollton, and Hagar answered, "Maggie, Maggie—he said that lovingly enough, but there's a catch somewhere. He does not wish to follow her for any good—and though I know where she has gone, I'll surely never tell. I kept one secret for nineteen years. I can keep another as long," and folding her arms upon her chest, she commenced singing, "I know full well,—but I'll never tell."

Biting his lips with vexation, Mr. Carrollton tried first by persuasion, then by flattery, and lastly by threats, to obtain from her the desired information, but in vain. Her only answer was, "I know full well, but I'll never tell," save once, when tossing toward him her long white hair, she shrieked "Don't you see a resemblance—only hers is black—and so was mine nineteen years ago—and so was Hester's too—glossy and black as the raven's wing. The child is like the mother—the mother was like the grandmother, and the grandmother is like—me, Hagar Warren. Do you understand?"

Mr. Carrollton made no answer.

SUGAR BEETS

Interesting Letter From a Well Known Agriculturist on Beets

The following letter will be of interest to many of our readers. Mr. Rennie is well known in Ontario to be one of the most successful root growers in the province.

SUGAR BEETS.

To the Editor of the Weekly Sun:

I notice in last week's issue that Mr. Andrew Elliott of Galt states that sugar beets are being grown to quite an extent by farmers within reach of the factory, but farmers outside the teaming limit have gone back on them.

Knowing the facts as I do, I can't understand why he should make such a statement, for out of some 1,775 growers this year, over 1,000 are outside of Waterloo County, and even many of these in the county are outside of teaming distance. There are some 1,200 acres more grown for the Berlin factory this year. Surely this does not look as though the farmers are going back on beet-growing. I understand, for some reason, this is not the first time that Mr. Elliott has tried to decry the sugar beet industry of this country. Yes, an industry which has proved itself very profitable to the farmers, many realizing from $80 to $100 per acre, and a few even more. When I scan some of Mr. Elliott's remarks about the sugar beet crop, I have to wonder if he ever grew an acre of beets for a factory in his life. However, if he is a little observant on his way home from the General Assembly meetings at St. John he can look out and see beets growing on both sides of the track as far east as Newcastle, Bowmanville, Oshawa, Whitby, Dunbarton, Port Union, Scarboro Junction, Brampton, and many other places too numerous to mention, and all for the Ontario Sugar Company at Berlin.

SIMPSON RENNIE.

THE ANIMAL FROZE TO DEATH.

A Story which Some will Have Audacity to Doubt

It was in the back parlor of the Snowdon House, and the knights of the grip had the floor.

"Did you ever hear of the fish that lived on frost?" said Ald. Harry Best, as To. Rutherford reached for the corn pipe which the proprietor had laid down.

"No," said Tom Biddy.

"Well, this fish," said the doughty alderman, "haunts the Maine coast. It comes ashore every morning before the sun has melted the frost, and from the rocks and tree trunks and grass blades it scrapes with its blunt teeth enough of this cold food to last it for the day. It can never be caught in the water for the reason that it will not rise to bait. Sometimes, though, men catch it ashore with their hands. Its flesh is considered a delicacy and brings $2.25 a pound."

Mr. Snowdon frowned.

"Now I will tell you," he said, "about my uncle's mule, away back in the forties. My uncle kept this mule in a wooden stable and he fed it on popcorn. One day the stable took fire, and the popcorn in the mule's stall, shooting up in the air, descended all about the unfortunate animal in soft white flakes. These flakes the mule mistook for snow. He imagined that he was in a snowstorm and froze to death. If you doubt this story all you have to do is to ask Sam Hughes."

A RARE CHANCE

FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.

BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

CRIPPLE CREEK ENTERPRISE GOLD MINING COMPANY

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non-assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details. The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion, Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

St. Louis Gold Mining Co

Property includes six full claims, with a 38 foot ore body extending across 3200 feet of this property, determined by a tunnel 500 feet and open cuts and shafts every one in one. Why does St. Louis Gold Mining Co. offer the investor a chance for a money.

1. Do you know that it's title is free and clear?
2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.
10. Now, therefore avail yourself of the opportunity to investigate before investing by addressing

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company

of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay [illegible] less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who [illegible] to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be [illegible] to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them [illegible] only [illegible] are interested, because one wastes your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 50[illegible] Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining [illegible]tes—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high [illegible]d low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically [illegible] carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company [illegible] unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest [illegible]eaful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement [illegible]be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will [illegible]yone familiar with mining, a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains [illegible]in 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $140 per ton, and the Company [illegible]9 000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per [illegible] continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from [illegible]y different portions of the vein system averaged $36.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns [illegible]720 acres of placer and timber land. water power of 500 (minimum) horse power [illegible]expensive shaft work necessary, Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus [illegible]ng freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning, [illegible]paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each [illegible]rty. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

75 Cents Per [illegible]re, Par Value $1.00

INVESTORS are afforded every [illegible]portunity for the strictest investigation regarding the property and the reputation [illegible]the officers and directors. Highest banking references.

THE YORKSHIRE'S POLICY.

A Despite Canadian Tariff will Still Continue to Buy Cheap Corn.

London, June 10.—The Hamburg-American Line is making a bid for emigrant traffic from Scotland. Emigrants must pay their own fares to Leith, where a steamer will take Hamburg to join a steamer for New York, at a two pound fare from Leith. The same line is making the same bid for Irish emigrants, and, it is rumored, that both the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd will call at Queenstown for passenger traffic. The latter company has cut the steerage rate to Boston to £2 13 6.

MORE COMMENT ON THE BUDGET

London, June 10.—The Yorkshire Observer commenting upon Mr. Fielding's budget, says: "If the North-West Canadian consumers are willing to pay 7 per cent. more than at present for goods made 2,000 miles away, rather than the same goods 5,000 miles away, that is their affair, and some machinery and hands will presumably shift halfway to please them. We, on the other hand, shall more freely continue to take our corn irrespective of distance from the cheapest dumper of the same."

The Glasgow Herald declares that the Fielding budget gives the coup-de-grace to Mr Chamberlain's romance of the mysterious offer of a mutual preferential tariff.

R. Waddington, one of the greatest stuff manufacturers of Bradford said that Britain would still be able to send dress goods to Canada under difficulties. It remained to be seen how far the revised duty would affect the shipping of woolen articles to Canada.

CHAMBERLAIN STILL AT IT

London, June 10.—Mr. Chamberlain speaking at a dinner given in his honor by Col. Bryce, M.P., said we had as an Empire greater opportunities than any other nation. Our great task was to consolidate the Empire. The colonies were all anxious to meet us. With that object in view important facts would soon be issued by the Commission showing how serious a calamity threatened the country unless a remedy was provided. The Empire's continued existence depended upon a settlement of the question, for which he would fight to the end.

MORE FIGHTING IN TIBET.

London, June 10.—The correspondent of The Times in Tibet, says, "Yesterday while Col. Younghusband was at Khangma, on his way to Chumbi, an attack was made on that post by a force of Tibetans. Immediately after reveille one party, under cover of the nullahs, attacked the Yaks with a Gurkha guard, which had just started on the day's journey. The Gurkhas behaved with great gallantry in what was necessarily a hand-to-hand fight, and were well supported by a few mounted infantry. Our losses were one Gurkha killed and six men wounded. The enemy suffered very heavily.

NO TROUBLE AT THIS EXECUTION.

The Belanger Died of Fright Before the Trap Fell for Him

St. Scholastique, Que., June 10.—Theophile Belanger was hanged at 8 o'clock this morning for the murder of Antoine Seguin, his brother-in-law, at Ste. Eustache in February, 1903.

Belanger died of a broken heart. The doctor said that as soon as he felt the trap fall fright caused a rupture of the heart. This is the first occasion on which it has been known that after a man has been hanged he has not shown a sign of life after the drop. There was not even a pulse beat in Belanger's body after he fell.

Belanger went to the gallows perfectly composed. He did not look like a man going to be hanged.

Everything was conducted perfectly quietly. There were fifty persons in the jail yard, and about a hundred outside. The priest of the village held mass at a quarter to eight o'clock, and all the villagers went to it. The mass was in progress while the hanging took place.

TRIES TO DRAG IN CHINA.

The Japan Wants that Country to Occupy Conquered Territory

Tien Tsin, June 11.—M. Uchida, the Japanese minister to China, came to Tien Tsin yesterday from Pekin to confer with the viceroy and returned to the capital to-day.

Japan it appears to be confirmed, in trying to induce China to occupy the territory taken from Russia, thus inveighing China into a breach of neutrality and giving Russia the opportunity of attacking China, who claims til the termination of the war.

Berlin, June 11.—A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Harbin, dated to-day, says the attitude of the Chinese continues to awaken apprehension. Women and children are leaving Harbin.

The spirit of the Russian troops, the dispatch adds, is unbroken. Numerous wounded men from the Yalu battle have already recovered and gone to the front.

—Farmers state that the outlook is good for the hay crop. The recent rains have had a telling effect for good, and, provided there are no June frosts, the crops will be above the average.

—The bicycle that was taken from in front of the Custom House on Thursday, was found by the police in the west part of the town, leaning against a fence.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 235 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

ENDOWMENTS AT LIFE RATES

HOW do the rates compare with those of other companies?

The rates are the same as the principal Canadian Companies charge for "Whole Life" and "Twenty Payment Life" policies

WHERE can these policies be secured?

From any agent of the LONDON LIFE.

WHEN do these policies become endowments and are the endowments guaranteed or estimated?

The policies mature as endowments at about expectation of life and are absolutely guaranteed.

WHAT kind of settlement does the LONDON LIFE give at the end of twenty years?

FIVE OPTIONS or methods of settlement are offered at the end of twenty years.

The guaranteed cash surrender is the largest in Canada for the premium paid.

WHAT options are given policy holders in case of lapse or surrender

The policy holder may select one of four options.

1st. PAID UP INSURANCE for reduced amounts payable as endowments at maturity period.

2nd. EXTENDED INSURANCE for a fixed number of years and months for full amount of policy less premiums and interest thereon unpaid.

3rd. CASH LOANS.

4th. CASH SURRENDER VALUES.

The Catarrhozone Dry Air Treatment

THE ONLY RATIONAL, SURE CURE FOR CATARRH AND DISEASES OF THE NOSE, THROAT AND LUNGS.

The only natural cure for catarrh is the dry air treatment which effects startling cures without reverting to drugs, dangerous snuff and cocaine mixtures.

Catarrhozone kills the catarrh germs, soothes and heals the sore mucous membrane, clears the air passages of the nose and throat, cures chronic catarrh that has resisted all other treatments.

The reason why Catarrhozone cures is because it really gets at the cause of the disease. No matter how remote or long standing your catarrh may be you can place perfect faith in Ferrozone. It is Nature's cure composed of the most healing balsamic antiseptics known to medical science. Read the following.

MR. L. MURPHY, well known in West Medford, Mass., writes: "Catarrhozone cured my catarrh, after a score of doctors failed. I used to hawk and spit, my nose was continually stuffed up, and often I was sick at my stomach. Catarrhozone has removed every trace of catarrh from my system."

MISS EMMA PETERS' Highland Grove, N.S., writes; "I am more than pleased with the results from Catarrhozone. It cured me of the worst kind of nose and throat catarrh. Other friends using Catarrhozone are greatly pleased with it and agree that it is the only sure remedy for catarrh they ever used."

Mr. LAWRENCE KENNEDY, of West New Annam, says; "For three years I suffered from catarrh and throat trouble. I tried many remedies but they were of no avail. I got no relief till I tried Catarrhozone. Too much cannot be said of so valuable a medicine. I shall always recommend Catarrhozone to anyone troubled with catarrh; it is a positive cure."

MR. W. W. BEACH, of Chapman, Ont., who suffered for years from "systematic catarrh says; "Catarrhozone is the best remedy I have ever used for catarrh and I have used a lot of them. Catarrhozone was exactly suited to my case."

No intelligent person can doubt the merit of Catarrhozone which receives more praise from Medical Journals, doctors and the public than any other remedy; it is certain to cure every type of catarrh, lung and throat trouble. Two months' treatment, $1.00; sample size, 25c. At druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S., and Kingston, Ont. Refuse a substitute for Catarrhozone.

Death of Andrew Tully

Word was received on Saturday morning by telephone from Bobcaygeon of the death of Mr. Andrew Tully, who formerly lived near this town. Deceased was over 80 years of age, and was one of the oldest residents of this district. His son, Thos. J., is employed as teamster for the McDonald Co., of this place. The body was brought here for interment.

Mission Closed

Last evening the two weeks mission of the fathers closed at St. Peter's cathedral. It is said to have been in every way successful, and the reverend fathers made many friends while in town. Saturday evening a dedicatory service was held in honor of the Blessed Virgin, which was participated in by men. A shrine was erected to the Virgin, on behalf of the men, with a procession of boys, the object of which was to inculcate into boys a spirit of chivalry for women. At the closing session the Papal benediction was given.

Goes to Europe on Business Trip

Mr. Dickson Hall, of the firm of Richard Hall & Son, leaves for Europe this morning. He goes by way of New York, from which place he will sail for Liverpool on Wednesday on the steamer Cedric. He expects to be absent about two months. During this time he will visit Berlin, Paris, Manchester, the centres of England, Ireland and Scotland. He goes in quest of novelties for the firm's large store and there is no doubt but they will be able to make a noise after his return. Patrons of that establishment will do well to keep their eyes open, as the bargains may be coming along rapidly before they are aware of it.

MISSISSAGA TRADITIONS BY CHIEF PAUDASH.

MOHAWKS RETREATED

The Mohawks fought well, but the Mississagas were just as good. An attack having been made upon this village, the Mohawks were compelled once more to retreat. The Mohawks then fled to Quegreling, or Cameron's point at the foot of Rice Lake, where great numbers of weapons and bones have since been found, and were again fiercely attacked by the Mississagas, who compelled them to beat a further retreat down the river to Omgaming, the famous carrying place, where the Mississagas [illegible] to the high portage across from lake Ontario into the Bay of Quinte, and from there into their own country. The Mississagas rested at Omgaming and waited for the detachment from Toronto to join them. Before pursuing the Main body of the Mohawks further after the attack at Cameron's point, a party of the Mississagas went up country to a lake called Chuncall, in Mador, north of Trenton, where a party of Mohawks dwelt, and wiped them off. The lake being small, the fish fed on human flesh and become very savage, so much so that the Indians came to hold them in dread.

It being known that the Iroquois would never rest until they should return and attack the Mississagas and perhaps at a disadvantage to the Mississagas, the latter decided to advance against the Mohawks and the Iroquois generally, beyond the great Lake. They came upon them at their fort on the Mohawk river and laid siege to it. After a long time the Mohawks, who resisted with great bravery, sent out two old men to see if peace could not be made, it being a pity that two brave enemies should fight till both were upon the point of extermination. It was evident, however that there could be no certainty of peace for the future, since the Iroquois as well as the Mississaga children would surely take up the quarrel and continue it. It was decided by treaty, therefor, that the children of the Mohawk and the Mississaga warriors should be given and taken in intermarriage and in this way peace was assured for the future. The Mississagas then returned and seeing that the land conquered them from the Mowjawks, who had dispossessed the Hurons, was full of game and an excellent hunting ground, they came down from lake Huron and settled ermanently in the valley of the Otoanbee or Trent and along the St. Lawrence as far east as Brockville. Thus they extended from Lake Huron to Brockville in the east and in the west where the Credit Indians live, a tribe of the same race from Toronto to Lake Erie. The British Government consiquently recognized the claims of the Mississagas to this country and the eastern lands were gathered together at Nan shoo jou or Hiawatha on Rice Lake, at Curving near Peterborough and at Scugog near Port Perry. Hiawatha is not Mississaga the Mississagas name for Rice Lake being Pa,adus-goda-yong, meaning Lake of Plains, from the fact that when the Mississagas first came down to the mouth of the river the southern shore of Rice Lake opposite appeared to be flat, since it had been cleared of forest, being the cornfields of the Mohawks. Chemong is a corruption of Oskigimong, and refers to the bow shape of the lake. Scugog means shallow waters.

ALLIES OF THE BRITISH.

After the great war of the American Revolution, the Mohawks, who had been allies of the British and for that reason had had to leave the United States, came over to Canada and asked the Mississagas to allow them to settle at Grand River and the Bay of Quinte. The British Government bought to h reservations for the Mohawks from their allies the Mississagas, and settled them there as they desired.

In closing my remarks I would like to call your attention to the Indians at Moose Point on Georgian Bay. Last winter my son and I were at Parry Sound, where we met some of the Indians dwelling at Moose Point who have war medals but no land or annuity. These Indians are the descendants of those who came with Tecumseh and afterwards did not here go back. I am sure that if the case was resented to the Government, they would get either land or annuity like ourselves.

I solemnly declare this to be the tradition of the Mississagas as given me by word of mouth by my father, Paudash, and by my grandfather, Chenoshnah.

12 Minutes for Lunch.

That is the average time spent in a large city restaurant by three thousand luncheers. It takes three hours to digest a fresh egg soft boiled. In fact, three hours is about the time required to digest the average twelve minute lunch. The object of the hasty lunch is to let the busy man get back to his office work. But when the brain is active, the stomach is inactive for lack of necessary blood. The natural consequence is indigestion, and indigestion opens the door to many diseases.

Indigestion is cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food.

$3,000 FORFEIT will be paid by the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y., if they cannot show the original signature of the individual volunteering the testimonial below, and also of the writers of every testimonial among the thousands which they are constantly publishing, thus proving their genuineness.

"I had stomach trouble from childhood and suffered with it more or less as I grew up," writes Mr. Willis Seaman, of Washingtonville, Orange Co., N. Y. "At the age of 16 I was broken down with dyspepsia. My suffering was terrible. Could eat only without distress. Could only eat a few certain things and even not able to work half the time. Everything I tried only gave me temporary relief. My wife finally persuaded me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pleasant Pellets.' I took six bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I then felt so well that I stopped taking medicine."

"Common Sense Medical Adviser," 1008 large pages in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

KEENE.

Miss Mabel Harrison, who was attending college in Toronto, is home for her vacation.

Miss L. Bell is spending a few days in Peterborough this week.

Messrs. Fred and Albert Walsh and John Miller left on Saturday for Calgary, where they intend to engage in ranching.

Miss Alice Wilson, of Peterborough, was the guest of her aunt, Mrs J McFarlane for a few days last week.

We are pleased to see that Mr. William Andrews, a former student of Keene Public School, has obtained his degree of B.A at Trinity University.

Miss Agnes Doris left on Monday for Albion, N.Y., to see her sister, who is dangerously ill.

Mr. Sam English, of Peterborough, was in Keene on Tuesday last.

Quite a number from Keene and vicinity attended the excursion to Guelph on Thursday.

Miss M. McLaughlin was the guest of Peterborough friends for a few days last week.

The members of the local court A. F. & A. M. attended the funeral of the late Dr. Moffat at Norwood, on Monday.

While returning from school on Tuesday evening, Lola, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Kemp, met with a serious accident. In attempting to climb over a stump fence she slipped and a sharp root penetrated her intestines, making a nasty wound. Dr Harrison was called and dressed the wound, having to take several stitches in it. She is getting along as well as could be expected.

Miss M. J. McCarthy, of Rochester, spent a few days visiting her brother and sister this week.

Miss Josephine Sowrie, of Ovid, N. Y., is visiting her mother at present.

DELUDED BY FALSE RETREAT OF JAPS

Russians Caught in a Trap--They Were Surrounded and Lost 800 Men--The Japanese Advance of Columns North and South of Feng Weng Cheng is causing considerable Mystification--Russians Fell Back on Kai-chou

After Slight Fighting, the Japanese Made a False Retreat, the Russians Hotly Following Them, When the Japanese Made a Flank Movement, Catching the Russians in a Bad Trap.

New Chwang, June 12.—Information was received here at 10 o'clock tonight through heretofore reliable channels that part of the Japanese force left at Pu Lan Tien to checkmate the Russians southward movement to relive Port Arthur, was attacked southeast of Shungmao yesterday.

After slight fighting, the Japanese made a false retreat, the Russians hotly following them, when the Japanese made a flank movement catching the Russians in a trap.

The Russian losses are placed at eight hundred men. They then fell back on Kai Chou, and began to retreat along the Bumat Gu Tsaichou road.

Renewed Skirmishing is Reported in the Neighborhood of Siu-Yen, but there is no Confirmation Officially of the Engagement Reported at Hai-Cheng Friday Night, which was Said to Have Resulted in the Loss of Two Japanese Battalions.

Hai Cheng, June 13.—Renewed skirmishing is reported in the neighborhood of Siu Yen, but there is no confirmation officially of the engagement reported at Hai Cheng last night as having occurred thirty miles southeast of Hai Cheng, in the direction of the Feng Wang Cheng road, which was reported to have resulted in the loss of two Japanese battalions. Should this report turn out to be true, it would show that the Japanese are advancing toward Hai Cheng by two roads, as the column reported engaged must have been different from the one which drove out the Russians from Siu Yen on the road further south.

Germany and Britain May be Next War.

The Prominent Critics See Two Countries in Death Struggle.

London, June 14.—Mr. H. W. Wilson, the well-known writer on naval affairs, in an article in The National Review, says the "the central and dominating fact on the period through which we are passing is the hostility of Germany to England. In German calculations England has taken the place that France occupied before 1870, and England, he thinks, would be as unwise as France was if she did not take note of the fact and shape her military policy accordingly. France was taken unprepared, and so may England be if she does not accept the warning which many concurring circumstances plainly give. He points to the successive enlargements of the German navy, and to the quite recent demand for an extension of the very liberal programme of 1900 which provided for a navy of 38 battleships, with 20 large and 35 small cruiser. At the present Germany has a squadron concentrated near Kiel sufficiently strong to overpower the English home squadron, unless it were promptly reinforced by the Channel fleet. What can be done by an alert and forehanded enemy has been most impressively shown by the Japanese attack on Port Arthur. Could the home squadron be destroyed or crippled, the landing of several German army corps on the east coast of England would be comparatively easy. Not less than eight army corps, some 400,000 men in all, are in continual readiness near Emden, only 300 miles from either Hull or Newcastle — a considerably shorter distance than that between Sasebo, the starting point of the Japanese fleet, and Port Arthur.

These are unpleasant reflections adds the News, and, possibly, they do injustice to the intentions and aims of Germany; yet it cannot be doubted that the German mind has been very much preoccupied of late years with the thought of England's rivalry, and of the obstacles which England might throw in the way of German expansion. Moreover, there has been no concealment of the fact that Germany has it in view to contest in years to come, if not by actual conflict, at least by a display of force, England's supremacy at sea. Dr. Emil Reich, the Hingarian writer, who has come into great prominence within a few years as a publicist, says, in a recent article in The Fortnightly Review, that "there can be no doubt that Germany is arming herself with patient calculating and laborious perseverance for the day when she shall at last feel ready to throw down the gauntlet of defiance in the face of England."

What the probabilities are of Germany's realizing her great ambitions is the question which Dr. Reich undertakes to discuss. The great force, he says, which makes more German successes is her intellectuality. Germany probably leads Europe in the power of thinking out problems. At the same time, the material difficulties in her way are great. She entertains ideas of Pan-Germanism, but these ideas find little favor with the Germans of the Austrian Empire. There is a party, moreover, within her own borders, the Socialists, whose numbers are increasing year by year, and who look with great disfavor on the constantly increasing expenditure on armaments. Then there is France to be considered; the lost provinces have not been forgotten, and in attempting any enterprise against another nation Germany would have to feel very sure that France would not seize the opportunity to attempt a rectification of her eastern frontier. South American looks very tempting as a field for colonization, but, no good or evil, the Monroe doctrine stands in the way of any acquisition of territory in that quarter. On the whole though he essays to write on Germany's future, Dr. Reich seems extremely uncertain what that future is to be. He would like the country of Goethe and Lessing and Kant to "have a throw," but he seems to see difficulties on every side. He admits the terrible "overbureaucratisation" of Germany, and points to the fact that within the last thirty years the country has, with the exception of Bismarck, not produced "a single great political personality."

INVOLVES THE OTHER POWERS.

Russian Say Japan's Plan for Chinese Rule is Sprung Too Soon.

St. Petersburg, June 11.—The Russian authorities have not been advised by M. Lessar, the Russian Minister to China, of the proposition alleged to have been made to China by Japan to hand over to Chinese civil administration the towns captured by the Japanese in Manchuria, or even of the refusal of the Pekin government to assign the administration to a neutral power. The foreign office cannot believe that such a proposition was submitted, pointing out that, while the war in in progress, the fact that certain territory in occupied by the Japanese does not necessarily mean that it will remain in their hands.

As a belligerent, Russia would refuse to recognize an arrangement which might hamper her military operations, and she does not believe that the powers would consider even for a moment a proposition of this character.

At the conclusion of the war, if Japan is victorious, it is considered that as she herself is under the pledge not to undertake even temporarily the civil administration of Manchuria, she would be free to take this course. If Japan has actually opened negotiations with China on this subject it will be regarded here as an attempt to raise international complications, in the hope of forcing the powers to interfere while the balance of war is on her side.

HAVE NO HOPE

Russians Soldiers Have no Heart in Present War

London, June 14.—Jaakoff Prelocker, editor of the Anglo-Russian and one of the most energetic champions of free Russia, is convinced that the Japanese will sooner or later capture Port Arthur and drive Kuropatkin out of Manchuria. "The chief reason for this," said Mr. Prelocker to a correspondent, to-day, "is that the rank and file of the Russian forces do not want to fight. They have no heart for this war, no enthusiasm, no spirit. The same is true of many officers who condemn the Far Eastern policy of the government. From all along the Siberian Railway information comes that the troops European Russia arrive in a dejected state of mind, not seared and not reduced by hardships and bodily fairly comfortable, but simply without that morale militancy so essential for effective warfare. Many of the more intelligent soldiers do not hide from their friends that they will surrender should opportunity offer. I know in this city a number of Russian subjects or rather ex-subjects, devoted Russians of high mental and spiritual quality, men capable of great heroism, in a cause they considered righteous, who are urging their relatives and friends in the Czar's army to lay down their arms."

OLDEST IN SPAIN

Claims That She Was Born 150 Years Ago

Madrid June 14.—The papers refuse to recognize America as the land where the oldest women grow. Against the oldest American woman, aged 114 years, we set our Donna Maria Rieta, born October 12 1781 they say.

Maria said that she had recollections of the eighteenth century, in which she was born and married. She saw the great Napoleon, Blucher and Wellington. One of her children was born on the same day as the King of Rome, Napoleon's only son. Maria was twice married and had nineteen children, all of whom are dead. For the last forty years she has rested in the Hospital Provincial. The old lady spoke quite vivaciously, while smoking an cigarette after the other. She still knits and embroiders without glasses. She can neither read nor write. "When I was young girls were not troubled with these new-fangled things" she said disdainfully.

NEWS BY CABLE GIROUARD MUST GO

CANADIAN OFFICER WILL HOWEVER FIGHT HIS FOES

London, June 11. — Sir Percy Girouard, who intended to resign the Commissionership of the Transvaal Railways, owing to criticism of of extravagance in his department, has now decided to put his back to the wall in consequence of the announcement that his position has become untenable.

The African World says; "The demand for Sir Percy Girouard's removal must be complied with sooner or later. Girouard is a brilliant soldier, but he has provided another illustration of the ancient truth that a man most capable in war is sometimes most capable in peace. When Girouard took up his civilian role he was as much out of his element as a fish out of water. Nobody realizes this more fully than himself. Many other branches of activity are open to him and in one of these we are sure he is yet destined to shine."

London, June 11.—During May 1,189 emigrants left the Clyde for Canada, making the total for April and May 4,770.

PLOT AGAINST THE CZAR.

London, June 11.—The Daily Mail, on the authority of a Russian correspondent, says that on the night of June 7 two infernal machines were found concealed in tobacco boxes in the palace at Tsarskoe-Selo, where the Czar now is. One was found in the dining-room, and the other in the audience chamber. The mechanism of both was working.

BIDDING FOR EMIGRANTS.

The Hamburg-American Line is making a bid for emigrant traffic from Scotland. Emigrants must pay their own fare to Leith, where a steamer will take them to Hamburg to join the steamer for New York. The fare from Leith is £2. The same line is making the same bid for Irish emigrants. It is rumored that both the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines will call at Queenstown for passenger traffic.

NEW TARGETS AT BISLEY.

Major Peters' electrical target is to be used on the 200 yards range at the National Rifle Association meeting at Bisley. O. C. Cullen's ball-bearing rifle barrel is also to be used in connection with the Peters' target. The War Office has given orders to Woolwich that a number of old barrels be converted into the Cullen patent.

REV. J. BASTOW, M. A. TENDERED RESIGNATION

AS PASTOR OF MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH

His Resignation was Accepted with Very Great Reluctance. Has Accepted a Call to Renfrew

At the close of Sunday morning's service at the Murray street Baptist church there was an important meeting of the members of the congregation held, at which Rev. Mr. Bastow, M.A., tendered his resignation as pastor of the church.

D. Scott acted as chairman, and Mr. A. Martin, church clerk, read the following resignation, which intimated to the majority of the members of the congregation for the first time, that their pastor intended to leave them, and the intelligence was anything but pleasing -

Peterborough, June 12th, 1904. To the Murray street Baptist church,

My Dear Brethren,—Five years ago the first of last February, I began to work with you as your pastor. In many ways the Lord has richly blessed our united labors. I have constantly and earnestly sought to know the will of the Lord, as to how I could best serve you, and have honestly tried to do that will to the best of my ability. You must be the judges as to the value, wisdom and efficacy of that service.

The co-operation you have rendered me in this work I have highly prized. It has been a source of great good cheer to me.

You have, too, shown great kindness to Mrs. Bastow and myself in our personal relations to you, and a sweet friendship has sprung up between us, which will be warmly cherished as long as life lasts.

I feel now however, that the strain of church work must be lightened, and, therefore, a change to me is very desirable. A new field of almost any kind would give me a chance for the needful ease and recuperation.

A hearty and unanimous call has been extended to me to become the pastor of the Baptist church at Renfrew, Ont. It has been wholly unsought by me. I know nothing whatever of it. None of them had ever seen me. So the call seems to me specially to come from God. I accepted the call last Friday.

I therefore now offer you my resignation. I would like to be released from duty here July 31st, if that will suit your convenience. That would make my time of service here just five and one half years.

I am very desirous that the break in the pastorate may not in the least interfere with the unity and prosperity of the church.

That the richest of heaven's blessings may rest upon you all, and that you be divinely guided in the selection of a spiritual leader, and that the great Shepherd and Bishop of our souls may at last gather us all into the Heavenly fold, is the earnest prayer of

Your affectionate Brother in Christ,
JONATHAN BASTOW.

As Mr. Bastow had already accepted a call to the Baptist church at Renfrew it was felt by the congregation that they could not do otherwise than accept has resignation, and it was with very great reluctance that it was accepted. Feeling reference to the sincere regret felt by all over the ministrations as pastor, was made by a number of the members.

The service rendered by Rev. Mr. Bastow has been whole-hearted, and in all branches of the church great progress has been made.

Reference was also made regarding Mrs. Bastow, who has been an earnest, zealous and active worker, being assistant superintendent of the Sunday school, and her removal from town will leave a gap that will be hard to fill.

The church at Renfrew is a much smaller one than Murray street, and the salary will be considerably less. The call, however, is very hearty and unanimous, and the town is growing and very encouraging for Christian work.

Rev Mr Bastow is confidently expected to lead the church forward in large and aggressive work. He will, undoubtedly, throw his whole heart into it, and he will have every reason to expect rich results. The church at Renfrew promises him their earnest co-operation.

The departure of Rev. Mr. Bastow from Peterborough will be regretted by none more keenly than by the ministers of the other churches in town, each of whom has entertained the kindliest feelings for him, and on every occasion when any of the town ministers occupied the pulpit of the Murray street church reference was made to the cordiality existing between them and Mr Bastow. He will leave town with the heartiest wishes of success from the members of the Ministerial Association.

He has always been highly appreciated by all the other churches whenever he has appeared in their pulpits.

Children's Aid Society Have Not Yet Got the Boy

So far as the officers of the Children's Aid Society have not yet succeeded in getting possession of the boy, who is still in jail. This child was arrested and taken to the police court, charged with being a horse thief. His parents, it is said, knew nothing about him being under arrest, or that he had returned to town, neither did the Children's Aid Society receive notice that the child would be tried and there were no counsel present to protect his interest.

The agent of the society, however, was present, and was informed the case would be adjourned and not disposed of at that time. The child was asked to elect whether he would be tried summarily or by a jury, and having elected to be tried summarily, he put in a plea of guilty to the charge of horse stealing without having an opportunity of consulting any friends or relatives, or the counsel for the Children's Aid Society whose duty it is to advise the children in such cases.

Having, therefore, pleaded guilty, he was sentenced to the Industrial School for a term not exceeding five years, but is still in jail here. The Children's Aid Society have communicated with the Attorney-General and Mr. Kelso, the Provincial Officer, and are determined that the child must be saved, if possible, according to the well known methods of the society.

THE BOERS WILL GO TO KRUGER

To Prevent Cronje Leading Boer Veterans at St. Louis Fair

GEN. CRONJE IN POVERTY

And Was Accepting the St. Louis Contract to Earn a Living

Paris, June 11.—Members of the once active Boer societies of this city are planning to persuade General Cronje not to appear at the St. Louis Exposition, in command of the Boer veterans, who have been engaged to take part in mock fights. Since Cronje writes to the French press he has accepted this engagement because he is compelled to earn his bread, the leaders of the former Boer organizations propose to ask him to accept a subscription. They also plan to appeal to ex-President Kruger to come to the aid of his old friend and fellow soldier.

"If Kruger, who is rolling in money, permits the memory of Boer valour to be degraded by the proposed St. Louis spectacle," said M. Paulat, former president of the Boer societies, to a correspondent, his French friends cannot keep up their respect for the old president. The fulfillment of Cronje's contract must be prevented at all costs."

Dr. Leyds, former plenipotentiary of the Transvaal, is credited with the statement that Cronje will not accept charity, but that he should feel that any largesse from Kruger was merely restoration of part of the property he lost during the Transvaal war. Meantime a representative of the Herald has gone to Heatone, to see Kruger.

MARRIED IN PORT ARTHUR

Nuptials of Mr. Fred Carlisle to Miss Ada May Slipper

A wedding of interest to many in Peterborough took place at Port Arthur on Wednesday, June 1st, when Mr. Frederick D. Carlisle, eldest son of the late David Carlisle, was united in marriage to Miss Ada May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Slipper, of that town.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle are at present visiting Mrs. Carlisle's mother, Mrs. W. H. Anthony, Union street, Peterboro. His many friends here will be pleased to join the Times in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle a long and happy life.

There was a fair attendance at the rally last night in the Y.M.C.A. Hall. Rev. J. P. Wilson occupied the chair.

Mr. Thos. Yellowlees, of Toronto, conducted the round table conference, which was exceedingly interesting and instructive.

Rev G. A. MacLennan, B.A., of Norwood, the newly appointed Field Secretary for the S. S. Association work in the County, delivered his popular address, "The Land of the Gospel," which was listened to with great interest.

The meeting closed with the usual devotional exercises.

Late James Hamilton, Sebrevoreu.

Local steamboat men will read with deep regret the following item from this week's Bob Independent: Capt. James Hamilton, after an illness extending over two years, calmly drifted hence on Tuesday morning. Of quiet and obliging disposition, he has always been very popular with the public. Last summer he was in command of the Str. Ogemah, and it was feared that he had sailed his last boat. He was very weak all winter, and a few weeks ago was confined to his bed. Though nursed and cared for with the greatest attention by his good wife, he gradually sank. Tuesday morning about daylight he was given his medicine, and went off into a sleep. His soothings were unfastened, the stream of Time caught his bow, and he noiselessly and peacefully drifted across the river. He leaves a wife and three daughters. The funeral was largely attended on Wednesday, the boat bands and militiamen of Little Bob being largely represented.

BRIGHTER DAYS FOR RUSSIA

Interesting View of Prospects by the London Spectator

THE FREEDOM OF THE CZAR

In Future They May Have About as Much Peace as New York Millionaires

London, June 14—A good index of the present state of affairs in Russia is given by to-day's announcement that the Russian ambassador and the whole staff of the Russian embassy begged to be excused from attending the state ball given at Buckingham Palace Friday night, on account of the profound anxiety through which their country is passing. There is no denying that the internal situation in Russia has almost an alarming look in the light of this morning's news. For the Czar and Czarina, Englishmen always have felt the keenest sympathy, which has been all the stronger because of the belief that the Czar was "driven into the war by the official military cliques.

The Spectator to-day finds reason to believe that the governing group in Russia would prefer that General Kuropatkin should be defeated rather than that he should retreat beyond Lake Baikal, and make a long effort to recuperate.

This group is strongly persuaded that a dangerous movement in favor of a change of the government system in Russia will not commence until peace is made, the soldiery being discontented and the army has acknowledged itself defeated. The Czar himself is believed to be earnestly desirous of adopting, in the main, the proposals for which Alexander II., signed the decree on the very day of his assassination.

Under this scheme the Zemstvos, or county councils, would be permitted to send delegates to Moscow or St. Petersburg to form a kind of States-General, whose advice must always be sought and on questions of taxation always taken by an otherwise absolute Czar. It is believed that the Czar would guarantee this body freedom of speech and also concede a measure of freedom to the press.

"It may be years," says the Spectator, "before a Russian Czar can again wander about the quays of St. Petersburg as Nicholas I. was accustomed to do but at least he may be rendered as free from personal terrors as a New York millionaire and will accustom himself with the reflection in all times of serious political action that his advisers are those who represent the people, not solely the choice of his own will."

LAID AT REST

Funeral of the Late Mrs. John Delaney Yesterday Morning

Yesterday morning the remains of the late Mrs. John Delaney were interred in the Roman Catholic cemetery, the funeral being a very large one. The cortege proceeded to St. Peter's cathedral, where requiem High Mass was chanted by Rev. Father McColl, while Rev. Father O'Brien acted as deacon, and Rev. Father Galvin as sub-deacon; after which the rector delivered a very eloquent sermon. The remains were then conveyed to the Roman Catholic cemetery for interment.

The bearers were: Messrs. H. LeBrun, J. Moloney, J. B. Gough, B. Murrow C. Young, Jas. Dolan, and Thos. Kelly.

A large number of beautiful floral tributes were received: From Mr. and Mrs. H. LeBrun, cross; Mrs. C. B. McAllister, shaf carnations; members of Chorus class of Mrs. W. J. Morrow, anchor; pupils of Mrs. W. J. Morrow, wreath; family, pillow and cross; Miss Rickey, carnations; Mr. and Mrs. D. O'Connell, wreath; Mr. and Mrs. B. Morrow, wreath; Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith, Montreal, a wreath; Mrs. Hudson, cut flowers; Miss McGill, roses; friends of Miss Alice Delaney, cross; little girls, cut flowers, and many others.

The Times joins in extending to the bereaved family its heartfelt sympathy.

MOST PROSPEROUS YEAR

REPORTED BY THE SECRETARY OF FARMER'S INSTITUTE

The Annual Meeting Held This Afternoon The Reports Presented and Great Interest manifested

Following are the reports presented by the Secretary, Mr. William Collins, at the annual meeting of the Farmers' Institute Saturday afternoon, at which the President, Mr. E. M. Elliott was in the chair, and great interest was manifested by a large gathering.

To the Members of West Peterborough Farmers' Institute:

Gentlemen,—On behalf of your Executive Committee, I beg leave to submit for your approval the annual report for the year ending May 31st, 1904.

The last year has been one of prosperity to the farmer, as far as good crops and satisfactory prices were concerned. We have had a fairly successful year with our Institute work although I find a slight falling off in our membership, partially to be accounted for by the excessive cold of the past winter, which prevented some from coming long distances to the meetings. However, we had some very successful meetings.

The regular meetings were held at Lakefield, Peterborough and North Monaghan, with audiences aggregating 545, 45 and 75 respectively. Eighteen addresses were delivered in those two days by Pres. E. M. Elliott, Miss Laura Rose, O.A.C., Guelph; Messrs. T. H. Mason, Staffordville; F. H. Newman, Ottawa, and D. Hughes-Charles, Peterborough.

The supplementary meetings were held for three days, two meetings each day, as follows: 4th Line Smith, attendance 117 9 addresses.

Ennismore attendance 395, 9 addresses.

Stewart's, Otonabee, attendance 155 9 addresses.

The delegates sent were Messrs. Duncan, Anderson, Rugby; Robert Thompson, St. Catharines; also we had along with us Mr. D. Hughes-Charles and at Ennismore the Rev. Father Fitzpatrick gave an able and instructive address. While we do not wish to particularize on any of the speakers, as they were all good, in the strictest sense of the term, we must say that any community who has the fortune to get the services of Miss Rose will get a rare treat. She will ever be welcome to Peterborough.

We might also mention that since our last annual meeting last June, we, along with East Durham and East Peterborough Institutes ran an excursion to the Experimental Farm and O.A.C., Guelph, which was a very successful affair, both educationally and financially, having about 600 passengers along, all of whom expressed their delight at the beauties of the Experimental Farm as well as the educational advantages offered; these coupled with the courteous treatment given by the heads of the different departments in explaining to the visitors the details of the different lines of advanced agriculture, made the trip very enjoyable and instructive.

But while we get good speakers, good attentive audiences who seem to appreciate the addresses and discussions, it is surprising the number of farmers who neglect and some who positively refuse to become members, when they should be receiving all those valuable reports and bulletins—that they as members are entitled to, and which contain so much valuable information on all the different lines appertaining to their calling. Would any other class of business men let such golden opportunities, which can be got at so little cost, slip past them without an effort on their part to secure them? Every one of you will say no.

We would suggest that our members and especially the Director—and it is the latter's duty—make one united effort to multiply our members by four or five. There is no reason other than apathy on our part, as ours should be one of the largest Institutes in this province.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. COLLINS,
Secretary.

May 31st, 1904

The financial report showed receipts amounting to $145.30; expenditures of $140.41, and a balance on hand of $4.89.

We, the undersigned auditors, have this day examined the bank account accounts and cash book of the Institute, as shown by the Treasurer, and compared all the vouchers, and find everything correct, with a balance on hand in the Ontario Bank, Peterborough, of $4.89, for the year ending May 31st, 1904.

DAMAGES FOR THE INNOCENT

The German Reichstag has been debating a law which is greatly needed to protect citizens from the delays to which lawsuits are subjected and to recompense those who have been unjustly accused for their loss of time and the expense they may have been forced to bear. As the laws now stand, a perfectly innocent man may be ruined and his family brought to beggary because he has been so unfortunate as to be suspected. He is thrown into prison, his position in society is temporarily lost, and when he is acquitted, there is no provision whereby damages can be secured. A suit for false imprisonment directed against his accusers is rarely possible, and when feasible so seldom meets with success that it cannot be regarded as a practical step.

The suggestion made to the Reichstag is a payment for loss of time. It may be called damages for false accusation or for imprisonment, or some other term may be used to express it; the main thing is to soften the blow the innocent party has received to his estate by entailing extraordinary expenses, interfering with his occupation, and curtailing his income. In the most favorable case it is not likely that the compensation can equal the damage, but something is better than nothing, and the fact that an accused person has received damages would go far to reinstall him in his social position, because it would exist as a proof that there was no doubt in the minds of the judges that he was guiltless.

Pale Weak Women Take New Hope

There's a remedy for all your troubles Thousands have been Cured. Why not get back your Strength and Vigor by Using the Food-Tonic Ferrozone

Ever since the world began woman has borne more than her share of suffering. Secret troubles undermine her strength, yet she seldom complains. But because she has suffered in the past is no reason why she should be forever dragged down misery and sleeplessness.

There is no girl or woman who can lift that awful burden and remove the ills from which women suffer. The name of this remedy is Ferrozone which to-day is a household word throughout the length and breadth of the American continent. New hope has been brought into the life of many a downcast woman, a new era of health has dawned for thousands who have tried and proved the merit of Ferrozone.

There is no girl of woman who can afford to miss the benefit that is sure to come from the regular use of this grand remedy. It acts directly on all the organs and insures functional activity upon which health so largely depends. Your days of weakness and headache, your hours of nervousness and despondency will all depart. Life will hold for you many new joys as it does for everyone that uses Ferrozone regularly.

Your whole body will feel the quickening influence of Ferrozone. The blood will be purified and enriched. You will no longer suffer from suppression and interference with the menstrual functions. Ferrozone cures all such ailments and prevent their return.

Mrs. Mary E. Cowan, of Hillsboro writes, "If half the ailing women in this world would only use Ferrozone regularly they would save a great deal of sickness. Before using Ferrozone I was fatigued and tired out with the least exertion. I spent half my time in bed and was forever bothered with some trouble or other. After using a few boxes of Ferrozone I became more robust, my strength and the irregularities I formerly had have disappeared. Ferrozone is a grand medicine for women."

This is the experience of thousands You really ought to use Ferrozone,—it will do you so much good. Don't listen to the druggist who urges something just as good. No substitute compares with Ferrozone which does all that is claimed of it. Price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50 at druggists or by mail from The N. C. Polson & Co. Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

The Dress of Hindoo Women.

There has been no change in Indian women's dress for 4,000 years. All wear the sari, a single piece of stuff a yard and a quarter wide, ten, twenty, thirty yards long. It is arranged on the body, and forms skirt, garment, veil, first plaited with the hand in accordion folds in front, wound round and round, and the richest end, if embroidered or woven with gold, finally brought over the head. It may be of simple cotton cloth; of silk, plain in design, woven with golden threads; solid with embroidery, strung with pearls, or of kincob, the royal cloth of gold. Some cost thousands of rupees. No pin, hook, button or string, the garment is formed on the architecture of the body, and takes its expression and mobility from its perfect harmony with the lines of the human form. And Indian women, whether of high or low class, have jewels everywhere; have sleeping gems and day gems, as we have day and night shirts.—Everybody's.

The Oak.

England won her supremacy on the seas with her ships of British oak, a wood that is renowned for strength and durability. When the Spanish armada set sail for England its commander had express orders from the king of Spain to burn or otherwise destroy every oak in the forest of Dean, then the great source of shipbuilding supplies. But, as blunt old Drake prophesied, Philip's beard was singed instead. Admiral Nelson declared that without "heart of oak" the British navy and empire would soon come to an end.

The oak is beautiful at all seasons. From the time it opens its delicate green buds, close pressed in their resinous overcoat, and emerging flame tipped with bronze or crimson, until they come again an acorn bearing spray is most artistic, and the ruddy hue of the tree in autumn combines well in nature's color scheme.

One Sided Sport.

A London paper tells a story of a certain shortsighted sportsman. He was asked one morning by a fellow sojourner in a small hotel on the shores of Loch Carron what sport he had had. "Just seen a seal," he said. "Shot at it three times and missed it each time." At dinner, an hour later, he sat next to a man with a bandage round his head. "Accident?" he inquired. "Accident!" was the indignant response. "Attempted murder, you mean. I was having a bath about an hour ago when some lunatic fired at me three times from the shore and shot part of my ear off." "Wonder who it could have been!" murmured the sportsman, and then he changed the conversation.

A Story of Storey.

An English paper tells a little anecdote of the distinguished painter Storey in his capacity of teacher of perspective at the Royal academy: On one occasion Mr. Storey accepted an invitation to dine with the wealthy—and Philistine—father of one of his pupils. Over the undeniable port the by no means doting parent inquired how his son was getting on, and, although the kindliest of men, Mr. Storey could not bring himself to say much that was favorable. "Humph!" grunted the man of money. "Well, I hope he will turn out an artist, for I am quite sure he's not fit to be anything else."

Presents in Japan.

The foreigner should beware of making presents to any Japanese girl unless he is bent upon matrimony. To present her with any sort of a gift, even though it be only a posy, will be regarded as a proposal of marriage, and to accept the present, though not a word of love or matrimony be passed, is a sign that she accepts you. Gallant Americans have got into serious trouble and found it necessary to leave the country at night to escape a binding engagement which they thoughtlessly incurred by giving to a maiden some trifle.

To Make a Seidlitz Powder.

To make a seidlitz powder mix together two drams of rochelle salts and two scruples of bicarbonate of soda; put these into a blue paper and put thirty-five grains of tartaric acid into a white paper. To use put each into different glasses and quarter fill with water, then pour both together and drink at once while in a state of effervescence.

To Make Red Ink.

Red ink is easily made by amateurs who follow this recipe: Get a one ounce bottle and see that it is perfectly clean and dry. Place in it one teaspoonful of aqua ammonia, gum arabic the size of two peas, and add six grains of carmine. Fill up the bottle with clear soft water, and after standing a little while it will be fit for use.

An Obstinate Family.

Cholmondley—I thought you intended to marry Miss Wealthington? Dolmondley—I thought so, too; but her family objected. Cholmondley—What did Miss Wealthington say? Dolmondley—Oh, she's one of the family, you know.

Things We Know.

His Wife—Why don't you go to the doctor and find out just what you ought to eat and what you ought to avoid? Dyspeptic—Oh, I know all that now! I ought to eat everything I don't like and avoid everything I do.

Just the Reverse.

Stranger (to highlander in full uniform)—Sandy, are you cold with the kilt? Sandy—Na, man, but I'm nigh kilt wi' the cauld.

Mind is the beginning of civilization, but the ends and fruitage thereof are of the heart.

The Really Clever Fear.

There is much more intellectual cleverness among the girls of today than there was fifty years ago. A flippant cousin says: "It does not pay for a girl to be clever. Men are afraid of you if you are, and the other girls hate you." But between a pedantic prig and a well educated woman there is a vast difference. The really clever women are those who disguise their learning and pose as amiable and charming idiots.—Ladies' Field.

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a number of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being located on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property ranging from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern mach nery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups; namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 20 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 570 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflict as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented.

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78½ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented.

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory.....758½ acres
" " Mill and building sites..... 55 "
" " Timber properties..... 90 "
Total 903½ acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

Complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber land and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government from which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

Total cost of development to date, present management, $53,000.00
" " " " " former owners - 18,000.00
" " surface improvements, buildings, saw mill plant, horses, wagons, ore cars, track, tools, etc. - 17,000 00
" " Machinery paid for and to be installed - 6,000 00
$99,000 00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $26,000 00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet. We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 208 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver. These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built.

In the meantime only the high grade Smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will aid us materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905, and be continuous thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3 50 to $4 00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our stockholders. These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments. By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18 00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of production is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

and with a feeling of disappointment walked away, shuddering as he thought, "And she is Margaret's grandmother."

He found Madam Conway in strong hysterics on Margaret's bed, for she had refused to leave the room, saying, "she would die there or nowhere." Gradually the reality of her loss had burst upon her, and now gasping, choking, and wringing her hands, she lay upon the pillows, while Mrs Jeffrey, worked up to a pitch of great nervous excitement, fidgeted hither and thither, doing always the wrong thing, fanning the lady when she did not wish to be fanned, and ceasing to fan her just when she was "dying for want of air."

As yet, Mrs. Jeffrey knew nothing definite, except that something dreadful had happened to Margaret, but very candidly Mr Carrollton told her all, bidding her to keep silent on the subject, then, turning to Madam Conway, he repeated to her the result of his call on old Hagar

"The wretch!" gasped Madam Conway, while Mrs Jeffrey, running in her fright from the door back to the window again, exclaimed, "Margaret not a Conway, nor yet a Davenport, after all! It is just what I expected I always knew she came honestly by those low-bred ways!"

"Jeffrey," and the voice of the hysterical woman on the bed was loud and distinct, as she grasped the arm of the terrified little governess, who chanced to be within her reach, "Jeffrey, either leave my house at once, or speak more deferentially of Miss Miller. You will call her by that name, too It matters not to Mr Carrollton and myself whose child she has been She is ours now, and must be treated with respect Do you understand me?"

"Yes, ma'am," meekly answered Jeffrey, rubbing her dumpy arm which bore the mark of a thumb and finger, and as her services were not just then required she glided from the room to drown, if possible, her grievance in the leather bound, London edition of Baxter!

Meanwhile Madam Conway was consulting with Mr Carrollton as to their best method of finding Margaret "She took the cars, of course," said Mr Carrollton, adding, that "he should go at once to the depot, and ascertain which way she went If I do not return to-night you need not be alarmed," he said, as he was leaving the room, whereupon Madam Conway called him back, bidding him "telegraph for Theo at once," as she must have some one with her besides that vexatious Jeffrey"

Mr Carrollton promised compliance with her request, and then went immediately to the depot, where he learned that no one had entered the cars from that place on the previous night, and that Maggie, if she took the train at all, must have done so at some other station. This was not unlikely, and before the day was passed Mr Carrollton had visited several different stations, and had talked with the conductors of the several trains, but all to no purpose; and, very much disheartened, he returned at nightfall to the old stone house, where, to his great surprise, he found both Theo and her husband. The telegram had done its mission, and feeling anxious to know the worst, George had come up with Theo to spend the night. It was the first time Madam Conway had seen him since her memorable encounter with his mother, for though Theo had more than once been home, he had never before accompanied her, and now when Madam Conway heard his voice in the hall below, she groaned afresh The sight of his good-humored face, however, and his kind offer to do whatever he could to find the fugitive, restored her composure in a measure, and she partially forgot that he was in any way connected with the blue umbrella, or the blue umbrella connected with him! Never in her life had Theo felt very deeply upon any subject, and now, though she seemed bewildered at what she heard, she manifested no particular emotion, until her grandmother, wringing her hands, exclaimed, "You have no sister now, my child, and I no Margaret." Theo, indeed, her tears flowed, and when her husband whispered to her, "We will love poor Maggie all the same," she cried aloud, but not quite as demonstratively as Madam Conway wished, and in a very unamiable frame of mind the old lady accused her of being selfish and hard-hearted.

In this stage of proceedings Mr. Carrollton returned, bringing no tidings of Maggie, whereupon another fit of hysterics ensued, and as Theo behaved much worse than Mrs Jeffrey had done, the latter was finally summoned again to the sick room, where she had last succeeded in quieting the excited women The next morning George Douglas visited old Hagar, but he, too, was unsuccessful, and that afternoon he returned to Worcester, leaving Theo with her grandmother, who, though finding fault with whatever she did, refused to let her go until Margaret was found.

During the remainder of the week, Mr. Carrollton rode through the country, making the most minute inquiries, and receiving always the same discouraging answer. Once he thought to advertise, but from making the affair thus public he instinctively shrank, and resolving to spare neither his time, his money, nor his health, he pursued his weary way alone Once, too, Madam Conway spoke of Henry Warner, saying it was possible Maggie might have gone to him, as she had thought so much of Rose, but Mr. Carrollton "knew better." "A discarded lover," he said, "was the last person in the world to whom a young girl like Margaret would go, particularly as Theo had said that Henry was now the husband of another"

Still the suggestion haunted him, and on the Monday following Henry Warner's first visit to Worcester, he, too, went down to talk with Mr Douglas, asking him "if it were possible that Maggie was in Leominster"

"I know she is not," said George, repeating the particulars of his interview with Henry, who, he said, was at the store on Saturday. "Once [illegible]

he, "and then considering the relations which formerly existed between them, I concluded to keep silent, especially as he manifested no desire to speak of her, but appeared, I fancied, quite uneasy when I casually mentioned Hillsdale"

Thus was that matter decided, and while not many miles away Maggie was watching hopelessly for the coming of Arthur Carrollton, he, with George Douglas, was devising the best means of finding her, George generously offering to assist in the search, and suggesting finally that he should go to New York city, while Mr Carrollton explored Boston and vicinity It seemed quite probable that Margaret would seek some of the large cities, as in her letter she said she could earn her livelihood by teaching music, and quite hopeful of success, the young men parted, Mr Carrollton going immediately to Boston, while Mr. Douglas, after a day or two, started for New York, whither, as the reader will remember, he had gone at the time of Henry's last visit to Worcester

Here, for a time we leave them, Hagar raving mad, Madam Conway in strong hysterics, Theo wishing herself anywhere but at Hillsdale, Mrs Jeffrey ditto, George Douglas threading the crowded streets of the noisy city, and Mrs Carrollton in Boston, growing paler and sadder as day after day passed by, bringing him no trace of the lost one Here, I say, we leave them, while in another chapter we follow the footsteps of her for whom this search was made.

CHAPTER XXIII.

From the seaside to the mountains, from the mountains to Saratoga, from Saratoga to Montreal, from Montreal to the Thousand Isles, and thence they scarce knew where, the travelers wended their way, stopping not long at any place, for Margaret was ever seeking change. Greatly had she been admired, her pale, beautiful face attracting attention at once, but from all flattery she turned away, saying to Henry and Rose, "Let us go on."

So, onward still onward they went, pausing longest at Montreal, for it was there Arthur Carrollton had been, there a part of his possessions lay, and there Margaret willingly lingered, even after her companions wished to be gone.

"He may be here again," she said, and so she waited and watched, scanning eagerly the passers-by, and noticing each new face as it appeared at the table of the hotel where they were staying. But the one she waited for never came, "and even if he does," she thought, "he will not

Goes to Europe on Business Trip

Mr. Dickson Hall, of the firm of Richard Hall & Son, leaves for Europe this morning. He goes by way of New York, from which place he will sail for Liverpool on Wednesday on the steamer Cedric. He expects to be absent about two months. During this time he will visit Berlin, Paris, Manchester, the centres of England, Ireland and Scotland. He goes in quest of novelties for the firm's large store and there is no doubt but they will be able to make a noise after his return. Patrons of that establishment will do well to keep their eyes open, as the bargains may be coming along rapidly before they are aware of it,

A RARE CHANCE
FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.
BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

CRIPPLE CREEK ENTERPRISE GOLD MINING COMPANY

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion. Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

1. Do you know that its title is free and clear?
2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.

London, June 13.—It is announced that Earl Grey, Lord Lieutenant of Northumberland has been appointed to succeed the Earl of Minto as Governor-General of Canada.

HE IS LADY MINTO'S BROTHER

Albert Henry George Grey, the fourth Earl Gery, is a grandson of the celebrated Earl Grey, who was so prominent in British political life in the early years of the nineteenth century, and a son of General and Hon Charles Grey. He is a brother of Lady Minto, and is 53 years old.

FAMILY IS DISTINGUISHED ONE.

The family is an old and distinguished one. There was a baronetcy in the family from 1746 until 1801, when Gen Sir Charles Grey, K.C.B., was created a baron, in token of his services in the first war with the United States. Five years later, in 1806, he was created Earl Grey and Viscount Howick. The second Earl was a Knight of the Garter, was 21 years in the House of Commons, holding office as First Lord of the Admiralty under Mr. Fox, and after the latter's death, becoming Secretary for Foreign Affairs. In the year following his accession to the peerage, his party went into opposition, and he thus remained until Nov. 23, 1830, he was constituted Prime Minister, which place he held until July 18, 1834.

The third Earl was Secretary of State for the Colonies from 1846 to 1852, and in later years was noted for his independent criticism of affairs of State.

THE EASTERN WAR WILL INVOLVE BIG POWERS

Prince Oukhtomsky on the Russo-Japanese Conflict -- Thinks There will be a Repition of the Doukhobor Trouble

Montreal, June 13.—"I am inclined to look upon the present Russo-Japanese war as merely the preliminary stage in a struggle that will involve all the great powers of Europe. When the end comes, most of the boundaries existing in Asia now will be found to have been materially changed."

That is the prediction of Prince Oukhtomsky, the prominent journalist of St. Petersburg, who, after stopping the train Bethlehem at St. Louis and visiting the Doukhobor settlements near Yorktown, Assa., came to Montreal on a brief visit to Mr. N. de Stave, the Russian consul here. The Prince has left for New York.

When pressed to give his reasons for this opinion, the Prince continued.

"You will find that the Chinese cannot remain neutral for long in a conflict that is calculated to be protracted for years. The Chinese will, doubtless, assume an attitude of hostility to all Europeans.

"As for Russia, when a people that have been peaceful for over twenty-five years breaks loose, it is very difficult for even the most powerful government to restrain them. The Russians will not rest content with balking the designs of the Japanese. Public opinion is inclined to think that the Japanese were encouraged in their warlike plans by the British."

The reporter then informed the Prince that the western press were inclined to think he was after information that could be used should Great Britain take a hand in the Eastern war. But the Prince merely shrugged his shoulders and said nothing.

While the Doukhobors are gaining a good living in the west, Prince Oukhtomsky, is of the opinion that they would have done better to go to a land in which the climate is less rigorous. Living on vegetables, as they do, their crops have not been such as could have been desired. The religious movements that have already taken places were the result of these failures, and the Prince thinks that they cannot fail to be repeated next fall.

"The immigration officials," said the Prince, "have been kind to these people and have done everything to help these people, but the land, some of them say is cold and wet, and they want to get to some warmer climate. Canada is the freest land they could find and there are no places where they would be tolerated so far in the peculiar tenets of their strange faith which permits the fanatical of their sect to acknowledge no law, no government, nor the citizenship of any country."

The rate war is in full swing. The latest report is that the White Star Line has still further reduced its steerage passage by ten shillings.

The action of the lines not allied with the American combine is one of self-defence. The representative of one of the rival lines stated that in his opinion the reduced rates could not be of long existence, probably a month would see its termination.

The following extract from the Glasgow Mail states the position of the American combine:

"It is stated that the emigrant traffic from continental ports, over which the trouble has arisen, is a matter of life and death to the German lines, and that they will be prepared to make any sacrifice in order to maintain their position as it was when the traffic was devided up, and the continental companies retained the continental traffic, while the British and Scandanavian traffic was confined to the British companies. The Morgan combine is in a peculiarly awkward position. Apart from the lines which it has actually taken over, it is under the obligation to ay dividends up to £120,000 er annum on the shares of the two German companies, in the event of their profits being insufficient for dividend purposes."

The above furnishes the reason for the action of these companies and of a on this situation and the resulting action of these companies that the late act of the White Star, Dominion and Allan lines hinges.

Mr. MacFarlane, assenger agent of the Dominion Line, stated this morning that the rates to go into effect on Monday next will be $15 from Liverpool to Montreal; from Scandinavian ports $18, and from Finnish $21.

C.P.R. JOINS IN.

The C.P.R. will join with the Allan and Dominion steamship lines in the cut in steerage rates. Commencing next Monday, in common with the other two companies, the C.P.R. will sell steerage assages at $15 from Liverpool, $18 from Scandanavian ports, and $21 from Finland.

In making the announcement this morning, Mr. Robert Kerr, the assenger traffic manager of the C.P.R. said that no one could telf just how long these rates would obtain. "All I can say is," he remarked "that the greater the cut the sooner the lines are likely to come to terms." By way of illustration, Mr. Kerr recalled a war of rates between the railroad lines between St. Paul and Chicago. The usual single fare between these points is $11.50. One company announced a return ticket at $10. A second company offered the return trip at $33. "That ut a stop to the rate war," said Mr Kerr. "The three dollar rate lasted just long enough for them both go ull outt."

When asked whether in that event it would not be well for the C.P.R. to dro to $5 Mr. Kerr said. "We are not in the battle. We will leave that for the American lines. All that we can do is o follow them wherever they may lead. As for us we are quite content if a good class of emmigrants are brought to this country to fill u the West altogether irrespective of whether the Atlantic steamships belonging to our company, pay or not."

WEDDED IN TORONTO

Nuptials of Mr. Torrance Lang to Miss Jean C. McIntosh

A wedding of interest to many in Peterborough took place on Wednesday last in Erskine Presbyterian church, Toronto, when Miss Jean Christie McIntosh, of Brantford, was united in marriage to Mr. Torrance Tutherford Lang, manager of the Canadian Oil Co., Montreal. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Mary McIntosh, while Mr. Chester Laing, of Pittsburg, supported the groom. The happy couple left on the boat for Buffalo and Rochester, and upon their return will take up their residence in Montreal. Mr. Lang's many Peterborough friends will join in wishing him a happy married life.

The Sunday School Association Rally at Y. M. C. A.

At the Sunday school rally in the Y.M.C.A., at eight o'clock this evening, the proceedings promise to be especially helpful to all who take an interest in such work. Rev. J. A. Wilson, of St. Paul's, and President of the Town Association, will preside. Rev. G. A. McLennan, of Norwood, the newly appointed Field Secretary of the County Sunday School Association, will give his popular address on "The Land of the Gospel," and Mr. Thos. Yellowlees, of Toronto, Assistant Secretary of the Provincial Association, will also give an address. The meeting is open to all, and a good attendance is expected.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE ORANGE CELEBRATION

An Immense Crowd Expected on July the 12th

There is every reason to believe that the approaching anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne will see Peterborough filled to overflowing with Orangemen and their friends from all parts of the district. On Saturday Mr. J B. McWilliams received a letter from Mr. John Hughes, District Master West Durham, stating that the Orangemen of that district were anxious to come, and asking for railway rates from Bowmanville and points west.

The committee has arranged to accommodate all who will come, and this will probably mean an influx of 20,000 strangers on that day. Under these circumstances The Times would suggest that all citizens unite with the Orangemen in helping to make the town look beautiful.

Scarcity of Houses

The general scarcity of houses all through the town is one of the unfavorable conditions which the people of Peterborough have to face at the present time. There has been a considerable influx into the town recently, and as the population has increased the number of vacant houses has rapidly diminished. Thus far this season, a considerable number of new houses are being erected. Contractors say the high price of building material of all kinds has had a tendency to discourage prospective builders. However, the fact remains that Peterborough is in the grip of a great house famine and radical measures will have to be taken to provide more accomodation for families now quartered at over-crowded boarding houses.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full staked claims, to-wit:—The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Boomer and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns, and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals — the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 288 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 2,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company

of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless you really are interested, because you waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than ratify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 80 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9 000 feet on the vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $38 25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 500 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary, Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

75 Cents Per Share, Par Value $1.00

INVESTORS are afforded every opportunity for the strictest investigation regarding the property and the reputation of the officers and directors. Highest banking references.

LIGHTHOUSE HEROINES.

Wherever Women Have Been Put They Have Done Their Work in Satisfactory Manner.

The history of the lighthouse service shows that women are thoroughly reliable and efficient as lightkeepers As a rule they are not appointed to the care of lights of the first importance, because the work would be too arduous; but wherever they have been put they have done their duty most satisfactorily. The Boston Herald tells of many notable feats of heroism performed by women lighthouse-keepers.

On Lake Michigan, at the north end of Milwaukee bay, stands a tall red tower, which is under the charge of Mrs. Georgia Stebbins Its light is 122 feet above the water, and may be seen for 20 miles Ten years ago there was a frightful storm, and three men, upset from sailboat, were in imminent danger of drowning. Mrs. Stebbins went to their assistance, and rescued them at the risk of her own life.

Twenty-five miles out in the ocean, in the pathway of the steamers from Boston to Halifax, is a barren and rugged island of small area, which in stormy weather is often swept by the waves. It is called Matinicus Rock, and the lighthouse was formally kept by a man named Sam Burgess.

On one occasion in winter he had gone away to the mainland to procure provisions, when the weather turned bad and prevented him from returning. Meanwhile, his wife, who was an invalid, and her four daughters lived for three weeks on one cup of corn meal and one egg apiece per day. The sea swept everything off the rock, driving the family to the light tower; yet the lights during all that dreadful period were as carefully tended as usual, and never failed.

The wife of a lighthouse-keeper often acts as his assistant and performs all his duties when he happens to be away. Thus it chanced that once, during a storm, Mrs Fowler, whose husband had charge of North Dumpling light, on the Rhode Island coast, found herself in serious trouble. There was a thick fog and the machine for ringing the fog bell broke. It was an accident that might have cost many lives and more than one ship; but the woman was equal to the emergency. Scaling the outside of the tower, she fastened a rope to the bell, and rang it until the weather cleared.

Value of Learning to Knit.

Fifty years ago every woman and girl was taught to knit as part of her education. Now, however, comparatively few are taking up knitting needles with any seriousness of intention. Young women should become expert knitters, not because they cannot buy many things as cheaply as they can produce them, but with a view of that faroff day which is certain to come in time—the day of old age. To the brightest girl there may 50 years hence arrive the day of deafness, when the voices of music shall be brought low, or the day of blindness, when this fair world shall be dim and darkening to twilight or night. To the gayest of us all may come in the faroff time of the future a period of great loneliness, for "friend after friend departs." When one cannot see or hear well, when acquaintances are few and hours drag, there is a great satisfaction in being able to employ the fingers. A good knitter uses hers with the swiftness of an automaton. She sits in the firelight and knits, an embodiment of contentment.

KILLED ON THE RAILROADS

Men, Women and Children Stricken Down by Thousands as a Result of Carelessness.

It is hard to understand the complacency with which the American people tolerate the reckless disregard of life that may fairly be said to characterize the railroads of this country, says Leslie's Monthly. Each year the collected statistics of the dead and wounded rival the harvest of a war between great nations. In 1902 the injured numbered 64,662, and the killed 8,500. Think of it. Men, women and children, enough to people such a city as Wilmington, stricken down because somebody makes a mistake. In 1895 passenger travel was only five-sixths as heavy as it is to-day, but the list of killed and wounded was little more than half so great as the holocaust of last year. With each accident the neighboring community is aroused. When an attempt is made to indict directors or a president, the public smiles, and the cynicism is justified. Yet in nine cases out of ten the fault is due to incompetency tolerated, if not countenanced, by those in authority.

When an army meets with disaster the general may blame his subordinates, but the nation holds him to account. In railroading, as in war, inefficiency is a crime, and as the general is absolutely responsible for his command, the president and directors must be made to answer to the public. The conviction of a single $25,000-a-year man might send a shudder round every directors' table in the country, but also it might cut down railroad accidents by a third.

Caution.

"Willie, did you thank Mr. Speedway for taking you to drive?" said the mother of a small boy, solicitously. No answer. The question was repeated. Still no answer.

"Willie! Do you hear me? Did you thank Mr. Speedway for taking you to drive?"

"Yes," whispered Willie, "but he told me not to mention it."—Office Cat.

Was He Asking Time?

"I wonder what time Mary's young man left last night," said mamma.

"It must 'a' been exactly one o'clock, ma," said the younger brother.

"The idea! How do you know?"

"Why, just as he was leavin' I heard him ask Mary some questions, and she said: 'Just one, only one.'"—Philadelphia Ledger.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

ENDOWMENTS AT LIFE RATES

HOW do the rates compare with those of other companies?

The rates are the same as the principal Canadian Companies charge for "Whole Life" and "Twenty Payment Life" policies

WHERE can these policies be secured?

From any agent of the LONDON LIFE.

WHEN do these policies become endowments and are the endowments guaranteed or estimated?

The policies mature as endowments at about expectation of life and are absolutely guaranteed.

WHAT kind of settlement does the LONDON LIFE give at the end of twenty years?

FIVE OPTIONS or methods of settlement are offered at the end of twenty years.

The guaranteed cash surrender is the largest in Canada for the premium paid.

WHAT options are given policy holders in case of lapse or surrender

The policy holder may select one of four options.

1st. PAID UP INSURANCE for reduced amounts payable as endowments at maturity period.

2nd. EXTENDED INSURANCE for a fixed number of years and months for full amount of policy less premiums and interest thereon unpaid.

3rd. CASH LOANS.

4th. CASH SURRENDER VALUES.

WHAT THEN?

Send for booklet entitled "Endowment at Life Rate."

Catarrh Leads to Consumption

he Experience of a Lady in Sydney Who was Cured of Consumption by Inhaling Catarrhozone — This Case Should Warn Others

"The beginning of my trouble was told just a simple cold," writes Mrs. A. V. Tourtuse, of Sydney. "I neglected this cold and then I got catarrh. When it became troublesome I took some medicine but it didn't help me. I began to cough a great deal and then consulted a doctor. I was horrified to find I must have had tubercular irritation in my lungs for a year or more. A friend strongly urged me to use Catarrhozone for me. I conferred with my doctor and he said that lots of fresh air and the frequent use of Catarrhozone would be the proper treatment. I used to cough for at least half an hour in the morning but after using Catarrhozone a few days my cough was much easier. The irritation gradually left my throat and I commenced to get better. I kept up the Catarrhozone treatment and inhaled the medicated air five minutes every hour. I believe this was the means of saving my disease, for I got quite well again in a few months. I have since advised other sufferers from catarrh and lung trouble to use Catarrhozone, and in each case good results were obtained. I am due to my recovery entirely to Catarrhozone, which I can honestly recommend in the strongest way."

The foregoing experience should convince everybody of the evil of allowing colds to develop. To neglect catarrh is even worse. Carry a Catarrhozone inhaler in your pocket and use it occasionally. It prevents colds, permanently cures every type of catarrh, and is known to be the only remedy that actually kills the germs of consumption.

Catarrhozone is used by all intelligent physicians and is endorsed by thousands of doctors, because it can be relied upon to absolutely cure catarrh, bronchitis, throat and lung trouble. Catarrhozone is simplest, surest and best remedy. Two months' treatment guaranteed to cure. Price $1.00, trial size 25c., at druggists or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont. Refuse a substitute for Catarrhozone and insist on getting it when you ask for Catarrhozone.

Dog Lost

A brown Scotch collie pup, three months old, with white nose and small white spot on back of neck, long tail. Answers the name of Gamey. Anyone returning him to 281 Reid street, will be suitably rewarded.

The Dog Nuisance

People in Peterborough who try to keep nice lawns and pretty flowerbeds, leaving them open and fenceless for the benefit of the public eye receive little encouragement. It is true the mayor has courage enough to lock horses with Ald. Heat and light the dirty street nuisance abated, but then the dog nuisance is still more pressing. Larger places have long since denied the freedom of the city to the playful canine, and it is time we adopted a similar measure if we are not to see the unsightly fence once more arises in our midst.

Ahead of Time

The new G.T.R. train service, Peterborough to Toronto, commenced yesterday morning. The train, made up of combination smoker and baggage car, vestibule, first-class coach and parlor car, left Peterborough at 7.20 a.m., and arrived at Union Station, Toronto, three minutes ahead of time. The company intend to run this train sharp on time, and hope the public, and Peterborough people especially, will appreciate the service. The train leaves Toronto at 7.20 p.m., arriving at Peterborough at 10.20.

A Lindsay Contractor Gets It

Lindsay Post: Some time ago tenders for the erection of a new High School building at Omemee, to replace the old structure destroyed by fire last winter, were called for by the Board of Education of that village, and the offer of Mr. Thos. Rutherford, of Peterborough, was accepted at the price of $5810. Contractor Miller, of this town, put in the highest order—$7400, and was pleasantly surprised this morning to receive a visit form Mr. T. C. Ivory, chairman of the Board, who explained that Mr. Rutherford had backed out and that the Board had decided to accept Mr. Miller's tender. We can assure them of satisfaction.

A Painful Accident

The many friends of Mr. A. W. Cressman will regret to learn that he met with an accident on Saturday which has confined him to bed ever since. In going down cellar he made a misstep and sprained his knee. He thought nothing of it at the time, but a few hours later the knee became very painful, and he was obliged to go home and summon a physician, who found that the ligaments of the knee joint had been torn. The accident is particularly unfortunate, as Mr. Cressman was booked to sail for Liverpool on Wednesday. It is hoped that he will soon be on his feet again.

Decoration Day

The annual decoration service of Otonabee and Peterborough Lodges, I.O.O.F. will be held next Thursday afternoon, June 16th. The brethren are requested to meet at 1.45 sharp at Central Park, each to provide himself with a hand-bouquet, and to wear a white tie and white gloves. The brethren will proceed in a body, headed by the 57th Regiment Band, from the Park to Little Lake cemetery, where they will decorate the graves of deceased members, after which appropriate speeches will be delivered by local ministers.

Friends bringing flowers are requested to leave them at Nugent's drug store on Thursday morning, if possible.

The Port Hope Boats

A crowded meeting of farmers was held at Welcome, four miles north of Port Hope, alongside the deep cavine running between Rice Lake and Port Hope, to hear an illustrated address by J. A. Culvelwell on the Trent-Valley Canal and other waterways. J. W. Marlyn, councillor, presided, and after much discussion by several speakers a unanimous resolution was passed, memorializing the government, moved by T. Roberts, master blacksmith, and seconded by William Ugglow ex-councillor, and protesting against Superintending Engineer R. B. Rogers' unfair and interested report against Port Hope's outlet, and petitioning for an investigation into the conduct and interest in the matter; also protesting against diversion of public money for headwater reserves for power holders' interest, and instead to complete the canal.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Movements of the People—What They Are Doing and Saying

—Mr Wm. Anderson, M.P.P., was in town yesterday.

—Mr. Jos Welsh, of Toronto, is visiting at his home, Elm street.

—Dr. Ward, of Montreal, is in town, attending the obsequies of the late Mrs. John Delaney.

—Mr. Will Carlisle, manager of Robt. Neill's boot and shoe store, in Lindsay, was in town over Sunday.

—Mrs. Muncaster, of Charlston, S. C., is in town, called here by the death of her mother, the late Mrs. John Delaney.

—Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Routley leave today for Montreal, where they will spend the week selecting new designs in wall paper for the fall trade.

We were pleased to have a call yesterday from Mr. John Whyte, Campbellford, who is the guest of his sister-in-law, Mrs. James Whyte, for a few days.

—Mr. Henry Henderson, of Norwich, is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. A. W. Cressman, Brock street. Mr. Henderson and Mr. Cressman intend to leave tomorrow for Boston, where they will sail for England, provided Mr. Cressman has sufficiently recovered from the accident of Saturday last (in which he sprained his knee) to enable him to do so. Their many friends will wish them bon voyage and safe return.

GOLD NUGGETS

Equal to a Fortune Left by a Miner

"How many times I have heard my mother say laughingly, 'yes I have to pay Charlie's board, and then have to pay her for eating.'

"As time passed on and I developed into a poor but aspiring typewriter (with no one to pay me for eating) some years of boarding house fare, ho. rolls, tough meat, soggy vegetables, heavy pastry, skimm d milk ice cream, all these showed themselves in dyspepsia and a crop of unsightly pimples.

"Now I think it had enough to lose one's youthful contour of face and neat figure by improper eating, but to attract your friends with a pimpled face and flabby double chin is to declare oneself 'below par' and 'out of the market.'

"You know what that means in case of a woman over twenty-five!

"Something had to be done so I tried the 'no breakfast plan until my eyes showed the injurious effects of hard work before food put in the stomach had drawn blood from the brain. When I did eat I had to take so much to get a little nourishment and this crowding showed in bad effects on the kidneys and stomach and I would wake in the morning with pains in the head and hot eyes, as the children say, 'with sticks in them.'

"One day a good housewife sent me to the store for two packages of Grape-Nuts which I was to leave at her home on my way back from work. About 11 o'clock that morning I felt terribly faint and knew the signal was flying for a sick headache, so what did I do but take one of my friend's packages of Grape-Nuts, slit it open with a stick pin and munch about two spoonfuls. If one of the '49ers had left me a fortune in gold nuggets I couldn't have felt better.

"Next morning I had a package of my own and a tip to the waiter brought a little pitcher of cream with an egg beaten up in it and pouring this over the Grape-Nuts I had a delicious little dish that kept me sustained and strong and vigorous until my 2 o'clock lunch, notwithstanding five hours hard work at the typewriter. Grape-Nuts has been my breakfast since that time and note the result—

"Brain is strong and vigorous, skin and complexion are clear, headaches gone and that terrible 'heavy' sensation of the body has disappeared."

There's a reason.

Look in each pkg. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Love is unequally yoked with sickness. Labor is lightened by love, but love cannot lighten pain or relieve it. Many a man looks on at his wife's suffering willing to do anything to aid her and able to do nothing.

Sometimes, however, the husband's attention is directed to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and its remarkable cures of womanly diseases. He may not have much hope of a cure, but he is led to try the medicine, with the result that in almost every case there is a perfect and permanent cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures irregularity. It dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

As a tonic for women who are nervous, sleepless, worn-out and run-down "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled.

"In answer to your letter I will say, my wife commenced to complain twenty years ago," writes Lewis A. Miller, ex-Chief-of-Police, of 31 Prospect St., Wetzpoort, Pa. "We have tried the skill of twelve different doctors. She took gallons of medicine during the time she was ill, until I wrote to you and you told us what to do. She has taken eight bottles of Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription and six of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.' She can do her own work now and can walk around again and is quite smart." "Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

THE INQUEST RESUMED.

Evidence Given Last Night by Different Witnesses

The Proceedings Adjourned Until the Evening of the 24th

The inquest, to enquire into the death of the late Mrs. Delaney, was resumed before Coroner Grey last night, at the City Hall, when the following persons were examined:

Dr. W. McGrath, sworn, said: I was called to the residence of the late Mrs. Delaney, on Friday, the 10th day of June; I found a fracture of the right leg above the ankle, the bones broken in several places; was caused by a crushing injury; also found right side of chest crushed; and loss of natural shape and several ribs broken close to the spine; believe these injuries sufficient to produce the shock, and that death was the result.

To a Juryman—Think shock would produce death if all the organs had been healthy.

John Conlin, sworn, said: Train stopped opposite Green's foundry; first though something had happened; went to the door and asked one of the shop hands; went to where she was lying; someone suggested to take woman home; several men were then there; Duncan was one of them; Bob Baker works there; I saw train before it stopped; could not say where engine struck deceased; body found on Park street east side; train was moving east; distance from east side 377 feet from sidewalk where body was found; took measurement same evening; was one of the first who saw deceased after the accident; she was not then dead; she breathed; she was carried home; was still alive when she left; don't know what distance train should take to stop in; there was only one sidewalk; measured from middle of sidewalk, she would have been thrown 50 feet; was 9 feet from south rail; ordinary engine; was on the Missing Link road; don't know what officials were there; it was manager's train; think man's name was Irving; Duncan was one of the men who carried her home; no physician arrived before she was taken away; think accident happened about quarter to 12; it was Friday, the 10th day of June; had no more measurements; train was slowing down when he saw it; body was lying on back; regular train went down a few minutes before the special spoken of; whistle may have been blown and bell rung would not hear it in shop; when stopped it was about 11-2 cars west of Green's shop.

Mrs. Dunnett next gave evidence. The train was stopped about 11-2 cars west of Green's shop; accident happened west of Green's shop; her house is on corner just across road; was in the back yard, outside; heard whistle; it was blowing all the time; didn't notice bell ringing; whistle blowing and someone calling drew her attention; engine almost upon the person when whistle was blown; think three or four of the train hands were there; think one was engineer; noticed once or so when bell was not ringing; train going pretty fast at noon; could see train coming round curve about 100 yards or so; train would be almost on one when seen; heard train whistle before accident happened; it was not the passenger train.

Mr. Conroy, sworn, said: Was on Park street on June 10th; was coming south on Park; east of Macdonald; saw deceased before she was struck; she was walking south; he was driving; heard train whistle the first time when about 25 feet from deceased; party caused him to notice particularly by saying the lady would be killed; whistle blew before that; she was struck immediately; I am 17 years of age; seen old lady after she was struck; saw where train stopped; train was going at good speed; might be going about 20 miles an hour; would not say it was going more than 10; had to look around with back to train. Train was near the crossing, heard it whistle several times. Mrs. Delaney was between us and train.

Orville King, sworn: Am 13, going on 14 years old; was on corner of McDonald and Dowlin streets, did not see the accident.

Borland Pierson, sworn: Am 11 years old past; was on Donegal street bridge, could see place distinctly; was looking at train, it was going pretty fast; saw Mrs. Delaney on walk; was about yard and one-half from track north of it; heard the whistle; saw the woman hit by engine; was about centre of track when struck; she was thrown; saw five men carrying her home; didn't hear whistle blow until he saw Mrs. Delaney a yard and one-half from train; saw first train go down about 5 or 10 minutes before.

John Watson, sworn, said: Worked for the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co.; special was probably 3 or four minutes after the regular train; trains coming around curve would be 200 or 300 feet apart; was going at a pretty good rate of speed; never slacken until they come near the moulding shop; would be going about 30 miles an hour; took her about a minute to reach the spot from curve; didn't see the accident; sometimes train whistles and sometimes she does not; couldn't say what speed train was coming.

John Jenkins was the next witness. Was not there when the accident happened; saw men carrying her off; didn't see regular train; can't say how special was running; did not hear whistle nor bell; boy came and said there was an accident; Baker was there; when he got there, there ly to hear the whistles or bells; was a big crowd; wouldn't be paying attention and wouldn't be likewas living on Donegal street about 9 years; trains go at a good rate of speed; they don't slacken until they reach Hamilton's foundry.

The evidence stopped here, and the further hearing of the case was adjourned until the evening of the 24th inst, at the same hour and same place.

W. W. Pope, of Belleville, solicitor for the G.T.R., watched the case for the Company; R. E. Wood, for the Crown, and D. O'Connell, on behalf of the family.

RUSSIA MUST SOON SUE FOR PEACE FURTHER FIGHTING HOPELESS.

Opinion of British Critics That the War may Terminate After the Fall of Port Arthur

The Destruction of the Russian Ships will Seal the Fall of Her Hopes

Religious Fanatics Keep up a cry for the Czar to Lead His Armies

London, June 15.—The fall of Port Arthur and the destruction of the remaining ships in that harbor will put an end to Russia's hopes of success in the far east. There seems to be no succour in sight to ward off the awful calamity that is impending. That this is realised in St. Petersburg and throughout the world, is evident. The Japanese are slowly but surely a dvancing on the doomed city. The statements that appear in print, to the effec: that the bottled Russian squadron will make a dash for the open sea, is all nonsense. Not only does it appear that the channel is completely blocked for the passage of large ships from the inner harbour to the outer waters, but the Japanese have planted hundreds of deadly mines further out in the roadsteads, over which the Russian vessels must pass. So that it may be taken for granted that with the fall of Port Arthur goes the cream of the Russian navy. The victorious Japanese will then, no doubt, turn their united strength against Vladivostock where the remainder of the Czar's navy lies concealed. The destruction of these vessels and capture of that city will be a comparatively easy matter compared with Port Arthur. Just what will then happen it is difficult to say. A leading British critic thinks that Russia will not longer continue the hopeless struggle, but will offer terms. This will probably be done through one of the great powers.

THE CZAR TO LEAD.

Religious Fanatics Keep Up a Cry For the Czar to Go East,

St. Petersburg, June 15.—Religious fanatics have now taken up the cry that "Nicholas should go to the front and change defeat to victory." They back up their pleadings by a prophecy discovered in the writings of St. Seraphin, the monk whose body is preserved at Sarov, though many centuries dead. St. Seraphin is supposed to have said, "One year after my bones have been moved a terrible war will occur bringing much distress over Russia. Defeat will cling to our flag until the Czar himself enters the field. Then I will accompany him in the spirit and lead Russia to victory." It will be remembered that the bones of St. Seraphin were brought to a new resting place last summer.

CHINESE BANDITS.

Russia Will Try to Bribe Them to Her Side.

St. Petersburg, June 15.—General Butjanoff openly advises the government to make terms with the Chinese bandits and offer them more money for the protection of the Siberian road than they can possibly earn by destroying and attacking Russian property. "They do not care a rap for politics," he says, "all they want is money."

THE LAST TRAIN.

How the Ammunition Train Got Into Port Arthur.

Liao Yang, June 15.—Your correspondent helped to escort an ammunition train to Port Arthur, the last that went and was returned here from Kin Chou, after a short talk with General Fork. The train arrived from Mukden early in the morning and the military authorities at once asked for volunteers to help escort it to Port Arthur. "We must get it there this morning or all will be lost," said the commander of the town.

Two Russian lieutenants responded and as one of them was a friend of your correspondent I was permitted to go along. We started on a hand car with an electric motor, furnished with signal apparatus and the understanding was that the moment we espied traces of the enemy we signal to the train, following at a distance of 500 paces. The train consisted of 25 cars and was drawn by three powerful locomotives. Horsemen had preceded us, having a start of five miles; but we soon got ahead of them. We kept a good lookout and occasionally dismounted, climbed hills and telegraph poles to hover the neighborhood with our field glasses. Suddenly there was a faint cloud ahead. We concluded to advance a little further and then signal and some anxious minutes passed. But as we came nearer our apprehensions vanished; the dust was caused by a patrol of Cossacks sent towards us from Kin Chou by General Fork.

The commander ordered us to hoist hurry signals and within a minute's time we received answer that the train was now going ahead full speed. So all danger was passed and we continued to journey in hilarious spirits. Think of it, a single bomb would have sufficed to send the whole train skyward inclusive of the convoy of 300 sharpshooters.

General Fock and the staff were on the platform in Kin Chou. They gave us a glorious reception and a fine breakfast, which was fully appreciated, I assure you.

"Now we have enough ammunition of every kind to defend Port Arthur," said General Fock as the train drew into the station. "Our magazines will be replenished to the last crevice. We are prepared for any emergency now."

Half an hour later we returned to Liao Yang on the locomotive.

DUE TO POLES.

Liao Yang, June 15.—I hear on good authority that General Kuropatkin attributes the nonsuccess of his army to the great admixture of Polish soldiers. Thirty per cent. of the Russian troops at the front are Poles and every one of them hates and loathes Russia. As a consequence they seek only for opportunity to throw the lines into disorder and give themselves up as prisoners.

WOMAN THREW DEADLY FLUID

Drenched a Parisian Couple Seated in a Cafe

HUSBAND WAS WICKED

A Sensation Created on Paris Boulevard by a Frantic Wife

Paris, June 15.—An extraordinary vitrol outrage took place this week on the terrace of a cafe at Asnieres. The cafe, which stands close to the Paris tramway, was crowded with people, many of whom were waiting their turn for a place in the tram car.

Suddenly a handsome and well-dressed young woman flung out her arm with a wide sweep and sprinkled the contents of a quart bottle vitriol over a man and woman sitting at one of the tables. Her aim was so comprehensive that no fewer than nineteen persons were seriously injured, and the screams of pain that ensued created a panic.

On the arrival of the police it was discovered that the vitriol thrower was a young married woman named Panerot, aged 24. Her husband, who is three years older, had deserted her and three-year-old son for another woman, and she had discovered them at the cafe.

Hoping to play upon her husband's feelings, she had presented her son to him, imploring him to return to her. The man refused and pushed his little son away when he held out his little arms towards his father.

The woman who was with the father, a widow of over 40, made use of an insulting expression, whereupon the infuriated wife drew the bottle of vitriol from her dress and dashed the contents over the couple.

The widow was blinded in both eyes, the husband seriously injured, while the little son was also terribly disfigured by some of the contents of the bottle which fell upon him. Nearly everyone in the vicinity received some of the vitriol, and nineteen persons in all had to be conveyed to a neighboring hospital.

NEGROES MAKING TROURLE

American Church Interference in Africa Resented by Natal's Premier

Durban, Natal, June 13.—Premier Sutton, referring in the legislature to reports that the Ethiopian church was striving to provoke a native revolt, said that no actual trouble had been proved, but that the interference by representatives of an American negro church in promoting the Ethiopian movement might become an international question. The government was entirely agreed that such persons ought to be excluded from the colony.

FATHER KILLED HIS OWN SON

Terrible Tragedy Over a Sum of Money

BOTH MEN WELL KNOWN

Desperate Fight in a Bar Room Between Father and Son

Glace Bay, N.S., June 15.—As a result of a row Saturday night, John McRae lies dead from blows inflicted by his son, Jack McRae. As far as can be learned, the particulars are as follows: The elder McRae, about a week ago, left twenty dollars in his sons keeping and Saturday night went into the bar and demanded it back. The demand was refused and a quarrel at once ensued and for some minutes both men, of giant physique, fought each other from one end of the bar room to the other. Archie McOdrum, one of those present, interfered, but received such severe blows at the hands of Jack McRae, that he desisted. After a few minutes, father and son fought once more. Police Officer Morris, who was passing by, attracted by the gathering crowd and the commotion outside, endeavored to effect an entrance but found all the doors locked. Going away, he informed Chief of Police Ronald McDonald, and they went to the spot and effected an entrance. McRae was standing over his father apparently trying to restore him to consciousness. He was at once placed under arrest, together with all persons inside the building. A pool of blood at one end of the bar room, bloodstains on the floor and wall indicated the sanguinary nature of the struggle. According to the story generally received, the older man was struck down and jumped upon. All attempts to save the dying man failed. The McRaes belong to Southport just opposite Charlottetown, P. E. I. Jack came here four years ago and for some time worked as a carpenter, then went into the liquor business. The older man had a good farm in Prince Edward Island, but has generally followed work as a ship carpenter. When in liquor he was quarrelsome. His high cheek bones, bull dog jaw and powerful form justified the sobriquet of "Bully" McRae, which he earned by many a fight in Charlottetown. Jack is a man six feet in height and magnificently proportioned. He now feels his position keenly. For the past three years he has conducted a large liquor business here. A coroner's inquest will be held here to-night and the facts will be better brought out as the witnesses are now unwilling to discuss the matter.

AN INTERESTING SOCIAL EVENT

Miss Agnes Barnett Married to Dr. J. E. Lundy at Arnprior

Another interesting and pretty wedding was solemnized at Arnprior on Wednesday, June 8th, when Miss Agnes D. Barnett was joined in wedlock to Dr. J. E. Lundy, of Portage la Prairie, Man. The bride was very handsomely gowned in white silk chiffon over white silk, and she carried a bouquet of cream roses. The bride is a daughter of Mr. W. B. Barnett, of that town, and sister of Mrs. W. B. Loch, of Peterborough.

The bridesmaid was Miss May Barnett, whose costume was white silk organdie, over pink silk and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Dr. Julian Klotz, of Ottawa, was best man.

The bride was given away by her father, the officiating clergyman being Rural Dean Styles. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Styles. The church was handsomely decorated with palms and cut flowers.

The bride's travelling costume was of navy blue broad cloth. The presents received were costly and numerous. The groom's present to the bride being a gold watch set with diamonds and to the bridesmaid a pearl crescent.

Their trip is an extended one and includes besides other places a visit to the World's Fair at St. Louis.

Decoration Day

The annual decoration service of Otonabee and Peterborough Lodges I.O.O.F., will be held next Thursday afternoon, June 16th. The brethren are requested to meet at 1.45 sharp at Central Park, each to provide himself with a hand bouquet, and to wear a white tie and white gloves. The brethren will proceed in a body, headed by the 57th Regiment Band, from the Park to Little Lake cemetery, where they will decorate the graves of deceased members, after which appropriate speeches will be delivered by four ministers.

Friends bringing flowers are requested to leave them at Nugent's drug store on Thursday morning if possible. 24.

A PROMINENT MINING MAN IN TOWN.

Mr. Dan Manley, President Cripple Creek Company Here

The Times had a pleasant call yesterday from Mr. Dan Hanley, President and Manager of the Cripple Creek Gold Mining Company, who is spending a few days in town in establishing an agency of the Company in town. Mr. Hanley is one of the prominent mining men of that great mining centre, having lived for forty years in the Cripple Creek District. When it is known that upwards of $25,000,000 in gold has been taken from the ground at Cripple Creek within a radius of five square miles, within a year, one can form some idea of the immense mineral wealth of the country. Mr. Hanley, whose company is represented by Thos. Patterson & Co., has mining privileges covering over 500 acres under the city of Cripple Creek, which is enormously rich. Investors will double their money many times in this proposition, in the very near future.

Mr. Hanley, in company with Ald. McWilliams and one or two other gentlemen, was taken for a drive through the town, visiting the lift locks and other places of interest. He is delighted with Canada, particularly Peterborough, which he thinks is a city of marvellous beauty and great possibilities for the future.

INFORMATION WANTED

Chief of Police Ruzel received the following communication yesterday:

June 13, 1904.

84 Peter street, Toronto,

Dear Sir,—Can you oblige me by giving me any information about two families who emigrated to Canada from Scotland many years ago. Andrew Sully was one, and his sister, married to a Mr. Grant, the other. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant, (Harry Robert by name) came over to England on a friendly visit to his relatives about the year 1870, and to me is naturally anxious to find them ford, living at that time in Whitehaven, Cumberland, England. If you can give me any information about them I would be greatly obliged, as I married Mary Dickie, who was grand niece of the old man Sully, also of Mrs. Grant, his sister. Having come over here to live, my wife his aged aunt, Mrs. Mary Rather out, but is only able to remember

CIVIC HOLIDAY WILL BE 3RD THURSDAY IN AUGUST

Town Council Last Night Rescinded their Resolution of Last Meeting--Half Holidays on Decoration Day and August 1st.

At a special meeting of the Town Council held last night Civic Holiday was again changed back to the old date, the third Thursday in August. This was done at the request of deputations from the two lodges of the Oddfellows and the Canadian Order of Foresters, who pointed out that arrangements had already been perfected by them for excursions on the third Thursday in August as heretofore, and it would be impossible to withdraw now without considerable financial loss. It was generally conceded, however, that a change is desirable, owing to Civic Holiday and Labor Day coming so close together, but the question of fixing on a permanent date for future years by bylaw was left in abeyance. A half holiday will also be proclaimed for Decoration Day, and another half holiday on the first of August, when it was agreed the Council the Ottawa Foot Guards will visit here, whether that day is Civic Holiday or not.

W. S. Robertson, on behalf of Otonabee Lodge, Oddfellows, addressed the Council, and asked that the date of Civic Holiday be not changed this year, as they had already arranged for their annual excursion to take place the third Thursday in August. For many years they have arranged for their annual holiday as early as the month of March. The lodge is not opposed to the Council taking steps to change the holiday for future years. He quoted Col. Miller as saying that it made no difference to the 57th Regiment or the Ottawa Foot Guards whether Civic Holiday was held on the first Monday in August or not; the Ottawa Regiment will come here then anyway. The change this year would be a hardship to Otonabee Lodge, as arrangements have gone too far for withdrawal.

Mr. Wm. Hill, representing Peterborough Lodge Oddfellows, also used the same arguments as Mr. Robertson for the change not coming into effect this year. He did not approve of our Civic Holiday being held on the same day as that of Toronto and would cause a congestion of railway transportation.

Mr. Thos. Lang addressed the Council in the interests of Court Littlejohn, Canadian Order of Foresters, and pointed out that they had already arranged for their annual excursion to Niagara Falls, and the guarantee had also been deposited and even the tickets printed.

Mr. F. D. Kerr opposed changing the date back this year to the third

How Thoughts Are Made

A battery must have vitriol to act upon the other things and produce electricity.

A Brain is made of Water, Fat, Albumen and Phosphate of Potash.

It must have Phosphate of Potash to act on the other things to make thinking possible.

A normal Brain shows 6 per cent of Phosphates while the brain of an insane person shows less, in one case only 2¼ per cent. This proves Brain power and Nerve-force depend upon the quantity of Phosphate of Potash the system assimilates from food.

Certain parts of Wheat and Barley contain these elements in their most effective form but many cannot digest enough to feed a busy Brain up to its full working capacity, nor can they digest the dead Phosphate of Potash taken from the drug store. (NOTE—White Flour does not contain these Phosphates, because they grow in the dark parts of wheat which the miller leaves out because of its color. This explains why white flour is useless to restore Brain and Nerves.)

In GRAPE-NUTS food these elements are presented in the most liberal proportion and in such form any one can digest and assimilate them.

Government analysis proves GRAPE-NUTS thirteen times readier for assimilation than oatmeal, and three times more digestible than the average wheat food. This proves the valuable food elements of GRAPE-NUTS are ready to change into Brain-power and Nerve-force with least delay and least tax on Liver and other organs.

Also it explains why GRAPE-NUTS is acknowledged the most scientific Brain and Nerve food in existence, which can be proved by trial.

Copy of this great Government Food Test sent free by Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich., largest makers of Pure Foods in the World.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

YOU PAY ONLY IF CURED.

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free. Write for It This Very Day.

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates and diplomas from medical colleges and state boards of medical examiners, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes, so that every man who reads this notice may have the benefit of it.

DR. S. GOLDBERG,
The Possessor of 14 Diplomas and Certificates, Who Wants No Money That He Does Not Earn.

Realizing the ability to do so he says, Dr. Goldberg has decided, until the method becomes generally known to all men who have weakness, lost power, nervousness, lack of development, blood poison, kidney and bladder troubles, rupture, varicocele, piles, stricture, contracted habits, unfavorable symptoms before marriage, etc., to send the method to any man who will write him for it. He wants all to try it at his own home, and pay for it only if cured. He has such confidence in it that he will send the complete treatment on approval, and will not ask for a penny in advance. He does not want any man's money unless he cures him, and does not want any man to believe anything but the strictest honesty on the part of a physician who is desirous of curing disease and winning confidence. He is the only physician who has ever made such an offer, and the only one who has ever been able to do so. Any man who is weak should write him today for his free book and full particulars of his offer, sent in plain envelope. Write him today, as he may not advertise long.

ETHIOPIANISM

Africa has a total population, according to the most recent estimates of about 175,000,000. More than ninety-nine per cent. of these are natives. European colonisation has proceeded very slowly except in Algeria and in the British colonies of South Africa. Indeed, in the greater part of the continent colonisation may be described as thus far a total failure. Meanwhile the natives are increasing rapidly in numbers, for they no longer are decimated by continuous inter-tribal wars and by the slave trade.

These facts bring out into sharp relief the character of the problems that the future may perhaps present to the European masters of the continent. A significant little hint of what may happen is indeed already to be found in a recent movement among the natives, which goes under the name of Ethiopianism.

It seems that a number of negroes from the United States have appeared among some of the tribes in South Africa, nominally as missionaries or religion, but actually as propagandists for an "Africa for the native races" movement. In one "Methodist Episcopal church" in Natal it was found that members were admitted only by secret ballot, and a Wesleyan conference lately held at Durban thought it necessary to pass resolutions deploring the activity of the Ethiopian leaders.

The natives are said to be ripe for such a movement, partly because they are still stirred by the unrest that naturally was excited in their breasts as they watched the Boer war, partly because of acute native tribal disputes, and partly because of the tales that came to them from the scene of the uprising in German Southwest Africa.

It should not be thought that Ethiopianism as it now presents itself portends any serious African trouble for the immediate future. A little firm and judicious pressure from the rulers of the land will doubtless bring the phenomenon to an end. But inasmuch as "the black man is with us and will remain"—which is the way the London Times states the case—the movement cannot be disregarded as one of the straws significant of the direction of the wind whenever speculations on the future of the continent are in order.

THE GIBRALTAR OF THE EAST

Of course the Japanese will keep Port Arthur after the war. It would be madness to give it up after two bloody struggles to capture it. To give it up would invite a third struggle in the near future. The Japanese will not invite this blunder a second time. We do not think that any formidable alliance of European powers will ask them to do it. In the light of history, it will be impossible to repeat the monstrous impudence of 1895. If it should be repeated, we think no British minister can be found capable of repeating the monstrous pantomimery of Lord Salisbury at that time.

England has frankly said that nothing is gained by leaving the gallant little nation in the lurch. This only puts off the necessity of doing an unwelcome duty to civilization until the Japanese have had time to organize new armies and build new battleships. The nation is struggling for bare existence. Port Arthur in Russian or hostile hands is a menace to its existence. Painful experience proves that the only way to keep it out of Russian or hostile hands is to keep it in Japanese hands. We suspect that Japan will make this the first condition of peace.

Conquered Russia cannot resist her, if any other power of Europe resents by force England is bound by treaty to come to the aid of Japan. At the worst, the nation will be confronted by the alternatives of last winter a quick and gallant national extinction fighting against fatal odds to hold what she has won, or slow strangling by a stealthy enemy lying in wait in the surrendered fortress. It is impossible to doubt which she will choose.

There will be no inconsistency with Japan's renunciation of territorial conquests in keeping Port Arthur. It is not territory, but a fortress, like Gibraltar and Malta. England has held Gibraltar for two hundred years to safeguard her sea power and protect her world affairs, while respecting the territory and independence of Spain. Japan will use Port Arthur not only to safeguard her sea power and protect her island empire from attack but to maintain the integrity of China against all attack and to guarantee the open door for trade to all nations. It will be not only a just prize of war, but a secure guaranty of peace.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS.

It has always been the favorite theory that when Asiatics accomplish anything striking it must be done under the leadership of a European, but the Japanese have upset all these theories. They have shown that skill in handling a fleet or an army is not the exclusive perquisite of the white man. Certainly no European naval officer could have done better work than Togo has done at Port Arthur, nor could any army commander have surpassed Kuroki in his march across the Yalu or done finer work than Oku in his capture of Kin Chou and his swift advance upon Port Arthur.

The Tibetans brought leather guns and Red Idol Gorge, to compete with magazine rifles and gatlings. They began to fire as soon as the troops came in sight and persevered through a snowstorm that lasted an hour. If the balls had hit they would have done their work as effectually as the best rifled ordnance. But "all the missiles fell short." Leather cannon were in use in Europe in the time of Gustavus Adolphus, who made great use of them, providing an extra supply before the battle of Leipsic, he silenced Tilly's artillery and won the day. Scotch soldiers returning home, when the religious troubles began, did not forget this useful invention. A son of the Earl of Haddington set up a foundry of leather guns for the equipment of the Covenanting army in 1639. At Newtonmoor they proved their value. The works raised by Charles to protect his passage of the river crumbled before them, and the English soldiers, delighted with the excuse, quietly walked away in different direction. But John Evelyn records a tradition that Henry VIII. used "greate leather'me guns" at the siege of Boulogne, in fact, the things themselves were shown in the Tower in his time. The Tibetans are two or three hundred years behind the age, that is all.

"The best time to stop a strike is a long time before you begin it, which is true, if it is Irish." Thus spoke Terence V. Powderly, former President of the Knights of Labor, at the annual banquet of the Shoe and Leather Association of Chicago, in a speech recently. "The labor leader who has the interest of his men at heart will fight the strike to the last ditch," continued Mr. Powderly, "for of all the costly, cumbrous, wasteful and ruinous methods of settling a difficulty in labor matters, the strike and lockout are the worst. Let the labor union incorporate. The union has nothing to fear from incorporation, there is nothing the law can teach under 'incorporation' that it can't teach now."

This Weather Breeds Fever and Pneumonia

Thousands of Sick People are Seeking Admittance to Overcrowded Hospitals Take Warning and Keep Up Your Strength.

A tour of the hospitals in the large Canadian cities shows a surprising number suffering from different complaints brought on by the present unhealthy weather.

The winds are full of searching dampness and loaded with myriads of germs just waiting for a favorable opportunity to fly down your throat. If your vitality is low these germs are sure to break out in some malignant disease.

To avoid sickness you must keep up your strength. Increase your appetite. Get as much nourishment into the blood as possible. Store up a reserve of vigor.

How can it be done? Very easily with Ferrozone which revitalizes all the functions of the body, stimulates the formation of pure, rich blood, invigorates digestion and renews the endurance of the whole system.

You can ward of sickness and fight disease with Ferrozone because it is a food tonic that supplies building material for exhausted tissues. This assures firm, hard, flesh, strong sinew and muscle—in short Ferrozone builds up your system to such a vigorous healthy state that sickness is almost impossible.

If you feel the need of a bracing tonic, something that will awaken your dormant energies and send a stream of strong healthy blood dancing through your veins. Try Ferrozone and see how quickly you will improve and gain in weight, health and spirits.

Mrs. P. C. Spencer, of Beverly, P. O., writes: "About a year ago I was greatly run down. I suffered from severe headaches and felt so completely worn out and distressed that I thought I must have walking typhoid. My appetite was poor and my color was pallid, indicating that my blood was too thin. I found Ferrozone just what I needed. It increased my appetite and made me stronger. The feeling of languidness disappeared. After using Ferrozone a few weeks I felt like a new woman. It made me as strong and healthy. No medicine did me so much good as Ferrozone."

For better to take Ferrozone than let your health run down. Get it today. Look out for substitutes and insist on having nothing but Ferrozone. Price 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50, at all druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

Hastings Star. A wedding of much interest was solemnized at St. Mary's church, Hastings, on Wednesday, June 1st, when Mr. Jas. Convey, of Percy Township, was married to Miss Ellen Coughlan, daughter of the late Timothy Coughlan. Rev. P. J. McGuire officiated, and was assisted by Rev. J. O'Brien, of Peterborough. The bride was becomingly attired in a handsome travelling costume of brown cloth. She was attended by Miss Catherine Ford of Niagara Falls, and Mr. Jas. O'Reilly efficiently performed the duties of groomsman. The sacred edifice was well filled with friends of bride and groom. The ceremony over, the bridal party repaired to the residence of the bride's brother Mr. J. Coughlan, where a tempting dejeneur was served. After receiving sincere congratulations and best wishes, Mr. and Mrs. Convey left on the C. P. R. noon train, Norwood, for Montreal and other points east on their wedding trip. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents.

The Bill Introduced Providing for Buying Twenty-Eight Warships.

Rio Janeiro, June 14.—A bill providing for the reorganization of the Brazilian navy was introduced in congress to-day. It provides for the purchase of twenty-eight warships, including three ironclads and three armored cruisers. The bill contains an expression of opinion to the effect that the vessels should be constructed in British yards.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a numbea of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being located on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property ranging from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern mach nery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men o integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is wel in the lead in that line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups; namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 30 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 570 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflict as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented.

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78½ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented.

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory	752½ acres
" " Mill and building sites	55 "
" " Timber properties	90 "
Total	903½ acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

Complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government from which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

Total cost of development to date, present management,	$53,000.00
" " " " former owners -	18,000.00
" " surface improvements, buildings, saw mill plant, horses, wagons, ore cars, track, tools, etc. -	17,000.00
" " Machinery paid for and to be installed -	6,000.00
	$90,000.00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $26,000.00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet. We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 200 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver. These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built.

In the meantime only the high grade Smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will aid us materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905, and be continuous thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3.50 to $4.00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our stockholders. These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments. By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18.00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of production is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,
ROBERT HARRISON,

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

come for me."

So she signified her willingness to depart, and early one bright July morning, she left, while the singing birds from the treetops, the summer air from the Canada hills, and, more than all, a warning voice within her bade her "Tarry yet a little, stay till the sun was set," for far out in the country and many miles away a train was thundering on. It would reach the city at nightfall, and among its jaded passengers was a worn and weary man. Hopeless, almost aimless now, he would come, and why he came he scarcely knew. "She would not be there so far from home," he was sure of that, but he was coming for the sake of what he hoped and feared, when last he trod those streets. Listlessly he entered the same hotel, from whose windows for five long days a fair young face had looked for him. Listlessly he registered his name, then carelessly turned the leaves backward—backward—backward still, till only one remained between his hand and the page bearing date five days before. He paused and was about to move away, when a sudden breeze from the open window turned the remaining leaf, and his eye caught the name, not of Maggie Miller, but of "Henry Warner, lady and sister."

Thus it stood, and thus he repeated it to himself, dwelling upon the last word sister, as if to him it had another meaning. He had heard from Madam Conway that neither Henry Warner nor Rose had a sister, but she might be mistaken, probably she was, and dismissing the subject from his mind, he walked away. Still the names haunted him, and thinking at last that if Mr. Warner were now in Montreal he would like to see him, he returned to the office, asking the clerk if the occupants of Nos. — were there still.

"Left this morning for the Falls," was the laconic answer, and without knowing why he should particularly wish to do so, Mr. Carrollton resolved to follow them.

He would as soon be at the Falls as at Montreal, he thought. Accordingly he left the next morning for Niagara, taking the shortest route by river and lake, and arriving there on the evening of the second day after his departure from the city. But nowhere could a trace be found of Henry Warner, and determining now to wait until he came, Mr. Carrollton took rooms at the International, where after a day or two, worn out with travel, excitement and hope deferred, he became severely indisposed, and took to his bed, forgetting entirely both Henry Warner and the sister, whose name he had seen upon the hotel register. Thoughts of Maggie Miller, however, were constantly in his mind, and whether waking or asleep he saw always her face, sometimes radiant with healthful beauty, as when he first beheld her, and again pale, troubled and sad, as when he saw her last.

"Oh, shall I ever find her?" he would sometimes say, as in the dim twilight he lay listening to the noisy hum which came up from the public room below.

And once, as he lay there thus, he dreamed, and in his dreams there came through the open window a clear, silvery voice, breathing the loved name of Maggie. Again he heard it on the stairs, then little tripping feet went past his door, followed by a slow, languid tread, and with a nervous start the sick man awoke. The day had been cloudy and dark, but the rain was over now, and the room was full of sunshine, sunshine dancing on the walls, sunshine glimmering on the floor, sunshine everywhere. Insensibly, too, there stole over Mr. Carrollton's senses a feeling of quiet, of rest, and he slept ere long again, dreaming this time that Margaret was there.

Yes, Margaret was there—there, beneath the same roof which sheltered him, and the same sunshine which filled his room with light had bathed her white brow, as leaning from her window she listened for the roar of the falling water. They had lingered on their way, stopping at the Thousand Isles, for Margaret would have it so; but they had come at last, and the tripping footsteps in the hall, the silvery voice upon the stairs, was that of the golden-haired Rose, who watched over Margaret with all a sister's love and a mother's care. The frequent jokes of the fun-loving Henry, too, were not without their good effects, and Margaret was better now than she had been for many weeks.

"I can rest here," she said, and a faint color came to her cheeks, making her look more like herself than she had done before since that night of sorrow in the woods.

And so three days went by, and Mr. Carrollton, on his weary bed, dreamed not that the slender form, which sometimes through his half-closed door cast a shadow in his room, was that of her for whom he sought. The tripping footsteps, too, went often by, and a merry, childish voice, which reminded him of Maggie, rang through the spacious halls, until at last the sick man came to listen for that party as they passed. They were a merry party, he thought, a very merry party, and he pictured to himself her of the ringing voice; she was dark-eyed, he said, with braids of shining hair, and when, as they were passing once, he asked of his attendant if it were not as he had fancied, he felt a pang of disappointment at the answer, which was: "The girl the young gentleman hears so much has yellow curls and dark blue eyes."

"She is not like Maggie, then," he sighed, and when again he heard that voice a part of its music was gone. Still it cheered his solitude, and he listened for it again, just as he had done before.

Once, when he knew they were going out, he went to the window to see them, but the large strong flats and close carriage revealed no secret, and disappointed he turned away.

"It is useless to stay here longer," he said, "I must be about my work. I am able to leave and I will go to-morrow. But first I will visit the Falls once more. I may never see them again."

Accordingly, next morning after Margaret and Rose had left the house he came down the stairs, sprang into an open carriage, and was driven to Goat Island, which, until his illness, had been his favorite resort.

Beneath the tall forest trees which grow upon the island there is a rustic seat. Just on the brink of the river it stands, and the carriage road winds by. It is a comparatively retired spot, looking out upon the foaming water rushing so madly on. Here the weary often rest, here lovers sometimes come to be alone, and here Maggie Miller sat on that summer morning, living over again the past, which to her had been so bright, and musing sadly of the future, which would bring her she knew not what.

She had struggled to overcome her pride, nor deemed it longer a disgrace that she was not a Conway. Of Hagar, too, she often thought, pitying the poor old half-crazed woman who for her sake had borne so much. But not of her was she thinking now. Hagar was shriveled and bent, and old, while the image present in Margaret's mind was handsome, erect and young, like the gentleman riding by—the man whose carriage wheels, grinding into the gravelly road, attracted no attention. Too intent was she upon a shadow to heed aught else around, and she leaned against a tree, nor turned her head aside, as Arthur Carrollton went by!

A little further on, and out of Maggie's sight, a fairy figure was seated upon the grass, the flat was thrown aside, and her curls fell back from her upturned face as she spoke to Henry Warner. But the sentence was unfinished, for the carriage appeared in view, and with a woman's quick perception, Rose exclaims: "'Tis surely Arthur Carrollton!"

Starting to her feet, she sprang involuntarily forward to meet him, casting a rapid glance around for Margaret. He observed the movement, and knew that somewhere in the world he had seen that face before—those golden curls—those deep blue eyes—that childish form—they were not wholly unfamiliar. Who was she, and why did she advance toward him?

"Rose," said Henry, who would call her back, Rose!" and looking toward the speaker, Mr. Carrollton knew that Henry Warner and his bride were standing there before him.

In a moment he had joined them, and though he knew that Henry Warner had once loved Maggie Miller, he spoke of her without reserve, saying to Rose, when she asked if he were there for pleasure: "I am looking for Maggie Miller. A strange discovery has been made of late, and Margaret has left us."

"She is here—here with us," cried

EUROPEAN LINES INVADE BRITAIN

Are Now Making Bid for Scotch and Irish Emigrants

MORE ENGLISH COMMENT

The Yorkshire Observer Discusses Mr. Fielding's Tariff Proposals Some Bisley Matters

London, June 13.—The Yorkshire Observer, commenting on Fielding's budget, says: "If the Northwest Canger cent. more than at present, plus the wait margin for goods made 2,000 miles away rather than for the same section with the Peters target. The converted into the Cullen patent, made 5,000 miles away, that is their affair, and some machinery and hands will presumably shift halfway to please them. We, on the other hand, shall more freely continue to take our corn irrespective of distance, from the cheapest dumper of the same."

BIDDING FOR EMIGRANTS.

The Hamburg-American line is making a bid for emigrant traffic from Scotland. Emigrants must pay their own fare to Leith, where a steamer will take them to Hamburg to join the steamer for New York. The fare from Leith is £2. The same line is making the same bid for Irish emigrants. It is rumored that both the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines will call at Queenstown for passenger traffic.

NEW TARGETS AT BISLEY.

Major Peters' electrical target is to be used on the 200 yards range at the National Rifle Association meeting at Bisley. O. C. Cullen's ball-bearing rifle barrel is also to be used in connection with the Peters' target. The War Office has given orders to Woolwich that a number of old barrels be converted into the Cullen patent.

Late James Hamilton, Bobraygeon.

Local steamboat men will read with deep regret the following item from this week's Hob. Independent: Capt. James Hamilton, after an illness extending over two years, calmly drifted hence on Tuesday morning. Of quiet and obliging disposition, he has always been very popular with the public. Last summer he was in command of the Sir Ogemah, and it was feared that he had sailed his last boat. He was very weak all winter, and a few weeks ago was confined to his bed. Though nursed and cared for with the greatest attention by his good wife, he gradually sank. Tuesday morning about daylight he was given his medicine, and went off into a sleep. His mooring were unfastened, the stream of Time caught his bow, and he noiselessly and peacefully drifted across the river. He leaves a wife and three daughters. The funeral was largely attended on Wednesday, the boat hands and millmen of Little Bob being largely represented.

A RARE CHANCE

FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.
BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

CRIPPLE CREEK ENTERPRISE GOLD MINING COMPANY

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details. The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion, Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

St. Louis Gold Mining Co

Property includes six full claims, with a 38 foot ore body extending across 3200 feet of this property, determined by a tunnel 500 feet and open cuts and shafts every one in ore. Why does St. Louis Gold Mining Co. offer the investor a chance for a money.

1. Do you know that its title is free and clear?
2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.
10. Now, therefore avail yourself of the opportunity to investigate before investing by addressing

Germany and Britain May be Next War.

The Prominent Critics See Two Countries in Death Struggle.

London, June 14.—Mr. H. W. Wilson, the well-known writer on naval affairs, in an article in The National Review, says the "the central and dominating fact o. the period through which we are passing is the hostility of Germany to England. In German calculations England has taken the place that France occupied before 1870, and England, he thinks, would be as unwise as France was if she did not take note of the fact and shape her military policy accordingly. France was taken unprepared, and so may England be if she does not accept the warning which many concurring circumstances plainly give. He points to the successive enlargements of the German navy, and to the quite recent demand for an extension of the very liberal programme of 1900 which provided for a navy of 38 battleships, with 20 large and 35 small cruiser. At the present Germany has a squadron concentrated near Kiel sufficiently strong to overpower the English home squadron unless it were promptly reinforced by the Channel fleet. What can be done by an alert and forehanded enemy has been most impressively shown by the Japanese attack on Port Arthur. Could the home squadron be destroyed or crippled the landing of several German army corps on the east coast of England would be comparatively easy. Not less than eight army corps, some 400,000 men in all, are in continual readiness near Emden, only 300 miles from either Hull or Newcastle — a considerably shorter distance than that between Sasebo, the starting point of the Japanese fleet and Port Arthur.

These are unpleasant reflections adds the News, and, possibly, they do injustice to the intentions and aims of Germany; yet it cannot be doubted that the German mind has been very much preoccupied of late years with the thought of England's rivalry, and of the obstacles which England might throw in the way of German expansion. Moreover, there has been no concealment of the fact that Germany has it in view to contest in years to come, if not by actual conflict, at least by a display of force, England's supremacy at sea. Dr Emil Reich, the Hungarian writer, who has come into great prominence within a few years as a publicist, says, in a recent article in the Fortnightly Review, that "there can be no doubt that Germany is arming herself with patient calculating and unbroken perseverance for the day when she shall at last feel ready to throw down the gauntlet of defiance in the face of England."

What the probabilities are of Germany's realizing her great ambitions is the question which Dr. Reich undertakes to discuss. The great force, he says, which makes more German successes in her intellectuality Germany probably leads Europe in the power of thinking out problems. At the same time, the material difficulties in her way are great. She entertains ideas of Pan-Germanism, but these ideas find little favor with the Germans of the Austrian Empire. There is a party, moreover, within her own borders, the Socialists, whose numbers are increasing year by year, and who look with great disfavor on the constantly increasing expenditure on armaments. Then there is France to be considered; the lost provinces have not been forgotten; and in attempting any enterprise against another nation Germany would have to feel very sure that France would not seize the opportunity to attempt a rectification of her eastern frontier. South American looks very tempting as a field for colonization, but, for good or evil, the Monroe doctrine stands in the way of any acquisition of territory in that quarter. On the whole though he essays to write on Germany's future, Dr. Reich seems extremely uncertain what that future is to be. He would like the country of Goethe and Lessing and Kant to "have a show," but he seems to see difficulties on every side. He admits the terrible "overbureaucratization" of Germany, and points to the fact that within the last thirty years the country has, with the exception of Bismarck, not produced "a single great political personality."

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to wit:—The Smuggler, Gangem, Black Jack, Star and Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

REV. J. BASTOW, M. A. TENDERED RESIGNATION

AS PASTOR OF MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH

His Resignation was Accepted with Very Great Reluctance- Has Accepted a Call to Renfrew

At the close of Sunday morning's service at the Murray street Baptist church there was an important meeting of the members of the congregation held, at which Rev. Mr. Bastow, M.A., tendered his resignation as pastor of the church.

Dr Scott acted as chairman, and Mr. A. Martin, church clerk, read the following resignation, which intimated to the majority of the members of the congregation for the first time, that their pastor intended to leave them., and the intelligence was anything but pleasing -

Peterborough, June 12th, 1904.

To the Murray street Baptist church;

My Dear Brethren,—Five years ago the first of last February, I began to work with you as your pastor. In many ways the Lord has richly blessed our united labors. I have constantly and earnestly sought to know the will of the Lord, as to how I could best serve you, and have honestly tried to do that will to the best of my ability. You must be the judges as to the value, wisdom and efficacy of that service.

The co-operation you have rendered me in this work I have highly prized. It has been a source of great good cheer to me.

You have, too, shown great kindness to Mrs. Bastow and myself in our personal relations to you, and a sweet friendship has sprung up between us, which will be warmly cherished as long as life lasts.

I feel now however, that the strain of church work must be lightened, and, therefore, a change to me is very desirable. A new field of almost any kind would give me a chance for the needful ease and recuperation.

A hearty and unanimous call has been extended to me to become the pastor of the Baptist church at Renfrew, Ont. It has been wholly unsought by me. I knew nothing whatever of it. None of them had ever seen me. So the call seems to me specially to come from God. I accepted the call last Friday.

I therefore now offer you my resignation. I would like to be released from duty here July 31st, if that will suit your convenience. That would make my time of service here just five and one half years.

I am very desirous that the break in the pastorate may not in the least interfere with the unity and prosperity of the church.

That the richest of heaven's blessings may rest upon you all, and that you be divinely guided in the selection of a spiritual leader, and that the Great Shepherd and Bishop of our souls may at last gather us all into the Heavenly fold, is the earnest prayer of

Your affectionate Brother in Christ,
JONATHAN BASTOW.

As Mr. Bastow had already accepted a call to the Baptist church at Renfrew it was felt by the congregation that they could not do otherwise than accept his resignation, and it was with very great reluctance that it was accepted. Feeling reference to the sincere regret felt by all over the severance as pastor, was made by a number of the members.

The service rendered by Rev. Mr Bastow has been whole-hearted, and in all branches of the church great progress has been made.

Reference was also made regarding Mrs. Bastow, who has been an earnest, zealous and active worker, being assistant superintendent of the Sunday school, and her removal from town will leave a gap that will be hard to fill.

The church at Renfrew is a much smaller one than Murray street, and the salary will be considerably less. The call, however, is very hearty and unanimous, and the town is growing and very encouraging for Christian work.

Rev Mr. Bastow is confidently expected to lead the church forward in large and aggressive work. He will, undoubtedly, throw his whole heart into it, and he will have every reason to expect rich results. The church at Renfrew promises him their earnest co-operation.

The departure of Rev. Mr. Bastow from Peterborough will be regretted by none more keenly than by the ministers of the other churches in town, each of whom has entertained the kindliest feelings for him, and on every occasion when any of the town ministers occupied the pulpit of the Murray street church reference was made to the cordiality existing between them and Mr. Bastow. He will leave town with the heartiest wishes of success from the members of the Ministerial Association.

He has always been highly appreciated by all the other churches whenever he has appeared in their pulpits.

THE BOERS WILL GO TO KRUGER

To Prevent Cronje Leading Boer Veterans at St. Louis Fair

GEN. CRONJE IN POVERTY

And Was Accepting the St. Louis Contract to Earn a Living

Paris, June 14.—Members of the once active Boer societies of this city are planning to persuade General Cronje not to appear at the St. Louis Exposition, in command of the Boer veterans, who have been engaged to take part in mock fights. Since Cronje writes to the French press he has accepted this engagement because he is compelled to earn his bread, the leaders of the former Boer organizations propose to ask him to accept a subscription. They also plan to appeal to ex-President Kruger to come to the aid of his old friend and fellow soldier.

"If Kruger, who is rolling in money, permits the memory of Boer valour to be degraded by the proposed St. Louis spectacle," said M Paulat, former president of the Boer societies, "to a correspondent, his French friends cannot keep up their respect for the old president. The fulfillment of Cronje's contract must be prevented at all costs."

Dr. Leyds, former plenipotentiary of the Transvaal, is credited with the statement that Cronje will not accept charity, but that he should feel that any largesse from Kruger was merely restoration of part of the property he lost during the Transvaal war. Meantime a representative of the movement has gone to Mentone to see Kruger.

HAVE NO HOPE

Russians Soldiers Have no Heart in Present War

London, June 14.—Jaakoff Prelocker, editor of the Anglo-Russian and one of the most energetic champions of free Russia, is convinced that the Japanese will sooner or later capture Port Arthur and drive Kuropatkin out of Manchuria. "The chief reason for this, "said Mr. Prelocker to a correspondent, to-day, "is that the rank and file of the Russian forces do not want to fight. They have no heart for this war, no enthusiasm, no spirit. The same is true of many officers who condemn the Far Eastern policy of the government. From all along the Siberian Railway information comes that the troops European Russia arrive in a dejected state of mind, not soured and not reduced by

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals — the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 325 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death rate prior to 1900.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

Nine out of every ten men have been guilty of transgression against nature in their youth. Nature never excuses, no matter how young, thoughtless or ignorant he may be. The punishment and suffering corresponds with the crime. The only escape from its ruinous results is proper scientific treatment to counteract its effects.

The DRAINS, either by nightly losses, or secretly through the urine, must be stopped—the NERVES must be built up and invigorated, the blood must be purified, the SEXUAL ORGANS must be vitalized and developed, the BRAIN must be nourished. Our New Method Treatment provides all these requirements. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers disappear; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and sexual systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company

of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless y cially are interested, because on waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 20 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Co pany owns 9 000 feet on th e vein.

Ore running from $18 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $23.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 80 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary, Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

BRIGHTER DAYS FOR RUSSIA

Interesting View of Prospects by the London Spectator

THE FREEDOM OF THE CZAR

In Future They May Have About as Much Peace as New York Millionaires

London, June 11—A good index of the present state of affairs in Russia is given by to-day's announcement that the Russian ambassador and the whole staff of the Russian embassy begged to be excused from attending the state ball given at Buckingham Palace Friday night, on account of the profound anxiety through which their country is passing. There is no denying that the internal situation in Russia has almost an alarming look in the light of this morning's news. For the Czar and Czarina, English-hearted always have felt the keenest sympathy, which has been all the stronger because of the belief that the Czar was driven into the war by the official military cliques.

The Spectator to-day finds reason to believe that the governing group in Russia would prefer that General Kuropatkin should be defeated rather than that he should retreat beyond Lake Baikal, and make a long effort to recuperate.

This group is strongly persuaded that a dangerous movement in favor of a change of the government system in Russia will not commence until peace is made, the soldiery being discontented and the army has acknowledged itself defeated. The Czar himself is believed to be earnestly desirous of adopting, in the main, the proposals for which Alexander II., signed the decree on the very day of his assassination.

Under this scheme the Zemstvos, or county councils, would be permitted to send delegates to Moscow or St. Petersburg to form a kind of States-General, whose advice must always be sought and on questions of taxation always taken by an otherwise absolute Czar. It is believed that the Czar would guarantee this body freedom of speech and also concede a measure of freedom to the press.

"It may be years," says the Spectator, "before a Russian Czar can again wander about the quays of St. Petersburg as Nicholas I. was accustomed to do but at least he may be rendered as free from personal terrors as a New York millionaire and may surround himself with the reflection in all times of serious political action that his advisers are those who represent the people, not solely the choice of his own will."

London, June 11.—Sir Percy Girouard, who intended to resign the Commissionership of the Transvaal Railways, owing to criticism of of extravagance in his department, has now decided to put his back to the wall in consequence of the announcement that his position has become untenable.

The African World says; "The demand for Sir Percy Girouard's removal must be complied with sooner or later. Girouard is a brilliant soldier, but he has provided another illustration of the ancient truth that a man most capable in war is sometimes most capable in peace. When Girouard took up his civilian role he was as much out of his element as a fish out of water. Nobody realizes this more fully than himself. Many other branches of activity are open to him and in one of these we are sure he is yet destined to shine."

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 226 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $30,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of these in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

ESTABLISHED 1874

ENDOWMENTS AT LIFE RATES

HOW do the rates compare with those of other companies?

The rates are the same as the principal Canadian Companies charge for "Whole Life" and "Twenty Payment Life" policies

WHERE can these policies be secured?

From any agent of the LONDON LIFE.

WHEN do these policies become endowments and are the endowments guaranteed or estimated?

The policies mature as endowments at about expectation of life and are absolutely guaranteed.

WHAT kind of settlement does the LONDON LIFE give at the end of twenty years?

FIVE OPTIONS or methods of settlement are offered at the end of twenty years.

The guaranteed cash surrender is the largest in Canada for the premium paid.

WHAT options are given policy holders in case of lapse or surrender

The policy holder may select one of four options.

1st. PAID UP INSURANCE for reduced amounts payable as endowments at maturity period.

2nd. EXTENDED INSURANCE for a fixed number of years and months for full amount of policy less premiums and interest thereon unpaid.

3rd. CASH LOANS.

4th. CASH SURRENDER VALUES.

CATARRH

Don't Drug the Stomach — Breath Nature's Remedy, Catarrhozone Both Pleasant and Easy to Use. Guarantee of Cure goes with it.

Catarrhozone always cures because it reaches the source of the disease quickly and thoroughly. Its healing vapor penetrates the minutest air cells of the nasal passages, throat and lungs. It attacks the cause of the disease direct, and doesn't work in a round about way through the stomach.

The antiseptics in Catarrhozone kill the germs that cause catarrh. It clears the nostrils, cures headache and foul breath. It prevents droppings in the throat, allays inflammation. Catarrhozone now.

So certain is Catarrhozone to remove and cure that doctors, ministers and public speakers keep it as their standby for coughs, colds, catarrh and throat trouble. Because it lasts so long it is cheap, and as it is sure to cure even the poorest can afford to buy it.

Mrs. J. A. Morris, of Perth, Ont., writes, "I cannot withhold my testimony for Catarrhozone. It cured my daughter of chronic catarrh and I therefore heartily recommend it to all sufferers. No house should be without Catarrhozone."

Why not use Catarrhozone? It cures colds in a few hours, and no case of catarrh can withstand it. Catarrhozone cures by the inhalation of medicated air which goes to all parts of the lungs, throat and breathing organs. A pleasant, certain, quick cure follows the use of Catarrhozone, which is guaranteed under all conditions to cure catarrh in any part of the system.

Two months' treatment, hard rubber inhaler and extra liquid costs only one dollar; sample size 25c. Sold by all druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn., U.S.A. Ormation, heals sore spots and running at the nose.

Black Flies are Dangerous

Reports from Buckhorn say the little black flies in that neighborhood are unusually bothersome and even dangerous. The weather has been so wet of late that these little flies seem to be larger this year than ever noticed before, and seem ravenous, attacking both man and beast. One man is said to have lost five cattle from this cause so far, and he is not by any means a solitary instance. The insects attack the animals in the tender parts of the nostrils and torment them unmercifully. They have also attacked people in some parts in that settlement.

The New Steamer

Mr. W. E. Brooks, proprietor of the Carleton House, Young's Point, was in town yesterday and gave The Times a call. Mr. Brooks says that the new steamer, "Stony Lake," will be launched to-morrow and will be ready for business by the end of the month. The outlook for tourist travel this year is exceedingly good.

A Pleasant Outing

The annual picnic which was pulled off yesterday, at the Tara grove, was a pleasant affair, notwithstanding the fact that rain fell for upwards of half an hour. The long program of sports were fully carried out, and amongst those who made brief but interesting speeches were Hons. Messrs. Latchford and Stratton.

Needless to say, all seemed to enjoy themselves.

Good for Mason & Co.

Messrs. Mason & Co. have instituted a new move in the grocery business in town. They now have a large card displayed in their windows announcing that they will close their places of business at 6.30 o'clock each evening, with the exception of Friday and Saturday evenings before holidays. This is as it should be and makes a forward step in the firms pathway, and one we believe, the public will heartily fall into line with. Others should go and do likewise.

Stringent Regulations

The Picton Gazette says: "According to the commissioners for East Northumberland any hotelkeeper or liquor store owner, who may be fined during the present license year for selling intoxicating liquor during prohibited hours, forfeits his license. No law abiding liquor seller would be guilty of violating the provisions of the license law, but violators of the law who insist in infringing it deserve to have their licenses cancelled."

"He's All Right."

Rev. Dr. Crothers, of Belleville, who will succeed Rev. J. P. Wilson, in George street, delivered a sermon to the 15th Regiment in that city on Sunday. The Intelligencer says: "That little bunch of good advice handed out by Rev. Dr. Crothers to the boys in red yesterday was splendid — simply splendid, and ought to make every man among 'em feel more pride in his calling and his country. Our private opinion is that the Doctor is strictly all right, and it's a pity we're going to lose him."

57th Regt. Going East

The officers of the 57th Regiment in charge of the arrangements for their annual trip, decided on Saturday that the outing of the volunteers of the town and vicinity should this year be in Perth. Invitations have been received from Col. Ponton, at Belleville, from the town of Barrie and from Stratford. But as Perth has been communicated with it was definitely decided that the regiment go on the 30th and return on the morning of the 2nd of July and try so doing give the men a chance to visit the circus here on that day. In 1899 the regiment went to Perth and report says they had a splendid time. Last year the boys visited Picton, and were accorded a hearty welcome. So much so that it would like to repeat the experience.

The Late J. B. Wilson

The following, taken from the British American, refers to a former Peterborough resident. "J. B. Wilson, who is reported to have been cruelly murdered in his photograph gallery, 163 State street, on Wednesday morning, was a native of Glasgow, Scotland, and a lineal descendant of Sir Walter Scott, and the famous blind poet of Scotland, John Young. At fourteen years of age he came on to Canada, settling in Peterborough, Ontario, where he became employed in the photograph gallery of James Little, and ever afterwards devoted himself to the photographic business. In 1880 he came to Chicago, and entered the employment of Hartley, then a photographer on West Madison street. In 1886 he established himself in business at 389 State street, and was successful until domestic trouble overtook him about two years ago. Since that time he has been embarrassed financially, and the struggle of mind and heart of Mr. Wilson has been a battle few men could withstand and friends who knew the inside history of the case feel deeply his sudden taking off. He was a member in good standing in the Illinois St. Andrew's Society, Royal Arcanum, and of the Masonic fraternity.

RUBBED IT IN

Good Advice That was Overlooked

Good advice, like experience, has to be "rubbed in" sometimes for we don't pay attention to it until two or three friends tell us the same thing.

A Tampa woman who believed that coffee was hurting her and her husband wouldn't be convinced until nature had forced the truth home. Then they quit, as she says:

"My love for coffee was soo strong, to give it up seemed impossible until my nerves were completely shattered when we finally found the condition of both of us so serious we decided something must be done.

"Our minister's wife had recommended Postum to us a few years before as the finest food drink made and advised us to try it. If coffee was hurting us, but we wouldn't believe coffee was doing it, so we didn't try the Postum. Indeed we forgot all about the good lady's advice and when we finally broke down under coffee we shifted to tea but soon found we were just as bad off as ever. Then we used simple 'kettle tea' or hot water until about eight months ago we were strongly urged to get some Postum which we did and, my, wasn't it a surprise.

"What a delicious drink that first cup of Postum was, so satisfying and such a wonderful relief, for we need a hot drink at meal times provided it is healthful and not a stimulant. It was perfectly delightful, with no bad effects following, and from that time husband and I have improved steadily in health and spirits, while we enjoy our Postum so much we have said good bye to old coffee forever.

"By following the directions on the package closely (that's the only way) Postum makes a beautiful rich coffee color and when made that way I don't believe the most tasteful coffee drinker in the world would pass it aside. The surest way is to follow the directions." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

It Scares People

Who come of a consumptive family when they begin to cough and the lungs are painful. But it is a fact beyond disproof that consumption is not and cannot be inherited. The microbe which breeds disease must absolutely be received by the individual before consumption can be developed.

Men and women who have been afflicted with obstinate coughs, bronchitis, bleeding of the lungs, emaciation and weakness, have been perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures the cough, heals the lungs, and builds up the body with solid flesh.

"When I commenced taking your medicines, eighteen months ago, my health was completely broken down," writes Mrs. Cora L. Sandridge of Chaneyville, Calvert Co., Md. "At times I could not even walk across the room without pains in my chest. The doctor who attended me said I had lung trouble, and that I would never be well again. Altogether I have taken eighteen bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and five vials of 'Pellets.' I am now almost entirely well, and do all my work without any pain whatever, and can run with more ease than I could formerly walk."

THE TOWN COUNCIL

Thursday in August. The contemplated change has been made public in the evening Examiner about three weeks ago, and correspondence pro. and con. invited. Other organizations had also arranged for the action of the Council at last meeting in making the change. The Peterborough Turf Club, for instance, had had printing done, advertising their annual summer races for August 1st, 2nd and 3rd. For these events entries were already coming in, and a hundred fast horses will come to town on those dates. It would be unfair to the organization to again change the date of Civic Holiday. He further opined that it would be very desirable that on the first of August, when these races come off and the Poo Guards are here, that a public holiday should be in force, in which event the Town would present a live and bustling aspect to the hundreds of visitors present. He suggested that this year, in order to meet all contingencies, two Civic Holidays be held.

Mr. Robertson, in reply, pointed out that he did not read the Examiner, therefore he did not see the article in reference to the suggested change. He did not approve of Civic Holiday being held on the same day as the other, as it would be impossible for town athletics to get transportation facilities. And on Civic Holiday people want to get out of town.

Mr. Kerr answered that Peterborough needs money brought into Town rather than taken out of it, and Civic Holiday being on the same day as that of the cities would be conducive to this end.

Mr. Mercello Mowry, of Otonabee Lodge, Oddfellows, addressed the Council, using the same arguments as his confreres, Mr. Robertson and Mr. Hill.

His Worship here read a petition signed by 54 citizens, asking that the day be kept on the first Monday in August, as decided by Council at last meeting. He pointed out that at his suggestion in the middle of May, when first approached with reference to the change, the question was made public in the Examiner. (It seems that none of the deputation present reads the Examiner). Personally, His Worship was in sympathy with the societies affected by Council's action at last meeting, but thought due precautions had been taken to make public the suggested change. In fact, the Council had been assured that no definite arrangements had been made for excursions for this year's Civic Holiday.

Ald. McWilliams could see no way out of the difficulty but to proclaim two civic holidays this year, as suggested by Mr. Kerr.

Ald. Morrison thought the change for this year a great mistake, as he pointed out at last meeting. He did not think it would be a great hardship either to the Turf Club or the 57th Regiment to rescind the motion and leave Civic Holiday where it is for this year. He did not approve of our Civic Holiday being on the same day as that of the big cities, for transportation reasons previously argued.

Ald. Morrison moved, seconded by Ald. Edgcumbe that the changing of the Civic Holiday to the first Monday be rescinded and a half holiday be declared for the first Monday in August this year.—Carried.

MEMBERS PRESENT.

The Town Council met in special session last night, when there were present His Worship, Mayor G. M. Roger, and Aldermen Johnston, Edgcumbe, Morrison, Rush, Scott, Hicks, Adams, Clinkscale, Batten, and McWilliams.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were confirmed as typewritten.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Joseph Picard and other property owners, calling attention to the necessity of having something done to get rid of the water that accumulates on Lock street, near Rosamis street, and which floods the adjacent property.—Referred to the Board of Works.

From Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr and Stevenson, pointing out that the Railway Commission have appointed Thursday, June 16th, at 11 o'clock a.m., the time and place for the consideration of the Street Railway Company's application for crossing the C.P.R. and G.T.R. tracks in town, and requesting the assistance and cooperation of the municipal authorities in support of the application. The communication also drew attention to the fact that since the Petersborough and Ashburnham Street Railway had become defunct gates had been established on both Simcoe and George streets, and the steam railways are now seeking to impose the cost of maintaining these gates upon the Street Railway Company. This legal firm submitted that as these gates became necessary by reason of the ordinary travel upon these highways, at a time that no street railway was in operation, that it would be unfair to now impose the cost of maintaining the gates upon the Street Railway Company. The Street Railway Company should, of course, assume the extra cost of maintaining the crossings caused by the operation of this road, and will no object to this. They think it in the interests of the Town that the steam roads should control the gates and pay the watchman, and asked the Council instruct their Solicitor to support Messrs. Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr and Stevenson's application, on behalf of the Street Railway Company, at Ottawa, with a deputation from the Council.—Received.

From the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society, saying that they understand the Orangemen are arranging for a booth on July 12th, and asking that the erection of such booths be restricted to the west half of the Park. The Horticultural Society have spent considerable money in improving the park; hence their request.—Referred to the Finance committee.

From T. Q. Quartermaine, Secretary Board of Trade, inclosing a resolution passed by the Council of the Board, recommending that the date hereafter of Civic Holiday be changed to the first Monday in August, the same day as Toronto's Civic Holiday.—Received.

From Dennistoun, Peck, Kerr and Stevenson, stating that their clients, Duncan Cameron, Elias Lowes, Mrs. Curtain and Mrs. Michael O'Brien of 769, 781, 784 and 777 George street, respectively, claim that the sidewalk now being constructed opposite their respective premises will injuriously affect their several properties, and that it is their intention in case the same is not constructed in such a way as not to injure their property, to claim compensation for damages sustained, as provided for by the Municipal Act. The grade of the sidewalk as being constructed will be so high as to seriously affect and damage the above property.—Received.

From Town Solicitor, E. H. D. Hall, saying that Mr. Robert Stuart's letter regarding the extension of time for the completion of the Street Railway is sufficient to maintain the Town's position as to the $5,000 security deposited.—Received.

PUT OUT A WOMAN'S EYES

Rioters Attack With Beer Bottles man and Companion While Driving

Cumberland, Iowa, June 13.—Hoodlums assaulted a newspaper man named Carleton and Miss Mary Connelly last night with a beer bottle and inflicted such wounds on the latter that she will lose her sight. The assailants waylaid Carleton and the young woman, who were out buggy riding. They first abused them with vile epithets, and then threw bottles at them. One of them cut out Miss Connelly's right eye and so injured the other that its sight will also be lost. The identity of the men is not positively known, but several suspected individuals have made their escape from the community.

A REMARKABLE FACT

The Climate Once Warm at the South Pole

Stuttgart, June 14.—Baron Nordenskjoeld, the leader of the Swedish South Pole Expedition, of 1901-2, delivered a most interesting lecture before the Commercial-Geographical Society, showing that at some distant period the south pole enjoyed a warm climate and tropical vegetation. That the north pole was once blessed with warm weather and palms has been known for a considerable time, but the Swedish explorer first proved similar conditions to have existed on the south pole.

The explorer exhibited many of his finds on Seymour Island and northward of the Admiralty Sound. He found bones of the ancient pinguin bird which belonged to the larger specimens than even the giant penguin of to-day, a bird that grows forty inches long.

RUSSIA CALLING OUT HER RESERVES OVER A MILLION MEN TO ARMS

Russia Thoroughly Alarmed at the Prospect of Defeat by Japan

The Czar's Navy to be Reconstructed as Speedily as Possible

The Advance on Port Arthur Continues Despite All Obstructions by Russians

London, June 16.—The fiat has gone forth calling out about a million men for the eastern campaign. These are made up of first and second class reserves, and are largely taken from districts to the north. This will be followed by the general mobilization of the whole reserves of the Russian army. Were the seat of war almost anywhere in Europe it would mean the crushing of the Japanese by sheer force of numbers. In Manchuria it means multiplying beyond calculation the difficulties connected with the transportation of supplies. The fact that Russia has become desperate is apparent even to the Chinese, who are daily becoming more hostile to their western oppressors. The cordon around Port Arthur is being tightened, and it is now only a question of days until the end, when not only will Port Arthur fall into the hands of the Japanese, but the remnants of the flower of the Czar's navy will be destroyed. The awfulness of the approaching calamity is hardly realized.

A NEW NAVY.

Feverish Anxiety of Russia to Build Ships of War.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—A conference was held at Tsarskoe Selo today between the emperor, Grand Duke Alexis, the Russian high admiral and Vice-Admiral Avellan, chief of the admiralty, at which it was decided to proceed with the construction of many new battleships and cruisers. Every shipyard in the empire will be taxed to the utmost. The programme covers ten first-class battleships and fifteen cruisers. France will also get a large contract.

JAPS BUILDING RAILWAY.

The Yellow Men Are Doing Their Work Well as They Go.

Tokio, June 16.—The Japanese are constructing a railway from Feng Wang Cheng to Shaikeesi, thirty miles to the southeast, near the mouth of the Yalu River.

The movement of the Japanese along the sea is being closely watched. They are proceeding from Takushan to the southwest, following the coast, evidently reckoning upon the co-operation of their fleet.

GUARDS SECRETS WELL.

Japanese Will Let No Man Know Their Movements.

Fusan, June 16.—The present is another period of preparation and the most interesting news of events in Manchuria cannot be telegraphed because of the fact that it would furnish clues to future movements. The size of the bodies of Japanese occupying advanced positions, and the disposition of the main forces are unknown to the correspondents and military attaches, who are practically uninformed thereon except by bulletins issued here at Tokio. General Kuroki continues his policy of secrecy as successfully as he did before crossing the Yalu.

IGNORE BRITISH PROTEST.

Russians Insist That Rice and Other Food Are Properly Contraband.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—The Russian government has not yet returned an answer to British Ambassador Hardinge relative to his government's protest at Russia's declaration that rice and other foodstuffs are contraband of war, but it is learned that there is no intention on the part of the government to make modifications to meet the British view. The protest is based on the rule observed by Great Britain during the Boer war, that even foodstuffs destined for a hostile country could be considered contraband of war only if intended for an enemy's forces.

A high Russian official to-day called attention to the fact that at the breaking out of the present war Russia was compelled to stop at San Francisco a cargo of meat destined for Vladivostock in order to avoid its probable capture in consequence of the Japanese declaration that it would be regarded as contraband.

"Rice is an important article of food in the Japanese army, and the question whether it should be declared contraband was carefully considered when the regulations were being framed," the official said, "and the decision reached by Russia entirely justified such action. The British government is disposed to regard the question as an academic one, but should steamers which are being equipped as auxiliary cruisers proceed to the Pacific and make captures of ships loaded with provisions complications could easily arise."

Diplomatic circles are interested in the attitude the United States will adopt in the matter.

CRUISER CANADA WAS LAUNCHED

Lady Strathcona Performed the Ceremony of Christening

PRESENTED WITH BROOCH

A Bottle of Canadian Wine Was Used Dimensions of the New Craft

London, June 16.—A large gathering to-day witnessed the launch of the new Canadian cruiser Canada, at Vickers, Sons and Maxim's yard at Barrow-in-Furness. The christening ceremony was performed by Lady Strathcona, Hon. Mrs. Howard was unable to be present, owing to a severe cold. A bottle of Canadian wine was used in the christening.

EQUIPMENT OF VESSEL.

The principal dimensions of the vessel are: Length between the perpendiculars 200 feet; breadth moulded 25 feet; depth 14 feet. She has a ram stem and fitted with two decks. She is armored with four pom pom guns, two forward and two aft, and rigged as a fore and aft cruiser. Her speed is sixteen knots. Canadian Government Inspector Mooney expressed himself very much satisfied with the construction.

After the launch Lord Strathcona was permitted to descend into the the interior of the sub-marine. This privilege is only accorded to the principal officials of the admiralty.

A PRESENTATION.

At the luncheon Mr. Douglas Vickers thanked Lady Strathcona for performing the ceremony and presented her with a handsome diamond sapphire brooch, as a memento of the occasion, Lord Strathcona, replying for her ladyship, hoped that the new cruiser was but the first of a Canadian fleet.

RUSSIA IN PROTEST TO AMERICA

Cassini Objects to Sending Big War Fleet as Threat to Turkey.

Washington, June 16.—Russia is seeing to prevent the sending of a large American fleet to Turkey to enforce payment of the long-standing missionary claims.

This is the unexpected situation which developed to-day from a visit of Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, to Secretary Hay. Count Cassini called to inquire as to the truth of the reports that the United States is preparing to send the combined European and South Atlantic squadrons and the battleship fleet to Turkey as soon as the Tangier incident is closed, to support a demand for the immediate payment of claims amounting to more than $250,000 for outrages on American citizens and the destruction of property of American missionary societies and at the same time to insist that the sultan shall give the same protection to American citizens in Turkey as is accorded to other foreigners.

Mr. Hay's tacit admission that such is the programme caused Count Cassini to inform him unofficially, that such a proceeding would be exceedingly offensive to Russia and doubtless would result in a formal and vigorous protest from his government.

He intimated that there might be no objection to sending one or two war ships to exert pressure on Turkey, but the sending of three squadrons, including six battleships, would be resented, in spirit if not in deed, by all the powers interested in Turkey.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—The most serious news received here is that regarding the continued efforts of General Kuroki to outflank Kuropatkin's right wing, which is interpreted by a military critic to indicate the intention of the Japanese to try to cut off the retreat of the Russian army to Harbin.

With the enemy apparently about to occupy Yin Kow the plan of campaign clearly is to surround the Russian centre at Liao Yang. The Japanese, however, forget that reinforcements are coming in daily.

SLEEPING CAR DE LUXE

The Canadian Pacific Railway has just put in commission the first of a batch of new sleeping cars, with which to reinforce its already large stock. The continual increase in transcontinental travel, the growing popularity of the Canadian Rockies and the filling up of the Northwest has compelled the company to establish a double daily service from ocean to ocean, which will be maintained next Monday by the departure from the Windsor Station, Montreal, of the Imperial Limited running for the first time as an evening train and as a daily. To meet this expanded service a large number of additional cars were imperatively necessary, so fifteen were built, of which the first are already on the road.

The Wakefield and the Waskada were at Windsor Station yesterday, and showed, at a glance, how carefully the company has provided the luxuries as well as the conveniences of travel. Everything an up-to-date car should be, these are. They run smoothly on two six-wheeled trucks, and have the easiest possible motion. The jarring inseparable from fast running over the smoothest roadbed, is thereby reduced to a minimum, and perfect rest at night is ensured. The vestibules are of the "extended platform" order; that is to say the vestibules, boxed in with glass, have been considerably enlarged, so that a number of passengers may stand outside and view the scenery in safety and comfort.

The interior fittings could not be surpassed for appropriateness of design and beauty of execution. The effects in the smoking and drawing rooms are particularly happy, and the general air of brightness and comfort is most inviting. The walls have a mahogany finish, with panels polished almost to the brightness of a mirror while around the doors, windows, etc., is an inlaid pattern of tasteful design. The carpets of thick Wilton, like all the other upholstery are of a green shade, very restful for the eye.

Upholstery, for its own sake, has, however, been omitted from the car. Experience has shown the numerous disputes with which drawing room and sleeping cars used to be loaded up, were soon full of dust and dirt. They are, therefore, now used as little as possible, and the beautifully polished panelling really gains by having nothing to hide its grained surface. The seats are covered with heavy, green plush, and are most inviting from the comfort of their design and the softness of their cushioning.

They are, of course, converted into sleeping berths at night, there being twelve sections in all. The Canadian Pacific Railway has been the pioneer in improving sleeping accommodation, and still retains an advantage over many other lines. The berths are somewhat longer, and broader, and a good deal higher, and there is no place where an individual inch has so much value as on a sleeping car. It gives greater cubic space for air and enables the tallest man to sit up comfortably while dressing in either the upper or lower berth. There is, too, an opening under the lower berth that means a regal deal. It provides an exit for the surplus heat from the steam pipes that warm the car.

Another point may be mentioned in this connection. The importance of the thorough airing of bedding is well known to every housewife and is fully appreciated by the company. Whenever the sleeping car is not in use and is standing in the yard, it is aired thoroughly. The upper berths are let down the rugs and other bedding laid out and exposed to the beneficient action of sun and air. The head rests are also tilted forward, so that the air is permitted to circulate freely behind and through the seats that form the lower berths at night.

The cars are lighted by acetylene gas, the passengers being protected from the glare of which and provided with a subdued, even light by the use of globes of frosted glass. The deck lights are fitted with cathedral glass, which gives an additional finish to the appearance of the car. The splendid order in which every corner and appointment is kept, makes these new sleeping cars most attractive, and the perfection of modern railway equipment.

REGION A VAST SOLITUDE

Labrador is Probably the Most Lonesome Spot on Earth

Montreal, June 14.—The coast of Labrador is the edge of a vast solitude of rocky hills, split and blasted by the frosts and beaten by the waves of the Atlantic for unknown ages. A grand headland, yellow, brown and black in its nakedness, is ever in sight, one to the north of you and one to the south. Here and there upon them are strips and patches of pale green mosses, lean grasses and dwarf shrubbery. There are no forests except in Hamilton Inlet. Occasionally miles of precipices front the sea in which fancy may roughly shape all the structures of human art.

More frequent than headlands and perpendicular sea fronts are the sea slopes, often bold and tame, and then the perfection of all that is picturesque and rough. In the interior of the blue hills and stony vales that wind up from among them from the sea have a summerlike and pleasant air. One finds himself peopling these regions and dotting these hills, valleys and wild shores with human habitations, but a second thought, and a mornful one it is, tells that no men toil in the fields away there, no children play by the brooks or shout around the country schoolhouse, no bees come home to the hive, no smoke curls from the farmhouse chimney, no orchard blooms, no bleating sheep flock the mountain side with whiteness, and no heifer lows in the twilight.

There is nobody there, there never was, but a miserable and scattered few, and there never will be. It is a great and terrible wilderness, thousands of miles in extent and lonesome to the very wild animals and birds. Left to the still visitation of the light from the sun, moon and stars and the auroral fires, it is only fit to look upon and then be given over to its primeval solitariness. But for the living things of its waters, the cod, salmon and seal, which brings thousands of fishermen to its waters and traders to its bleak shores, Labrador would be as desolate as Greenland. The time is now coming when with good steamship accommodations the invalid and tourist from the States will be found spending the brief but lovely summer here, notwithstanding its ruggedness and desolation.

THE CANADA IS TO BE RAISED

Tenders to Float Her Will Be Asked for at once

SOME SIMILAR DISASTERS

Cape Breton's Owners Think Their Vessel Was in Right the Cape Breton's Captain

Montreal, June 16.—The Canada is to be raised and tenders will be asked for immediately for the execution of the work.

That was the decision come to by the directors of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company at a meeting held at the offices of the company at 11 o'clock to-day.

The meeting was called to make arrangements for a rigid investigation into the matter of the collision as far as the company is concerned. The question of raising the sunken vessel was discussed for some time and a report was made by a marine expert who visited the scene of the wreck and made a careful inspection of the sunken ship.

Mr. C. F. Smith, manager of the company, when seen by a reporter, confirmed the statement that tenders were to be asked for at once for the raising of the Canada.

OPINION OF SHIPPING MEN.

The sole topic of conversation among shipping circles to-day is still the unfortunate accident of the R. & O. steamer Canada.

While the accident is lamentable, upon the ground of the loss of life, the fact that accidents of this kind always injure the route on which they occur is also a cause for deploring it.

Many similar cases are instanced by shipping men. One, the case of the Princess Alice and the collier Bywell Castle in 1878, was referred to by one gentleman of considerable nautical knowledge as that which resembled the present one most closely in its attendant circumstances.

"The Princess Alice," he stated, "was an iron excursion steamer belonging to the London, Eng., Steamboat company. While carrying, it is supposed, above 900 persons, principally women and children, on their return from Sheerness, she was immediately sunk by collision with the collier Bywell Castle a large iron screw steamer. The accident occurred at night and the Princess Alice was cut in two. Her captain tried to beach her, but did not succeed. She sank just off the Gallion Shoal about two miles below Woolwich. There were over 500 persons drowned. There was hardly any excursion traffic on the Thames for ten years after."

The same gentleman stated that the enquiry held at the time decided that the Princess Alice was in fault in not putting her helm when she came end on to the Bywell Castle.

AN ADDITION TO TOWN

Part of Smith Township to be Annexed

The current issue of the Ontario Gazette contains a notice of an Order-in-Council passed annexing a portion of Smith Township to the Town. The resolution passed by the Council, asked that this addition be made. It was passed in response to a petition signed by the persons living on the property to be taken over on the 1st of July, or thereabouts. The blocks affected are "D" and "E" as shown on registered plan No. 17 for the Township aforesaid. It is said this will make an addition of 106 residents to Ward Four.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE WAR OFFICE BACKS DUNDONALD

Refuse to Recall Him or Suggest to Him to Resign

POLITICS AND THE MILITIA

British Armies Circles Believes the Canadian Ministers Run Militia

London, June 16.—It is understood that the real position of Lord Dundonald is that the War Office refuse themselves to recall him and refuse also to suggest to Lord Dundonald that he himself resign.

If this is so, it clearly indicates that the War Office believe that the Canadian Ministers are allowing considerations of party politics to impede the efficiency of the Canadian militia.

THE ENNISMORE PICNIC.

A Successful Affair and Well Attended.

The Ennismore picnic, of which we made mention in yesterday's issue, was held in Tara grove on Tuesday and was carried out satisfactorily, pleasantly and successfully, notwithstanding the half hour rain, which was the only thing that dampened the ardor of those attending, but fortunately for a very brief space of time. The ladies were, of course, in charge of the dinner tables, and served up the tables in such a way as to call forth many complimentary remarks from those present. The afternoon was pleasantly passed in dancing, sports and social conversation. Rev. Father Fitzpatrick was on hand, and by his jolly manner and hearty handshake put everybody at their ease, and contributed much towards the success of this ever popular gathering. Other Rev. Fathers present were McColl and Galvin, of Peterborough; Gilles, who conducted the mission; Bretherton and Kielty. Among the other gentlemen present from town were Hon. J. R. Stratton Messrs. D. O'Connell, Adam Hall, R. R. Hall, Jas. Lynch, Dr. Coughlin, E. M. Elliott, Wm. Redkins, D. Hughes-Charles, local manager of the Bank of Commerce; K. Eardley-Wilmot, local manager of the Bank of Montreal; J. H. McClellan, H. McFadden H. LeBrun, and many others.

After the rain had cleared away an interesting program of speeches was introduced, all of which were of a congratulatory character, thereby adding to the friendly feeling everywhere apparent.

Messrs. Hughes-Charles and K. Eardley-Wilmot were the first speakers, and said many pleasant things of the gatherings, and the great, good feeling which predominated them.

Rev. Father McColl is no stranger in Ennismore, and his remarks were as usual, appropriate and well received.

Mr. J. Harris McClelland, in his remarks, thanked the people of Ennismore, congratulated Father Fitzpatrick, and said the presence of bankers at Ennismore showed the growing importance of the place, referred to R. R. Hall as the next member of the Dominion House, referred to Hon. Mr. Stratton as being appreciated not only locally but throughout Ontario, and that Hon. G. W. Ross was almost worshipped by the people of West Peterborough, people who knew him best.

Dr. Coughlin was present not so much to make a speech as to show his respect for the pastor.

Mr. E. M. Elliott, in his address, referred to Ennismore as being one of his fields of labor in the work of Farmers' Institutes.

Mr. D. O'Connell made an address appreciate of the occasion, and of the kind reception by both pastor and people.

Mr. R. R. Hall thanked the pastor for the invitation to be present, congratulated him on the success of the picnic and hoped the new hall would soon be provided for. He also drew attention to the prosperous times we were enjoying as the result of improved transportation facilities, hoped the Trent Valley Canal would be pushed to completion, which would mean an open market and an advance in prices of grain of 4 cents bushel, and better prices for other farm produce.

Hon. J. R. Stratton was well received and made an appropriate speech, congratulating Father Fitzpatrick on the good work done in the temperance cause; that there was not a hotel in the township; that nine-tenths of the men and boys belonged to the society; that Ontario was the most temperance province in the Dominion, the most temperance country in the world; referred to the great resources of the country; said the C.P.R. was built in advance of the times, yet it had proved its value, and that another trans-continental line would do likewise, hoped Emismore and the great temperance society would ever be prosperous, complimented the ladies, etc.

Father Fitzpatrick replied in fitting terms and was given a rousing reception.

THE SPORTS

The program of sports was successfully run off by Mr. P. F. Flood and Mr. D. Crough and resulted as follows:—

Hop, step and jump—J. O'Brien, E. Renton.

Running long jump—J. O'Brien, D. Begley.

Hop, step and jump; boys—J. Gilliece, Leo Wynn.

Tossing the caber—D. Kennedy.

Throwing weight; boys—J. Lonergan, W. Hickson.

100 yards' race—E. Renton, W. Armstrong.

220 yards' race—E. Renton, W. Armstrong.

Fat man's race—J. Lonergan, T. Crough, E. Minicola.

Mile race—E. Renton, W. Armstrong.

Mile race (T.A.S.)—J. Deoone, W. Cavan.

Girls' race—J. Quinlan.

Consolation; girls—S. Hennessy.

Consolation; men—W. Armstrong.

Consolation; boys—H. Crough.

Smoking race—W. Cavanagh, W. Armstrong.

Irish jig—P. Twomey, M. English.

Clog dance—P. Twomey.

The music for the afternoon's dancing was supplied by Mrs. J. Flood, Miss Scollard, Miss Anna Flood, Miss Lottie Scollard, organists; W. O'Donnell, Curtis Brothers, S. Callaghan, and J. Turner, violinist.

On Sunday afternoon the 57th Regiment will attend divine service at St. John's church at 3.30 sharp. The ceremony of placing the old colors of the Regiment in the church will then take place. Invitations have been extended to all commanding officers and members to be present, the Veterans and the 14th Field Battery.

The commanding officer has been pleased to make the following promotions. E. Co., to be corpl., Private H. Dunmitt; to be lance corpl, Pte. H. Cook, vice H. Roberts, struck off the strength of the regiment. D. Co., to be corpl (provisionally) Pte. Sisson.

MARVELOUS MODERN MUSKETEERS

The World's Prize-winning Aurora Zouaves

"The pomp and circumstance of glorious war" is notably manifest in the military features to be presented here on Saturday, July 2nd, by the the great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers arenic, animal, hippodromatic and martial aggregation, tastefully wonderful and popular, as having, time and again, both at home and abroad, and before all the world's leading military experts, conclusively proved themselves far and away the best drilled company of either regular or volunteer soldiers ever known, save the Aurora Zouaves. They are champion marvels in phenomenal speed and perfection of drill and manual, and while it is high praise, it may truthfully be said of them that they notably surpass even their famous predecessors, the Ellsworth Zouaves, of Chicago, whose triumphal tour in the deepening shadows of the greatest war of wars is still remembered by many veterans of both the Blue and Gray, who gained from them their first instruction in the fundamental essentials by which battles are won. And in this connection, a passing tribute to the brave, brilliant and lamented Col. Elmer E. Ellsworth is due, in recalling the fact that at the very outset of a career which promised to crown him with unfading laurels he was shot dead by the landlord of a hotel in Alexandria, Va., for hauling down the Confederate flag flying defiantly from the flagpole on its roof. Those who have seen the Aurora Zouaves of which he was the tactical progenitor, can imagine how enthusiastically he would have praised and applauded them, and the aptness of the similie employed by the New York American and Journal, in remarking, "The Aurora Zouaves are a huge red-legged centipede, whose celerity and precision have astonished the military world."

The Fire Yesterday Morning

A fire occurred yesterday morning about three o'clock in Green's Foundry, at the corner of McDonnell and Donegal streets, doing considerable damage to the building before it was got under control. The fire was noticed by one of the employees, who sent in an alarm as quickly as possible, but by the time the brigade got there the flames had gained considerable headway. By getting to work promply the fire brigade soon had it under control, and it was stopped after it had worked its way into the machine shop. The blaze caught in the moulding shop, which is completely devoured, and the contents destroyed. The origin of the fire is not known. The insurance carried is said to have been small, and Mr. Green stands to lose considerably by the fire.

—The Oddfellows will decorate the graves of their deceased brethren this afternoon.

COLONIES AND SUGAR DUTIES

Great Britains Not Bound to Penalize Colonial Bounties.

EARL GREY'S APPOINTMENT

London Daily Chronicle Denies it Has Been Made Money for Electric Railways

London, June 16.—In the House of Commons in reply to a question regarding the sugar convention by Mr. Gibson Bowles, M.P., Earl Percy, the under secretary of the Foreign Office, said that the question of a surtax leviable by contracting states on bounty-fed sugared products was still before the permanent commission. The discussion had been adjourned to the next meeting. The sugar convention was ratified under the explicit declaration that His Majesty's Government would not consent, under any circumstances to be bound to penalize bounty-fed sugar imported into Great Britain from any of the self-governing colonies.

Letters, addressed to Williams, the London emigration crook, are still coming in batches every day from Canadian farmers, asking that domestics be sent out, and enclosing a ten shilling postal order as a fee.

EARL GRAY'S APPOINTMENT.

The Daily Chronicle says it is authorised to contradict the report that Earl Grey has been appointed Governor-General of Canada.

JESSE AIRRIES ACQUITTED.

On Charge of Assaulting a Young Lady

But He Will Have to Face Two Other Serious Charges Sunday

Jesse Airries, who was charged with assaulting a young lady, almost bearing her down and stealing her purse, was tried at the County Court yesterday, and acquitted. The evidence, which is practically the same as that presented at the preliminary trial before Police Magistrate Dumble, and which was published at the time, was not sufficient to warrant conviction.

The prisoner was ably defended by Mr. R. F. McWilliams. Mr. R. E. Wood County Crown Attorney, looked after the prosecution.

Although Airries has escaped on this charge, he will face two others equally serious today—one of theft and another of indecent assault.

The Grand Jury made the following presentment yesterday:

To His Honor Judge Weller:—Your Grand Jury of the County Court and General Sessions beg leave to make their presentment, and would extend congratulations such as the occasion seems to demand. We have to congratulate your honor upon your good health after so long and distinguished service on the bench. We wish also to congratulate the town, county and community generally upon the satisfatory condition of public morality in our midst, as evidenced by the comparative absence of crime of a serious character. In investigating the criminal charges placed before us our duty has been comparatively light.

We also examined the gaol and found everything satisfactory in regard to management by the officials, but there are material improvements necessary. The system of plumbing should be, if not replaced by something more modern and effective, thoroughly revised and remodelled. The system of heating has proved unsatisfactory, and should, in our opinion, be replaced by something more modern, more effective and less expensive.

We regretted very much the pitiable spectacle of the presence among the hardened criminals confined in the jail of a small boy aged nine years. He was not separately confined, but was in direct company daily and hourly with these undesirable characters. This is, it seems to us, contrary to all principles of crime prevention and instead of being a deterrent to the lad in question, it is a direct encouragement and help in fostering in him a natural instinct to lawlessness, with which he seemed to be endowed. We would respectfully recommend that, if it is at all possible, arrangements be made to place the lad under the care of the local Children's Aid Society, in whose charge he will receive treatment and be given associations which, if there is any hope for a better life for him, will place him in the way of growing up a respectable and useful citizen.

It was our intention to visit other public institutions of the town securing government aid, but as there was no conveyance at our disposal we did not make the visit and inspection which in the interests of the institutions themselves ask the public seem to be periodically called for.

We are glad to note the continued prosperity of the town and county, and it seems that under such circumstances prompt steps should be taken to continue the work of providing a county and town House of Refuge, which is very badly needed, for the unsystematic and haphazard way at present prevailing of dispensing charity and helping the indigent poor is not only unduly expensive, but generally unsatisfactory. We note with pleasure that the town of Peterborough has taken a practical step in this direction by the purchase of a property which, it is said, can be used for the erection of a House of Refuge, such as is needed.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

method and the ability to do as he says. Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method entirely free to all men who send him their names and addresses. He wants to hear from men who have weaknesses that they have been unable to get cured, unnatural troubles, sexual weakness, varicocele, lost manhood, blood poison, hydrocele, enlargement of parts, impotency, etc. His wonderful method not only cures the conditions itself, but likewise all the complications, such as rheumatism, bladder or kidney trouble, heart disease, nervous debility, etc. He does more than it is up this to make known to you, and if when you enroll for book more you will willingly pay him a small fee. It costs you nothing to write him, but it is to the best interests of every man who has any of the symptoms mentioned to do so immediately and lay your case before him, and if he accepts your case for treatment it is his duty to do so, as he does not want any one's money unless he cures them. Dr. Goldberg is the discoverer of this method, and has perfected it after years of experimenting, and is the only man who has ever made a success of curing these troubles. He has given the subject more study than any other physician in the world, and has had more experience than any other living man, as he has had thousands of cases to experiment on. Write him to-day, as he means just what he says in this advertisement.

WHAT SHALL WE EAT IN SUMMER

On of the gratifying signs of our advancement as a race is the increasing tendency of the people to live a serious and intelligent concern for the quality and digestibility of the food they eat. There is a wide diffusion of domestic science among the people. Man is coming to have a greater respect for his stomach, realizing that it bears an important relation to his happiness, comfort and success in life. He no longer boasts of his ability to eat "any old thing" and live. He is more apt to take pride in an intelligent adaptation of food to his own particular needs and physical condition.

With the coming of the summer months there is greater need than ever of an intelligent study of dietetics and greater opportunity than ever for a wise use of the knowledge thus gained in selecting a dietary that will promote a healthy condition of the body instead of producing discomfort and disease. The time for a fruit and vegetable diet is near at hand. But the question is, What vegetables and what fruits shall we eat in order to derive the most nutriment and at the same time avoid the intestinal disorders from which so many suffer during the summer?

This cannot be answered by any hard and fast rules, for it quite often happens that a fruit or vegetable that is healthful and wholesome to most persons is "poison" to others, producing serious intestinal complications. Some reservations are necessary, therefore, in accepting the New York Herald's statement that oranges, strawberries, lettuce, apples, pears and bananas are "safe" articles of diet, while watermelons, cantaloupes, cucumbers, cherries, peaches and plums are "unsafe."

But each individual is always supposed to know the dietic value of many fruits and vegetables by personal experience. Many persons, apparently in robust health, cannot eat strawberries without much intestinal distress, but experience no discomfort from a dish of green cucumbers.

For these a dietic guidebook is unnecessary. After all, it may be said that the wholesomeness and digestibility of fruits and vegetables in summer is largely a question of freshness and ripeness. Anything short of these conditions is a menace to health.

NOT KEEPING FAITH WITH WARD NO. 5

WORK ON OUTFALL SEWER AND DIVERSION OF CREEK NOT YET ARRANGED FOR

Ald. Adams Insists on the Conditions of Union being Carried out—Who is at Fault.

At the Council meeting Tuesday night the following communications were submitted.

From W. H. Moore, applying for town debentures to the amount of $3,200, or as near thereto as they may be issued, at twenty years, bearing four per cent. interest, half-yearly, for which he is prepared to pay par.—Received.

From J. C. Shook, general manager of the Dickson Company, pointing out that some time ago they applied to have their office at 163 Hunter street connected with the sewers, and deposited with the Town Treasurer $21 as required. They found on opening the street that their connection was already in, but no record was shown on the plan on file in the Engineer's office. A charge of $7 was made for labor in opening up the street, and that amount was deducted from the Dickson Company on return of their deposit. The company think this needless expense was incurred by the neglect of some one on behalf of the town, and should not be charged to them. They therefore asked that the amount be refunded them.—Referred to the Board of Works.

From R. Fitzgerald and Sarah Parnell, objecting to the construction of a sewer on Antrim street, from George street west of No. 168, they already being assessed for the intervening property. They have no use for the sewer in question, being assessed for the one on George street.—Referred to the Board of Works.

From Thos. B. McGrath and John Kincaid, applying for the position of assessors.—Received.

From W. A. Littlejohn, clerk city of Toronto, forwarding engrossed copy of a resolution passed by the city council on the occasion of the disastrous conflagration in Toronto.—Received.

From J. J. B. Myers, asking a small donation to a shooting tournament to be held in Stratford. A compliance with this request, Mr. Myers claims, would advertise the town.—Received.

L. L. Cross, on behalf of the Baptist Bible Class, applied for a permit to have a lemonade stand in Central Park on July 12th.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

From M. H. Meldrum, saying that he intends building a mill and elevator on the Mills property, beside the substation of the Ottonabee Power Co., and as the C. P. R. offer to put in a siding on the south side of Simcoe street from the Cereal Co., on condition that he gets permission of right of way from the town, he would respectfully ask for such privilege immediately. The length of siding will be 360 feet west from the track, running to the Cereal Co.—This was referred to a Committee of the Whole Council.

From Tax Collector W. J. Green, asking for increase of salary to $850 on account of increase of work by reason of the union of Ashburnham with Peterborough.—Referred to the Finance Committee.

From a number of ratepayers, petitioning that the Council have Barnardo avenue opened through from George street to Water street.—Referred to the Board of Works to report.

Ald. Morrison submitted the following:

Gentlemen,—Your Committee of the Whole Council beg leave to report as follows:

1. If a petition is presented, as has been customary, asking that Thursday afternoon next, Oddfellows Decoration day, be proclaimed a half holiday, we recommend that the Mayor issue a proclamation for that purpose.

2. We recommend that the Mayor and Town Solicitor be appointed to attend at Ottawa to represent the town when the application of the street railway to cross the steam railway tracks is heard by the Railway Commission and in the event of the Mayor being unable to attend that he appoint some one to attend in his stead, and that the expense be paid on the certificate of one of the Town's representatives.

3. Owing to there being a number of streets in Ward No. 5 of the same names as streets in other wards of the town, and also owing to some duplicate names in other ward, your committee believe it would be advisable to change the names of some of the streets and would recommend that steps be taken to make the following changes;

In Ward No. 5.—
Brown street to Mark street.
Dickson street to Hazlitt street.
Lake street to Burnham street.
Stewart street to Rogers street.
Elizabeth street to Hunter street.
Crescent street to Knox street.
John street to Birdsall street.
Queen street to Peck street.
Lock street to Ottonbee street.
In Ward No. 4:—
Mill street at Jackson Park to Fairbairn street.
Victoria street to Hilliard street.
Maple street to Clinton street.
Short street to Stevenson street.
All of which is respectfully submitted.

The report was adopted as read.

BY DAY LABOR.

A by-law to authorize the construction of sidewalks on certain streets by day labor passed its several readings.

COLLECTOR OF TAXES.

A by-law, appointing W. J. Green Collector of Taxes for 1904, at a salary of $850, an increase of $150 over last year, passed its several readings. The collector will pay all his own expenses.

$3 FOR EACH FIREMAN.

Ald. Edgcumbe submitted a report of the Fire Water and Light Committee recommending that each fireman who went to Toronto on the occasion of the big fire be paid $3.

Ald. Morrison suggested that the Tax Collector give a statement each month of the amount collected, together with the amount of the roll and the amount outstanding and uncollected. This was adopted.

CIRCUS LICENSE FEE.

A by-law to reduce the license fee for a circus parading through the town from $100 to $25 passed its several readings. It appears that the old by-law provided for a license fee of $100, but no circus has ever paid more than $25 for parading the town.

BREACH OF FAITH.

Ald. Adams here asked what is being done in connection with the Ashburnham outfall sewer and the diversion of the Creek. It seems that neither the Engineer nor the Board of Works has done nothing whatever in these matters.

Ald. Rush replied that the Engineer assured him that as soon as he gets time he will take up the matter of the outfall sewer.

Ald. Morrison could not understand why there is so much delay each year on the work on our streets. These measures in question should be gone on with at once in good faith with Ashburnham, as agreed to as a part of the conditions of the union. He suggested that a special committee be appointed to attend to these matters.

Ald. Adams could not see why the Engineer should busy himself with measures proposed at only last meeting to the neglect of matters a year old.

Ald. Morrison did not think the Engineer at fault. He was rushed with work sent in by the Board of Works.

Ald. Morrison moved, seconded by Ald. Edgcumbe,—That Ald. Adams, Hicks, Rush, McWilliams and Johnston be a special committee to take up the outfall sewer question for Ashburnham, and report to council.—Carried.

DAN SPENCE MEMORIAL.

The treasurer of the Dan Spence Memorial was authorized to pay Mr. Greer $700 on account of the ambulance. It appears that the springs of the ambulance are defective and a hitch in getting this defect repaired has caused the delay in paying the bill.

ASSESSMENT COMMISSION.

Ald. Rush thought the time had arrived for the appointment of an assessment commissioner, who would have nothing else to do but equalize the value of properties and assess them at their full value. Thus he could do the work more equably than it is done at present. Such a commissioner is appointed by most large municipalities with the best results. It is quite evident that assessors working a couple of months each year cannot be expected to keep in touch with the increase in values of properties.

No action was taken for the present.

Important Time in Every Girl's Life

Is Between Fifteen and Eighteen Years of Age—How to Avoid the Dangers that Arise During this Period.

The mental activity of school life coupled with the terrible strain that must come during these years, takes the vitality of even the strongest. A girl at this age often does not understand the physical change she is undergoing. She will in all probability be nervous and puzzled. She should have the benefit of good motherly advice and a long treatment of Ferrosone, which will supply new energy to bear her safely past the critical event. Ferrosone is the best remedy to take in early womanhood, because it contains so much nerve and blood nourishment. It corrects all derangements, cures bearing-down pains, nervousness, and prevents headaches. Ferrosone revitalizes young girls, gives them vim bonyancy, strong nerves and healthy body. Every girl should use Ferrosone, and wise mothers will see that their daughters have the benefit of this health-giving tonic.

Mrs. W. E. Michel, of Richmond, writes;—"I can strongly recommend Ferrosone as a good tonic for young ladies. My daughter has been taking Ferrosone for the past six months and it has worked wonders for her. Before using Ferrosone she was anaemic and nervous and had no strength. But Ferrosone has built up her whole constitution and given her strength and vitality. Of all the tonics ever used I don't think one of them compares with Ferrosone. It certainly brings health and strength to young girls more quickly."

There is no remedy half so effective as Ferrosone. A trial soon demonstrates its merit. Get Ferrosone from your druggist to-day and let it build you up. Beware of fraudulent substitutes and insist on having only Ferrosone. Price 50 cents a box, or mailed from 50 cents a box, or mailed from 50 cents a box, or mailed from

THIBET'S RESISTANCE

BRITISH WILL SOON MARCH ON SACRED CITY

All Hope of Peace now Gone and England will at Once Conquer the Country

London, June 16.—The Thibetans are apparently determined to continue their course of defiant but futile suicide, for it cannot be called war till the British mission enters Lhassa as a conquering force. British reinforcements are now on the way to Gyangtse. When they arrive the advance will be resumed and the Thibetans will have a rude awakening from the trust now reposed in proclamations to the effect that several members of the mission have been taken prisoners and that Russians have landed at Calcutta. It is impossible to withhold sympathy for this misguided people, who are helpless victims of the rivalry of two great powers.

Col. Younghusband's reports disclose the relations of the Russian government with Thibet for the past five years. They show that Count Lamsdorf, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, was able to declare that no convention existed about Tibet—in fact, that Russia had no designs whatever on Tibet when Lord Lansdowne in 1900 drew his attention very directly to the matter.

Nevertheless an "unofficial" convention with the Dalai Lama did exist, the latter having even consented to the residence of a Russian prince at Lhassa. This, however, was stopped by the national council, who are pledged too exclude all foreigners and refused to make an exception in favor of a Russian.

Russia's agent has been and is, according to Col. Younghusband, a Mongolian Buriat now known as Dorjieff a Russian subject, who left the monastery at Lhassa to collect money in Russia. He has twice been received by the Czar and the simple Thibetans readily accepted his assurances that a Russian offer of help against England made in the unofficial draft of the convention would be fulfilled, even naming the dates of its fulfillment.

Thus between the duplicity of Russia and England's determination to take advantage of the opportunity for strengthening her Indian border, suffer who may, the unfortunate Thibetans seem likely to undergo heavy losses and the bitter humiliation of seeing the sacred city violated by an outer heathen before they are again allowed to enjoy their peaceful existence in prayer, poverty and filth.

Berlin, June 15.—Hussemer, the naval sub-lieutenant, who murdered a soldier, his old schoolmate, in cold blood because the man had omitted to salute him in approved drill ground fashion, announces that he will go to America as soon as released from the fortress, where he is undergoing a ridiculous punishment, 18 months' so-called imprisonment with freedom to go to saloons and otherwise enjoy himself. The murder committed by Hussemer shocked the whole world except the court-martial appointed by the Kaiser to sit on his case. These gentlemen found that the murder was excusable and even necessary in the interest of discipline. They sentenced Hussemer only to appease public opinion.

It is to be hoped that the American emigration commissioners will turn Hussemer back as a criminal, irrespective of the fact that the German military authorities regard murder by an officer merely as an incident of military discipline.

MORE JAPANESE BLOWN TO PIECES

NINETEEN KILLED BY A MINE OFF PORT ARTHUR

Tokio, June 14.—While the Taiboku was engaged in laying mines at the entrance to Port Arthur last night a mine exploded killing one officer and eighteen men, and wounding two officers and seven men. The Taiboku, which is a naval transport, was not seriously damaged.

RUSSIANS EVACUATE YINKOW.

A long report has been received here from Admiral Togo, in which he covers the operations of the fleet since June 6, and repeats his former account of the bombardment of the west coast of the Liao Tung peninsula. The Admiral says that captain of a foreign vessel that left Yinkow on Wednesday, June 8, reports that the recent Japanese bombardment in the vicinity of Kaiping, south of New Chwang, caused the Russian forces, numbering 3,000, with twenty guns, to evacuate Yinkow.

LARGE SUN SPOT

It is Seventy two Times as Large as the World

London, June 15.—The largest sun spot of recent years was 3,530,000,000 square miles in area—that was to say it was seventy-two times as large as the world.

If it had been quite black it was estimated that the loss of light from the sun would equal the light of 2,000 full moons. Allowing, however, for the variations in the density of the spot, it was calculated that the loss amounted only to the light of 800 full moons.

Mr. E. Walter Saunders, F.R.A.S., who gave this information in a lecture at Gresham College this week said that this particular spot reached its magnitude on February 13, 1892.

CRISIS REACHED

Praying for Success of Russians Arms

St. Petersburg, June 15.—There is a feeling in all circles that a crisis in the affairs of Port Arthur is rapidly approaching. In several quarters the most optimistic feeling as to the outcome is expressed. Many persons spent the night in the churches on their knees, praying for the success of Russian arms.

The Novoe Vremya discussing the report that the submarine boat Protector, has been shipped from New York for Japan, expresses the hope that the United States will make a detailed explanation of why the boat was allowed to leave the United States.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

WHEN IN ROME DO AS THE ROMANS DO

PRACTICAL ADVICE THAT THE HOLY FATHERS GAVE

The Pope is Fond of Good Victuals but Must Eat What He Gets

Rome June 51.—A friend from Venice, who dined with the pope the other day, thought it strange that Pius banished his favorite dishes, the vegetable soups and stews he used to delight in when patriarch of Venice. He asked why the pope did not get a cook from his former seat.

"Dear brother," replied Pius, "I would like to, but cannot. If I did the cry would go up at once, 'A fine pope, who cares only for his stomach.' No, no, I am a Roman now, and must do as the Romans not only do, but eat like the Romans."

The pope has guests for dinner every day in the week except Saturdays. On Saturdays he abstains from meat the same as Fridays, but he does not think it right to ask his friends to do likewise. Saturday used to be a fast day with the old Christians, and Pius has revived the custom, but for his own person only. He is earning the title of "The Considerate" in addition to that of "The Well Beloved."

The misunderstanding with France may lead to a better understanding between the Vatican and the royal government. France has claimed the protectorate of Catholics in Oriental countries too long for Italian toleration. Italy wants to protect her own subjects in the Orient, for as long as she does not do so Orientals will not regard Italy as a great power. If the French cabinet insists upon widening the breach, Pope Pius may retaliate by renouncing The French protectorate over any Catholics not her subjects. There, then, would be Italy's chance to extend her influence in the Levant.

It is pointed out that the Italian people, though they may differ with the vatican on the question of temporal power, remain true to the Roman church. At the last elections only 1,000,000 anti-clerical votes were cast, not an overwhelming number among 36,000,000 of people.

MEN NOW AT WORK

The 6,000 or 8,000 Men Walking the Streets of Montreal all Working Except 800

Ottawa, June 15.—W. L. MacKenzie King, Deputy Minister of Labor, after an inquiry to ascertain the circumstances under which a large number of Italian navvies were brought out to this country and thrown on the charity of their fellow-countrymen, is preparing a full report to the Government. He finds that of the six or seven thousand who were walking the streets of Montreal a few weeks ago all have now obtained employment, but about eight hundred. Some were taken for railway work, some for corporation and other labor. The Immigration Department had nothing to do with bringing these Italians across. They were hired by employment agencies, and he finds that the headquarters of the movement was in Montreal. Mr. King's report will show all the terms imposed on the immigrants by the men who bring them out here. The Deputy Minister found that a great many more of the Italian newly arrived navvies would have secured engagement with the C.P.R. but for the fact that the latter has taken on an unusual number of Galicians and other settlers in Western Canada, who are in need of ready money.

SIGNS OF A STRIKE

Toronto Street Men Have Fears but Manager Has Nothing to say

Toronto, June 15.—"Absolutely nothing to say for publication," was the reply of Mr. E. H. Keating, general manager of the Toronto Railway Company, this morning. When shown a statement made in a morning paper to the effect that the company was making preparations at the various barns for a strike. Some employees say the company is putting gas pipes in the Yorkville barn, which they believe are to be used for cooking purposes by strike breakers. Large piles of lumber just placed indicate, they say, that the company is preparing to barricade the barn windows.

IMPECUNIOUS GERMAN NOBLES

They Have a Hard Time Raising Cash to Keep Body and Soul Together

Potsdam, June 15.—American multi-millionaires with marriageable daughters should cut this out and paste it in their hat. During the trial of the case of Count Koenigsmarck against his father for refusal to pay him a yearly appanage agreed upon, it appeared that this nobleman, belonging to one of the first families on the continent, was content to keep his wife, born Princess Carolath, on an income of 14,000 marks ($3,500) a year. Even this the father refused to pay in the long run, but the court made him live up to his promises. The case is the more remarkable as British dukes and lords and German barons usually demand a couple of hundred thousand dollars per annum from prospective American fathers-in-law—demand and get them, too, while here we have a dyed-in-the-wool count and a princess of ancient lineage perfectly content to grub along on $67.35 per week, and even that the noble father-in-law can only be made to shell out by order of the court.

Furthermore, it developed at the trial that the Prince of Carolath, the father of Countess Koenigsmarck makes his daughter "a royal grant" of $31.25 a week. And this prince indulges in a string of titles that would make an eastern potentate burst with envy. A count and a prince between them cannot raise $38.60 per week for their own flesh and blood, and the Goulds pay Boni Castellane $250,000 per year while the Vanderbilts double the amount to keep the Duke of Marlborough from selling the gold in his wife's teeth, besides the other bric-a-brac.

Will Not Canvass the Merchants.

The Odd Fellows have decided this year to not canvass the merchants, as in former years, to close their places of business on Decoration Day, June 16th. The intention is to ask through the press, that the day be observed as in the past. Thus allowing the employes to take part. The merchants who comply with this request will confer on the local lodges a favor.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modern investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:—The Smuggler, Gangrea, Black Jack, Star and Red Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,600 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 226 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

H. J. Cody

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

Rose, and in the exuberance of her joy, she was darting away, when Henry held her back until further explanations were made.

This did not occupy them long, for sitting down again upon the bank, Rose briefly told him all she knew, and when with eager joy he asked "Where is she now?" she pointed toward the spot, and then with Henry walked away, for she knew that it was not for her to witness that glad meeting.

The river rolls on with its heaving swell, and the white foam is tossed toward the shore, while the soft summer air still bears on its wing the sound of the cataract's roar. But Margaret sees it not, hears it not. There is a spell upon her now—a halo of joy, and she only knows that a strong arm is around her, and a voice is in her ear, whispering that the bosom on which her weary head is pillowed shall be her resting-place forever.

It had come to her suddenly, sitting there thus—the footfall upon the sand had not been heard, the shadow upon the grass had not been seen, and his presence had not been felt, till, bending low, Mr. Carrollton said aloud, "My Maggie!"

Then indeed she started up, and turned to see who it was that thus so much like him had called her name. She saw who it was, and looking in his face, she knew she was not hated, and, with a moaning cry, went forward to the arms extended to receive her.

* * * * * * *

Four guests, instead of one, went forth that afternoon from the International — four guests homeward bound, and eager to be there. No more journeying now for happiness, no more searching for the lost; for both are found, both are there—happiness and Maggie Miller.

CHAPTER XXIV.

Impatient, restless and cross, Madam Conway lay in Margaret's room, scolding Theo, and chiding Mrs. Jeffrey; both of whom, though trying their utmost to suit her, managed unfortunately to do always just what she wished them not to do. Mrs. Jeffrey's hands were usually too cold, while Theo's were too hot. Mrs. Jeffrey made the head of the bed too high Theo altogether too low. In short, neither of them ever did what Margaret would have done had she been there, and so day after day the lady complained, growing more and more unanimable, until at last. Theo began to talk seriously of following Margaret's example and running away herself, at least as far as Worcester; but the distressed Mrs. Jeffrey, terrified at the thoughts of being left there alone, begged of her to stay a little longer, offering the comforting assurance that "it could not be so bad always, for Madam Conway would either get better—or something."

So Theo stayed, enduring with a martyr's patience the caprices of her grandmother, who kept the whole household in a constant state of excitement, and who at last began to blame George Douglas entirely as being the only one in fault. "He didn't half look," she said, "and she doubted whether he knew enough to keep from losing himself in New York. It was the most foolish thing Arthur Carrollton had ever done, hiring George Douglas to search!"

"Hiring him, grandma!" cried Theo. "George offered his services for nothing," and the tears came to her eyes at this injustice done to her husband.

But Madam Conway persisted in being unreasonable, and matters grew gradually worse until the day when Margaret was found at the Falls. On that morning Madam Conway determined upon riding—"fresh air would do her good," she said, "and they had kept her in a hot chamber long enough."

Accordingly, the carriage was brought out, and Madam Conway carefully lifted in; but ere fifty rods were passed the coachman was ordered to drive back, as "she could not endure the jolt—she told them she couldn't all the time," and her eyes turned reprovingly upon poor Theo, sitting silently in the opposite corner.

"The Lord help me, if she isn't coming back—so soon," sighed Mrs. Jeffrey, as she saw the carriage returning, and went to meet the invalid, who had "taken her death cold," just as she knew she should, when they insisted upon her going out.

That day was far worse than any which had preceded it. It was probably her last, Madam Conway said, and numerous were the charges she gave to Theo concerning Margaret should she ever be found. The house, the farm, the furniture and plate, were all to be hers, while to Theo was given the lady's wardrobe, saving such articles as Margaret might choose for herself, and if she never was found, the house and farm were to be Mr. Carrolton's. This was too much for Theo, who resolved to go home on the morrow at all hazards, and she had commenced making preparations for leaving, when to her great joy her husband came, and in recounting to him her trials, she forgot in a measure how unhappy she had been. George Douglas was vastly amused at what he heard and resolved to experiment a little with the lady, who was so weak as to notice him only with a slight nod when he first entered the room. He saw at a glance that nothing in particular was the matter, and when toward night she lay panting for breath, with her eyes half closed, he approached her and said: "Madam, in case you die——"

"In case I die," she whispered, indignantly. "It doesn't admit of a doubt. "My feet are as cold as icicles now."

"Certainly," said he. "I beg your pardon; of course you'll die."

The lady turned away rather defiantly for a dying woman, and George continued: "What I mean to say is this—if Margaret is never found, you wish the house to be Mr. Carrollton's?"

"Yes, everything, my wardrobe and all," came from beneath the bedclothes, and George proceeded: "Mr. Carrollton cannot of course take the house to England, and as he will need a trusty tenant, would you object greatly if my father and mother should come here to live? They'd like it, I——"

The sentence was unfinished—the bunches in the throat, which for hours had prevented the sick woman from speaking aloud, and were eventually to choke her to death, disappeared. Madam Conway found her voice, and, starting up, screamed out "That abominable woman and heathenish girl in this house, in my house! I'll live forever first!" and her round, bright eyes flashed forth their indignation.

"I thought the mention of mother would revive her," said George aside to Theo, who, convulsed with laughter, had hidden herself behind the window curtains.

Mr Douglas was right, for not again that afternoon did Madam Conway speak of dying, though she kept her bed until nightfall, when an incident occurred which brought her at once to her feet, making her forget that she had ever been otherwise than well.

In her cottage by the mine, old Hagar had raved, and sung and wept, talking much of Margaret, but never telling whither she had gone. Latterly, however, she had grown more calm, talking far less than heretofore, and sleeping a great portion of the day, so that the servant who attended her became neglectful, leaving her many hours alone, while she, at the stone house, passed her time more agreeably than at the lonesome hut. On the afternoon of which we write she was, as usual, at the house, and though the sun went down, she did not hasten back, for her patient, she said, was sure to sleep, and even if she woke she did not need much care.

Meantime old Hagar slumbered on. It was a deep, refreshing sleep, and when at last she did awake her reason was in a measure restored, and she remembered everything distinctly up to the time of Margaret's last visit, when she said she was going away. And Margaret had gone away, she was sure of that, for she remembered Arthur Carrollton stood once within that room and besought of her to tell if she knew aught of Maggie's destination. She did know, but she had not told, and perhaps they had not found her yet. Raising herself in bed, she called aloud to the servant, but there came no answer; and for an hour or more she waited impatiently, growing each moment more and more excited. If Margaret were found she wished to know it, and if she were not found it was surely her duty to go at once and tell them where she was. But could she walk! She stepped upon the floor and tried. Her limbs trembl-

AN ANGEL VISITS RENFRO

MAN WHO WAS STRICKEN DEAF AND DUMB IN CHICAGO WRITES OF VISION

Believes His Affliction of Divine Origin and that the Cure will be the Same.

I lost my hearing. I saw a beautiful light in one corner of the room. It reminded me of lightning. In the midst of this light there appeared an angel. I remember the scene perfectly. The vision lasted for a few moments only, then disappeared as suddenly as it came."

These words were written recently by St. Julien Renfro, who was stricken deaf and dumb in Chicago last Tuesday immediately after he had expressed disbelief in the existence of God. Renfro is at the home of B. A. Barrow 2003 Seventh street. He will go to Shreveport, where his mother lives in a few days.

WRITES OF AFFLICTION.

In further description of his experience he wrote:

"I told my friends that unless the God they believed in would strike me deaf and dumb I would not believe there was one. Almost as soon as I finished the sentence the power of speech was taken away from me, and a few minutes afterward I was unable to hear anything my friends were saying, nor was I aware of any noise going on about me. I was stricken so suddenly that I hardly knew what had happened. I tried to address my friends, but that was impossible, and since that day I have been unable to hear or utter a word.

BELIEVES IN GOD.

"Now I am sure there is a God and have every reason to believe that God wants me to work for him. From now on I shall spend my life in His service.

"I am confident of getting all right. I believe my powers will be returned to me through the same source from which I was relieved of them."

Renfro said he would not consult a specialist nor try any other way to secure scientific relief from his affliction. He was asked regarding a statement in a Shreveport dispatch to the effect that he was greatly affected by the crow of a cock. He wrote in answer that he was extremely nervous at times, but did not remember when the cry of a rooster had any effect on his nervous system. "While I am of a nervous nature," he wrote, "I cannot be shaken as easily as that."

LOCK CO. TO BUILD.

This Action was Decided on at a Meeting of Shareholders Held on Monday

At a special meeting of the shareholders of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, held in the office of the company on Monday, the question of building was taken up, and after being fully discussed, the directors were instructed to have plans prepared and buildings erected upon terms of the bylaw recently passed by the Town Council.

The directors were also instructed to dispose of the lease of the buildings now occupied on Simcoe street. Mr. J. E. Belcher has been commissioned to prepare plans and specifications for the new buildings, and it is stated that they will be proceeded with without delay.

A RARE CHANCE

FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.

BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

CRIPPLE CREEK ENTERPRISE GOLD MINING COMPANY

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details. The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion. Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

Property includes six full claims, with a 38 foot ore body extending across 3200 feet of this property, determined by a tunnel 500 feet and open cuts and shafts every new one. Why does St. Louis Gold Mining Co. offer the investor a chance for a money.

1. Do you know that its title is free and clear?
2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company

of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are secured to possess in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless y eally are interested, because on waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9,000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $10 to $50 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein system averaged $20.25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 500 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

75 Cents Per Share, Par Value $1.00

INVESTORS are afforded every opportunity for the strictest investigation regarding the property and the reputation of the officers and directors. Highest banking references.

THE LAST TRAIN.

How the Ammunition Train Got Into Port Arthur.

Liao Yang, June 15.—Your correspondent helped to escort an ammunition train to Port Arthur, the last that went and was returned here from Kin Chou, after a short talk with General Fork. The train arrived from Mukden early in the morning and the military authorities at once asked for volunteers to help escort it to Port Arthur. "We must get it there this morning or all will be lost," said the commander of the town.

Two Russian lieutenants responded and as one of them was a friend of your correspondent I was permitted to go along. We started on a hand car with an electric motor, furnished with signal apparatus and the understanding was that the moment we espied traces of the enemy we signal to the train, following at a distance of 500 paces. The train consisted of 25 cars and was drawn by three powerful locomotives. Horsemen had preceded us, having a start of five miles, but we soon got ahead of them. We kept a good lookout and occasionally dismounted, climbed hills and telegraph poles to scour the neighborhood with our field glasses. Suddenly there was a dust cloud ahead. We concluded to advance a little further and then signal and some anxious minutes passed. But as we came nearer our apprehensions vanished, the dust was caused by a patrol of Cossacks sent towards us from Kin Chou by General Fork.

The commander caused us to hoist hurry signals and within a minute's time we received answer that the train was now going ahead full speed. So all danger was passed and we continued to journey in hilarious spirits. Think of it, a single bomb would have sufficed to send the whole train skyward inclusive of the convoy of 300 sharpshooters.

General Fork and the staff were on the platform in Kin Chou. They gave us a glorious reception and a fine breakfast, which was fully appreciated, I assure you.

"Now we have enough ammunition of every kind to defend Port Arthur," said General Fork as the train drew into the station. "Our magazines will are prepared for any emergency now."

Half an hour later we returned to Liao Yang on the locomotive.

DUE TO POLES.

Liao Yang, June 15.—I hear on good authority that General Kuropatkin attributes the unsuccess of his army to the great admixture of Polish soldiers. Thirty per cent. of the Russian troops at the front are Poles and every one of them hates and loathes Russia. As a consequence they seek only for opportunity to throw the lines into disorder and give themselves up as prisoners.

NEGROES MAKING TROUBLE

American Church Interference in Africa Resented by Natal's Premier

Durban, Natal, June 13.—Premier Sutton, referring in the legislature to reports that the Ethiopian church was striving to provoke a native revolt, said that no actual trouble had been proved, but that the interference by representatives of an American negro church in promoting the Ethiopian movement might become an international question. The government was entirely agreed that such efforts ought to be excluded from the colony.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 225 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1900.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

ESTABLISHED 1874

ENDOWMENTS AT LIFE RATES

HOW do the rates compare with those of other companies?

The rates are the same as the principal Canadian Companies charge for "Whole Life" and "Twenty Payment Life" policies

WHERE can these policies be secured?

From any agent of the LONDON LIFE.

WHEN do these policies become endowments and are the endowments guaranteed or estimated?

The policies mature as endowments at about expectation of life and are absolutely guaranteed.

WHAT kind of settlement does the LONDON LIFE give at the end of twenty years?

FIVE OPTIONS or methods of settlement are offered at the end of twenty years.

The guaranteed cash surrender is the largest in Canada for the premium paid.

WHAT options are given policy holders in case of lapse or surrender

The policy holder may select one of four options.

1st. PAID UP INSURANCE for reduced amounts payable as endowments at maturity period.

2nd. EXTENDED INSURANCE for a fixed number of years and months for full amount of policy less premiums and interest thereon unpaid.

3rd. CASH LOANS.

4th. CASH SURRENDER VALUES.

WHAT THEN?

Send for booklet entitled "Endowment at Life Rate." Mailed to any address, apply to

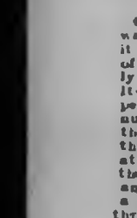
CATARRH

Don't Drug the Stomach — Breathe Nature's Remedy, Catarrhozone — Both Pleasant and Easy to Use. Guarantee of Cure goes with it.



Catarrhozone always cures because it reaches the source of the disease quickly and thoroughly. Its healing vapor penetrates the minutest air cells of the nasal passages, throat and lungs. It attacks the cause of the disease direct, and doesn't work in a round about way through the stomach.

The antiseptics in Catarrhozone kill the germs that cause catarrh. It clears the nostrils, cures headache and foul breath. It prevents droppings in the throat, allays inflammation. Catarrhozone now.

So certain is Catarrhozone to remove and cure that doctors, ministers and public speakers keep it as their standby for coughs, colds, catarrh and throat trouble. Because it lasts so long it is cheap, and as it is sure to cure even the poorest can afford to buy it.

Mrs. J. A. Morris, of Perth, Ont., writes, "I cannot withhold my testimony for Catarrhozone. It cured my daughter of chronic catarrh and I therefore heartily recommend it to all sufferers. No house should be without Catarrhozone."

Why not use Catarrhozone? It cures colds in a few hours, and no case of catarrh can withstand it. Catarrhozone cures by the inhalation of medicated air which goes to all parts of the lungs, throat and breathing organs. A pleasant, certain, quick cure follows the use of Catarrhozone, which is guaranteed under all conditions to cure catarrh in any part of the system.

Two months' treatment, hard rubber inhaler and extra bottle costs only one dollar; sample size 25c. Sold by all druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co. Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn., U.S.A. Ormation, heals sore spots and running at the nose.

TO DECORATE THE GRAVES.

THE BEAUTIFUL CEREMONY TO BE PERFORMED TO-DAY

In Memory of the Departed Oddfellows—A monument to be Unveiled by the Wood men.

The brethren of Peterborough and Otonabee Lodges of the Independent Order of Oddfellows will pay their annual visit to the graves of departed brethren in the Little Lake cemetery this afternoon, and according to custom, will decorate the graves of their departed comrades with flowers. The brethren will meet in Central Park at 1.30 o'clock and from there proceed in a body to the cemetery, each one carrying a bouquet for the purpose. The 57th Band will form part of the procession and assist in the services, by the rendering of suitable music for the occasion. The ceremony is appropriate and impressive, and will be attended by the delivery of short addresses by local clergymen.

The Woodmen of the World will also unveil a monument to their late sovereign, Mr. John Fanning, at the same time and will join the procession to the cemetery for that purpose.

The deceased brethren whose members of the Oddfellows will honor on the occasion, are:

Mr. W. H. Meldrum Proposes Erecting a New Mill and Elevator

Providing it is possible to get necessary siding rights from the Council to run a branch along Simcoe street, Mr. Meldrum proposes to erect a mill and elevator near the east end of Simcoe street. Mr. Meldrum said he would either build here or enlarge at Fenelon Falls. The mill will be of a 350 to 500 barrel capacity, while the elevator will be sufficiently large for the mill—from forty to fifty thousand bushels. It is proposed to manufacture flour and cereals. It is thought that the Council will give favorable consideration to Mr. Meldrum's application. It will cause considerable of an expenditure for these buildings, besides the amount spent weekly in wages.

THE PETERBOROUGH RADIAL RAILWAY

Officers for the Year Elected and Other Business Transacted

A meeting of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, the first under the reorganization since its transfer to the American Cereal Co., was held on Tuesday, and the following officers elected:—

President—Mr. Robert Stuart.

Secretary and Managing Director—Mr. J. H. Learmouth, C.E.

Directors—Mr. H. P. Erowell, of Chicago, J. C. Shook and T. E. Bradburn.

The work on the rebuilding of the old line is progressing satisfactorily, and it was stated at the meeting that the expectation was to have the railway in operation by August 1st.

The Hydraulic Power Company elected officers also. This company will be practically under the same management as the Railway Company.

THE FIRSTBORN.

Why is it that the firstborn child is so often the healthiest of a family of children? The reason seems to suggest itself. As child follows child the mother has less and less vitality; often not enough for herself and none, therefore, for her child.

Expectant mothers who use Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription find that it keeps them in vigorous health. They eat well, sleep well and are not nervous. When baby comes its advent is practically painless, and the mother is made happy by the birth of a healthy child. If you would be a healthy mother of healthy children use "Favorite Prescription."

"I will be very glad to say a few words for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. P. E. Douglas, of Manssonville, Brome Co., Quebec. "During the first four months, when I looked forward to becoming a mother, I suffered very much from nausea and vomiting, and I felt so terribly sick I could scarcely eat or drink anything. I hated all kinds of food. At this time I wrote to Dr. Pierce, and he told me to get his 'Favorite Prescription' and a bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I got a bottle of each, and when I had taken them a few days, I felt much better, and when I had taken hardly three parts of each bottle I felt well and could eat as well as any one, and could do my work without any trouble (I could not do anything before). I feel very thankful to Dr. Pierce for his medicine, and I tell all who tell me they are sick, to get these medicines, or write to Dr. Pierce."

Those who suffer from chronic diseases are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

Decoration Day

The annual decoration service of Otonabee and Peterborough Lodges I.O.O.F., will be held next Thursday afternoon, June 16th. The brethren are requested to meet at 1.45 sharp at Central Park, each to provide himself with a hand bouquet, and to wear a white tie and white gloves. The brethren will proceed in a body, headed by the 57th Regiment Band, from the Park to Little Lake cemetery, where they will decorate the graves of deceased members, after which appropriate speeches will be delivered by local ministers.

Friends bringing flowers are requested to leave them at Nugent's drug store on Thursday morning if possible. 3t.

A Bad Young Boy

Yesterday a boy named Theobald was arrested for stealing a horse and rig, and lodged in the cells. It appears the lad, who is only eight years of age, has been in the habit of jumping into rigs that are left standing round, and driving off. Only a short time ago it is alleged he took a horse belonging to a Douro farmer, that was tied in the shed of the National Hotel, and made off with it. The horse was recovered after the lad had driven round town for a couple of hours. Yesterday he helped himself to the horse and rig belonging to Mr. George Hutchinson, tinsmith, and was captured after a stiff chase. The child was delivered over to his mother, but will have to appear before the Police Magistrate and answer for his conduct.

MANY MINERS UNDER ARREST

Cripple Creek Authorities Issue Warrants for Union Leaders

MORE MEN ARE DEPORTED

Thirty-two Miners Sent Out on Train Presumably Bound for old Mexico

Denver, June 17.—Eighty-seven warrants, charging murder, have been placed in the hands of the sheriff here to be served on union miners, many of them leaders in the Western Federation, who are accused of complicity in the dynamite outrage at the Independence station and in rioting at Victor. Among the men wanted are Sherman Parker, secretary of the Altman union, who was acquitted after having been held in the bullpen three months on a charge of wrecking a train near Cripple Creek; E. L. Whiting, secretary of the Engineers' Union at Cripple Creek and W. F. Davis, president of the Altman Miners' Union. Secretary Heywood and other officers of the federation say many of the accused men were delegates to the miners' convention in this city at the time of the Independence explosion, and were present in that gathering. Some of the men have left Colorado to avoid arrest.

DECLARE WAR ON UNIONS.

A committee of forty leading business men at Cripple Creek to-day unanimously agreed upon the following statement of the attitude of employers toward organized labor in that district:

"In the future neither walking delegates, agitators nor labor unions will be allowed to say who many or who may not labor in Teller County, who may or who may not do business here. The source of all strife in the Cripple Creek district has been the Western Federation of Miners and the Trades Assembly, which they dominated, and through which they carried out their boycotts, etc.

"There is no room in Teller County for these two organizations, and their existence will no longer be tolerated. Unions of the various crafts already organized will not be interfered with as to their local or international affiliations, provided the trades assembly be forthwith disbanded and no similar boycotting agency be organized; provided further that such unions of the local crafts have not for their national or international affiliation the Western Federation of Miners, and American Labor Union, the State Federation of Labor or any kindred criminal organization.

"We declare against all agitators and walking delegates.

"We declare against strikes, boycotts and walkouts."

MORE ARE DEPORTED.

Thirty-two of the prisoners confined in the bullpen at Cripple Creek were placed aboard a train to-day and deported. It is reported that the destination of the men is old Mexico. The military officers will give no definite information on this point.

In a statement intended to justify the deportation of miners General Bell says:

"It is not uncommon out here for the peaceful citizens to go to a man of the community and tell him to go, that he is not wanted. Such a notice is never disregarded. The people have the unwritten power to impose a sentence & enforced departure upon those, who having transgressed no written law, are yet disturbing elements in the general peace. If these men return they will be confined indefinitely in the military prison."

All mines except the Portland were open to-day and there was no disorder.

RIVER SWALLOWS A FARM

Iowa Man Sees Last of His Four Hundred Acres Disappear

Sioux City, Iowa, June 17.—A fine farm of 400 acres lying along the Missouri river in Lakeport township, south of this city, has been literally eaten up by the river. The land was worth $75 an acre and was owned by Robert Buchanan. It has taken just five years for this farm to be completely swallowed by the river. The merciless stream is still cutting heavily on other farms in the vicinity. The land belonging to the John Nairn estate has suffered a loss of over 200 acres.

SOME OFFICERS WANT A BANQUET

To Signify Their Appreciation of Lord Dundonald

HE HAS BEEN SACRIFICED

Local Officers Discussing Who is Likely to Succeep to Command of Militia

Montreal, June 17.—Now that the removal of Lord Dundonald has been determined upon by the Federal Government, the officers of the local military organizations are free in their expressions of sympathy for the General Officer Commanding.

There has never been a Briton occupying the exalted post who has so endeared himself to all ranks of military men.

The question of who shall succeed Lord Dundonald is now agitating the local officers, who, so far as can be learned, are a unit against the appointment of any Canadian. "There is no officer in Canada," said a local commanding officer, "who would fill the bill in any respect. One might be found engaged in the Imperial army, but, in that event, the same conditions as presently obtain would be perpetuated. Educated, say, at the Royal Military College, at Kingston, the Canadian, whoever he might be, would since have had a number of years's experience in the British Army, and would view all matters relating to the militia from a military standpoint. It is inconceivable, then, that his decisions would be any more acceptable to a Canadian Government than have been those of Lord Dundonald.

It is suggested that the retiring G. O. C. be banquetted previous to his departure from Canada.

JEWELER SHOT BY HIS WIFE.

Quarrel Following Street Fair Ends in Tragedy at Marshall, Ill.

Marshall, Ill., June 17.—Mack W. Morton, a jeweler of this city, was shot and killed by his wife about 12 o'clock last night after a bitter quarrel, during which he threatened her life. Mrs. Morton is being held for the shooting.

The killing caused a sensation, as both Morton and his wife were members of leading families and prominent in social circles. After the shooting it developed that the couple had been having a great deal of domestic trouble and of late their quarrels had been frequent.

A street fair was in progress and Mr. and Mrs. Morton were down town in their carriage during the evening. When they reached home a quarrel was begun and Morton was heard to threaten his wife. He said he would again go downtown and to this she objected. He made an effort to leave the house, but she seized him by the coat, placed her pistol against his left breast and fired. The bullet pierced a large artery, causing death in a few seconds.

WIRELESS FOR A POOLROOM

New System of Telegraphy will Give Racing Fans Better

Memphis, Tenn., June 17.—Preliminary arrangements have been completed for the first test of wireless telegraphy in serving G. C. Bennett's poolroom with results of races at eastern and western tracks. The poolroom is in Arkansas, on the banks of the Mississippi river, directly opposite Memphis. Private messages will be sent to the Memphis branch of the Western Union and it is intended to transmit winners, odds, etc., by Wireless telegraphy from Memphis to Arkansas.

An agent of the De Forest system has arrived with wireless paraphernalia and the experiment is being watched by other poolrooms in the south. The first test will be made to-morrow.

LORD DUNDONALD

THE B.N.A. ACT IS VIOLATED

Claim Sturgeon Falls Public Schools People

STRUGGLE ONLY BEGUN

They will Resist Payment of Taxes Under the Recent Act of the Legisature

Sturgeon Falls, June 17.—The Public School supporters of this place are in the toils of forces Vedias. Their opponents in the contest for taxes have obtained an Act of Parliament which may or may not be effective in securing funds for the separate schools. The validity of the bill is yet to be tested. The Public School trustees have no intention of paying the money on demand. The Separate School supporters are feeling around to find out what they have to expect when the time comes to ask for the money which the act of last session presumably secures to them.

On that point, Mr. Fournier, the secretary of the Separate School Board, is confident of plain sailing.

SEPARATE SCHOOL MEN CONFIDENT.

"When the time comes we will present our bill and it will be paid," he said. Further than that he is not disposed to talk on the subject. Other Separate School supporters are showing their anger at the activity of certain gentlemen who were in the forefront of the opposition. Mr. A. A. Beach, who visited Toronto during the agitation, has incurred the enmity of the Separate School supporters and they have made it plain to him.

Mr. T. G. S. McAmmond, the chairman of the Public School Board says there has been no discussion, formally or informally, on the part of that body or its members. A spirit of determination to resist payment is displayed, but beyond getting legal opinions as to the rights of the Board in the event of a demand being made nothing has been done.

HAS THE B. N. A. ACT BEEN VIOLATED?

The solicitor of the Public School Board has all along held that the act of the Legislature is ultra vires. His contention is that the British North America Act is violated by the recent legislation. To support that view, he quotes a clause which says in effect that the rights and privileges enjoyed by any denomination "in respect to education" at the time of Confederation shall not be affected by any subsequent legislation.

That clause was inserted for the protection of the Roman Catholic minority. The interpretation put upon it in the present case is that Public School supporters have the right and privilege to refuse to contribute to the maintenance of Separate Schools. That is a right with respect to education that an act of the Legislature cannot interfere with. Whether the argument will hold in court is a question. It is certainly ingenious, and probably gives ground for an appeal that may be carried to the court of last resort.

PROTESTANTS WILL REFUSE TO PAY.

The Public School trustees anticipate a demand for the taxes under the special act. When it is made they will refuse to comply. They expect the Separate School Board will secure a judgment for the amount. Then the legal fight will begin. Just how the judgment can be enforced is a matter of speculation. The solicitor of the Public School Board is not prepared with an opinion as to whether the property of the Board can be levied upon, or whether the town treasurer can be compelled to pay it. The case will not, however, be left in that position, for there will be active resistance to any legal process that may be entered upon to collect the money.

PETERBOROUGH CHEESE BOARD

Quiet Meeting Yesterday A Slight Advance in Price

The adjourned meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held in the Council Chamber Wednesday morning, Mr. Drummond, president, in the chair, and the following buyers present: Messrs. Kerr, Fitzgerald, Cook, Whitton, Rollins, Wrighton, Gillespie.

The following factories boarded cheese:

Killarney	76

The president asked for bids on May cheese and Mr. Cook offered 8c Whitton offered 8 1-16c, and called for Myrtle and Ormonde, the two factories that were boarded. Myrtle refused, but Ormonde accepted.

Bids were called for June cheese, and Mr. Rollins offered 8c, Fitzgerald 8 1-8, and Wrighton 8 33-16. Mr Wrighton called for Myrtle, Fraserville, Bensfort, Indian River and East Emily.

Mr. Fitzgerald offered 8 3-16 and selected the following: Keene, Central Smith, Westwood, Villiers. He offered 8 1-8 for further selections and called Shearer, Lakefield, Trewern, Mount Pleasant, but they all refused.

Mr. Cook offered 8 1-8, and called the following: Missing Link, Dartford, Lang, but they all refused.

Mr. Whitton offered 8 3-16 for Ormonde's May cheese, which was accepted.

Mr. Kerr offered 8 1-8 and called Warminster, Pine Grove, Norwood, but they all refused.

Mr. Cook asked for permission to call about 200 cheese at 8 3-16c, and called Lang, Missing Link, Mount Pleasant, Dartford and Brickley, all accepting.

Mr. Whitton called Shamrock at 8 1-8c but it refused.

The Board then adjourned for one week.

CRUSHING BLOW TO TRADE UNION

Refusal of a Rochester Clothing Firm to Renew Agreement is so Regarded Rochester, N.Y., June 17.—What is regarded as the most crushing blow trade unionism has received in Rochester is the refusal of the Rothschild & Co. to renew their agreement with the United Garment Workers of America. This action leaves the organization without a single factory of importance in this city. The eight-hour working day is now a thing of the past, as all the great clothing houses have gone back to the nine-hour system. The employes of the Rothschild factory have decided to remain loyal to the firm. At a mass meeting of the men held to-day President Chambers, of local 136, and other leaders of the United Garment Workers of America were on hand, and used all their powers of persuasion without avail to induce the Rothschild factory operatives to oppose the wishes of their employers. The men voted unanimously in favor of remaining at at work even with the extra hour. As a final alternative, Chambers and the other labor leaders told the men that they must choose between remaining in Mr. Rothschild's employ and suffering expulsion from the union.

THE AWFUL PRICE PAID FOR WAR

Is Now Costing Japan a Million a Day

RUSSIA IS STILL MORE

Britain Now Paying the Price of Her Scrap in South Africa

New York, June 17.—The financial cost of war may not be the most important ground on which to decry it, but it is likely to appeal to the sober second thought of our so-called civilized nations as no other consideration will do, says the Observer. In a budget speech Mr. Gladstone once made the following statement:

"The expenses of a war are the moral check which it has pleased the Almighty to impose upon the ambition and lust of conquest that are inherent in so many nations. There is pomp and circumstance, there is glory and excitement about war, which, notwithstanding the misseries it entails, invests it with charms in the eyes of the community, and tends to blind men to those evils to a fearful and dangerous degree. The necessity of meeting from year to year the expenditures which it entails is a salutary and wholesome check, making them feel what they are about and making them measure the cost of the benefit upon which they may calculate."

Great Britain is to-day paying the financial price of the recent long-drawn-out conflict with the Boers in South Africa, and the people find the price a heavy one. Naturally, the nations of Europe, who are at present only spectators of the Russo-Japanese war, hope that the conflict may be limited to the two nations now actively engaged in hostilities. None of them has any money to throw away, and in the event of a general European imbroglio the expense would be simply enormous. Accepting the estimate of about 400,000 soldiers as the present total of the Japanese army, the cost of landing this force on the Corean or Manchurian coast at the horses, artillery and supplies, would rate of $10 per man, exclusive of be $4,000,000.

M. Roche, formerly French minister of commerce, estimates that the cost of war to Japan, including her navy, will be a million dollars a day. That means the entire earnings of 8,000,000 Japanese toilers, since their average wage is 12 cents a da

BY OUR SPORTING EDITOR

The Intermediate C.L.A. game, which was advertised for yesterday afternoon between the Peterboroughs and the Orillia lacrosse teams, did not take place, the local team having dropped from the C.L.A. running. An exhibition game was put on, which proved to be just as interesting and exciting to the spectators, very few of them being aware of the fact that it was not a championship match. The visitors came down by special excursion train, and were accompanied by about 400 people, most of whom took in the game and made themselves heard during the match.

Both teams put up a good exhibition of lacrosse, the game being closely contested throughout. The visitors' combination work was superior being more accurate than the locals, some of whom showed lack of practice. Peterborough scored the only goal in the first quarter, after about 3 minutes' play, Cavanah putting the ball through after a neat piece of combination in which Mein, Parnell and Cavanah figured. During the remainder of the quarter and throughout the second quarter the locals had considerably the best of the game, and the ball was kept in the vicinity of the Orillia net, their defense being kept busy by the locals home. In the second quarter Areas spoiled a nice one of Cavanah's who shot on a pass from Best. Parnell also had a good opportunity, but the ball went a little wide. Hamilton, who was in the nets for the locals, was called upon to stop one from Whitehead, but Curran got through and scored the first for the visitors, making the score a tie 1-1. This was followed by one for the locals in 1 minute on a clever piece of combination the whole length of the field, the ball passing from Dillon, at point, to Cavanah, to Dumble, to Robertson, who scored. This ended the scoring in the first half. Curran and Hammond, of the visitors, and Mein, of the locals, were given short rests for minor offences.

In the first quarter of the second half Orillia again tied, Donaldson scoring on a pass from Whitehead. The next also went to the visitors, Whitehead shot and Hamilton stopped, but Pennock was right in on the nets and scooped it in. Immediately after play was resumed Robertson evened things up by putting one past Arens on a pass from Best. The deciding goal was taken by the visitors just before time had expired, making the score 4—3 in Orillia's favor. In this half Parnell, Ford and Quinn were ruled off.

For the locals Mein played a star game and was in the game from the start.

Ford, at centre, showed up well. His hard checking was very effective.

Crowley kept his man well under and with the assistance of Ford and Mein fed the home well.

Parnell and Dumble were always in the game.

Robertson, Best and Cavanah kept the visitor's defence busy, and Arens was kept on the lookout.

In the last quarter the local's home began to lag somewhat. Their shooting was also bad, many of the players having been out to practice but a few times this season.

The visitors home found a pretty hard proposition in Dillon, Morgan and Glover.

O'Connor and Hinds played a good defence game for the visitors.

Whitehead, at 1st home, was the pick of the Orillia home.

The Orillia bunch have just returned from a tour, having won four games out of five while away. They were all in good condition and stood the pace better than the locals.

The following players represented the teams:

FOOTBALL.

Caughnawaga June 16.—The football club ran an excursion to Harwood and was followed by about forty supporters, who cheered the boys on to victory. This was the last game of the M. F. A. series, and was well contested on both sides, fast and clean play was the leading topic. It was evident from the very start off that the boys in green were out to win, but their supporters were somewhat daunted when, with the wind in their favor, could not score in the first half, although they gave the red coats enough goal kicks to play out a dozen goal tenders.

The second half began in earnest, when the visitors pressed the goal so closely that Harwood could not prevent a score. Joe Lonergan notched the first and only goal in 7 minutes and the visitors' cheers could be heard a mile away. Then the boys with the striped shirts rushed it down through the tall grass, time after time, only to be met and reversed by Coughlan and Lonergan. The latter once clashed with a Harwood man and the red and white stripes ascended and then descended about seven days' bigging. That's no surprise to the Quakers, is it Perce? Turning from that we find the ball again in the Harwood territory, and but for a little hard luck Fallon would have notched the greens another, but the score remained 1—0 till time was called.

The management of the Caughnawagas now see their mistake in playing Norwood away against the Quarkers, for they were in fine shape to win had they played as they should.

The following is a list of the games lost and won since the M. F. A. series began, as regards Caughnawaga.

May 7th—Won from Harwood at Norwood Park, 3—0

May 11th—Lost to Quakers, at Oval, 2—1.

May 14—Game defaulted game not called.

May 20th—Caughnawaga defaulted game not called, in Keene.

May 24th—Won from Keene, 1—0.

May 28th—Won from Quakers, at Park, 2—0.

June 1st—Lost to Keene, at Keene, by default, wet day.

June 3rd—Won from Harwood, 1—0.

As we understand, it was agreed that if the 1st of June was showery the game in Keene would not be played, and as it turned out so the boys did not go to Keene and were sorely annoyed when Keene claimed the game. The Chipmunk "gang" have not won a game this season, except it was by default, and they were just mean enough to claim the game for June 1st and default to the Quakers on the 7th, thereby shutting out the boys in green and white from any hope of winning. The Quakers were scheduled to play our boys at Norwood for a sudden death game, but it was considered unnecessary to play any more, thereby allowing the district to the Quakers. The champions we can safely say are the most gentlemanly lot of fellows that ever faced a ball. They win square or not at all. They now stand at the top of the class and well deserved their victory, being everyone of them properly qualified to hold their own against any that come their way. We, The Caughnawaga eleven, and rivals in district four, wish them every success in the finals and hope to see them advance as rapidly as when in the district games. They enter the finals along with Bowmanville 1, Bridgenorth 2, Peterborough Y.M.C.A. 3 and 5 to hear from, and we think, by the showing of their new rivals, it an easy matter to capture the Stratton Cup. At first it looked as if they were to have a poor show for one of the boys was laid up for two weeks and played when he should have been under the doctor's care; this was due to the roughness of the Keene team, in the first match of the season. It

MOST DESPERATE FIGHT ON TUESDAY MORNING

General Kuropatkin Sends Report to the Czar--A Flank Assault --Japanese Repulsed Cavalry

St. Petersburg, June 16.—Emperor Nicholas has received the following despatch dated June 15, from Gen. Kuropatkin.

"An engagement occurred June 14 at Wa Fang Tien (north of Port Arthur), with a Japanese force numbering at least two divisions. Our losses in killed include Colonel Khosatounow commanding the first regiment of Eastern Siberian Rifles of your Majesty, and Second Lieutenant Drago-Staff Nadorchinsky, adjutant of the regiment. The wounded included Major-General Gerngross, who remained in the field, and Captain Krintsky, of the general staff. Twenty officers, whose names at present are unknown, were also killed or wounded, besides 311 soldiers, of which the first regiment of Siberian Rifles lost twelve officers and 200 men, and the first brigade of artillery six officers and 50 men.

RESPECTED CITIZEN PASSES AWAY

Many Expressions of Sorrow on Death of Andrew D. Russell

The following, referring to the death of Mr. Andrew Russell, formerly of Peterborough, is taken from the Winnipeg Telegram:

The funeral of the late Andrew D. Russell took place from his late residence, 122 Jarvis street, on Tuesday afternoon of this week. Rev. John Hogg conducted the services at the house and the remains were interred in St. John's cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. W. F. Graham, H. J. Edwards, J. Mowat, J. Craig, J. McLaughlin and H. Scott. The floral tributes were beautiful and numerous, among them being: Mr. and Mrs. H. Scott and family, spray; J. S. Mowat, Jr., spray; Mr. and Mrs. I. Pitblado, cross; fellow employees C.P.R. freight office, wreath; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Mowat, spray; office bearers of St. Giles' church, wreath; firm and office staff of Campbell, Pitblado & Co., wreath; Mr. J. H. Martinson, spray; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Russell, spray; Tessie Mowat, spray; Hon. and Mrs. C. H. Campbell, star; Mrs. H. Eastland, spray; north fire hall, wreath.

The late Mr. Russell was born in Baltimore, Ont., on Dec. 5th, 1826, and his boyhood was spent in the vicinity of his first home. Twenty years ago he married Miss H. F. Hamilton, of Peterborough, and his widow and one son survive him. Of the old home folks, the late Mr. Russell's father and mother and one sister (Mrs. Waddell) live in Peterborough, and a brother, Charles Russell lives in Philadelphia, Pa. These relatives all have the warmest sympathy of their many friends.

Mr. Russell always took an active part in church work and was one of the board of managers of St. Giles' Presbyterian church, in which church he also held the position of envelope secretary. He was also a member of Court Peterborough, No. 79, C.O.F.

The following letter is but one of the many expressing the esteem in which the late Mr. Russell was held by his most intimate associates:

Mrs. A. D. Russell, Winnipeg.

Dear Madam,—We, the staff of the local freight office, desire to convey to you our sympathy in your great bereavement and trust that you will have sufficient strength to carry you through this trying ordeal.

The late Mr. Russell was a faithful and trustworthy employee and his presence will be much missed from our midst.

May God in His infinite goodness comfort and sustain you in this your irreparable loss.

Yours in deepest sympathy and respect.

H. J. SULLIVAN.

Detroit Specialist Discovers Something Entirely New for the Cure of Men's Diseases in Their Own Homes.

YOU PAY ONLY IF CURED.

Expects No Money Unless He Cures You—Method and Full Particulars Sent Free—Write for It This Very Day.

A Detroit specialist who has 14 certificates from diploma boards, medical colleges and state boards of medical examiners, has perfected a startling method of curing the diseases of men in their own homes, so that there may be no doubt in the mind of any man that he has both the method and the ability to do as he says. Dr. Goldberg, the discoverer, will send the method on trial, free to all men who send him their name and address. He wants to have them write him to-day, as he is making this offer for a short time only. He says: "Any man who has become impotent, lost vitality, varicocele, emissions of waste, impotency, etc., by self-abuse or excesses, method can only cure the certain kind, but therefore all the more welcome, I want to say to those who have been cured by me, that they have no more nervousness, weakness, debility, etc. The doctor's reason for this is to save having to make out a receipt and to avoid them up, as he has made it a rule not to ask for receipt unless he sees you. He will send free, with full particulars, a valuable book, explaining fully his new method of home treatment, which is certain to cure, as he does not for any reason, claim to cure any case that he cannot cure. He has cured thousands in this way in the last few years, and has yet to find the first case that he cannot cure. He is the only specialist who has ever made such an offer, and he is perfectly honest and means exactly what he says. He will be pleased to have you write him to-day, as he wants you to have the benefit of his new discovery at once. Address him as follows: DR. B. GOLDBERG, 1 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

UNION LABEL

PETERBOROUGH, JUNE 17 1904

ONE FEATURE OF STRIKE WARFARE

There is wide discussion just now in the United States papers of the recent throwing out of employment of some 75,000 railway employes and conspicuous among the attending facts is the falling off of railway earnings in that country all through the spring at the rate of about $45,000,000 annually.

The interdependence of all branches of industry and commerce is shown in tracing this condition in the railway world to strikes, endless and expensive strikes, in mining and ore-handling, east and west, among the vessel masters and pilots of the lakes, among the freighthandlers, the trackmen, the building material men, the iron and steel workers, and in all sorts of industries.

It is well to remember that many times within two or three years, when workers struck for higher wages, the unions were warned that if they insisted on the increase of wages they demanded the inevitable consequence of any slackening of business would be a reduction in wages. They were told it would be better to take a 5 per cent. increase that they could keep than to insist on 10 per cent., which would have to be cut. They refused good counsel and gained, in many cases, 15 or 25 per cent.

Then, having exacted an inch, many of them demanded a foot, and the war went on, a continual round of unceasing strikes. The inevitable consequence has come. Business has fallen off not railway business only, but nearly all kinds of business. The war-makers have pushed wages up to more than "the traffic will bear," and they are reaping the harvest. They are learning, or are having the opportunity to learn, that men will not continue doing business at a loss for the benefit of those whose hostile action has largely precipitated the loss.

An Old Timer

We were shown a card for a ball given in the Town Hall, Brougham, Ont., on the evening of Wednesday, Oct. 9th, 1867—37 years ago. It was given by a committee of which Mr. J. M Brooks was a leading spirit, and was attended by over 100 couples. Mr. Brooks ran across the card among some old papers yesterday.

The Olive.

The olive has been applied for various medicinal purposes since old Rameses I. held away over his dark skinned subjects in northern Africa. In the days of ancient Rome the leaves and bark of the tree were used by the remarkable medical experts of that time to allay and cure violent attacks of intermittent fever, while the resinous gum which exuded from the tree in the hot season was used for many of the ills to which flesh is heir. The oil of the olive itself later was used by the Roman athletes to soothe their heated bodies after indulging in heroic attempts to break the early records for 100 yard dashes and putting the discus or shot. Then the oil of the wild olive was employed as an extraordinary panacea, guaranteed to stop the ravages of all ailments. Last of all, in more modern times the women of our own day use the olive oil in the form of soap to beautify the complexion by softening the pores and nourishing the skin itself.

Creating a Vacancy.

When the republic had been set up in France in 1848, wrote the Baroness Bonde, the first attempts of the enfranchised people to use their new powers resulted in the election of the most miscellaneous assembly that had ever tried to govern a country. A member nominated from Rouen went to Paris and selected his seat. He had hardly taken it when his next neighbor turned and stared at him. The Rouen man, embarrassed, turned up his coat collar, but too late.

"Sir," said his lynx eyed colleague, "I believe I had the honor of sending you to the galleys for murder in 18—, when I was judge. You had strangled the servant of the cure who had brought you up, and robbed the worthy man. Oblige me by resigning immediately."

The next day the Moniteur announced that there was a vacancy for Rouen, but did not tell why.

The Jury's Verdict.

An English coroner had directed the jury in a suicide case to find a verdict of felo de se. "Well, chaps," said the foreman of the jury when they had retired to consider the verdict, "it appears to me that this 'ere chap shot 'isself with a gun after shootin' another chap with a gun, but Dr. Jones, the coroner, who we all know and 'ighly respect, 'e says that this 'ere chap fell in the sea. Well, it ain't for the likes of us to go arguin' the point with the doctor, for 'e knows more about it than we do. So, I propose we find a verdict of found drowned"—and they did.

Browning's Maid.

Browning had a maid in his service who had a gift for saying quaint things. When the poet was going to pay the last mark of respect to George Henry Lewes, she said she "didn't see the good of catching cold at other people's funerals." And once, when he was away on a holiday and a journalist came to the door to inquire if it was true that the poet was dead, she indignantly answered, "I have not heard so, and I am sure my master is not the kind of a man to do such a thing without letting us know."

India's Varied Cuckoos.

In the matter of cuckoos India can give points to the British isles. The good folk at home see only one species of cuckoo, and that spends less than half its time on the British shores; we in India, on the other hand, can boast of an avifauna in which the subfamily cuculinae is represented by no fewer than thirty species.

Typhoid Victim Recovered Health

BY REBUILDING HIS WASTED FRAME WITH FERROZONE

If it is Health, Renewed Vigor, Well Balanced Nerves You Want Try the Food Tonic Ferrozone.

No stronger evidence than the case of Jno. M. Ainslee is needed to prove that Ferrozone is unsurpassed as a tonic and rebuilder. Writing from his home in Bartonville, Mr. Ainslee says: "I had typhoid fever two years ago, and for a long time couldn't get strong. I carefully followed my doctor's orders and for months took his medicine regularly but no matter what I did I couldn't get up enough strength to take an active employment again. Like most weak people I was also nervous and finally had to give up the doctor. I read of Ferrozone and decided to try it. I took the first box with fair results. I felt stronger. The second box astonished me and my strength returned very rapidly. I kept on using Ferrozone and my friends then noticed how quickly I was improving. This encouraged me to take more Ferrozone and my strength all returned in two months. When I started Ferrozone I gave up all other medicines and can say that it alone restored me. For weak, nervous people Ferrozone will do more good than anything else."

Ferrozone is both a food and a medicine. It builds up the wasted tissue and strengthens the weakened nerves by giving the system a plentiful supply of pure, nourishing blood. It puts new vigor into every organ of the body, dispels nerve sickness and lassitude. The person that uses Ferrozone will have a good appetite, healthy complexion, good digestion and a reserve of strength that protects you against pneumonia and weakening fevers.

Ferrozone is not a nauseous cod liver oil mixture but a chocolate coated tablet, combining the most strengthening elements in concentrated form. Very easy to take. Its sale has multiplied year by year and no remedy to-day holds a higher place in the esteem of the public. The success of Ferrozone is due to its ability to give strength to the weak, and cure the sick of their troubles. Insist on getting Ferrozone when you ask for it, and refuse to deal with any druggist who tries to induce you to accept some substitute affording him more profit. Price 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all druggists or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

Stanley Clarke, A. A McFall (Bottom) Prof. Andrew Smith, F.R.C.V.S., J. H Eddis, R G. O. Thomson, and others.

The chair was taken by the President Mr. T. R. Merritt, and the Assistant General Manager, Mr. E. Hay, was requested to act as Secretary.

Moved by Mr. Thomas Walmsley, seconded by Mr W. W. Vickers.

That Mr. Lyndhurst Ogden, Mr. R. H Temple, and Mr. W. Gibson Cassels be and are hereby appointed Scrutineers.—Carried.

The General Manager, at the request of the Chairman, read the Report of the Directors and the Statement of Affairs.

THE REPORT

The Directors beg to submit to the shareholders their Twenty-ninth Annual Report and Balance Sheet of the affairs of the Bank as on 31st May, 1904, together with a statement giving the result of the operations of the year which ended that day.

Out of the Net Profits of the year and balance of Profit and Loss Account carried forward, and after making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, and for the authorized contributions to the Pension and Guarantee Funds,

(a) Dividends have been paid at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, amounting to $299,194 04.

(b) Bank Premises Account has been credited with $25,000.

(c) Rest Account has been increased by $200,000

(d) Carried forward to Profit and Loss Account, $140,656 56

The Premium received upon New Capital Stock amounting to $13,688 has been added to the Rest Account, making that account $2,850,000, equal to 95 per cent. of the Paid Up Capital.

A branch of the Bank has been opened at Trout Lake, B.C., to which has been transferred the business of the Branch at Ferguson, B.C.

It is with extreme regret that your Directors have to announce the death of their late esteemed colleague, Mr. T. Sutherland Stayner, who has been a director of the Bank since 1890, and who has throughout been constant in his attendance to his duties as a Director, and to whose faithful service they now bear testimony.

The Head Office and Branches have all been carefully inspected during the year and your Directors have much pleasure in expressing satisfaction at the manner in which the officers of the Bank perform their respective duties.

T. R. MERRITT, President.

THE PETERBOROUGH RADIAL RAILWAY

Officers for the Year Elected and Other Business Transacted

A meeting of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, the first under the reorganization since its transfer to the American Cereal Co., was held on Tuesday, and the following officers elected:—

President—Mr. Robert Stuart.

Secretary and Managing Director—Mr. J. H. Learmouth, C.E.

Directors—Mr. H. P. Erowell, of Chicago, J. C. Shook and T. E. Bradburn.

The work on the rebuilding of the old line is progressing satisfactorily, and it was stated at the meeting that the expectation was to have the railway in operation by August 1st.

The Hydraulic Power Company elected officers also. This company will be practically under the same management as the Railway Company.

ANOTHER NEW INDUSTRY.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum Proposes Erecting a New Mill and Elevator

Providing it is possible to get necessary siding rights from the Council to run a branch along Simcoe street, Mr. Meldrum proposes to erect a mill and elevator near the east end of Simcoe street. Mr. Meldrum said he would either build here or enlarge at Fenelon Falls. The mill will be of a 350 to 500 barrel capacity, while the elevator will be sufficiently large for the mill—from forty to fifty thousand bushels. It is proposed to manufacture flour and cereals. It is thought that the Council will give favorable consideration to Mr. Meldrum's application. It will cause considerable of an expenditure for these buildings, besides the amount spent weekly in wages.

PROPERTIES SITUATED NEAR SILVERTON, SAN JUAN COUNTY, COLORADO. Properties consist of three groups; namely,—

THE PROSPECT BASIN AND MAMMOTH TUNNEL GROUP of 30 claims and Tunnel site aggregating 570 acres of mineral ground all held by location, and free from any conflict as to title; also in same location, three mill sites and one lode claim, total 25 acres all now being patented.

THE LEAD CARBONATE GROUP, adjoining the Gold King, of 78¾ acres all of mineral territory; this group is patented.

THE STONY PASS GROUP, 110 acres in Stony Gulch, surveyed for patent which will shortly be applied for; no adverses; title perfectly clear.

Total area Mineral territory	75⅔ acres
" " Mill and building sites	55 "
" " Timber properties	90 "
Total	903¾ acres

This was the total acreage held at organization of the Stony Pass Mining Company in December 1902. Since that date 230 acres additional have been located in Prospect Basin and surveyed with view of applying for patent at an early day.

A complete Saw Mill plant located in Cement Creek, capacity 20,000 feet per day; Lumber on hand in mill yards and at the Hercules shaft 500,000 feet. Round logs ready for the mill 300,000 feet. Cost to Company approximately $5,400, market value lumber alone $5,100.

TIMBER RESERVES.

Estimated timber, on timber land and mineral lands owned by Company, 5,000,000 feet. Contiguous territory controlled by Government from which timber can be had for cutting providing same is used for mineral purposes 40,000,000 feet.

Total cost of development to date, present management,	$53,000.00
" " " " former owners	18,000.00
" " surface improvements, buildings, saw mill plant, horses, wagons, ore cars, track, tools, etc.	17,000 00
" " Machinery paid for and to be installed	6,000 00
	$99,000 00

Above items do not include moneys expended for additional properties since Company was organized, which approximate $16,000 00.

Plant of machinery for tunnel now being installed, and all will be in operation within 30 days.

The Hercules shaft will be equipped with machinery at an early date it being impossible to do so now owing to the heavy snows.

With the Hercules property equipped with a hoisting plant, (good for a depth of 1000 feet) we will immediately sink the present shaft to a depth of 500 feet driving levels at each 100 feet to fully open the ore bodies now developed to the 145 foot point.

The Mammoth Tunnel is now in nearly 800 feet. We are confident that with the machinery in operation we will be enabled to drive the tunnel at least 200 feet per month; we are now about 600 feet from one of the main leads crossing the Tunnel. Our machinery should be in operation in about 30 days, which will put us in shape to drive ahead and cut the above mentioned lead by August 1st.

We have recently cut a number of small veins carrying high values in lead, copper and silver. These are all spurs to the vein ahead of the breast and a certain indication of the ore ahead of us.

With the Hercules developed to a depth of 500 feet and the Mammoth Tunnel through the vein and brought to the producing stage, we will be given an accurate basis for calculation as to the uniform output which may be attained for milling purposes, then mill will be built.

In the meantime only the high grade Smelting ores will be shipped the profits from which will aid us materially in further opening up the properties and building up a treasury reserve for future operations and mill construction. It is likely in view of present favorable conditions, that the sale of treasury stock will be discontinued after August 1st.

Stock is now selling at 60c a share. It will be but a short time when stock will be selling at $1.00 per share, and will do so on merit.

DIVIDENDS.

We are confident that dividends will be inaugurated early in 1905, and be continuous thereafter, and gradually increase in proportion as property developes to at least 30% per annum within two years from date of first dividend.

Considering the extent of the properties and intrinsic value underlying the stock the shares should, with that dividend in force, sell at from $3 50 to $4 00 per share.

With active development resumed on the Hercules and regular shipment of ore going to the Smelter, we will issue monthly reports to our stockholders. These should commence with the First of July.

The surface improvements on the several groups consist of 3 blacksmith shops, 2 stables, 2 large boarding houses and kitchens, coal sheds, shaft house, saw mill buildings, pipe lines, tunnel buildings, wagon roads, besides rails, railroad switch, bridges, etc.

With the equipment on the Hercules and the Mammoth Tunnel in working order, it will be unnecessary to expend finds for any other purpose but actual developments. By having our own horses and wagons, we have saved on haulage more than enough to pay for them. The Saw Mill plant, too, has paid for itself. Lumber at Silverton is worth from $18 00 to $20.00 per M., the cost to us by reason of having a mill is not over $10.00 per thousand feet.

In my next report to you it will be my pleasure to inform you that everything is in shape for a season of active operation and that shipments of ore have commenced.

Very truly yours,
A. A. BROWN.

The above is a copy of report issued early in April. Stock sells at 60c and will soon sell at $1.00 per share. The object is to build a Stamp Mill this year and Smelter as soon as enough ore is produced from these mines to run Mill and Smelter continuously. In no other form of production is capital assured of such large and certain profits as with Mining and Smelting combined under one management. It is likely that this will be accomplished by the Stony Pass Mining Co, within the next year. I will be happy to furnish you with all available information regarding these matters.

Yours truly,

ITEMS OF NEWS BY CABLE AND LETTER

London, June 16.—The fiat has gone forth calling out about a million men for the eastern campaign. These are made up of first and second class reserves, and are largely taken from districts to the north. This will be followed by the general mobilization of the whole reserves of the Russian army. Were the seat of war almost anywhere in Europe it would mean the crushing of the Japanese by sheer force of numbers. In Manchuria it means multiplying beyond calculation the difficulties connected with the transportation of supplies. The fact that Russia has become desperate is apparent even to the Chinese, who are daily becoming more hostile to their western oppressors. The cordon around Port Arthur is being tightened, and it is now only a question of days until the end, when not only will Port Arthur fall into the hands of the Japanese, but the remnants of the flower of the Czar's navy will be destroyed. The awfulness of the approaching calamity is hardly realized.

A NEW NAVY.

Feverish Anxiety of Russia to Build Ships of War.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—A conference was held at Tsarskoe Selo today between the emperor, Grand Duke Alexis, the Russian high admiral and Vice-Admiral Avelian, chief of the admiralty, at which it was decided to proceed with the construction of many new battleships and cruisers. Every shipyard in the empire will be taxed to the utmost. The programme covers ten first-class battleships and fifteen cruisers. France will also get a large contract.

JAPS BUILDING RAILWAY.

The Yellow Men Are Doing Their Work Well as They Go.

Tokio, June 16.—The Japanese are constructing a railway from Feng Wang Cheng to Shakdedse, thirty miles to the southeast, near the mouth of the Yalu River.

The movement of the Japanese along the sea is being closely watched. They are proceeding from Takushan to the southwest, following the coast, evidently reckoning upon the co-operation of their fleet.

GUARDS SECRETS WELL.

Japanese Will Let No Man Know Their Movements.

Fusan, June 16.—The present is another period of preparation and the most interesting news of events in Manchuria cannot be telegraphed because of the fact that it would furnish clues to future movements. The size of the bodies of Japanese occupying advanced positions, and the disposition of the main forces are unknown to the correspondents and military attaches, who are practically uninformed thereon except by bulletins issued here at Tokio. General Kuroki continues his policy of secrecy as successfully as he did before crossing the Yalu.

IGNORE BRITISH PROTEST.

Russians Insist That Rice and Other Food Are Properly Contraband.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—The Russian government has not yet returned an answer to British Ambassador Hardinge relative to his government's protest at Russia's declaration that rice and other foodstuffs are contraband of war, but it is learned that there is no intention on the part of the government to make modifications to meet the British view. The protest is based on the rule observed by Great Britain during the Boer war, that even foodstuffs destined for a hostile country could be considered contraband of war only if intended for an enemy's forces.

A high Russian official today called attention to the fact that at the breaking out of the present war Russia was compelled to stop at San Francisco a cargo of meat destined for Vladivostock in order to avoid its probable capture in consequence of the Japanese declaration that it would be regarded as contraband.

"Rice is an important article of food in the Japanese army, and the question whether it should be declared contraband was carefully considered when the regulations were being framed," the official said, "and the decision reached by Russia entirely justified such action. The British government is disposed to regard the question as an academic one, but should steamers which are being equipped as auxiliary cruisers proceed to the Pacific and make captures of ships loaded with provisions complications could easily arise."

Diplomatic circles are interested in the attitude the United States will adopt in the matter.

RUSSIA IN PROTEST TO AMERICA

Cassini Objects to Sending Big War Fleet as Threat to Turkey.

Washington, June 16.—Russia is seeing to prevent the sending of a large American fleet to Turkey to enforce payment of the long-standing missionary claims.

This is the unexpected situation which developed to-day from a visit of Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, to Secretary Hay. Count Assini called to inquire as to the truth of the reports that the United states is preparing to send the combined European and South Atlantic squadrons and the battleship fleet to Turkey as soon as the Tangier incident is closed, to support a demand for the immediate payment of claims amounting to more than $250,000 for outrages on American citizens and the destruction of property of American missionary societies and at the same time to insist that the sultan shall give the same protection to American citizens in Turkey as is accorded to other foreigners.

Mr. Hay's tacit admission that such is the programme caused Count Cassini to inform him unofficially, that such a proceeding would be exceedingly offensive to Russia and doubtless would result in a formal and vigorous protest from his government.

He intimated that there might be no objection to sending one or two war ships to exert pressure on Turkey, but the sending of three squadrons, including six battleships, would be resented, in spirit if not in deed, by all the powers interested in Turkey.

St. Petersburg, June 16.—The most serious news received here is that regarding the continued efforts of General Kuroki to outflank Kuropatkin's right wing, which is interpreted by a military critic to indicate the intention of the Japanese to try to cut off the retreat of the Russian army to Harbin.

With the enemy apparently about to occupy Yin Kow the plan of campaign clearly is to surround the Russian centre at Liao Yang. The Japanese, however, forget that reinforcements are pouring in daily.

THE CANADA IS TO BE RAISED

Tenders to Float Her Will Be Asked for at once

SOME SIMILAR DISASTERS

Cape Breton's Owners Think Their Vessel Was in Right the Cape Breton's Captain

Montreal, June 16.—The Canada is to be raised and tenders will be asked for immediately for the execution of the work.

That was the decision come to by the directors of the Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company at a meeting held at the offices of the company at 11 o'clock to-day.

The meeting was called to make arrangements for a rigid investigation into the matter of the collision as far as the company is concerned. The question of raising the sunken vessel was discussed for some time and a report was made by a marine expert who visited the scene of the wreck and made a careful inspection of the sunken ship.

Mr. C. F. Smith, manager of the company, when seen by a reporter, confirmed the statement that tenders were to be asked for at once for the raising of the Canada.

OPINION OF SHIPPING MEN.

The sole topic of conversation among shipping circles to-day is still the unfortunate accident of the R. & O. steamer Canada.

While the accident is lamentable, upon the ground of the loss of life, the fact that accidents of this kind always injure the route on which they occur is also a cause for deploring it.

Many similar cases are instanced by shipping men. One, the case of the Princess Alice and the collier Bywell Castle in 1878, was referred to by one gentleman of considerable nautical knowledge as that which resembled the present one most closely in its attendant circumstances.

"The Princess Alice," he stated, "was an iron excursion steamer belonging to the London, Eng., Steamboat Company. While carrying, it is supposed, above 900 persons, principally women and children, on their return from Sheerness, she was immediately sunk by collision with the collier Bywell Castle a large iron screw steamer. The accident occurred at night and the Princess Alice was cut in two. Her captain tried to beach her, but did not succeed. She sank just off the Gallion Shoal about two miles below Woolwich. There were over 500 persons drowned. There was hardly any excursion traffic on the Thames for ten years after."

The same gentleman stated that the enquiry held at the time decided that the Princess Alice was in fault in not porting her helm when she came end on to the Bywell Castle.

CRUISER CANADA WAS LAUNCHED

Lady Strathcona Performed the Ceremony of Christening

PRESENTED WITH BROOCH

A Bottle of Canadian Wine Was Used Dimensions of the New Craft

London, June 16.—A large gathering to-day witnessed the launch of the new Canadian cruiser Canada, at Vickers, Sons and Maxim's yard at Barrow-in-Furness. The christening ceremony was performed by Lady Strathcona, Hon. Mrs. Howard was unable to be present, owing to a severe cold. A bottle of Canadian wine was used in the christening.

EQUIPMENT OF VESSEL.

The principal dimensions of the vessel are: Length between the perpendiculars 200 feet; breadth moulded 25 feet; depth 14 feet. She has a ram stem and fitted with two decks. She is armored with four pom pom guns, two forward and two aft, and rigged as a fore and aft cruiser. Her speed is sixteen knots. Canadian Government Inspector Mooney expressed himself very much satisfied with the construction.

After the launch Lord Strathcona was permitted to descend into the the interior of the sub-marine. This privilege is only accorded to the principal officials of the admiralty.

A PRESENTATION.

At the luncheon Mr. Douglas Vickers thanked Lady Strathcona for performing the ceremony and presented her with a handsome diamond sapphire brooch, as a memento of the occasion, Lord Strathcona, replying for her ladyship, hoped that the new cruiser was but the first of a Canadian fleet.

AN ADDITION TO TOWN

Part of Smith Township to be Annexed

The current issue of the Ontario Gazette contains a notice of an Order-in-Council passed annexing a portion of Smith Township to the Town. The resolution passed by the Council, asked that this addition be made. It was passed in response to a petition signed by the persons living on the property to be taken over on the 1st of July, or thereabouts. The blocks affected are "D" and "E" as shown on registered plan No. 17 for the Township aforesaid. It is said this will make an addition of 165 residents to Ward Four.

TO CANADIAN INVESTORS

I desire to call the attention of investors to the

Smuggler Gold Mining Co.'s Proposition

of which I am the authorized agent

Investments in mining stocks where they can be purchased cheaply whose property contains merit and whose directors are men of unquestionable honor and integrity, and especially when sufficient work has been done to guarantee a producing mine and the leads have been demonstrated to be permanent, offer the greatest opportunity for large returns from modest investments.

The shrewdest capitalists of England and America are giving more attention to mining properties and putting more money into them than at any time in the past history of the world.

The Smuggler Group consists of five full sized claims, to-wit:—The Smuggler, Gangon, Black Jack, Star and Bed Rock, located in the Greenhorn District of Eastern Oregon. Surrounding mines are Potosi, Pride of Pendleton, Bonanza and Rockefeller, developing work to the extent of 1,000 feet of tunnelling, drifts and crosscuts have been made, exposing hundreds of tons of high grade ore, averaging from $25 to $45 per ton, based on smelter returns and for the purpose of equipping the mines a limited number of shares of Treasury Stock will be sold at 25 cents per share, the par value of which is $1.00.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals — the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago 288 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gifts; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

W. J. Gage

OLD HAGAR'S SECRET

BY MRS. M. J. HOLMES

ed beneath her weight, and, sinking into a chair, she cried, "I can't I can't."

Half an hour later, she heard the sound of wheels. A neighboring farmer was returning home from Richland, and had taken the cross-road as his shortest route. "Perhaps he will let me ride," she thought, and hobbling to the door she called after him, making known her request. Wondering what "new freak" had entered her mind, the man consented, and just as it was growing dark he set her down at Madam Conway's gate, where half fearfully, the bewildered woman gazed around. The windows of Margaret's room were open, a figure moved before them. Margaret might be there, and entering the hall door unobserved, she began to ascend the stairs, crawling upon her hands and knees, and pausing several times to rest.

It was nearly dark in the sick-room, and as Mrs. Jeffrey had just gone out, and Theo, in the parlor below, was enjoying a quiet talk with her husband, Madam Conway was quite alone. For a time she lay thinking of Margaret, then her thoughts turned upon George and his "amazing proposition." "Such unheard of insolence!" she exclaimed, and she was proceeding farther with her soliloquy, when a peculiar noise upon the stairs without caught her ear, and raising herself upon her elbow, she listened intently to the sound which came nearer and nearer, and seemed like some one creeping slowly, painfully, for she could hear at intervals a long drawn breath, or groan, and with a vague feeling of uneasiness she awaited anxiously the appearance of her visitor; nor waited long, for the half-closed door swung slowly back, and through the gathering darkness the shape came crawling on, over the threshold, into the room, toward the corner, its limbs distorted and bent, its white hair sweeping the floor. With a smothered cry, Madam Conway hid beneath the bedclothes, looking cautiously out at the singular object, which came creeping on until the bed was reached. It touched the counterpane, it was struggling to regain its feet, and with a scream of horror the terrified woman cried out, "Fiend, why are you here?" while a faint voice replied, "I am looking for Margaret. I thought she was in bed," and rising up from her crouching posture, Hagar Warren stood face to face with the woman she had so long deceived.

"Wretch!" exclaimed the latter, her pride returning as she recognized old Hagar, and thought, "She is Maggie's grandmother. Wretch, how dare you come into my presence? Leave this room at once," and a shrill cry of "Theo, Theo!" rang through the house, bringing Theo at once to the chamber, where she started involuntarily at the sight which met her view.

"Who is it? Who is it?" she exclaimed.

"It's Hagar Warren. Take her away!" screamed Madam Conway; while Hagar, raising her withered hand deprecatingly, said: "Hear me first. Do you know where Margaret is? Has she been found?"

"No, no," answered Theo, bounding to her side, while Madam Conway forgot to scream, and bent eagerly forward to listen, her symptoms of dissolution disappearing one by one, as the strange narrative proceeded, and ere its close she was nearly dressed, standing erect as ever, her face glowing, and her eyes lighted up with joy.

"Gone to Leominster! Henry Warner's half-sister!" she exclaimed. "Why didn't she add a postscript to that letter and tell us so? though the poor child couldn't think of everything;" and then, unmindful of George Douglas, who at that moment entered the room, she continued: "I should suppose Douglas might have found it out ere this. But the moment I put my eyes upon that woman, I knew no child of hers would ever know enough to find Margaret. The Warners are a tolerably good family, I presume I'll go after her at once. Theo, bring my broche shawl, and wouldn't you wear my satin hood? 'Twill be warmer than my leghorn."

"Grandma," said Theo, in utter astonishment, "what do you mean? You are surely not going to Leominster to-night, as sick as you are?"

"Yes, I am going to Leominster to-night," answered the decided woman, "and this gentleman," waving her hand majestically toward George, "will oblige me much by seeing that the carriage is brought out."

Theo was about to remonstrate, when George whispered, "Let her go; Henry and Rose are probably not at home, but Margaret may be there. At all events a little airing will do the old lady good," and rather pleased than otherwise with the expedition, he went after John, who pronounced his mistress "crazier than Hagar."

But it wasn't for him to dictate, and grumbling at the prospect before him, he harnessed his horses and drove them to the door, where Madam Conway was already in waiting.

"See that everything is in order for our return," she said to Theo, who promised compliance, and then, herself bewildered, listened to the carriage as it rolled away; it seemed so like a dream that the woman, who three hours before could scarcely speak aloud, had now started for a ride of many miles in the damp night-air! But love can accomplish miracles, and it made the eccentric lady strong, buoying up her spirits, and prompting her to cheer on the coachman, until just as the dawn grew rosy in the east Leominster appeared in view. The house was found, the carriage steps let down, and then with a slight trembling in her limbs, Madam Conway alighted and walked up the gravelled path, casting eager, searching glances around and commenting as follows:

"Everything is in good taste; they must be somebody, these Warners. I'm glad it is no worse." And with each new indication of refinement in Margaret's relatives, the disgrace seemed less and less in the mind of the proud Englishwoman.

The ringing of the bell brought down Jane, who with an inquisitive look at the satin hood and bundle of shawls, ushered the stranger into the parlor, and then went for her mistress. Taking the card her servant brought, Mrs. Warner read with some little trepidation the name, "Madam Conway, Hillsdale." From what she had heard, she was not prepossessed in the lady's favor, but, curious to know why she was there at this early hour, she hastened the making of her toilet, and went down to the parlor, where Madam Conway sat, coiled in one corner of the sofa, which she had satisfied herself was covered with real brocatelle, as were also the chairs within the room. The tables of rosewood and marble, and the expensive curtains had none of them escaped her notice, and in a mood which more common furniture would never have produced, Madam Conway arose to meet Mrs. Warner, who received her politely, and then waited to hear her errand.

It was told in a few words. She had come for Margaret—Margaret whom she had loved for eighteen years, and could not now cast off, even though she were not of the Conway and Davenport extraction.

"I can easily understand how painful must have been the knowledge that Maggie was not your own," returned Mrs. Warner, "for she is a girl of whom any one might be proud; but you are laboring under a mistake. Henry is not her brother." And then, very briefly, she explained the matter to Madam Conway, who, having heard so much, was now surprised at nothing, and who felt, it may be, a little gratified in knowing that Henry was, after all, nothing to Margaret, save the husband of her sister. But a terrible disappointment awaited her. "Margaret was not there," and so loud were her lamentations, that some time elapsed ere Mrs. Warner could make her listen, while she explained that "Mr. Carrollton had found Maggie the day previous at the Falls, that they were probably in Albany now, and would reach Hillsdale that very day;" such, at least, was the import of the telegram which Mrs. Warner had received the evening before. "They wish to surprise you, undoubtedly," she said, "and consequently have not telegraphed you."

This seemed probable, and, forgetting her weariness, Madam Conway resolved upon leaving John to drive home at his leisure, while she took the Leominster cars, which reached Worcester in time for the upward train. This matter adjusted, she tried to be quiet, but her excitement increased each moment, and when at last breakfast was served she did but little justice to the tempting viands which her hostess set before

COLONIES AND SUGAR DUTIES

Great Britains Not Bound to Penalize Colonial Bounties.

London, June 16.—In the House of Commons in reply to a question regarding the sugar convention by Mr. Gibson Bowles, M.P., Earl Percy, the under secretary of the Foreign Office, said that the question of a surtax levied by contracting states on bounty-fed sugared products was still before the permanent commission. The discussion had been adjourned to the next meeting. The sugar convention was ratified under the explicit declaration that His Majesty's Government would not consent, under any circumstances to be bound to penalize bounty-fed sugar imported into Great Britain from any of the self-governing colonies.

Letters, addressed to Williams, the London emigration crook, are still coming in batches every day from Canadian farmers, asking that domestics be sent out, and enclosing a ten shilling postal order as a fee.

EARL GRAY'S APPOINTMENT.

The Daily Chronicle says it is authorised to contradict the report that Earl Grey has been appointed Governor-General of Canada.

MARVELOUS MODERN MUSKETEERS

The World's Prize-winning Aurora Zouaves

"The pomp and circumstance of glorious war" is notably manifest in the military features to be presented here on Saturday, July 2nd, by the the great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers arenic, animal, hippodromatic and martial aggregation. Conspicuously wonderful and popular, as having, time and again, both at home and abroad, and before all the world's leading military experts, conclusively proved themselves far and away the best drilled company of either regular or volunteer soldiers ever known, cause the Aurora Zouaves. They are champion marvels in phenomenal speed and perfection of drill and manual, and while it is high praise, it may truthfully be said of them that they notably surpass even their famous predecessors, the Ellsworth Zouaves, of Chicago, whose triumphal tour in the deepening shadows of the greatest war of wars is still remembered by many veterans of both the Blue and Gray, who gained from them their first instruction in the fundamental essentials by which battles are won. And in this connection, a passing tribute to the brave, brilliant and lamented Col. Elmer E. Ellsworth is due, in recalling the fact that at the very outset of a career which promised to crown him with undying laurels he was shot dead by the landlord of a hotel in Alexandria, Va., for hauling down the Confederate flag flying defiantly from the flagpole on its roof. Those who have seen the Aurora Zouaves of which he was the tactical organizer, can imagine how enthusiastically he would have praised and applauded them, and the aptness of the similie employed by the New York American and Journal, in remarking, "The Aurora Zouaves are a huge red-legged centipede, whose celerity and precision have astonished the military world."

A RARE CHANCE

FOR CANADIAN INVESTORS

THOMAS PATTERSON & CO.
BROKERS, PETERBOROUGH

HAVING BEEN APPOINTED CANADIAN FISCAL AGENTS OF THE

CRIPPLE CREEK ENTERPRISE GOLD MINING COMPANY

of Colorado, beg to inform their customers and investors generally that they have secured a block of stock of this Company, which they now offer for sale at 35 cents per share—par value $1.00.

This stock is bound to advance rapidly. All Shareholders are on an equal basis, no preferred stock. This is a proposition in all its details so simple that every shareholder will know at all times the value of his holdings. With the vast quantities of ore now in sight, and the facilities that will be put into operation to mine it, every dollar invested in this way may yield ten, twenty and a hundred fold. As has been chronicled in hundreds of instances in Cripple Creek, where persons have purchased stock in the early stages of a mine, the price at which the stock is offered is such a bargain that it cannot fail to be subscribed for at an early date, therefore investors should act quickly.

The shares are fully paid up and non assessable (no individual liability). Each and every share represents a distinct and liberal portion of an enterprise which it is fully believed will produce millions of dollars.

The Cripple Creek Company is splendidly officered by men of high repute and with an expert knowledge of mining in all its details. The Company was organized to operate in Colorado, and properly incorporated under the laws of that State.

In the incorporation of the Company 500,000 shares of the capital stock were set aside for development purposes, and cannot be used in any other way.

We will be pleased to give full particulars to investors, and would say in conclusion. Buy now! Get in on the ground floor, as the stock will quickly advance.

St. Louis Gold Mining Co

Property includes six full claims, with a 38 foot ore body extending across 3200 feet of this property, determined by a tunnel 500 feet and open cuts and shafts every one in one. Why does St. Louis Gold Mining Co. offer the investor a chance for a money.

1. Do you know that it's title is free and clear?
2. Do you know that the stock is actually fully paid and non assessable, therefore no liability?
3. Do you know that our capital is only $150,000?
4. Do you know that 300,000 tons of ore are in sight? This is proof that you are investing in a mine.
5. Do you know—free milling and cyaniding ores are the choicest, and sought by the experienced men in treating ores?
6. Do you know, that we can prove in black and white that our ore can be treated for $1.25 a ton and save 95 per cent. of its value.
7. Do you know that our neighbors produced last year $5,000,000.
8. Do you know that by their experience we profit, and can in one year be listed among them as a paying property.
9. Because of all these points, we rank second to no other prospect and by a continuation of development and erection of a Cyanide plant in the near future, we feel confident of success in the highest degree.
10. Now, therefore avail yourself of the opportunity to investigate before investing by addressing

The Monarch Consolidated Gold & Copper Mining and Smelting Company

of BOULDER, COLORADO

Solicits the co-operation of reputable men in providing means for the thorough and rapid development of two large gold and copper mining estates, which are second to none in intrinsic value, and to this end extends every opportunity for determination as to whether statements made by the company are true or false.

The proposition when developed will pay no less than 50 per cent. per annum on the investment, and it behooves anyone who wishes to better his financial condition, to give immediate attention to this.

Full particulars in every detail will be given to all to whom such a proposition may appeal, but please do not ask for them unless you really are interested, because you waste your own time and ours also.

Capital $1,000,000, 500,000 Shares in Treasury

Property includes two great mining estates—one gold, the other copper—both containing wide, deep, proven veins of high and low grade ore.

Development work has been systematically carried on, with results that more than justify every claim made by the company, and unquestionably proves the destiny of the property to equal that of the greatest successful mining companies of the world.

Above Statement Can be Easily Verified

The following two facts alone will give anyone familiar with mining a rough idea of the great value of the property.

The Copper King Group contains one vein 30 feet wide, 8 feet of which runs from $10 to $100 per ton, and the Company owns 9 000 feet on this vein.

Ore running from $18 to $56 per ton is continually being shipped from the gold property, and 24 samples taken from widely different portions of the vein average $23 25 per ton.

FACILITIES—The Company owns 1,720 acres of placer and timber land, water power of 50 (minimum) horse power. No expensive shaft work necessary. Ore easily treated on Company's property, thus saving freight and smelter charges.

DIVIDENDS—To begin earning and paying large dividends it is only necessary to erect two 50 ton mills, one on each property. To obtain funds for this purpose a limited amount of stock is offered at

75 Cents Per Share, Par Value $1.00

INVESTORS are afforded every opportunity for the strictest investigation regarding the property and the reputation of the officers and directors. Highest banking references.

Send for prospectus, read it through and then ask for any additional information on want which will be cheerfully given. Address the Peterborough Brokerage Company or T. S. WALTEMEYER Secretary-Treasurer. Boulder, Colo.

British Armies Circles Believes the Canadian Ministers Run Militia

London, June 16.—It is understood that the real position of Lord Dundonald is that the War Office refuse themselves to recall him and refuse also to suggest to Lord Dundonald that he himself resign.

If this is so, it clearly indicates that the War Office believe that the Canadian Ministers are allowing considerations of party politics to impede the efficiency of the Canadian militia.

JESSE AIRRIES ACQUITTED.

On Charge of Assaulting a Young Lady

But He Will Have to Face Two Other Serious Charges To-day

Jesse Airries, who was charged with assaulting a young lady, choking her down and stealing her purse, was tried at the County Court yesterday, and acquitted. The evidence, which is practically the same as that presented at the preliminary trial before Police Magistrate Dumble, and which was published at the time, was not sufficient to warrant conviction.

The prisoner was ably defended by Mr. R. F. McWilliams. Mr. R. E. Wood County Crown Attorney, looked after the prosecution.

Although Airries has escaped on this charge, he will face two others equally serious today—one of theft and another of indecent assault.

The Grand Jury made the following presentment yesterday.

To His Honor Judge Weller.—Your Grand Jury of the County Court and General Sessions beg leave to make their presentment, and would extend congratulations such as the occasion seems to demand. We have to congratulate your honor upon your good health after so long and distinguished service on the bench. We wish also to congratulate the town, county and community generally upon the satisfactory condition of public morality in our midst, as evidenced by the comparative absence of crime of a serious character. In investigating the criminal charges placed before us our duty has been comparatively light.

We also examined the gaol and found everything satisfactory in regard to management by the officials, but there are material improvements necessary. The system of plumbing should be, if not replaced by something more modern and effective, thoroughly revised and remodelled. The system of heating has proved unsatisfactory, and should, in our opinion, be replaced by something more modern, more effective and less expensive.

We regretted very much the pitiable spectacle of the presence among the hardened criminals confined in the jail of a small boy aged nine years He was not separately confined, but was in direct company daily and hourly with these undesirable characters This is, it seems to us, contrary to all principles of crime prevention and instead of being a deterrent to the lad in question, it is a direct encouragement and help in fostering in him a natural instinct to lawlessness, with which he seemed to be endowed. We would respectfully recommend that, if it is at all possible, arrangements be made to place the lad under the care of the local Children's Aid Society, in whose charge he will receive treatment and be given associations which, if there is any hope for a better life for him, will place him in the way of growing up a respectable and useful citizen.

It was our intention to visit other public institutions of the town securing government aid, but as there was no conveyance at our disposal we did not make the visit and inspection which in the interests of the institutions themselves and the public seem to be periodically called for.

We are glad to note the continued prosperity of the town and county, and it seems that under such circumstances prompt steps should be taken to continue the work of providing a county and town House of Refuge, which is very badly needed, for the unsystematic and haphazard way at present prevailing of dispensing charity and helping the indigent poor is not only unduly expensive, but generally unsatisfactory. We note with pleasure that the town of Peterborough has taken a practical step in this direction by the purchase of a property which, it is said, can be used for the erection of a House of Refuge, such as is needed.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. H. STRATTON.

Grand Jury Room.

Peterborough, June 14, 1904.

His Honor complimented the jury on the manner in which they had discharged their duties, and promised that the recommendations made would be brought to the attention of the proper authorities.

THE GREAT WORK GOING ON IN MUSKOKA.

1,000 Patients Treated in the Two Muskoka Hospitals—the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Surprising Decrease of 25 Per Cent. in the Last Three Years in Deaths from Consumption.

Fifty-five Different Trades and Professions Represented by the Patients Admitted to the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Two Pavilions have had to be Closed Owing to Lack of Funds, and the Number of Patients Reduced from 75 to 50.

$25,000 Wanted this Year to Carry on this Great Work.

With a view of helping to bring to the attention of the public the needs of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives, we have pleasure in publishing the following letter, in which an appeal is made for funds.

Dear Friend,—

It again becomes necessary to make an urgent appeal for funds for the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

A very heavy debt is pressing upon the trustees.

In addition to this, funds must be provided for the maintenance of patients. Last month there was a deficiency of nearly $1,500 over and above receipts from all sources.

The Free Hospital for Consumptives was opened eighteen months ago. 235 patients have been admitted.

No patient has ever been refused admission because of his or her poverty.

1,000 patients have been cared for in the two Muskoka Hospitals, the Sanatorium and the Free Hospital for Consumptives.

The majority of these have either been cured, or so helped that they have been enabled to again become bread-winners for the family.

The public are beginning to find evidence of our work.

Already there has been a decrease of nearly 25 per cent. in the death-rate from consumption in the Province of Ontario.

The last report of the Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health shows that in the last three years the deaths from consumption in Ontario have decreased from 3,484 to 2,694, a decrease of 790, or nearly 25 per cent.

This is the more gratifying when we remember that for a number of years previously the same report showed a steadily increasing death-rate prior to 1899.

Who will doubt that the work of our two Hospitals in Muskoka, and the persistent educational campaign carried on, has not helped to secure this surprising result?

In what better way can your gifts bring so good a return?

We have no endowment, excepting the provision recently made by Canada Life, Confederation Life, and North American Life Insurance Companies for maintenance of 2 beds each for a year.

We can only rely on the philanthropy of our people and a knowledge of our needs.

Last year we asked $20,000 to reduce the debt and to pay for care of patients. We had a generous response, receiving $10,000, gifts coming from Halifax on the east and Yukon on the west. This year our needs are greater than ever. We will require $25,000.

The Bishop of Selkirk, Caribou Crossing, Yukon, sending $10.00, writes: "The trifling remittance I send is intended to express our sympathy for the sufferers in other parts, rather than to imply a special need for your institution here."

We are grateful for the large gift. We are grateful for the small gift; all gifts are helpful.

On account of our pressing needs, will you not make this your special charity?

During the year, for lack of funds, we had to close several pavilions, reducing the number of patients from 75 to 50.

The sorrowful part of our work is that nearly all of those in the Free Hospital are young men or women who were striving to make a place for themselves in the world. Many of them have wife, or child or husband anxiously watching the struggle for life.

Your gift will help to bring gladness to so many. Will you have the joy of giving?

Very truly yours,

H. J. Cody

ENDOWMENTS AT LIFE RATES

HOW do the rates compare with those of other companies?

The rates are the same as the principal Canadian Companies charge for "Whole Life" and "Twenty Payment Life" policies

WHERE can these policies be secured?

From any agent of the LONDON LIFE.

WHEN do these policies become endowments and are the endowments guaranteed or estimated?

The policies mature as endowments at about expectation of life and are absolutely guaranteed.

WHAT kind of settlement does the LONDON LIFE give at the end of twenty years?

FIVE OPTIONS or methods of settlement are offered at the end of twenty years.

The guaranteed cash surrender is the largest in Canada for the premium paid.

WHAT options are given policy holders in case of lapse or surrender

The policy holder may select one of four options.

1st. PAID UP INSURANCE for reduced amounts payable as endowments at maturity period.

2nd. EXTENDED INSURANCE for a fixed number of years and months for full amount of policy less premiums and interest thereon unpaid.

3rd. CASH LOANS.

4th. CASH SURRENDER VALUES.

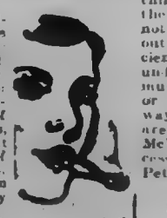
CATARRH

Don't Drug the Stomach — Breathe Nature's Remedy, Catarrhozone — Both Pleasant and Easy to Use. Guarantee of Cure goes with it.



Catarrhozone always cures because it reaches the cause of the disease quickly and thoroughly its healing vapor penetrates the minutest air cells of the nasal passages, throat and lungs. It attacks the cause of the disease direct, and doesn't work in a round about way through the stomach.

The antiseptics in Catarrhozone kill the germs that cause catarrh. It clears the nostrils, cures headache and foul breath. It prevents droppings in the throat, allays inflammation Catarrhozone now.

So certain is Catarrhozone to remove and cure that doctors, ministers and public speakers keep it as their standby for coughs, colds, catarrh and throat trouble. Because it lasts so long It is cheap, and as it is sure to cure even the poorest can afford to buy it.

Mrs J. A. Morris, of Perth, Ont., writes, "I cannot withhold my testimony for Catarrhozone It cured my daughter of chronic catarrh and I therefore heartily recommend it to all sufferers. No house should be without Catarrhozone."

Why not use Catarrhozone? It cures colds in a few hours, and no case of catarrh can withstand it. Catarrhozone cures by the inhalation of medicated air which goes to all parts of the lungs, throat and breathing organs. A pleasant, certain, quick cure follows the use of Catarrhozone, which is guaranteed under all conditions to cure catarrh in any part of the system.

AIRIES AGAIN ACQUITTED

Of All Three Charges at the County Court

The general consensus of opinion is that Arries owes his liberty to the exceedingly able manner in which Mr. Roland McWilliams conducted the defence. He this as it may, nothing is certain someone committed the assaults, and the police should not relax in their efforts to find out the culprit. Hugging is sufficiently terrifying in itself when done under distress, but highway robbery must be put down with a sure hand or there will be trouble in more ways than one In the meantime we are proud to congratulate Councillor McWilliams, who is a worthy successor of some of the best lawyers Peterborough has ever had.

RESIDENT OF EMILY DEAD

An Aged and Much Respected Lady Passes Away

On Wednesday night, in the Township of Emily, there passed away one of the oldest, if not the very oldest resident of the township, in the person of Mrs. Mary Sullivan, who had reached her 91th year—an age which few are permitted to reach. Deceased leaves six daughters and one son, the latter of whom resides at Ashburnham, Of the daughters, Mrs. Michael Kennedy lives in the township, where the deceased breathed her last; Mrs. Meaher, Mrs. Dwyer, Mrs. Clark, and Bridget, in Lockport, N.Y., and Hickey, in Ashburnham.

The funeral takes place today, the interment taking place in Ennismore cemetery.

DOMINION DAY SPORTS

A Splendid Programme of Races and Athletic Sports

The Citizens' Committee has arranged a splendid program of races and athletic sports for Dominion Day, at the Driving Park. The following are the leading events:

1. 2.23 class, pacers and trotters, best 3 out of 5 heats. $100.
2. 2.40 class, pacers and trotters, best 3 out of 5 heats. $100
3. Quarter mile pony race, 14 hands and under, prize boy's pony saddle.
4. Mile foot race, silver cup presented by R. J. Frost.
5. Half mile foot race, prize, flower vase.
6. Quarter mile foot race, pair men's shoes, presented by the Douglass Shoe Co.
7. 100 yard race, heats, for the cup.

The conditions of horse races are five to enter and four to start. Entrance for foot races free. The trustees of the Schneider Cup will have charge of the athletic sports. Entrances for all races must be made with Mr. R. J. Munro, Secretary, Tuesday, 28th, before 10 p.m.

The committee who have the sports in hand deserve every encouragement to provide entertainment for that day.

A QUIET WEDDING

Miss Alberta Long and Mr. C. Edward Clegg Joined in Wedlock

It was a quiet, but pretty, wedding which took place on Wednesday evening at the residence of the bride's mother, 676 Water street, when Miss Alberta Long, daughter of Mrs. A. Long, was united in marriage to Mr. C. Edward Clegg. Rev. J. C. Davidson performed the ceremony, in the presence of only the immediate friends of the contracting parties. The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. H. Long. The bride wore a travelling suit of blue silk voile over taffeta, and carried a shower bouquet of cream roses. She was assisted by her sister, Miss Elsie, who carried a bouquet of pink roses, and was costumed in fawn silk voile over pink taffeta. The groom was assisted by Mr Jas. Long, brother of the bride. After the ceremony the party sat down to a sumptuous repast. Miss Ethel Tully played Mendelssohn's wedding march. The bride was presented with many valuable and costly presents. Mr. and Mrs. Long will continue to make their home in Peterborough.

MR. MINORGAN HONORED

An Employee of the Peter Hamilton Co. Remembered

On Tuesday evening last the employees of the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company presented Mr. George Minorgan with a handsome gold locket and chain, beautifully inscribed, and the following address:

To Mr. George Minorgan, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Friend George,—Having learned of your purpose to retire from engagement with the firm for which you have worked so faithfully as foreman during the past score years, and that you will thereby sever your daily association with it, we the employees of the moulding department of the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company, wish to convey to you an expression of our appreciation of those qualities which, during all these years, have knit us together not only as fellow-workmen but as friends. The flight of time brings many changes, and is frequently marked by those events which, year by year, bring us to a better understanding of each other and of those responsibilities which face us as duties in our relationships one with another. You have, through it all, been a wise counsellor, a constant friend, a workmen who inspired in us all a full sense of what was highest and best in our daily round, and we now assemble to acquaint you of our feelings. It is an occasion which, while tinged with regret on our part does not lack its bright side, knowing as we do the merit of your services in the past, and we hope it will have its full measure of happiness, and entertainment and pleasant memory for you. Coupled with our very best wishes we ask you to accept this chain and locket, as tokens of the friendship and esteem and remembrance from the men of the molding department of the Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Company.

Signed on behalf of the moulders,

ROBERT MULLIGAN,
C. TURNER
WM. MOWREY,
JOHN LAW.

Peterborough, June 14, 1904.

Mr. Minorgan made a very suitable reply, thanking the men for their kindness.

Mr. Robert Mulligan, who has been with the company for 23 years, and is highly esteemed by the men, has taken Mr. Minorgan's place.

THE IMPERIAL BANK

Annual Meeting of Shareholders Very Successful

Elsewhere will be found the annual financial report of the Imperial Bank of Canada, which was presented at the twenty-ninth annual general meeting of the shareholders, held at the head office, Toronto, on Wednesday last.

As will be seen by the perusal of the figures, the Bank has had a most successful year. Out of the net profits for the year and balance of Profit and Loss Account carried forward and after making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, and for the authorized contributions to the pension and guarantee funds,

(a) Dividends have been paid at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, amounting to $299,194.04

(b) Bank Premises Account has been credited with $25,000.

(c) Rest Account has been increased by $200,000

(d) Carried forward to Profit and Loss Account, $140,658.56.

The Premium received upon New Capital Stock, amounting to $13,088; has been added to the Rest Account, making that account $2,850,000—equal to 95 per cent. of the paid up capital.

The above speaks for itself, and shows that General Manager Wilkie and officers of the Bank have carefully and wisely managed the affairs of the Bank.

HAS TRIED BOTH

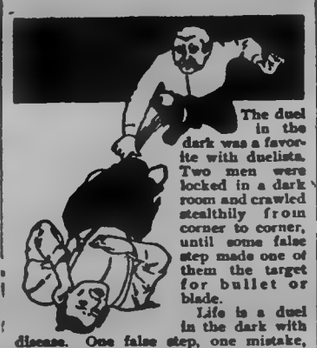
Travel for Health vs. Dieting

A man who was sent to Europe for his health and finally found cure in a little change in his diet, says:

"I was troubled with dyspepsia for five years and two doctors here in Kenosha that treated me for over a year both told me there was no help for me. Then I had an expert from Chicago, but still received no relief; then followed another expert from Chicago, who came to our house two times a month for four months. He gave me up like all the others and told me to take a trip across the ocean, which I did in the year 1899 and came home about as bad as when I started. The doctors told me my stomach lining was full of sores. Then I began to study my own case and learned of the diet recommended by the Postum Cereal Co., so I gave up coffee, pork and all greasy foods and began using Postum Food Coffee. Gradually I got better and better until I am well now as I ever was in my younger days, have no trouble and eat anything fit to eat.

"Sometimes away from home I am persuaded to drink coffee but I only take a sip of it for it tastes bitter and disagreeable to me, but the longer I use Postum the better I like it and the better I feel. I could say a great deal more of my experience with Postum but think this will give everyone a good idea of what leaving off coffee and using Postum can do." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Look in each pkg. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."



The duel in the dark was a favorite with duelists. Two men were locked in a dark room and crawled stealthily from corner to corner, until some false step made one of them the target for bullet or blade.

Life is a duel in the dark with disease. One false step, one mistake, and the attack comes swift and sudden. The mistake which commonly opens the way for an attack by disease is neglect of the symptoms of stomach trouble. When eating is followed by undue fullness, belchings, sour or bitter risings, etc., disease is attacking the stomach.

The best way to frustrate such an attack is to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, and makes the body strong and healthy.

"I was suffering very much with my head and stomach," writes Mrs. W. C. Gill, of Weldon, Shelby Co., Ala., "head was so dizzy when I would raise up in bed would fall right back. Could eat but very little, in fact scarcely anything, there seemed to be a heavy weight in my stomach so I could not rest; I had to belch very often and would vomit up nearly everything I ate. I was in a bad condition. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and five of his 'Favorite Prescription' and am now well and hearty. I feel like a new woman and give Dr. Pierce's medicines credit for it all. I had taken medicine from physicians without any benefit as I could see."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the paper covered book, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

High Class Investment

THE OREGON MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY

Offer to Canadian investors a limited amount of stock of the above company The property owned by the Company consists at the present time of about 500 acres, which are located in the Tarryall District and Park County, Colorado. This whole district has been known for years on account of its rich placer ground, and is now prominently before the public owing to the number of very good properties which have been opened up recently producing, principally, gold, and lately some that are producing Platinum. On the Oregon property there are a numbea of well known veins of low grade ore that will yield a profit by being located on the ground of the company. The company have recently opened up a fine vein in the Hawkeye group and this vein shows not only good values but an immense amount of ore which alone would make the property very valuable. Assays from ore taken from various parts of this property ranging from a few dollars to $373 per ton in gold. We have very little silver, lead or copper in the district. The company have a shaft 240 feet deep, with a good shaft house thoroughly well equipped with all modern machinery to develop same. They are now driving a tunnel which is in about 700 feet and which will cut the Hawkeye vein about 300 feet deeper than where it is opened at present. There is enough ore exposed on the property of this company to keep them busy for a number of years and the reason for selling stock at the present time is to secure funds to build a mill. The company will probably join with the Almaden Company in building this mill. There is water enough to furnish water power and over 100 acres of fine spruce and pine timber. The affairs of the company have always been managed in a business-like economical manner and there are no officers' salaries. The monies received from the sale of stock go direct into the property.

I can heartily recommend this stock as safe, as well as an unusually good investment, because of the immense amount of ore which the company have already opened up. It is not a mere prospect, but the property has been developed by expense of a considerable amount of money and time.

The company is splendidly officered by men of integrity and high standing. The company has not pushed the sale of stock the last year owing to a delay in getting title to the ground from the Government, but now that has been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be pushed to a finish.

The number of exceedingly rich strikes which have been made during the last few weeks in the various camps in the State of Colorado is the best evidence of the prosperity of the mining business. Almost every camp in the state has opened up rich bodies of ore, and Park County is well in the lead in the line.

There are only $25,000 of stock for sale, at $1.00 per share. The company is capitalized at $200,000, and the advantage to the investor of selling the stock at par, is that every share is fully paid up and non-assessable.

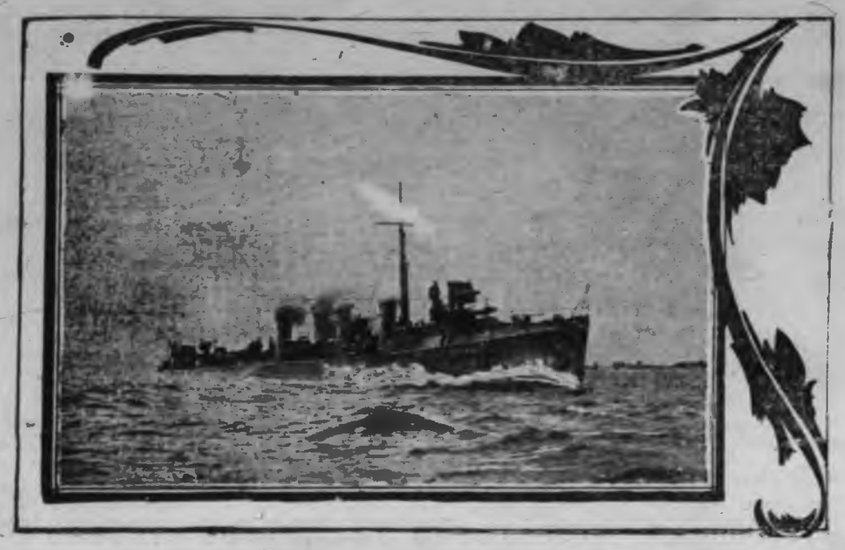
ANOTHER CRUSHING DEFEAT AND THOUSANDS OF RUSSIANS SLAIN



Russian Destroyer of the Vladivostok Squadron

Mines Laid in Port Arthur Bay by Japanese Which Affectually Bottles the Russian Ships

General Kuroki Administers Severe Punishment to General Kuropatkin's Army

Japanese Have Determined to attack Vladovostock and Destroy Russian Squadron

Big Siege Guns now Playing on Port Arthur and City may fall at any Moment

Tokio, June 18.—It was announced here last night that General Kuroki's forces had engaged the forces of General Kuropatkin, and had driven them from Wu Tai with great loss. The battle raged for hours, the Russian position being carried at the point of the bayonet. Reports state that Russians lost 3000 men in killed and wounded. It is now admitted that the Russian forces are in a very critical place, and liable to be cut in two, when their destruction will assuredly follow. The fact that Port Arthur is left to its fate shows the desperate character of Kuropatkin's position. It will require the greatest skill of the Russian general to get out of the present tangle without loss of a large portion of his army.

The Japanese have taken precautions to prevent the escape of the Russian war vessels from Port Arthur when the city falls. Admiral Togo reports that his torpedo boat flotillas proceeded to Port Arthur on the night of the 13th and succeeded in laying mines at certain points and safely returned. It will be impossible for the Russian ships to get through the mines without disaster, even if the channel at Port Arthur is open.

The disaster in the Corean straits by which the Russian Vladivostock squadron sank a couple of Japanese transports; the Hitachu, of 6,172 tons, and the Sado, of 5,219 tons, has been confirmed. Three other transports got away safely. The Russian ships are said to be moving eastward, and a pitched battle at sea is among the near probabilities. A Chinese machinist from Port Arthur states that there are only five Russian vessels there in a condition to fight; the battleships Poltava and Sevastopol, and the cruisers Bayan, Askold and Novik. Others say that the battleship Petrevitch and the cruiser Diana are also in fighting trim.

A battle is reported to have taken place at Tielesau, on the railway, eighty miles from Port Arthur, in which the Russians lost 500 killed, 300 prisoners and 14 guns. The Japanese losses are estimated at 1000 killed and wounded. Although the Japs suffered the more casualties the capture of 300 prisoners and 14 guns suggests that they were the victors. The Japs never seem to hesitate at any sacrifice of life to carry out their plans.

Tokio June 18.—Admiral Skrydloff's dash to the Corean straits has produced the first evidence of real alarm and excitement visible in Japan since the outbreak of the war. The coming of the Russian ships was predicted by the press several weeks ago, but the general public regarded the danger as remote. The authorities admit that no vessels capable of coping with the Vladivostock squadron are stationed in the heart of Japanese waters, but declare that Admiral Kamimura may be depended on to meet the emergency. Rumors of the destruction of the Vladivostock squadron await confirmation.

Admiral Togo has been advised of the situation on the home waters by wireless telegraphy, and he and naval leaders are evolving a scheme of concerted action against the raiders. Nobody believes Skrydloff can seriously effect the general campaign, but it is realized that unless put out of action he must draw off a portion of Togo's fleet from Port Arthur and delay the storming of the fortress. To gain time is regarded as the sole object of the Vladivostock ally, which is also the motive of Kuropatkin's stubborn resistance. The Japanese allow that the Russians are applying the principle of diversion with effect, but deny that anything more than diversion is intended for the present either by land or sea. Advices from Kuroki's scouts state that Kuropatkin is benefitting by the arrival of six to fourteen trains daily, part of which carry troops but the majority provisions and military stores.

This is the Signal Carried by Japanese Ships

PURSUED BY THE JAPANESE

Some Apprehensions is Felt in Japan and St. Petersburg is Delighted

Tokio, June 18.—In the absence of any official or authoritative account of the sortie of the Vladivostock squadron it is only possible to send what appears to be the most reliable of the numerous reports. The squadron, reported to consist of the cruisers Rurik, Russia and Gromoboi, and, according to some accounts, of a flotilla of torpedo boats, arrived Tuesday in the Strait of Corea, whence sounds of cannonading were heard on the Japanese and Corean coasts. It is stated that the Russians bombarded the Island of Ikuno, which lies half way between the Island of Tsushima and the Japanese mainland. It is reported that the Japs warships at Sasebo and elsewhere hastened in the direction of the firing and that the cruiser Nitaka encountered the Russians off Tsushima island. The Nitaka was severely damaged, but at last reports was still trying to keep in touch with the enemy. The Japanese transports Ungo Maru and Fugo Maru, homeward bound, had previously been sighted by the Russians, who pursued them, firing sixteen shots, but the transports reached Katasumoto safely.

Another account says that the Russians intercepted three laden Japanese transports, two of which are missing. The steamship Iburi Maru, which left Moji for Bakan at ten p.m., June 14, returned at midday yesterday, flying the signal, "The enemy's vessels are on the seas."

The Iburi Maru subsequently reported seeing the merchant steamer Mitachi Maru fired upon at six o'clock in the morning. She also saw another steamer surrounded by the Russians. Another report states that the Russians met some Japanese steamers north of Ikishima Island, some of them outward bound from Moji, while others were from the west. The warships fired on them causing great damage.

The lack of definite news is attributed to fog and rough weather. The arrival of the enemy's cruisers close to the Japanese coast is causing excitement, although it is declared that no city is exposed to attack, there is considerable anxiety regarding shipping, it being known that there are a number of unescorted vessels at sea.
